Sea Killing Mounties' First

TEN-MINUTE CHASE.

LUNENBURG, N.S., May 4—(CP)—The shooting of 30-year-old William Tanner was on the Royal Canadian Mounted Police records today as the force's first killing at sea since it took over the duty of patrolling Maritime Canada's coastal water for rum-runners.

The young Nova Scotian had been slain by gunfire from the R. C. M. P. cutter Acadian as his liquor-laden motorboat fled through choppy seas off this port with the patrol boat in hot pursuit. Shots fired into the darkness of Thursday night dropped him at the wheel of his little craft.

No Intention of Killing

Captain J. C. Kelly of the Acadian held the gun, the master told a coroner's jury yesterday. He did not intend to kill Tanner, the captain said, but a bullet had ploughed through the motorboat's wheelhouse and into the Lunenburg county man's brain as he fired at the ship's deck cargo of liquor in the hope of scaring her crew into surrender.

Crown officials could not say today whether criminal charges were to be laid as the aftermath of the incident. Alton Mason, companion of Tanner on the ill-fated cruise, had been charged with smuggling under the Customs Act, but that was all.

Mason was brought to shore under arrest early yesterday morning after the joint-owner of the unnamed motorboat had been dropped by a bullet. He was engineer on the craft, which Captain Kelly asserted before a coroner's jury had been seen contacting a larger rum-runner within three miles from land, in Lunenburg Bay.

10 Minute Pursuit

A chase of from five to 10 minutes after the sighting, and the motorboat's wheelsman was dead. First, a machine gun on the cutter was discharged after the craft as it raced away from the bigger ship after being spotted. But the gun jammed, and the bullet dropped harmlessly into the sea a few feet from the boat.

Then, according to Captain Kelly's evidence, he took out a .303 rifle and pumped five shots toward the motorboat. It stopped finally, and seagoing Mounties went aboard to find Tanner sprawled on his face, dead.

Last night the coroner's jury found he had met death "Apparently . . . By a bullet or bullets admittedly fired by Captain J. C. Kelly of the R.C.M.P. cutter Acadian while on duty near Cross Island."

Ontario Sends King Its Congratulations

TORONTO, May 4. (CP). — Ontario's congratulations to His Majesty, King George V., on the occasion of the celebration of the 25th anniversary of his accession to the throne were contained in a message Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn to-day sent to Hon. C. H. Cahan, Secretary of State for Canada, to be cabled to London, England.

Text of the message follows:

The Province of Ontario, through its representatives in the Provincial Legislature, desires to express to His Majesty the sincere congratulations of its people on the completion of twenty five years of his beneficient reign and to assure him of their loyalty and devotion to him and to their beloved Queen and to express their hope that he may be spared for many years to lead his people in the paths of peace and prosperity.

30 Quebec Settlers Head For Abitibi

QUEBEC, May 4. (CP). — Thirty strong, a group of men will leave Quebec City on May 15 for the Abitibi region of Northern Quebec —the first contingent from here of the hundreds due to return to the land under the recently adopted Quebec colonization plan.

The group will take up residence in the township of Rogeumaure on the shores on Lake Abitibi on the Quebec-Ontario border. Some of the settlers will farm in Clericy township, southeast of Oguemaure and approximately 25 mies north of the twin mining centres of Noranda and Rouyn.

As the first settlers gradually get established their families will follow as will other colonists. Complete communities are planned by the Quebec Government which will assist the settlers as much as possible.

Japanese May Curb Trade With Canada

TOKYO, May 4, (C. P. Cable via Reuters). — Hon. Herbert Marler, Canadian Minister to Japan, had a further conference to-day with S. Kurusu, head of the trade section of the foreign office, regarding Japan's demand for revision of restrictions applying to Japanese exports to Canada. It was understood the Japanese official said otherwise Japan would be forced to "take measures necessitated by the situation" arising from the favorable balance of trade Canada enjoys with Japan.

TWO CHIEFTAINS ROB PASSENGERS AND LOOT SHIP

Passengers Given $2.00 Each.

Slain Passenger's Brother is Given $70 For Funeral Expenses.

AMOY, China, May 4. — (AP) — China's women pirates, seldom seen but famous in song and story along the South China coast, were a grim reality today to 300 terror-stricken Chinese travellers who arrived here aboard the coastal steamer Lokiang.

According to the excited tales the travellers related they and the ship were in the hands of two female buccaneers and 40 male subordinates from Tuesday until Friday.

The passengers said they and the ship were robbed of $250,000 Mexican in cash and silver bars and that the pirates, after killing one passenger and wounding three, escaped in a small boat to a pirate stronghold north of here.

The steamer sailed Tuesday from an obscure port in South Foochow province for Amoy. Hardly had it got to sea when the female freebooters and 20 male accomplices, including one leper, commandeered the craft, killing and wounding the four passengers who resisted.

Twenty additional men brigands boarded from small boats, sailed passengers, and a business-like looting of the craft was begun.

The victims said the female chieftains were a strange mixture of merciless outlaw and sentimental womanhood. Before escaping to shore in the loot-laden small boats they gave a brother of the slain passenger $70 Mexican "to provide a funeral" and two Mexican dollars to each passenger "for transportation."

QUEBEC WOMAN KILLED IN LEAP ESCAPING FIRE

Two Sons Badly Injured as Two Jump From Third Story.

LADDERS ON WAY.

QUEBEC, May 4 (C.P.).—Janic-stricken as fire raced through the flat beneath her home, Mrs. J. Lamontagne, 60 leaped from a third storey window to-day and was fatally injured. Her two sons, Armand, 24, and Robert, 21, jumped from the second floor and were slightly injured. The flames never reached the Lamontagnes' quarters on the second and third storeys of the building.

Mrs. Lamontagne died of internal injuries as she reached a hospital. Armand had a broken leg and Robert only a sprained ankle.

The fire broke out in the ground floor flat of J. Blanchet. Mrs. Laomntagne and her sons were awakened by the sharp smell of wood smoke. Firemen reported they had shouted up to the Lamontagnes not to jump as they would erect ladders in a moment to bring them down, but the woman and her sons were apparently in the grip of a panic and jumped.

WOODSWORTH SEES C.P.R. BEGGING TO BE MERGED

MOUNT ALBERT, Ont., May 4.—(CP).—"Within a few years the Canadian Pacific Railway will come on its knees to the government to beg to be taken over as a national enterprise," J. S. Woodsworth, leader of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, told a C.C.F. Club in this community near Toronto last night.

"We don't intend to take over highly-capitalized companies'" Mr. Woodsworth said, "but during the war in the time of national emergency it was considered right to conscript wealth. Now in times of depression it is equally right to conscript wealth for our emergence."

London women are holding pony races.

A Sacrifice

LONDON, May 4.—Word from Bombay said that the menfolks of the wild Satpura Hills tribe took a Jubilee resolution to forego an age-old custom of beating their wives. The pledge caused some head-shaking among some of the elders who believed the women folk might get out of hand, not being accustomed to such kindness.

LINEMEN KEPT BUSY BY SLEET

Scores of Power Poles Down Throughout Western Ontario.

FRUIT MEN WORRIED.

(By the Canadian Press.)

Hard pressed linemen and repair men struggled with great tangles of wires to-day as Western Ontario began to thaw out after yesterday's wind and sleet storm which took its heaviest toll in Stratford district.

Damage in cities and towns was slight but communication was disrupted more or less throughout the area and St. Mary's, a few miles south-west of Stratford, was practically isolated early to-day. The Canadian National Telegraphs reported 45 of its poles down between St. Mary's and Thorndale, on the line to London, north of Stratford, another 45 poles were levelled between Listowel and Newton and direct telephone communication to Clinton, Seaforth and Goderich was suspended.

No Injuries Reported.

The Exeter sub-division of the C. N.T. lost 25 poles and extra men were sent to Brucefield and Hensall areas to repair lines. A car that crashed into a pole at Shakespeare brought a break indirectly due to the storm which made motor traffic drive carefully. No injuries from the storm were reported.

Fruit farmers in the Hamilton district expressed concern over the unseasonable weather and shipping was partially tied up in Hamilton harbor as great waves rolled in from Lake Ontario.

Caledon reported two inches of snow, but snow that fell overnight at Galt and other points had melted to-day. Prospects were indefinite with temperatures rising slowly and cloudy skies.

LONGSHOREMEN PROVE VICTORS OVER COMPANIES

Demands Met For Whole Season Hon. W. A. Gordon Announces.

WORK RESUMED 1 P.M.

MONTREAL, May 4 (C.P.). — Hours of negotiation resulted to-day in settlement of the longshoremen's strike which for several days has crippled shipping at Montreal. The companies acceded to the longshoremetn's demands. Announcement was first made to Hon. W. A. Gordon, Minister of Labor.

The 2,000 longshoremen who walked off the job on Wednesday and effectivetly tied up ocean shipping movements in the port obeyed the 1 p.m. starting whistle to-day and went back to work.

The waterfront, silent for four days, came to life again as steam hissed from winches and hoists clatttered and banged. The big dock sheds re-echoed once more to the rumble of loading trucks and the shouts of foremen.

Crews of the 29 freighters and one passenger liner held idle because of the tie-up, prepared once more to get their vessels out into the open sea again. Many ships were unable to sail because cargoes were not unloaded from their holds.

The longshoremen who walked out gained a complete victory. The Labor Department at Ottawa was informed all the men's demands were granted by the shipowners at a final conference at noon to-day after several previous offers had been rejected by the men.

An Invader

OMAHA, Neb., May 4. (CP). A "weird bird," to use Mrs. William Gamer's words, chased her setting hen from its nest and took over the hatching job itself. Mrs. Gamer attempted to pick the bird off the nest and suffered scratches on both hands. Mrs. Gamer's son-in-law identified the "weird bird" as a mud-hen.

Col. M. Lang Will Carry on Alone as Racine and Gallagher Quit.

REVENUES INCREASING.

TORONTO, May 4.—(CP)—Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn announced today Armand Racine of Windsor and Charles Gallagher of North Bay had resigned from the three-man Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway Commission and the railway in future will be administered by one commissioner, Col. Malcolm Lang of Haileybury, chairman of the commission.

"They understood when they were appointed they would remain until I could amend the act which required there should be three commissioners," said Mr. Hepburn. "Now we can carry on with one paid commissioner like in the Liquor Control Board and Hydro Commission."

At the same time Mr. Hepburn said if Col. Lang accepted the Liberal nomination for Temiskaming in the forthcoming federal election he would also resign.

The premier said the road has been making splendid progress and reported increased revenues. He added the railway had what was needed, "an outstanding operating man", in the person of General

Ontario Government Increases Amusement Tax

$1,500,000 SET AS POSSIBLE SUM LEVY WILL RAISE

25 Cent Theatre Tickets in Future to Bear 5 Cent Tax.

FOR RELIEF PURPOSES.

Stamp to Emphasize Reason For Import to be on All Slips.

TORONTO, May 4. — (CP) — Ontario today faced higher costs of amusements, effective June 1, following the announcement by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn of a complete upward revision of the province's amusement tax schedule which he said was caused by the necessity of obtaining additional revenue to meet relief commitments. It is expected to bring the treasury an additional $1,500,000 annually.

After the announcement late yesterday of the increased tax, Thomas J. Bragg of Toronto, secretary-treasurerof Famous Players Corporation which operates a chain of moving-picture houses throughout the province, said theatre admission prices would go up because the theatre owners could not absorb the higher tax.

Abolition of the former exemptions on tickets selling at 25 cents or less and a 25 cent tax on admission to horse race tracks whether or not admission was paid, were features of the schedule. In future admission tax tickets will bear on them the words: "Ontario Amusements Tax for Relief Purposes."

Only exemptions are entertainments by church organizations, admission tickets to the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto; Central Canada Exhibition, Ottawa, the Western Fair, London, the Royal Winter Fair, Toronto and fairs held by agricultural societies under the Agricultural Societies Act.

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 87c to 89c; oats, 35c to 37c; barley, 43c to 45c; corn, 59c to 61c; rye, 53c to 54c; buckwheat, 47c to 49c; malting barley, 65c to 69c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

In a nervous see-saw market, grain prices averaged a little lower yesterday with wet weather tending to induce sales of wheat on advances.

Possibilities that even Western Kansas would receive moisture last last night had a bearish effect on wheat. Nevertheless strength shown by the silver market and by securities acted at times as a rallying influence relative both to wheat and to other gains.

Wheat closed irregular, ¼ off to ¼ up, compared with Thursday's finish, July 97⅛ to 97⅜, corn ⅛ to ⅜ down, July 63½ to 63⅝, oats unchanged to ⅛ lower, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 15 cents.

Tenders on May contracts were heavier yesterday in all grains than had been looked for, and this gave something of an advantage to the bear side. An opposite factor was talk current that the wheat market seemed to be entitled to more or less of an upturn after recent declines of about 4 cents.

Corn displayed more of a downward price trend than wheat did.

Weakness developed in rye owing to heavy deliveries on May contracts, 875,000 bushels.

Provisions reflected hog market upturns.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Prices ruled steady in light trading on the Montreal Dairy and Produce Market yesterday. On the butter market No. 1 regraded was generally 22½c to 22½c a pound for carlots or less, with small lots to retailers quoted at 23½c to 24c a pound for solids and a cent higher for prints. Receipts were 236 boxes.

Graded shipments in carlots or less of eggs were quoted at 20c a dozen for A-large, 18c for A-medium, 17c to 17½c for B, and 16½c for C. A total of 1,443 cases was offered for sale.

Potato prices declined narrowly. No. 1 Green Mountains selling in 80-lb. bags at 45c for Quebec lights and 35c for darks, 48c for Prince Edward Island and 45c for New Brunswicks.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 4. — Continued free purchasing of wheat by non-European countries, chiefly the Orient interested traders on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday in lieu of market news that would influence the trend of the futures prices.

Values closed a desultory session ¼c lower to as much higher; May at 87⅝c and July 89¼c. Futures held steady throughout, but pit operations were at a minimum, despite a revival of foreign interest in Canadian wheat.

Smaller shipments from Southern Hemisphere countries and heavy diversion from Europe are tending to bring more buying to Canada, it was said. Yesterday's exports, the best in some days, were more than 500,000 bushels.

Most of Argentina's 2,815,000-bushel exports this week was sent to countries other than Europe while of Australia's clearances of 2,187,000 bushels, only half was sold to Europe. The remaining surplus in both Argentina and Australia was reported as much below that of a year ago.

Cash and coarse grains were idle.

HAVELOCK WORK PROJECTS DROP $631 IN MONTH

ON QUEBEC STREET.

HAVELOCK, May 4. (Examiner Correspondence). — The regular meeting of the village council was held in the council chamber Thursday evening May 2nd at 7.30, with Reeve Leeson presiding and all members present including F. J. Hooper who has been seriously ill for the past few months and was warmly welcomed back in his chair by his colleagues.

Notice of the expiry of the Provincial public hall license was received and will be renewed before the end of the month. A letter was received from Peterborough in connection with Edgard Armson's work card while a resident here.

Dummer township council wrote on account of the overcut on their 12th line wood lot. Sheriff F. J. A. Hall requested a copy of te auditors' report in the village showing Foley estate disbursements.

Several enquiries were received and dealt with concerning tax arrears by ratepayers and others interested in the purchase of village lands. The reeve and treasurer were given full power to act in the matter of the Lynch property, on motion of Councillors Hooper and Spencer.

Sidewalks to be Built

F. J. Squire addressed the council again requesting a cement sidewalk along the east side of Quebec street from No. 7 highway to his store. He said it would not only fill a long felt want, but would provide much needed employment for a number of village men.

Marmora Cheese Factory Is Opened

MARMORA, May 4 (Examiner Correspondence).—Marmora Cheese Factory opened its 1935 season on Tuesday and other factories in the district have also opened or will open soon.

Since the recent rain, the local pasture lands exhibit growth and the increase of milk and its quality for cheese production will soon be apparent. Factory patrons are naturally hoping for a better price for their milk than they have received in the past two or three years, which has given them little margin after paying for feed and factory upkeep.

A diamond which has the highest degree of purity and fineness is said to be of the first water.

GROUP IS NAMED STUDY SCHOOL TAX PROBLEMS

Duncan McArthur to Act as Chairman in General Inquiry Into Costs.

EIGHT ON COMMITTEE.

Government Will Take Responsibility for Final Decision Hepburn States.

TORONTO, May 4 (C.P.). — A committee named by the Ontario Government will start shortly a widespread investigation into the province's entire education system below the universities with the main lines of inquiry directed towards school taxation, grants and administration.

Seven men representing various sections and interests of the province, acting under the chairmanship of Duncan McArthur, Deputy Minister of Education, will have charge of the survey which was announced last night by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn.

The Premier said the committee would make no recommendations respecting the request of separate schools for a greater share of corporation and utility taxes, but the Government would take responsibility for any settlement of the school question.

Members of the committee will be: Dr. George F Rogers, Toronto, chief inspector of secondary schools; V. K. Greer, Toronto, chief inspector of public and separate schools; E. L. Longmore, Timmins; E. C. Desmormeaux, Ottawa; John Stuart, London; B. B. Patten, South Dumfries Township, Brant County, and W. T. Kernahan, Toronto.

Howard Ferguson would retire as Canadian High Commissioner on grounds of ill-health and would be succeeded by Hon. W. D. Herridge, now Canadian Minister in Washington.

LONDON, Ont. May 4 (C.P.). — Many hundreds of school children will wave flags upside down on Jubilee day, it was discovered when 7,000 flags for distribution to the children arrived at the Board of Education offices. Many of the smaller Union Jacks had been placed on the sticks wrong side up.

Sabbath Message For The Shut-Ins

THE WOUNDS OF GOD.

WHAT is God like? you asked your mother or father when you were a child. A natural question which every age has tried to answer according to its light, and very probably your parent found it very hard to answer. Very likely you thought of God as a fine old gentleman with long white beard and hair as white as snow, sitting on a throne high in the heavens. That was your childish idea. Is that your mental image still? If so, you are yet a child and have not put away childish things.

What is God like? More than three thousand years ago Moses cried, "Lord, I beseech Thee, show me Thy glory." What do you think the answer was? "I will make all My goodness to pass before thee." Moreover, the outstanding characteristic of that goodness is to be mercy. A wonderful ideal for a people whose heart had been seared in the furnace of an iron bondage in Egypt and who lived in a merciless age. It was enough for them and their children for the centuries of their national childhood. They were not able to bear any more.

Hundreds of years later a young man of good family, a scholar and a statesman, is sitting in the temple praying and meditating. His heart is heavy because the political situation is very dark. Then comes a fresh revelation of what God is like. "In the year that King Uzziah died I saw the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up." He heard the seraph song, "Holy, holy, holy is the Lord of Hosts." God is holy, and the prophet cries, "Woe is me for I am a man of unclean lips, for mine eyes have seen the King, the Lord of Hosts." He needs inward cleansing. He receives a new idea of what God is like. God is holy. Moreover the word now carries to the mind of Isaiah a new meaning. To the ordinary Israelite holy meant merely separation for the work of Jehovah. The character of the separated person mattered little. Holy to the prophet means a burning sense of his own unworthiness in the sight of the purity of God. Centuries later one greater than the prophet said, "The pure in heart shall see God." What is God like? God is holy.

A few years later another answer is given to the question, "What is God like?" A shepherd, a man of the hill country of Judea. He has a vision of God as standing on a wall with a plum line in His hand. He sees that God is a God of righteousness, who hates false dealing and false balances and the oppression of the poor by the rich. Perhaps there is no more modern prophet than Amos, the herdman. He receives a new idea of God. What is God like? God is righteous, and expects His worshippers to be just and upright in all their dealings.

Another flight of years and God gives another revelation of Himself. This time it is a young man in the land of exile in Babylon. He is a priest of the Jewish Church and the burden and horror of the exile is upon his soul. Is there any hope of revival for his people in the far-off land? He also has a vision, a gripping, soul-stirring vision. A battle field of dry bones, very dry. "Can these bones live?" "Lord, Thou knowest," replies Ezekiel. God breathed upon them and they stood up upon their feet, an exceeding great army. A heartening ideal of God, that God can give life to the spiritually dead. What is God like? God is life. In the fullness of time, a greater than Ezekiel cried, "I am the life."

Years pass, and the scene changes to Palestine. A farmer loves his wife, who has been unfaithful to him. Many times he brings her back to his home and his heart is broken with love and sorrow for his wife. Then comes the revelation that just as his heart is full of love and sorrow for his unfaithful wife so God's heart is full of love and sorrow for His unfaithful people, for whom He has done so much. To Hosea, the farmer, comes the revelation that God is love.

What is God like? Centuries pass by in the troubled history of God's ancient people. Then in the fullness of time God once more reveals Himself. God is born of the Virgin Mary by the operation of the Holy Ghost, a babe, a boy, a man. The Lord Christ in His ministry shows men what God is like. "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father." He puts His entire trust in God. He lives by faith. He chooses the highest way of life, perfect obedience to the Father's will. It means stress, strain, pain, agony and the Cross. He dies because He trusted in God. But God raised Him from the dead, death could not hold Him. He appears in that upper room to His apostles on the evening of His resurrection and He showed unto them His hands and His side. The wounds of God. The fulfilment of the prophecy. "He was wounded for our transgressions." You would never imagine God to be like that, but He is.

It may be easy for many of us to accept the statement that Jesus Christ is God, but the Jewish disciples of our Lord found it fearfully hard to do so. They believed in the unity of God intensely. It was beaten into their very soul and mind through the persecutions they had passed through as a nation. Then slowly it dawned upon them they were giving Jesus of Nazareth the value of God. Then through the Holy Spirit they knew He is God, the Only Begotten Son of the Father.

What does it mean to us? It means that if we believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God in an unique sense of the word, we also must discover that the Cross must enter into our lives, and we must die to sin and slowly, by the help of the Holy Spirit, show that we are the sons of God by our likeness to God.

The Lord Jesus now stands in the presence of the Father. He shows to the Father His hands and His side. He is our high priest making intercession for us by His wounds.

"Look, Father, look on His anointed face,
And only look on us as found in Him,
For lo, between our sins and their reward
We set the Passion of Thy Son our Lord."

Your Problems

Religious and Social Questions Answered
By DR. WYLIE CLARK

Is there such a sickness as a sleeping sickness of the soul?—B. E. S.

Sleeping sickness was known on the Congo and west coast of Africa and also in Uganda, where it was very fatal. It is caused by presence in the blood of a parasite which is communicated by the bite of a fly. We would not be far out to liken some soul conditions as being similar to those of the body under the action of this parasite—a deadly condition of sin; but many souls have a sleeping sickness of pure laziness and stupidity which keeps them from any worthwhile activity in life.

Dr. Wylie Clark

What can the church do about the social ills of the world?—W. O. R.

The church should know all about the social troubles of the world, city and country, not to lament over them, not to be discouraged by them, but to find a cure for them. That is a Christian job; heal the open sores of humanity—both body and soul. Hospitals, doctors, nurses, nourishing food, decent houses, churches, schools and other things all help. The church has done much and can still do more to furnish these. It must remove and at the same time build and supply. It can never afford to turn its back upon the sorrows and tears of men, but bear them in its heart of hearts.

Could we not all be Christians if we only had a fair chance?—F. D. Y.

What would we call a fair chance. Would it be brought up in Christian homes, a good education, a fair share of work, no worry about poverty or sickness, plenty of amusement, some culture, not too many temptations, and a numbers of other things too numerous to mention?

Supposing we had all these would we not have enough, be self-satisfied and have no need of either the church or God? An abundance of earthly goods has never been a fair chance to procure spiritual blessings; rather it has been the other way. Of course, we could, if we only would.

I heard a minister say that if it could be proved that the whale didn't swallow Jonah, he, the minister, would stop preaching and refuse to ever read the Bible again. Was he right or wrong?

It is hard to believe that he meant what he said. If he did, he is a very short-sighted man and can scarcely have any faith which touches his own thinking or living. It requires a lot of ignorance to let even a whale cast a shadow upon Providence or destroy a literature like the scriptures. Why do so many people worry about the whale and miss what the story of Jonah has to say about the attitude of Judaism to the rest of the world?

Where is Madmenah?—C. G. I. T.

It is a place in Benjamin, north of Jerusalem, between Gebim and Anathoth. The exact place is not known. See Isaiah 10:31.

Who was Ahara?—C. G. I. T.

He was one of David's captains. See I. Chronicles 27:13.

Sin is the work of Satan, who led our first parents in the Garden of Eden to distrust God and disobey his word. As a result Adam and Eve were driven from Eden. But even then God promised forgiveness through "the seed of Christ regarded sin as man's worst ailment and so when a man afflicted with paralysis was brought to him, lowered through the roof, he said, "Son thy sins are forgiven thee," and the man's faith was rewarded by forgiveness and healing.

Sin is selfish. Its demand is "Give me", as in the case of the Prodigal Son demanding of his father his share to go out to the far country of sin in search of new freedom from the restraints love had thrown around him in his home.

But famine and depression gave this boy a new view of his father's love and of his own unworthiness and he returned a changed lad, saying not "Give me", but "Make me as one of thy servants."

"AY, EVERY INCH A KING."—King Lear.

In common with every other British community over the far-flung Commonwealth that gives allegiance to King George, Peterborough will loyally observe on Monday the twenty-fifth anniversary of the accession to the throne of His Majesty and his gracious consort, Queen Mary.

The rejoicing of this gala occasion will nowhere in the Empire be a sham demonstration of mere lip loyalty—rather will be it a family celebration in which the children everywhere will joyfully unite in honoring the father of the British people.

This is a people's King the Empire honors on Monday, for as Canada's next Governor-General, John Buchan, so well says in his new book, "The King's Grace," King George, with Queen Mary and his family to help him, has made Great Britain not only a nation but a household.

Thus when King George sits down before the microphone and broadcasts a message to the British peoples everywhere, he speaks rather as the beloved head of the family than as the ruling monarch of the greatest Empire the world has ever known.

To British citizens the world over the royal family is a popular institution, symbolizing the ties of kinship that hold the British Commonwealth of Nations closely together, and this fact, along with the splendid qualities of leadership and the fine example of fortitude and courage shown by the King in the Empire's darkest hours, explains why in an age when monarchies have fallen into disfavor the British royal family is to-day more firmly enthroned in the hearts of its subjects than at any other time in history.

This has been a trying period, these twenty-five years since 1910, a period that has seen Britain tested by the world's greatest war, withstand the shock of a general strike, and emerge triumphant from an unequalled depression.

It is not too much to say that the conduct of His Majesty during these crises has been one of the chief factors in the success with which such tremendous difficulties have been faced.

To again quote John Buchan: "His quick sympathy and kindliness have warmed the country and done something to warm a chilly world. When nerves have been breaking, his steadfastness has restored them, and when strife was fermenting, he has spoken healing words. Since Tudor times, the phrase has been the King's majesty. To-day an older form of words is more filling, the King's grace. The King is of no class, being above classes. He is as much akin to the worker in the mine and to the laborer in the field as he is to the highest nobility."

It is precisely because his people the Empire over realize the truth of such statements that the silver jubilee has seized upon the imagination of true Britishers everywhere, and that on Monday there will be genuine rejoicing wherever the Union Jack is flown.

When England's greatest writer centuries ago was putting into the mouth of Macbeth a word picture of what he called the "king-becoming graces," he could not, of course, have known that he was describing in a sentence a British monarch who would live many years after, and yet can anyone recall this last quarter of a century and deny that King George V. has demonstrated every one of these attributes named so long ago by Shakespeare, "Justice, verity, temperance, stableness, bounty, perserverance, mercy, lowliness, devotion, patience, courage, fortitude"?

King-becoming graces, indeed, and how nobly have they been demonstrated in the exciting, troublesome years of the present reign!

Canada's Prime Minister is in London as the visible expression of the Dominion's loyalty to and regard for the monarch whose quarter of a century service for his people is being celebrated, but in spirit all Canada is at the heart of the Empire, proud and happy to partake in the Empire rejoicing.

Long live King George and his most gracious consort, Queen Mary, is the heart-felt prayer of the people of this, the greatest of the overseas dominions.

CANADA'S MOTOR VEHICLES.

Figures recently released as to motor vehicle registrations in Canada last year, coupled with the fact that production of new cars this year is far in excess of the same period in 1934, suggests the possibility that when the 1935 figures are complete this may prove to be the peak year.

The registrations last year totalled 1,129,532, an increase of 46,575 over 1933when the total was 1,082,957, the lowest figure in six years.

The record was set in 1930 when Canada issued licenses for 1,232,466 motor vehicles, so that it is evident that we are rapidly recovering the lost ground which at the worst represented a drop of only 12 per cent. from the peak figure.

In 1930 the figures showed one motor vehicle in Canada for every 8.2 persons, in 1934 one for every 9.6 persons, and with thousands of new cars going into commission this year, it will probably be found when the final figures are issued that we have climbed back at least to the best previous record and possibly have established a new mark.

The United States leads the world in the number of cars, but in proportion to population Canada makes a good showing, and with the return of more prosperous conditions will do considerably better.

THE LIBERAL CANDIDATE.

For the third time in succession, the Liberals of West Peterborough have honored J. J. Duffus by selecting him as their standard-bearer in a federal election campaign, Mr. Duffus having been chosen at a huge and most representative convention of party stalwarts.

One of the best known citizens of the county, the Liberal candidate has not only served his party with enthusiastic zeal and marked success but he has also in many capacities contributed useful public service as mayor of Peterborough, president of the Firemen's Association, president of the Chamber of Commerce, etc., and at no time has he spared himself when movements of value to the community were to the fore.

His presence in the field as a candidate in the forthcoming federal campaign is a guarantee that so far as he is concerned Denton Massey's hope for a clean election will be fulfilled.

In previous campaigns Mr. Duffus has shown himself a vigorous but a fair and gentlemanly fighter, one who is satisfied to discuss the real issues of the election and to avoid the personalities and attacks upon opponents that some politicians seem to regard as the necessary weapons of party warfare.

It is a high honor to be chosen as a candidate by one of the great political parties, especially when that choice is made by a convention composed of representatives from every polling subdivision in the constituency, and Mr. Duffus is to be congratulated upon the confidence that has been so unmistakably placed in him by the Liberals of West Peterborough.

A PEDESTRIAN WANTS TO KNOW.

"I am a woman of 57 years, and when I go from my home to the section down-town or elsewhere I walk as a rule. I have no car, so I am classed as a pedestrian. I do not think I am careless, as I always cross the streets at intersections. I am not a fast walker, neither am I slow on my feet. That is my statement. Now for the question: Have I a right to cross the street when a car is approaching at some distance without the thing bearing down at me and tooting the horn and never slackening speed? Is there any law which says I must jump or run when the horn of a car blows? Is there any law which says that the car has more right on the road than I have? There are so many car drivers who blow their horns at me that I thought perhaps some new law had been passed of which I was not aware giving the driver a special right and taking from me some of the privileges which I thought were the property of the pedestrian. That is my question, and I desire an answer."

Fair enough, and it is not likely this pedestrian is the only one who would like to ask the same question. Why a car driver toots his horn at a person on foot when the driver could easily slacken speed is something which cannot be explained apart from indulging in a discussion regarding good and bad manners. We have heard it said that the manner in which a person drives a car reflects that person's outlook on everything else. If the driver is a kind and considerate person in all things, then the car driving will be the same. There will be care and courtesy shown and that would mean there would be no tooting of a horn to make a pedestrian feel it was necessary to jump in order to remain alive for a little longer. The pedestrian has just as much right on the road as the driver of the car, but it is not always well to exercise that right. There has been no new law passed which gives the driver of a car more privilege than he enjoyed before, although we can well understand that our pedestrian correspondent might well take it for granted that such legislation had been made operative. The driving of a car is, after all, a plain reflection of the good or bad manners of the person who is doing the driving.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

STIMULANT TO MINING.

Removal of the federal gold tax should prove a great stimulant to the Canadian gold mining industry. In future, the Federal Government will tax dividends instead of production, a course it should have adopted in the first place.

Relieved of an element of confiscation which featured the gold tax, mining men will now go on about their business in earnest, and important results may be expected.

The Chatham News says already there is increased activity among the prospectors. The larger exportation companies are increasing their field forces and look forward to a busy year. Additional aeroplanes are being pressed into service, independent gold-seekers, heartened by the Government's decision to lift the levy to other shoulders, are making their way into the depths of the great northern hinterland in constantly increasing numbers in search of the yellow metal.

And when all is said, the rapid development of Canada's mining fields is largely the result of the initiative and perseverance of the individual prospector and the smaller groups of mining men who work their way into the mineralized zones by the canoe routes. Fortunately, most of the mining districts in Northern Ontario, the premier gold-producing province of the Dominion, are accessible by water highways, a network of rivers and creeks navigable by canoe, covering a wide stretch of territory in which the mineralized formations are located.

Reports from all sections of the north indicate an active year in mining circles. Thousands of prospectors are preparing to spend the summer in exploratory work in one or another of the mining districts that form a chain from Quebec to the Manitoba boundary. New areas will be prospected and new discoveries will be made.

Next to South Africa, Canada is the largest gold-producing nation. It is really one of the most amazing features of our Canadian life to realize what has been done by the mines of Canada. Up to the 1st of September last year they had paid in dividends more than $525,000,000. Last year our mines paid nearly $50,000,000 in dividends and the country exported nearly $200,000,000 worth of mine products to other countries. Gold mining companies alone paid in 1934 approximately $33,000,000 in dividends.

Canada's steady advance in the mining industry and the prominent place it holds in world production of this precious metal, is largely due to the consistent and persistent work of the great army of prospectors who, nothing daunted by hardship, carry on their calling year in and year out, far from the comforts of civilization.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

God bless the King and Queen! May they long live to reign over us.

The election campaign in West Peterborough is under way, for Mr. Duffus is one of those candidates who do not propose to allow any grass to grow under their feet.

Suspension of all highway work in Northern Ontario would be a serious matter. Let us hope that Ottawa will do its part in keeping the camps open.

May Day was just another Wed. in this neck of the woods, the folks here being able to sleep nights without no fear of fascism or anything of that sort and Reds being about as plentiful as grapefruit trees.

A cold wave blew in this week to the dismay of all the neighbors except the fuel dealers. Anyway we aint got no dust storms to worry about, point out we consolingly in passing.

Denton Massey of Toronto, west of here, who was in town last Sat. for the Tory get-together, landed here in a flying machine. However, his admirers say Dent aint up in the air much when it comes to organizing and such.

The village Y.M.C.A. put on a circus in the Summer Gardens here Fri. nite, with a parade and all the big top fixtures except the short-change artists and Roman Chariot races. The lads done well, say we approvingly in passing.

Your scribe hears the new silver dollars and the Jubilee $25 bills is in circulation, which ought to be interesting to everybody but newspaper men, we note somewhat wistfully.

Joe Duffus' address from now on will be somewhere in Peterborough County, Joe having been nominated by the Grits Thurs. nite and starting right out on the campaign as soon as the meeting was over.

NOT FEDERAL QUESTION

To the Editor of The Examiner,
Sir:

That the school-tax question should be thrown into the federal arena as food for the lions is apparently Mr. Hepburn's idea in postponing the consideration of it till after the federal elections. As it is not a federal question at all it will have to be made something else to make it fit into federal politics and that something else will not be a simple reference to the courts as it ought to be but all that political strategy can make of it.

A Thought

LET'S BE KIND

If we can't do a deed,
Great, unselfish and fine
Let us try to do deeds
That are kind.

If we can't speak a word
Noble, strong, true and wise,
Let us try to speak words
That are kind.

If we can't think a thought
Full of sympathy, love,
Let us try to think thoughts
That are kind.

What a world this would be
If each thought, word and deed
Full of kindness became
Let's be kind.

Your Health

by DR LOGAN CLENDENING

A year or two ago, at a meeting of a learned medical society whose special field is the action of drugs and the treatment of disease, a member read a paper on the effect of tobacco. In the discussion which followed one member delivered himself succinctly as follows:

"There have been some hard things said about tobacco, and there have been some who defend it. There has been no one able to say a good thing that it does. Why don't we dispense with it?"

Why, indeed? I know of nothing helpful that it does. I know of very little physiological effect that I feel from my own smoking. It may do some harm. It certainly costs money. I know from experience that it is a very easy habit to give up. Why don't I do it?

Ask me another. At least, I know this—the tobacco industry need not worry about any such arguments. The sales will go on just the same.

Doctors Smoke

What do doctors think about tobacco? People are always wanting to know that. Well, one answer is to invite you to go into the room when an average medical society meeting is being conducted. Tobacco smoke hangs like a fog around those learned heads.

In spite of the fact that they use it, doctors don't know of any good that it does. Coffee and tea, on the contrary, in moderation, may be said to help the body. To a less extent, the same thing may be said of alcoholic beverages. But tobacco is not helpful at all. It doesn't aid digestion or quiet nerves or anything else.

On the other hand, it can't be proved that it does much harm. The amount of damage of which it is capable will be discussed tomorrow. Certainly it produces no organic changes in the body—only functional.

So perhaps most doctors agree with Carlyle. He gave up smoking for a while and then went back to it. "I am meeserable with it," he explained. "And I was meeserable without. I'd rather be meeserable with it."

Habit's Impolite

Off the record, nothing to do with health, it's a very impolite habit. I can well imagine that the few non-smokers left in the world lead unhappy lives from the smell ,the eye-burning of tobacco smoke. I abominate the smell of cigarets, and the smoking room of a Pullman makes me acutely uncomfortable. Others do not relish my cigars. There is a story about another Victorian, Swinburne, who never smoked, and was sensitive to the fumes of the weed. He was driven out of the library of his club by the smoke, exclaiming, "James Stuart was a bigot, a tyrant, and a coward. But I love him. I cherish his memory, because he cut off the head of that scoundrel Raleigh who brought tobacco to England."

Women, by the way, have not improved tobacco manner. When I was young I heard much argument anent the filthiness of men's tobacco habits. But since it has become feminine the dainties of the fair sex will indulge in the slovenliest, impoliest tricks of messing around with her cigarets that can be imagined.

I saw a man looking in a mirror and I could always hear him thinking, "What a fine-looking fellow I am!"....It must be pleasant to be handsome like that. But how sad when the lines come and the face sags and young women pay no more attenton than they do to the rest of us.

I look into street mirrors, too, but of course you understand it is just to see if my tie is crooked again—and it is!

How fortunate for women that all women do not think alike....Most of them do not like dapper men and prefer a touch of sloppiness in the other sex. (So I have been told.)

I've noticed this: Whenever a man comes into a women's store on an errand for his wife, the young women behind the counters are always very kind to him. They know how he feels. Not exactly embarrassed, but not exactly at home, either.

I don't blame the traffic officers for having that grim look. What a lot of nonsense, guff, palaver and prevarication comes their way.

PORT CREDIT, ONTARIO

The first white man to settle in this place was Tom Ingersoll, who arrived from New York in 1808 to found a trading post for commerce with the Indians. At certain seasons of the year the Indians were unable to pay for their purchases so Ingersoll extended credit. In time the place became known as the "Port of Credit", which afterward was shortened to Port Credit.

In 1847 the government removed the Indians to a reservation at Brantford, following which the village site was surveyed and the white population moved in to establish homes.

At one time the village was the centre of large grain dealings and a shipbuilding plant was operated, but the coming of the railroads curtailed grain shipping activities.

The village was incoporated in 1913.

OUR FIRST OCEAN MAIL CONTRACT

On this date (May 4) in 1839 the first contract for the carriage of mails across the Atlantic and Canada were signed with Samuel Cunard of Halifax, the price being £55,000 per annum, which was increased to £80,000 in 1841 and £90,000 in 1843. The first mail steamer was the Brittannia which left Liverpool July 1, 1840, and arrived at Halifax in 12½ days. The mails from Canada were carried overland from Halifax to Pictou, from which point they were delivered to Quebec in what was considered the remarkable time of 5½ days after their landing at Halifax (compare this with today when mails were brought from Liverpool by the C.P.R. and delivered to the addresses in Montreal in about the same time as was consumed in the voyage from Pictou to Quebec!) The post office authorities at Halifax desirous to demonstrate to London that their city was the pivotal point in all mail communication with North America, used every effort to make the enterprise a success. In the first September of the contract, the Britannia arrived at Halifax at 7 a.m.; at 8.45 the mails for Canada were on their way to Pictou; at 10 a.m. the Britannia had proceeded on her voyage to Boston; and by noon vessels had left for Bermuda and Newfoundland carrying mails for those colonies brought by the Britannia.

Unfortunately it turned out that, owing to the delays on the St. Lawrence by fog and other causes, Canada could receive its mails more quickly via Boston than by Halifax, and the change to the latter port was made. Thus a great experiment failed. It had its origin in one of those imperial impulses, so often born in the "colonies", and which carry John Bull off his feet—for a while until his pocket is affected. Many other attempts were made to create a truly all-British mail service, but it was not until the C.P.R. was completed between Montreal and Saint John in 1889 that a Canadian mail service was able to compete successfully with mails via New York and Boston.

TWO ONE-ACT PLAYS STAGED IN APSLEY

Apsley and Haultain Young People Present Delightful Program.

APSLEY, May 4 (Examiner Correspondence).—The Y.P.S. of Apsley and Haultain United Church staged an entertainment in the Parish Hall on Tuesday evening, which attracted a full house. Apsley's contributions to the program were two one-act plays, a farce, "Pros Preferred," and a tragedy, "Pierre's Home-coming," while Haultain put on a minstrel show. Both plays went over with success, and showed carefully trained ability. Between acts Miss Ludbrook of Peterborough entertained the audience with selections on the Hawaiian guitar. One of the best numbers in the minstrel show was a humorous story told by Mrs. Charles Lauder, Haultain, who is 82 years of age. The audience would not be satisfied until she responded to an encore. The Rev. G. Porter made quite a hit as Pierre, his acting and make-up faithfully portraying the character of the wastrel prodigal. Those appearing in the farce were Messrs. Elgin Peters, John Wallbridge, Jim McGregor, Mrs. Newberry, Hazel and Evelyn Young and Lola Nesbitt, while the characters in the tragedy were personated by Rev. G. Porter, Mrs. Manning, Miss Bell, Mrs. McGregor and Doris Whitmore.

Act Changed

The former Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway Act provided for a minimum of three commissioners. Mr. Hepburn amended the act during the last session of the Legislature to make it possible to administer the road with one commissioner.

Salaries of the commissioners, fixed by statute, formerly were: chairman, $10,000; vice chairman, $4,000; members, $3,000 each. The new bill makes a maximum salary of $8,000. Mr. Hepburn said Col. Lang's salary had not yet been fixed.

The Premier said the reduction of personnel was in line with government policy. Salary of T. Stewart Lyon, chairman of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission is $10,000.

Formerly when there were three paid members of the commission the salaries reached approximately $36,000. There has been a reduction also in salaries of the Liquor Control Board, said Mr. Hepburn; Commissioner E. C. Odette received an annual salary of $10,000. At one time salaries of the former three-man liquor commission were $40,000.

"Will Mr. Racine be given another position?" Mr. Hepburn was asked.

"I don't know yet," he replied.

ONTARIO HOG PRICES.

TORONTO, May 4 (C.P.).—Bacon hogs graded unchanged to-day at four reporting centres. Prices ranged from $8.25 at Peterborough to $8.50 at Hull and Kitchener. London supplies went at $8.35.

FARM TO BE REOPENED.

TORONTO, May 4 (C.P.).—Minister of Agriculture Duncan Marshall to-day announced the Ontario Government would reopen the Government experimental farm at New Liskeard with M S. Cook, district representative of the Department, as superintendent.

Bridge lessons are being given to audiences in a London cabaret.

NICKEL SHOWS SHARP ADVANCE

Industrial Alcohol A, International Pete and Imperial Oil Active.

HALF-POINT GAINS.

TORONTO, May 4.—(C.P.)—Four interlisted issues Nickel, Industrial Alcohol A, International Petroleum and Imperial Oil, traded in unusually heavy volume in today's short session of Toronto Industrial share market and all at higher prices.

Nickel pushed up to 28 for a half point gain while Consolidated Smelters closed unchanged. International Petroleum was lifted above the 33 mark but the close was around 33 for a half point gain. Imperial held at 17, up a small fraction.

Industrial Alcohol A closed at 10 up ¼. Distillers Seagrams and Walkers common posted gains of the minimum fraction. Steel of Canada and Dominion Bridge were higher at the close. Banks and Utilities displayed listlessness and Goodyear pfd., Harding Carpets, Canadian Wirebound Box and Photo Engravers firmed. International Metals Pfd. dropped 2⅞.

PLENTIFUL SUPPLY OF DAIRY PRODUCE

Larger Supply of Potatoes Than in Recent Weeks—Sell 50-60 Cents.

Dairy produce was plentiful on the market this morning. Eggs sold at 14 to 16 cents a dozen, with small samples at 2 dozen for 25 cents. Butter was 28 to 30 cents a pound, with 25 cents as the popular price. Cream was 25 cents a pint.

Chickens were very scarce. Year-old birds were 20 cents and older fowl 18 cents. A bird weighing 3½ lbs. could be had for 65 cents, and another 3-pounder was offered for 40 cents.

"It isn't often you find a man bargaining that close," philosophically remarked one woman whose customer, a shrewd gentleman, departed with the closing words, "I'm not interested," when the lady refused to take off another nickel after bringing a five-pound sample down to 55 cents.

Plants and slips were much in evidence. Perennials: delphinium, spirea, bleeding hearts and Persian daisies, could be had from 10 to 25 cents a piece; house plants were 5 and 10 cents, and, in the outdoor section, there were phlox, galliardia, Shasta daisies and columbine, at 2 and 3 for a quarter. Pansies were 15 cents a box and dahlia bulbs a nickel apiece. Gladioli bulbs, described as the run of the mill brand, were 2 dozen for 15 cents. Raspberry canes were 2 cents apiece.

Maple syrup was $1.50 a gallon, with a democratic spoon going the rounds.

Cider was 30 cents a gallon, "made yesterday."

White honey was 10 cents a pound.

Potatoes were more plentiful than in recent weeks, priced as usual at 50 and 60 cents a bag.

Sweet clover seed, No. 1, was $4; little pigs were $10 a pair; live White Leghorn chicks were 14 cents each; Dutch setts were 15 cents a pound, and English multiplier onions, 2 quarts for a quarter.

On the open market, a boy sold horseradish at 25 cents a glass jar, and in the upper entry to the basket section, a group of tiny lads were offering fragrant green mint at 2 cents a bunch and chives at a nickel.

"Listen, lady," they advised, flourishing the chives under a surprised nose, "if you plant these in a pot you'll have flowers on them and then you can eat them for salads." They were Boy Scouts, they asserted, who wanted to go to Toronto next week and "look around." The mint and chives were to finance the trip.

Dried white beans were 15 cents a quart. Marsh marigolds were a nickel a bunch.

Sleepy little Collie pups whose mother, "Lady," is regarded as a very knowing dog, so well does she recognize the different between commands to bring home the cows or the horses, were $2 each, and so was a roly-poly little Collie that received admiring onlookers on its owner's knee. In a box a trio of toy Fox Terriers were having a game of pulling ears. They were six weeks old and could be had for $2 each.

CITY SOLICITOR WILL CONTINUE

John R. Corkery Will Continue as City Solicitor Until After Holidays.

SOUGHT INCREASE.

Suggesting that he continue in the position of City Solicitor until after the summer holidays, John R. Corkery temporarily relieved the Finance Committee of the Council last night of the duty of disposing of his resignation.

Mr. Corkery's salary is $1,500, less 12½ per cent., and he asked a month ago that it be increased to $3,000. This sum would be subject to the 15 per cent. economy reduction applying to civic salaries in that scale.

In the brief discussion last night Alderman McIntyre said that doubling the salary was "out of the question."

"I don't see anything else but to accept Mr. Corkery's resignation," Ald. McIntyre said.

Mr. Corkery again explained that his letter to the Council at its April meeting frankly set out the reasons why he could not carry on the increased work as solicitor. He pointed out again that his duties to the city had grown steadily in the last few years, largely as a result of the depression, and that he had tendered his resignation in good faith if the Council could not grant his request for the increase he regarded as sufficient to pay for the extra time demanded of him and the additional office expense that was becoming necessary he would have to resign.

Grover Brothers Are Given Three Months

LONDON, Ont., May 4 (C.P.). — After being free for a year, three Grover brothers were each sentenced to three months in the County Jail to-day on a year-old chicken theft conviction.

The trio, John, Earl and Glenn, were returned here for sentence because they did not carry out the terms of their probation.

In passing sentence, the bench said the youths had failed to pay $80 to the farmer from whom the birds were stolen, and had also failed to report monthly to police and at the end of six months to the court.

Jubilee Decorations Prominently Displayed

Local merchants and manufacturers have risen spontaneously to the spirit of the Empire-wide observance in commemoration of the Silver Jubilee of the Accession of Their Majesties King George V. and Queen Mary.

The lavish display of flags and store window decorations fully attests to the loyalty and devotion of Peterborough's citizens, and is a source of extreme gratification to the local Civic Committee, who have worked hard for the success of the Jubilee Day ceremonies here.

To merchants, manufacturers, and other business men who have not yet displayed flags or other decorations, and to householders also, it is suggested that all decorations might very appropriately be completed by to-morrow.

The official Jubilee program here commences on Sunday with special services in the churches of all religious denominations throughout the city in response to a proclamation issued by the Mayor.

Wine and liquors are to be issued by the Jersey States of England.

Catches 17 Trout

J. C. Strickland, ex-Warden of Peterborough County and former Reeve of Lakefield, opened the fishing season last Wednesday with a catch of 17 brook trout. The largest was 14 inches in length, another was 12 inches, six measured more than 10 inches and the rest were over eight. Mr. Strickland, when asked in what section of the district he made his strike, replied: "Fisherman's Paradise"—and other disciples of the rod and reel in this locality will agree that it must have been.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, May 4.—(AP)—The stock market maintained its steady to firm appearance in today's brief session with all divisions of the list showing moderate improvement. Renewed activity in sugar shares was one of the features. The closing tone was firm. Sales approximated 530,000 shares.

MONTREAL EXCHANGE.

Canadian Industrial Alcohol and International Nickel were strong leaders. Alcohol went up to a closing level of 10⅛, where it held a gain of 1⅛. Nickel gained ½ at 28, a new high for the year. Consolidated Smelters rose ½ at 150½.

Penman's recovered a point to sell at 31, while Canadian Bronze lost a similar amount at 27. Hollinger eased 50 cents at 1.00 and small losses were shown by Associated Breweries, Canadian Celanese, Canada Northern Power, Montreal Power and St. Lawrence Corporation. Steel of Canada, Canadian Pacific and a few more displayed minor fractional advances.

EXCHANGE RATES.

(By Canadian Press.)

Closing exchange rates:

At Montreal — Pound 4.85, U.S. dollar 1.00 9-32, franc 6.61⅝.

At New York — Pound 4.84, Canadian dollar 99⅛, franc 6 59½.

NEW NIAGARA THRILLS.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., May 4 —(AP).—Extra thrills Niagara Falls offers summer tourists—a boat ride into the swirling mists at the foot of the Horseshoe falls and a trip into the Cave of the Winds—will be ready for visitors to-day, much earlier than usual.

The mild winter left little ice on the rocks leading to the cave, making it possible to complete ahead of schedule wooden bridges which must be rebuilt every spring.

THREE RUSSIANS

G. N. Gordon, K.C., counsel for the five Russians who were tried at the assizes of 1919 here by the present Chief Justice of Ontario, Hon. Wm. Mulock, was notified to-day that the three prisoners, Alex Martynuk, Sam Ziluski, Phillip Rotyuski, has been set free by the act of the Minister of Justice and with the approval of the Governor-General.

Two Died on Scaffold.

Their two companions who paid the penalty of death on the scaffold in the yard of the Court House was Tom Konek and Michael Bahri.

The five men were condmened to die for the fatal raid on the quarry bunkhouse, but sentence was commuted to life imprisonment for three of the men by the late Hon. Chas. Doherty, Minister of Justice.

Planned to Rob Laborers.

The five Russians had planned to rob the Ontario Rock Company's Bulgarian laborers. The crime was suggested in the environs of Yonge street in April, 1919, and finally the five Russians arrived on the night train at Havelock, and some time about three o'clock on Sunday morning they broke into a bunkhouse, and with a flourish of noise began to order the Bulgarians to line up and hand over their wages.

In the excitement Konek, the leader of the gang, discharged his revolver mortally wounding Phillip Yanoff who was lying in a bunk. Konek testified at his trial that the shooting occurred in the dark that he did not see Yanoff, and that the gun had a weak trigger and went off in the tension of the raid.

Jubilee Pictures In Studio Window

Official Jubilee pictures of Their Majesties King George and Queen Mary reproduced in Finlay color from photographs taken by special command by Vandyk, are on display in the show window at Roy Studios.

They are full figure photographs, showing His Majesty in the uniform of an Admiral, while the Queen is pictured looking extremely regal in a gown of royal blue, with the darker blue sash of the Order of the Garter worn over her shoulder.

The pictures were specially ordered by Fred L. Roy for the occasion to be celebrated on Monday, and were received recently from England.

It was Bahri who emerged with Yanoff's $410 in a hat. The gang was rounded up by County Constable Whibbs at Indian River Sunday morning around 9 o'clock.

In imposing the death sentence Chief Justice Mulock expressed a wish to avoid a Christmastide holiday for the date of execution. A calendar was carefully examined and the fourteenth of January was finally selected as being beyond the festive period.

The two Russians died on the Slavic New Year's Day.

Durham, South Africa, will have double-checked trackless trolleys.

The level of Montreal Harbor was 50¼ inches lower than in March and 53¾ inches lower than in April, 1934. Lake Ontario at Kingston, however, was 3½ inches higher in April than in March, but 8¼ inches lower than a year ago.

The Canadian Hydrographic Service report on April water levels follows:

Lake Superior, at Port Arthur, during April was 1 inch lower than March; 1 inch higher than April, 1934; and 5¼ inches higher than the average level of April for the last 75 years.

St. Lawrence River, in Montreal Harbor, during April was 50¼ inches lower than March 53¼ inches lower than April, 1934; 195 inches lower than the highest April (1887) since 1860; 21¾ inches higher than the lowest April 1 (1931) since 1860; and 104 inches lower than the average level of April for the last 75 years.

TEST FOR FLANDIN

PARIS, May 4. (C.P.-Havas). — Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin and many other leading political figures of France will have an opportunity to estimate their gain or loss in prestige with the people when they come up for re-election to local municipal offices in the nation-wide local elections Sunday and a week from Sunday.

READY FOR HOME

CHURCHILL, Man., May 4.—(C P)—Two years of wandering in the Arctic regions ended, David Irwin was ready today to head homeward toward Grand Rapids, Mich.

Sick and weak, Irwin was found in a snow house in the Baker Lake district of the Northwest Territories, 450 miles north of here last February. He will leave here Monday for Winnipeg, arriving Thursday.

Do you HATE TO MEET PEOPLE?

SOME of us are so bashful that whenever a new face appears before us we mentally duck away! Maybe it isn't shyness so much as simply not realizing how very interesting new acquaintances can be.

Some people are shy about new foods too. One family we know has had pork and beans every Saturday night for ten years, and they see no reason for changing!

How much more interesting life—and dinner!—would be for that family with a new kind of meat, a vegetable prepared some other way, a new style in dessert. New foods—new faces—brighten our days and help make living an exciting game.

Look through the advertisements in this newspaper to-day for new ideas in foods. They're here, in abundance... recipes, tried and tested... favorite platters of favorite people... exotic dishes from exotic lands.

The advertisements bring you up-to-the-minute news of many things. Read them regularly. Form the habit of getting the most out of life—and the most for your money.

HAVELOCK WORK PROJECT DROPS

Squire's request was granted and in addition a similar walk will be built along the east side of Quebec street from William Stevenson's house to T. P. Lancaster's home in Mathison street.

Chief Constable C. F. Roberts waited on the council on behalf of the jubilee committee. A small grant was required to help defray the cost of "Miss Canada" float and paper decorations for Oak street. Souvenir flags will be distributed among the children of the school. Oak street will be decorated from George to Mathison East of the town hall. The smaller children will each receive a bag of candy.

On motion of Councillors F. J. Hooper and Harvey Gordon a $20 grant was made.

George W. Hubbel of the Hubbel Hardware was granted permission to move a two car garage from the C.P.R. freight shed to his property on Quebec street.

Relief officer John Kinnaird's favorable report was duly received by the council on motion of Councillors E. W. Seeney and A. Spencer. Various work projects in the village resulted in a $631.79 reduction being only $433.15 as compared with $1,064.94 for the month of March.

The council reported the basswood lumber from their wood lot had been sold profitably to the Cameron Lumber Company in Toronto.

Councillor F. J. Hooper was loud in his praises of the commendable work done by Relief Officer Kinnaird and the exceedingly good judgement used in dispensing the necessities of life to the unemployed of the village.

Collections Mount

Tax Collector Roberts reported collections in good shape and a full year's taxes have been gathered with exception of $200 since August last year.

Various plans were then put forth for more adequate fire protection for the village and especially King street residents who it was learned would be in a precarious position in the even of a bad fire owing to the shortage of good wells. It was reported that one owned by Russell Hill and one other well on the street were the only two that would stand up under heavy usage in the event of a bad blaze.

The assessor warned the council of the $4,000 reduction in the assessor's roll during the past year on account of fire.

On motion of Councillor's Spencer and Gordon the collector was to carry on for another month.

An amendment by Seeny and Hooper "That the roll be accepted with the exception of two arrears" was supported by Reeve Leeson.

A motion by Gordon and Spencer will have the council look over the property west of the hall with a view to constructing a woodshed.

On motion of Spencer and Gordon the next regular meeting will be held June 3rd, and will go into court of revision for tax appeals.

Way to Ease Headaches, Pain Almost Instantly

METHOD OFTEN RELIEVES NEURALGIA AND RHEUMATIC PAINS IN MINUTES!

Millions have found that Aspirin eases even a bad headache, neuritis or rheumatic pain often in a few minutes!

In the stomach as in the glass here, an Aspirin tablet starts to dissolve, or disintegrate, almost the instant it touches moisture. It begins "taking hold" of your pain practically as soon as you swallow it.

Remember these two points: Aspirin Speed and Aspirin Safety. And, see that you get ASPIRIN. It is made in Canada, and all druggists have it. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every Aspirin tablet.

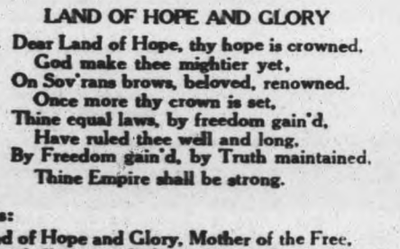
Get tin of 12 tablets or economical bottle of 24 or 100 at any druggist's.

Why Aspirin Works So Fast



Drop an Aspirin tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches the bottom, it is disintegrating.

IN 2 SECONDS BY STOP WATCH — An Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work.

What happens in these glasses happens in your stomach—ASPIRIN tablets start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

RULE, BRITANNIA

1. When Britain first at Heav'ns command
Arose from out the azure main,
This was the charter of our land,
And guardian angels sang this strain:

Chorus:
Rule, Britannia,
Britannia rules the waves,
Britons never shall be slaves.

2. Still more majestic shalt thou rise,
More dreadful from each foreign stroke,
As the loud tempest that tears across the skies
Serves but to root thy native oak.

Chorus.

GOD BLESS THE PRINCE OF WALES

1. Among our ancient mountains
And from our lovely vales,
Oh, let the prayer echo,
"God bless the Prince of Wales."
With heart and voice awaken
Those minstrel strains of yore,
Till Britain's name and glory
Resound from shore to shore.

Chorus:
Among our ancient mountains
And from our lovely vales,
Oh, let the prayer, echo,
"God bless the Prince of Wales."

2. Should hostile bands or danger
E'er threaten our fair isle,
May God's strong arm protect us,
May Heav'n still on us smile;
May Fortune's star long shine,
And round its sacred bulwarks
The olive branch entwine.

Chorus.

LAND OF HOPE AND GLORY

1. Dear Land of Hope, thy hope is crowned,
God make thee mightier yet,

Thine equal laws, by freedom gain'd,
Have ruled thee well and long,
By Freedom gain'd, by Truth maintained,
Thine Empire shall be strong.

Chorus:
Land of Hope and Glory, Mother of the Free,
How shall we extoll thee, who are born of thee?
Wider still and wider, shall thy bounds be set;
God who made thee mighty, make thee mightier yet.

2. Thy fame is ancient as the days,
As Ocean large and wide;
A pride that dares and heeds not praise,
A stern and silent pride.
Not that false joy that dreams content,
With what our sires have won:
The blood, a hero sire hath spent,
Still serves a hero son.

Ontario Births, Deaths For 1934 Lowest in Ten Years

MARRIAGE LIST HIGHEST SINCE TOTALS OF 1929

62,762 Were Born, 35,158 Died and 25,443 Went to the Altar.

'29 PEAK DEATH RATE.

TORONTO, May 4 — An interim report on births, marriages and deaths in Ontario for the ten-year period 1924 to 1934 showed the Province recorded in 1934 a new low in the birth and death rate for that period and the highest marriage rate since 1929.

25,443 Marriages

Births in 1934 were placed at 62,762 in the Registrar-General's report. The rate was 17.8 per 1,000 population, compared with 23.2 per 1,000 in 1924. Deaths were 35,158, a rate of 9.9. Deaths were 35,158, a 1924, and the number of marriages was 25,443. The marriage rate was 7.1. In 1929 there were 25,605 marriages and the rate was 7.8.

The death rate has been steadily dropping since 1929, when there were 38,123 deaths and a per 1,000 rate of 11.4. There were 38,018 deaths in 1928, first year on record in the 10-year period, and a rate of 10.9. The 1933 death total reached 35,331, with a rate of 10 per 1,000.

A steady decline in the birth rate since 1924 has also taken place. The ratio was 23.2 per 1,000 in 1924, when 71,900 births were recorded.

Ratio Drops

The ratio dropped to 21.3 in 1925, stayed at 20.9 for 1927 and 1928, dropped to 20.8 in 1929 increased to 21 per 1,000 in 1930, and then lowered to 18.1 in 1933.

The high point in marriages for the 10-year period was 1929, when 27,605 marriages were reported and the rate was 8.3. In 1933 the rate had dropped to 6.6, with 22,567.

Peterborough's Possibilities

By NORTH SHORE

ARTICLE 48

When it was announced recently in the European press and also in our own, that a Polish scientist had discovered a way to make gold, the financiers of Europe who had evolved a great system of finance based on the scarcity of gold, shuddered to think there was such a possibility. If it was true that even a small amount could be made, it meant "the beginning of the end" for gold as a basis.

It has been said that it took a now great motor magnate, twelve years to build his first car, but thereafter he built a million cars each year. It might take years to find out how to make a small amount of gold but once it was done, the the quantity could easily be multiplied. When the financiers doubted the possibility of making gold instead of mining it, they must have been unaware of the capabilities of the human mind. I believe it can be done but in a different way to that of the Polish scientist. I have known the formula for a long but always had the idea it was in a sense a form of sacrilege, to make it in a different way than God made it. He put it in the rocks for humanity to search for and find and use, rightly.

In Peterborough and adjacent counties some of the gold ore has arsenic in it. This has sometimes been the reason for the abandonment of such deposits because it was not known how to handle it. Such was called "poisoned gold." Sometimes arsenic was extracted and became useful as an insecticide, but the gold was not as it should be. However, there is a way to treat arsenical ores, different to any process now used.

When I told a government official of such a possibility, he said: "If you know of any process better than the cyanide process, there is plenty of money for you and look at the service you could render your country."

So, from that statement, it would appear there was room for improvement in the methods now used! The cyanide process was sold for six hundred thousand dollars. A process to make steel was sold for ten million dollars and the company that purchased it, at the time, expected to make steel in a steel plant in Peterborough County! But they didn't do it and now the leading constructive minds of that organization are interested in other things.

If a process for steel, superior to the one referred to, could be formulated to insure cheapness in manufacture without in any way hurting the product, we may yet have a great steel works because the formula is basic of the plant.

If a process for the easy eradication of arsenic in ore could be formulated, we might be able to produce gold from the rocks which would be basic of millions of dollars.

If the amount of money which could be issued for any given quantity of gold, was issued for the exclusive use of the people in the districts where the gold was mined, like in Peterborough district, we would be tempted to get the gold ore out of our rocks! When I say that, I am not referring to the thirty-five dollars an ounce but to the immense amount which the pure ounce creates over a period of years as that agree does its work!

Before long, the nations will bow to gold. Gold will be the real measure and all debates are only for a time and then fade out of the world picture—so, if we here in Peterborough County want to benefit from the gold in our rocks as far as being used in the financial system, is concerned, it will be necessary to hurry to get it out of our rocks. In a few years, it will be still useful but in another way!

It has been said in hurrying people to action in various lines: "Don't be another St. Simon the Stylite who sat on top of a pillar for twenty-seven years thinking things over." In other words—action is needed! Why the former railway moguls didn't erect the steel plant in Peterborough County at the site chosen and after paying the enormous sum of ten million dollars for a process to make the steel, I do not know. Last summer I examined that site. The area chosen was all staked out or had been but the area was too small for a large plant—a plant with a ten million dollar process! But what a beautiful site it would have been for a score of other things! It was never a real estate promotion scheme but there it was; i.e., iron to the depths of thousands of feet, water nearby in inexhaustible quantities, limestone not far, fluorspar not far, dolomite not far, and as an engineer and I gazed on that foresaken site, we wondered what Peterborough County would have been, had that dream of steel become an actuality. We mused about the reason for the desolate appearance of the surroundings as we tripped over chunks of ore or lot-stakes. It looked as if something had frightened the would-be builders away, never to return! What form could such a fright could take? Was it the drying up of the financial stream at the time, or did they discover that steel could be made without dolomite? I don't think the latter was the reason, because other great steel plants to-day use limestone and fluorspar. Whatever the reason was for withdrawal from that site, it must have been most powerful because nature is still there but men and machines are lacking!

I wonder what would happen if a plant was erected in Peterborough city to make steel without using limestone or fluorspar etc.?

Such a process would obviate the necessity of such a huge capital investment as is represented in other steel mills, with their miles of trackage and scores of buildings. In such an event, what would happen to those industrial plants? Would they become obsolete? I don't think so! A plant, using a simpler process however, would be able to manufacture steel in Peterborough city, cheaper, and Peterborough might therefore become the Pittsburgh of Canada!

When it was announced during the World War that a process had been discovered to make gasoline for a cent a gallon and the formula was said to have been sold for the sum of seventy-five million dollars —that didn't make all the, then, gasoline equipment obsolete? Who later secured the formula for gasoline at a cent a gallon? So, it is possible to make the finest steel with less handling and less expense than now. Iron ore in unlimited quantity is, of course, needed. Such is within reach, by present railways, of Peterborough city but at present, I am not going to tell the world how simple the formula for steel really is!

As we go along with these articles and use our scientific knowledge in an intelligent manner among the rock-formations of Peterborough and adjacent counties, we may be able to find something saleable in the markets where wise men purchase—sufficiently valuable to start the fulfillment of some of the ideas appearing in this column or which you have, without asking any one—the public—to finance them. Great things—lasting things—are long in maturing. An old proverb says: "The soonest ripe, the soonest rotten." It is so in human affairs. Some people, and some ideas, are slow to mature but when matured, uncommonly capable! Watch for this column and in it you may soon see a way to help "Peterborough's Possibilities."

Our Common Birds

A Column Written for the Bird Lovers of Peterborough and District.

By FRANK PAMMETT.

THE HOUSE SPARROW
(English Sparrow)

The House Sparrow is too well known to require special description. It is recognized by almost everyone, even at a great distance. After seeing the species in our streets or barnyards, no one need ever confuse this bird with another. The House Sparrow was originally distributed over all Europe and most of Asia, and is now found throughout North America to the limits of settlements.

There were no House Sparrows in North America until 1850, when a man named Nicolas Pike brought eight pairs to Brooklyn to try to combat, and so destroy, canker-worms. The bird is really not a sparrow at all, but a Weaver-bird, and a close study of this well-known pest will prove to you that it is more closely connected with Weaver-birds than to Sparrows. For example, you would find that true Sparrows have only nine primary feathers, while the House Sparrow (and all Weaver-birds) have ten.

In spite of being Weaver-birds, and therefore members of a family that includes the best nest-builders, House Sparrows seem contented to build great, bulky, untidy nests of straw and grasses. Almost every house-holder knows when the nest-building is going on, by the need of an extra sweep or two with the broom on the front of back verandah.

The principle objections to the House Sparrow are three in number. First: It drives more useful birds away. Second: It is very dirty and untidy about buildings; and Third: It is suspected of spreading poultry diseases—which is quite possible since it feeds with many different flocks of fowl in the course of its daily hunt for food.

There is no doubt about it, the introduction of the House Sparrow into America was a great mistake, and it looks very much as though he's here to stay. It has been legislated against, and large sums have been spent in the attempt to control it, but all to no avail. It may be of interest to note here, that House Sparrows multiply at such a rate that, in ten years one pair of these birds could have 275,716,983,-000 descendants.

Watch for next week's column and read about another of our common birds.

FISH and GAME COLUMN

Conducted by The EXAMINER for the Protection of one of Ontario's greatest Resources

"Unless we get extra wardens here immediately our game fish will be cleaned out. Conditions are beyond poaching. There is practically an open fish market. Estimated hundreds of fish are being taken from the Otonabee river daily."

This was the message wired early this week to W. D. Taylor, deputy minister of the Fish and Game Department, by the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association.

Mr. Taylor's reply was that additional seasonal overseers will be appointed at once.

An investigation into the conditions complained of by the Fish and Game Association was made by the writer. It was learned beyond question of doubt that hundreds of pounds of pickerel have been taken from the Otonabee within the past ten days. One evening alone there were two score of men fishing from the locks and dam above Rye's. Some of them were daring enough to cast repeatedly.

The familiar pretence was that they were gaffing for suckers. In some cases no such pretence was given. At that it has been plainly stated that gaffing for suckers is prohibited.

A deputy game warden endeavored to question one of the fishermen late one evening at the locks. Taking advantage of the darkness, the poacher, a youth, struck the deputy in the face and then ran away.

Fred Marshall, fish and game inspector, has been sending all his energies to protecting the spawning maskinonge and bass. Properly, he considered the spawning fish the most important part of his duties. He had no time to give attention to the poaching for pickerel going on at the locks.

THE SPORTING INSTINCT

A sportsman put it nicely the other day. He said, "I was down the river the other afternoon. The bass and muskies were in the shallows spawning. I could have taken a bunch of them. I didn't, if for no other reason because it would have been too easy. I'd rather get 'em on a line. There's sport then."

NO HATCHERY HERE

For this season at least the Fish and Game Department has refused to grant the request for the establishment of a small portable maskinonge hatchery near Burleigh Falls. The request for this hatchery was made by the Peterborough Fish and Game Association and the Stoney Lake Cottagers' Association, members of both organizations deeming it the most direct and fruitful way of restocking this end of the Kawartha Lakes.

Several letters strongly urging the location of the hatchery were sent W. D. Taylor, deputy minister of the Department. Mr. Taylor's reply was received this week.

His letter states: 'The Department deems it unwise to make use of other little hatcheries at additional expense when ample space is available for hatching the eggs at Belleville or Picton. Hatching them at Belleville, however, will in no sense of the word interfere with their return to the waters of the County of Peterborough or adjoining waters suitable for 'linge, and from which your Association will derive the benefit therefrom."

In letters to Mr. Taylor, local sportsmen rightly argued that it was unfair to this district, from which most of the spawn for the hatcheries at Belleville and Picton is obtained, not to have at least a small hatchery devoted wholly to restocking local waters.

Although the Department's attitude is discouraging to say the least, local sportsmen are not going to let the subject die out. The Department will hear much more from this quarter before the next spawning season rolls around and Mr. Taylor will have to find a better argument against the hatchery than he has produced thus far.

PROPAGATION A SCIENCE

A great deal of science is required in the propagation of maskinonge and bass. The difficulties experienced in successfully raising maskinonge in this country is one of the greatest reasons why every effort should be made to safeguard the muskies now in our waters.

In fact one maskinonge authority maintains that in Ontario we can not successfully grow maskinonge. This work is succeeding in New York State at Chatagua and at the Woodruff hatchery in Wisconsin.

The chief difficulty in Ontario is feeding the fish after they have been carefully developed to a very small size. No successful method of feeding has yet been devised although experiments being carried out in this connection are hopeful.

Bass can be propagated, but the big job here is to teach them to feed. They are not raised scientifically here as they are across the border. A bass prefers to kill its prey and will not take anything that is not moving. It has been suggested that a man might feed by the bass first getting them thoroughly accustomed to himself by feeding them live minnows and later sneak in some dead minnows with the live ones. Gradually the fish might be weaned off the live minnows and be given anything offered them in the belief that all given them was alive.

Feeding the bass has the problem of feeding the Dionne babies beaten a mile. Veteran fishermen express the opinion that it can never be done with any success.

We relate these facts with a view of emphasizing the value of the maskinonge and bass we have now in our waters. Within recent weeks the writer has heard many fishermen state that if present conditions continue within a few years maskinonge will have become almost an extinct species. It has been suggested that a closed season for several years be clapped on maskinonge, but it is debatable as to the practicability of this action.

WATCH THE BAROMETER

How much does barometric pressure affect trout, bass and maskinonge fishing? A writer in the May issue of Outdoor Life maintains that it has a great deal to do with the success or failure of fishermen.

In a lengthy article he writes, "A trout or a bass carries with him a barometer far more sensitive and accurate than the average sold in stores. I have had trout forecast for me a bad storm which would not arise until 24 or 36 hours later. If you care to check this, I think you find the following is the general rule: Rising glass—good fishing; steady glass (high)—fair; steady glass (low)—fair; falling glass—poor to very bad." He continues with experiences that definitely lend strength to his belief.

TOO CHILLY

The trout fishermen are still mute. No brave stories of big beauties caught in the Cavan streams have been circulated as yet. The cold weather has dimmed the ardour of the trout specialists. "Why go out and freeze myself," excused one troulsters, who has yet to journey forth. "They'll be there next week and it will be warmer then."

A REAL PERFORMANCE

That display of fly and bait-casting put on last Saturday in front of the armouries by the three Toronto masters of the rod still has local fishermen talking. The trio showed all the tricks of the art of casting. The distance and perfection they put into their casts has never been seen here previously.

Getting Even

NEW YORK, May 3 (CP)—A sandy-haired farm youth from Arkansas, charged with a racket which the judge called the "world's meanest," was held in $1,500 bail to-day for trial in General Sessions Court.

The prisoner, booked as Donald May, 24, denied the allegations, but six persons identified him as the man who had taken sums of $1 to $21 from them for "uniforms," on the promise of getting them jobs that never materialized.

May, formerly of Neely, Ark., protested he had been victimized in a similar manner when he arrived in New York about a year ago.

W.M.S. PRESENTED LIFE MEMBERSHIP

Westwood Society Meets at the home of Miss Jessie Davidson.

WESTWOOD, May 4 (Examiner Correspondence).—Miss Jessie Davidson, president of St. Andrew's United Church Women's Missionary Society, opened her home on Wednesday afternoon to the members, for their May meeting, with twenty-six members and visitors present.

Mrs. P. W. Newell kindly took the chair for the meeting, and the singing was led by violin accompaniments played by Misses Mary and Ruth Cameron.

In the devotional period a special program, "Easter Service of Worship" was followed, which included several readings, prayers and hymns. It was decided to order one annual report for 1934-35, for the use of the members.

A short poem entitled, "No Time for God," was given by Mrs. Newell after which Misses Mary and Ruth Cameron favored the meeting with a violin selection. Miss J. Davidson gave a reading, "Your King Needs You."

Mrs. A. Metcalfe, a guest from Hastings society, addressed the meeting, speaking from the three words, "Study, Pray, and Give." The speaker stressed the first two words, Study and Prayer as being the most important, and if followed earnestly there would be no lack in the Giving. Time, talent and money is our stewardship to God, and not money alone.

Present Life Membership

An interesting feature of the meeting was an address, read by Mrs. Cameron to Mrs. R. C. Breckenridge and the presentation of a life membership certificate, the gift of the society, together with a wax begonia, presented by little Shirley Clysdale. Mrs. Brackenridge responded graciously for the honor bestowed upon her.

A hymn, and prayer by Mrs. Metcalfe brought a very pleasant and profitable meeting to a close. A dainty lunch was served by the group in charge and all enjoyed a social time. A vote of thanks was extended the hostess, Miss Davidson, and also Mrs. Newell and Mrs. Metcalfe and all who had assisted in making the meeting a success.

What have I done!

SUPPOSE THIS HAD BEEN YOUR CHILD!

Children by nature are carefree. You must think for them, and for other pedestrians, constantly. Be sure your brakes, tires and lights are effective. Drive slowly and be particularly careful wherever there may be children . . . especially on holidays and week-ends. Train yourself so that safe driving becomes second nature to you

If you don't, some day you may find yourself not only severely penalized but also minus a driver's license . . . for life!

Empire Pays Tribute to Their Majesties on Silver Jubilee

On Monday, the people of the British Empire will join hands in tribute to their Majesties King George and Queen Mary on the occasion of their silver jubilee—twenty-five years of reign—a quarter of a century of service. The series "Our King and Queen," which has been appearing daily in The Examiner has reviewed briefly the lives and characters of King George and Queen Mary from earliest childhood. In this, the final release in the series, we present UPPER LEFT, the lovely Princess May, as the queen was known before her marriage. UPPER RIGHT, Prince George, the "Sailor Prince," when he was about twenty-two. CENTRE, their Majesties, the King and Queen, splendid in their royal robes, from a specially posed recent photograph. BELOW LEFT, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, heir to throne. CENTRE, the colorful coronation parade on June 22, 1911. RIGHT, the King and Queen in their coronation robes. King George ascended the throne on May 6, 1910, on the death of his father, King Edward VII.

Loyal Message to Be Sent King

Among the thousands of congratualtory messages and expressions of loyalty and devotion that will be received by Their Majesties King George V. and Queen Mary on the occasion of their Silver Jubilee anniversary from all over the Empire will be one from the citizens of Peterborough.

The text of the message to be cabled to Their Majesties, as drawn up by a special committee composed of Mayor Roland Denne, City Clerk S. R. Armstrong, Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr and James Dutton, is as follows:

"To His Most Gracious Majesty King George V. and Queen Mary."

"With heartfelt gratitude, we, the citizens of Peterborough, in company with loyal subjects throughout the Empire, tender our felicitations to Your Majesty and to your gracious consort, Queen Mary, upon the occasion of your Silver Jubilee."

"May your reign for years to come continue to be blessed with the Divine favor.—Roland Denne, Mayor."

France's smallest conscript, Joseph Gimard, who lives near Grenoble, weighs 56 pounds and is four feet one inch tall, has just passed the army medical examination.

Our King and Queen

IT is very meet, right, and our bounden duty that we should give thanks unto Thee, O Lord, Holy Father, Almighty, Everlasting God, for that Thou wast pleased as on this day to set Thy servant our Sovereign Lord, King George, upon the Throne of this Realm and has profited him in days of sickness and of health throughout his reign of five and twenty years.

FOR the example of unceasing service set by him and by our gracious Queen Mary; for strength and steadfastness bestowed on him and for the love and loyalty borne to him by a great family of peoples and in all parts of the world, we laud and magnify Thy glorious Name.

WE bless Thee for increase in the knowledge of Thy marvellous works, in care for those who suffer from sickness or the lack of work, in desire that all men everywhere may live in peace and enjoy the fruits of their labor.

FOR these and all Thy mercies vouchsafed to us, O Father, Almighty, we yield Thee unfeigned thanks; through Jesus Christ our Lord, to whom with Thee in the Unity of the Holy Spirit be all honor and glory now and for evermore.

This is the Church of England's Official Jubilee Prayer which will be heard in Churches throughout te Empire

"THIS DAY OF JUBILEE"

Joyous praise to Thee we tender
On this day of jubilee!
Nations of an Empire render
Harmonies of felicity;
For a unity and tranquility
Amidst years tinged red with woe;
Yet abides the throne of Britain
'Stablished safe though war winds blow.

Servant of the people! Tribute,
On this day of jubilee,
We would pay,—of that true kingship
Redolent of sincerity.
First 'mongst equals, midst thy peoples,
Dwelling 'neath continuous day;
True democracy and freedom
Mark thy blessed sceptre's sway.

Guardian of the home tradition!
On this day of jubilee
Thy renown's in honored children
Loved by all thy people free.
Verily, sons and daughters, happily,
One before the populace,
Testify of homely virtues,
Truth, beauty, love's adorning grace.

Defender of the Faith! We thank thee
On this day of jubilee,
For religion's glorious heritage
Held, sustained, 'mid liberty.
For thy loyalty and thy probity!
By these doubting souls have soared!
Sceptic's sneer, contempt surmounting!
Still God's worshipped and adored.

CANADA AND EMPIRE HONOR KING AT JUBILEE

New Epoch at Home Cataclysms Abroad Mark King's Reign

Accession of George V Gave Him Part in Vital Issues of Britain and Her Contact With Foreign Lands.

By THOS. T. CHAMPION,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

BOTH at home and abroad the political sky was sombre with cloud in May, 1910, when King Edward VII was gathered to his fathers at Windsor and George V reigned in his stead.

King Edward—the "Uncle of Europe"—and the German Emperor had in the previous 12 months exchanged visits with every outward show of respect and urbanity. Nevertheless, the feeling of distrust and suspicion between the two peoples remained acute, even though King George reminded the Kaiser, when the latter attended the unveiling of the Victoria Memorial in the early months of King George's reign, of the "strong and loving ties of kinship and friendship" between the thrones and persons of the two Sovereigns.

Kaiser's Last Visit.

THAT visit was the last the German Emperor ever paid to England. Competent observers have recorded how the Kaiser then persistently attempted, but in vain, to ingratiate himself with Lord Kitchener. During that visit, too, thousands of Londoners beheld the Kaiser, in shining armor, place himself before the Victoria Memorial, and gaze along the tree-lined Mall. Seven years later, on Armistice Day, 1918, the long avenue down which the Kaiser had swept his glance was filled with captured German guns, and the Kaiser was in flight.

At home the people, or at any rate the politicians, were still agitated over the question of curtailing the power of the House of Lords to veto Bills passed by the Commons. "Reform the Lords" had indeed been a Liberal cry for at least 50 years. The muttering grew to a rumbling when Conservative peers at a private meeting at Lansdowne House resolved, in advance of the measure being introduced into the Lords, to reject the Liberal government's Licensing Bill. The clash between the two Houses became intense when the Lords threw out Lloyd George's drastic budget of 1909. Subsequently the Prime Minister, Mr. Asquith, fortified by the result of two general elections within 12 months, resolved upon introducing the Parliament Bill to curb the veto of the Lords. If the Lords would not pass the measure then Mr. Asquith would advise the King to create such a number of new peers as would secure its passage.

The bitter feelings aroused by this controversy, and the delicate position in which it placed King Edward, are said to have hastened that monarch's death. King Edward had found that he could no more influence the Kaiser to reduce the German naval program than he could induce the House of Lords to pass Lloyd George's budget. Bound up with this problem, of course, was the equally vital question of Home Rule for Ireland.

These were the only major ingredients in the seething kettle of political trouble when King George assumed the mantle of monarchy. The Suffragettes, in their fanatical propaganda over "Votes for Women," were making life burdensome for cabinet ministers by incessant interruption of their speeches and the infliction upon them even of physical violence. The "shrieking sisterhood," too, were smashing whole streetsful of windows, burning churches, firing letter boxes. There were threats of a wholesale strike among the railway workers of Britain, and a like discontent in several other great industries.

When Lords Gave In.

King George had had the privilege, which had naturally been denied King Edward, of himself listening to the earlier debates on the veto both in the Lords and Commons. The controversy continued bitterly between Lords and Commons, and between Liberals and Conservatives, although it must be confessed that the great mass of electors manifested but an idle interest in the hubbub raging around Westminster. Meanwhile King George was ever at the call of those entitled to approach him. It is equally on record that—with complete courtesy but with firmness—the King refused audiences to certain of the highly-born who desired to gain his ear but had no constitutional claim for the privilege. Finally the majority of the peers brought themselves to swallow what must have been, quite naturally, a bitter pill.

King George was thus saved the necessity of creating sufficient new peers to ensure the passing of the Parliament Bill. Concerning this Sir George Arthur writes: "The Sovereign may have put his lips to a bitter draught when he agreed—as constitutionally he was almost bound to agree—to exercise a prerogative which was urged on him not only by the government in power, but by the electorate which had deliberately renewed its mandate to that government. Surely a far more nauseous cup was to be presented to him 10 years later when a prime minister, who cared nothing for the feelings of the Sovereign, and less than nothing for the prestige of the Upper House, submitted—submission is scarcely the term—such disputable names for peerages that one of the nominees must ask permission to decline the honor after it had been announced in the public press." These latter observations are obviously directed against the honors list compiled in the closing period of Mr. Lloyd George's premiership.

Vital Irish Question.

The emergence again into prominence of the Home Rule question formed an inevitable sequel to the passing of the Parliament Act. Three months before the war broke out a Home Rule Bill awaited nothing, so far as constitutional procedure was concerned, but the royal assent. The threat of civil war in Ireland, however, induced the prime minister, Mr. Asquith, to delay matters until an amending bill should give the Ulster counties the option of "contracting out." Meanwhile the Ulster Volunteers were drilling, and the position was gravely complicated further by an assurance said to have been given to troops at the great British camp in the Curragh that they would not be called upon to put down Ulster resistance.

It was at this stage that King George took a bold step, seemingly on his own initiative. His Majesty summoned to Buckingham Palace a conference of representatives of the government, the opposition, the Irish Nationalists and the Ulster Unionists. The King's words of welcome provoked some little comment. "My intervention at this moment may be regarded as a new departure," said the King. "But the exceptional circumstances under which you are brought together justify my action. For months we have watched with deep misgivings the course of events in Ireland. The trend has been surely and steadily an appeal to force, and today the cry of civil war is on the lips of the most responsible and sober-minded of my people. My apprehension in contemplating such a dire calamity is intensified by my feelings of attachment to Ireland and of sympathy with her people, who have always welcomed me with warm-hearted affection."

The action of his Majesty in calling the conference was hailed in most quarters as but a forthright and ingenuous royal gesture in the search of peace for Ireland. Nevertheless, it did not entirely escape criticism, on the ground that the King's intervention tended to provoke at least a suspicion of "palace influence." In any event the conference proved abortive, and merely served to emphasize that agreement on Ireland's future form of government was, at that time of day, out of the question.

John Redmond's Assurance.

Less than a fortnight later the dogs of war were unleashed. From his seat in the British Commons John Redmond, the great Irish Nationalist leader, delivered on the very eve of war the following pregnant sentences: "I say to the government that they may to-morrow withdraw every one of their troops from Ireland. The coast of Ireland will be defended by her armed sons from foreign invasion, and for this purpose armed Nationalist Catholics in the South will be only too glad to join arms with the armed Protestant Ulstermen in the North."

To close here this review of the King's personal association with Irish political matters one may refer to his Majesty's visit to Belfast, following the passing of the Home Rule Bill of 1920. D. C. Somervell, the well-known publicist, in referring to the speech of the King asking for peace, forbearance and conciliation throughout all Ireland—though looking beyond the frontiers of the six counties—writes: "Whether these things were his own suggestion is a question on which much has been surmised, though the secret has been very properly kept."

Care Intensely For Public Good

THE profound esteem in which King George and Queen Mary are held is based upon the conviction of millions of people that they and their whole family really do care intensely about the welfare of their subjects and pursue it year in and year out by every means in their power, declares D. C. Somervell in a recent book. He says: "It is no secret that the King is keenly interested in politics, and the Queen in all that concerns health, housing and the domestic welfare of the people. And, in spite of the triumphs of political feminism, this is exactly the division of interests which the ordinary man and woman approves. Some men live in history as the authors of a single outstanding achievement. Others build perhaps a safer and steadier reputation upon a thousand unostentatious actions. It is high up in the second of these classes that King George will find his place."

Wrote to Czar On Eve of War

ONLY the scantiest records have yet been made public of King George's personal intervention in matters concerned with the conduct of the war, and it is improbable a full account will be given for many years.

His Majesty has never had the flair for European politics which was so notable in King Edward, and when King Edward had skilfully tried and failed it was perhaps hardly likely that King George would attempt to pursue the same line of amiable overture. It is known, however, that in those fateful days just before August 4, 1914, when Great Britain was standing for the moment outside the vortex, and when Russia and Austria were already mobilizing, King George with his own hand wrote a last earnest appeal to the ill-fated Czar, offering any service which it was possible for a British King to summon, in the way of mediation.

King George's only endeavor to follow his father's example in making visits to foreign capitals occurred in April, 1914, when, with Queen Mary he went to Paris to return the visit which President Poincare had paid here the previous summer. The King's speeches at all the big banquets in the French Capital were studiously non-political. Whether his Majesty then realized even better than his Ministers that the clash of arms was a matter of weeks only is a matter certain to remain hidden for many years to come. When the Earl of Derby became Ambassador at Paris soon after the close of the war the King attended the first Reception given at the Paris Embassy.

Troops Regard King As Their Chieftain

Monarch's Thought for Escort Brought Understanding With Respect.

TO some extent, indeed, King George on ascending the Throne minimized the pomp and pageantry associated with his station. Perhaps this was due in part to force of circumstances rather than of choice, but it is a fact that the trooping of the color on the King's birthday, the state opening of Parliament, and other ceremonies peculiar to the British Crown have been conducted with rather less ornateness than in the time of his father. King George, for instance, quickly put a stop to the practice of finding some of the expense connected with the furnishing of the sovereign's escort out of the pay of the troopers themselves. On many occasions during the present reign when the weather has proved unkind for such a ceremony as a royal levee, King George has cancelled the carriage procession in order that the escort might not be subject to superfluous work.

"How long does it take to clean the white sheepskin?" once asked Queen Victoria of a trooper of the Life Guards who was paraded before her to exhibit some change in equipment. "Thirty hours, Your Majesty," came the reply of the soldier, who was startled to be directly addressed by so august a personage. What the troopers who participate in ceremonial guarding of the King think of King George himself is related by Sir George Arthur. "The troops, regarding the King rather as a military chieftain than as the head of a political or even a constitutional state, are keenly, if quite respectfully, critical of his personal appearance. King George is to them—without a shadow of disrespect—the 'old-gentleman.' The march past in the quadrangle is as much, perhaps more, an inspection of the King by the troops as the converse. 'The old-gentleman looked smart to-day.' 'The old-gentleman wasn't half fed up.' Such are the expressions which may be heard in barracks when the trappings of ceremony are flung on to the beds."

WHEN ROYALTY MOURNED DEATH OF PRINCE JOHN

IN discussing the domestic life of the King and Queen it is scarcely presumptuous at this time of Jubilee to touch upon a less fortunate circumstance of their wedded life. There has never been any element of secrecy in regard to certain dispensations of fortune which have befallen them.

One wintry Sunday night immediately after the close of the war it was announced that their Majesties' youngest child, Prince John, had died that day at the age of 13. No attempt was made to cloak the fact that this child had been denied full development, both mental and physical. It was never expected, indeed, that he would grow to manhood. In such circumstances their Majesties held it fitting that the funeral of the Prince should take place under the quietest possible conditions, and that the ordinary life of the Court should be as little disturbed as possible.

King Reads More Than Father Did

IT was once said by Prime Minister W. E. Gladstone of King Edward that he "knew everything except what was written in books." King George, if report be true, has a much wider knowledge of the written page than ever his father tried to possess. This is far from asserting that he is in any way a bookworm, and the only imaginative writer of distinction who has enjoyed King George's intimate friendship has been Rudyard Kipling.

In his early years, King George's chief sedentary hobby was the study of postage stamps, and his private collection is one of the finest in the world. Those, however, who have sought to ingratiate themselves into royal favor merely by the offer of rich and rare specimens of philately have met with disappointment, or at any rate have had to submit to receiving a fair return in cash or in kind.

Hastened Back From Scotland

King Had Direct Part in Formation of National Government.

PERHAPS the most momentous political happening of recent years in which King George played a direct part was the formation of the National Government in 1931. The extent of the role he played in the creation of a ministry of all parties is not likely to be authoritatively revealed until the youngest among us is grey-headed.

Just before the political crisis reached its climax the King set out with the Queen for their customary sojourn at Balmoral. It is true that the Labor government was already in an almost hopeless state of perplexity and dissension. What exactly happened to cause the King suddenly to return to London within 39 hours of his arrival at his Scottish seat cannot be stated with authority, nevertheless it is plain his Majesty was seized with a conviction of the serious state of the country's governance.

His Majesty's sudden journey to London to meet his ministers was a direct reversal of the conventional way of doing things. Lord Salisbury, Gladstone and other giants of the Victorian political era had ruesful experiences of long dismal journies to Balmoral, there to meet Queen Victoria, and not infrequently to find it necessary to bring all their powers of persuasion to bear upon the imperious and strong-minded monarch. Even in King Edward's day the prime minister had occasionally to follow him to the Continent to learn his pleasure upon a matter of high import. King George first altered this procedure by travelling to London from Sandringham in order to meet ministers when matters connected with the Parliament Act had become acute.

The King's long journey from Balmoral to the capital, undertaken when his Majesty had only recently become fully convalescent after his grave illness, captured the public imagination completely. It is believed, too, that it was on the King's personal and insistent appeal that Ramsay MacDonald was persuaded to undertake the task of forming a National government. At any rate it is certain that with the arrival of his Majesty at Buckingham Palace matters in broad detail were at once straightened out, and the National government, for good or ill, came into being.

LONG LIVE THE KING.

Only three rulers to-day—King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, King Haakon of Norway, King Gustav of Sweden—were on their thrones at King George's accession.

Their Majesties' Hearts With Their Family Amid Many Duties.

DURING the War their Majesties not only led their subjects in observance of war-time food regulations but imposed a liquor prohibition on the Royal residences that aroused great interest throughout the Empire.

Palaces Were Dry.

IN 1915 the King announced that "for the duration" the Royal Residences would "go dry." This example was followed the next day by Lord Kitchener, War Minister, who, for the time being, was living at Clarence House, St. James' Palace.

His Majesty's action had been prompted largely by Lord Kitchener's announcement that the temptations of drink had led to irregular time-keeping and the diminution of output in munition factories. Lloyd George had declared, "We are fighting Germany, Austria, and Drink. And as far as I can see the greatest of the three deadly foes is Drink." The King expressed his "deepest concern," adding he would be prepared to set the example "so that no difference shall be made so far as his Majesty is concerned between the treatment of the rich and the poor in this question." Many members of both Houses of Parliament, ordinarily by no means of prohibitionist leaning, regretted that these assemblages did not follow the Royal example.

It may be added that the genial story quickly went round London after the Armistice, that almost the first action of the King after 11 o'clock on the morning of November 11, 1918, was to call for a whisky and soda—a double one!

Royal War Activities.

Throughout the war years, of course, Buckingham Palace was bereft of all great social ceremonies. The King and Queen devoted themselves entirely to matters concerned with the war. In this connection, however, it is worth noticing that Queen Mary promptly resented the suggestion that she was busying herself with activities such as could be performed by others less highly placed. A story got into the papers that the Queen was "sewing shirts for soldiers." Her Majesty caused a prompt denial to be published, with the further intimation that she had matters of far wider moment to engage her attention.

The stoppage of entertainment at the Palace naturally meant a large saving to the King's Privy Purse, and in 1916 His Majesty accordingly made a gift of $500,000 to the British Treasury. It was regarded as a fine gesture which could well have served as an example to the war profiteers. It is worth recalling that Mr. Stanley Baldwin gave to the British Treasury all his fortune, which might have been deemed to have been derived from profits made during the war by the firm of which he was then a member.

In 1917, by the King's command, the Royal House of Hanover, which had existed since "George in pudding time came o'er" (in 1714) came to an end, and in its place arose the House of Windsor. Such an alteration was in fact long overdue, for the Crown's connection with Hanover had ceased when Victoria ascended the Throne. By King George's order, also, those members of his family who had hitherto borne German names and titles relinquished the same and in their stead assumed British titles.

WHITE LODGE, RICHMOND, where the present King and Queen took up residence after their marriage as the Duke and Duchess of York, was the scene of their early married life. There, in June, 1894, the present Prince of Wales was born. The present Duke of York and most of their other children also first saw the light in the same comparatively modest residence.

Family Cares.

DESPITE the cares of an increasing family, the Duke and Duchess of York very readily assumed a large share of public duties, for the then Prince and Princess of Wales (afterwards King Edward and Queen Alexandra) were becoming elderly, and it was only natural for them to delegate some of their high obligations to their son and daughter-in-law. There is no doubt that an appearance in public was, for some years, a good deal of a trial, both to the Duke and Duchess, unaccustomed as they severally had been in their pre-married life to suffering the concentrated gaze of the multitude.

With the death of Queen Victoria in 1901, their position naturally became even more prominent. Succeeding to the title of Prince and Princess of Wales, the Royal couple and their growing family established themselves at Marlborough House, where the previous Prince and Princess had, for a generation at least, been the exalted leaders of high society.

Court Brightens Up.

THE Court, on the accession of Edward VII, shed the haunting atmosphere of gloom which had surrounded it throughout the long period of Victoria's reign following the death of her husband, the Prince Consort.

No doubt the more cheerful order of things was entirely agreeable to the heir apparent and his wife. Nevertheless, it was quickly observed that what used to be known in the previous Prince of Wales' day as the "Marlborough House set" ceased to exist when King Edward left that residence for Buckingham Palace. The new Prince and Princess maintained as far as possible their old standard of inconspicuous domesticity. The Prince, however, in the first few months as heir apparent, experienced a lively reminder of the stew of trouble which even then was brewing in Europe. The then Kaiser proposed a visit to Britain which was unacceptable to King Edward, who countered it with the suggestion that the Prince of Wales should visit Berlin for the Kaiser's birthday. This evoked a speech from the Imperial Chancellor which narrowly escaped bringing the cancellation of the Prince's visit.

However, the Prince of Wales did go to Berlin, and was received with every mark of honor. A visit to Vienna and a visit to India were made in subsequent years, but King Edward's personal activity in attempting to smooth the turbulent political waters of the great European powers rendered it hardly necessary for his son to play any prominent part in such delicate matters.

Occupied at Home.

Apart from their memorable visit to the Dominions in the first year of King Edward's reign, the Prince and Princess of Wales were largely occupied with innumerable good works at home. Sir George Arthur, who knows as much about the personal characteristics of the Royal family as any man, writes: "George, Prince of Wales, may have lacked his father's flair for foreign negotiations, chiefly because he was unacquainted with the foreign princes and statesmen in whose hands were the threads of European policy. Except for a week in Paris, largely dedicated to sightseeing, his visits to the continent had been almost entirely of an official character. . . . The smile of courteous greeting was less apt to broaden into the smile of hearty welcome, but his shrewd commonsense and his acute sense of honor made the part he played of signal value to his country."

Following the death of King Edward in May, 1910, the Court rigidly kept the order of mourning. King George and Queen Mary visited no theatre and attended no entertainment. Queen Mary, despite her pronounced dislike of black, suffered no person to come before her unless so garbed. But when these observances to a great monarch and a beloved father had been duly fulfilled, the King and Queen, despite their own preference for domestic life, restored to the Court its full color and activity. All the same, during the few years of comparative tranquillity before the Great War which were before Their Majesties, it was often observed how the King and Queen could never entirely shake off a certain atmosphere of "conscientiously doing their duty" whenever they appeared in public. It was always patent to keen observers that the hearts of these exalted personages were really in their home and with their children.

Royal Memories Over 40 Years Recalled by London Writer

Impressed With Friendly Touch Despite Ceremonies of High Office.

By THOS. T. CHAMPION.

IT has been the writer's privilege to behold King George's public activities at first hand under very varied conditions. I am inclined to think my first glimpse of his Majesty and his gracious partner furnishes, in some ways, the most interesting of these recollections.

It was to Sheffield, the great city of steel and cutlery, that the then Duke and Duchess of York paid a visit to reopen the principal hospital in 1895. Sheffield in those days was a grim town. Even its main streets were narrow and ill-paved. The Duke and Duchess had then been married less than two years. They were still unaccustomed to appearing before large crowds, and had difficulty in concealing a certain diffidence. The cutlers and grinders, the colliers and ironworkers of Sheffield knew little about royalty at first hand, but the town made a brave endeavor to hide its soot and certain other unlovely features underneath a great show of Venetian masts, paper flowers and other conventional street decoration of that era.

The Duke and Duchess on their part adopted what was then the conventional method with Royalty of acknowledging public acclamation. Seated side by side in an open landau the royal visitors preserved a most rigid posture of the body. The Duchess inclined her head first to left, then to right with almost mechanical precision. Likewise, the Duke, holding his silk hat two inches above his head, bowed to left and right with the same regularity. No doubt this automatic method of acknowledgment was due in part to nervousness, although it was quite a few years later before any members of the Royal Family adopted a less formal attitude in a progress along the highway.

As Prince of Wales.

THE writers' next encounter with the King, although of a trifling character, was not without interest. The Duke and Duchess of York had become Prince and Princess of Wales, and they were paying a visit to Lord Derby (father of the present peer) at Knowsley, near Liverpool. Their Royal Highnesses travelled in a car attached to the ordinary Liverpool express, which was stopped at Huyton. On the platform to meet them was Lord Derby and his agent. The only others present were a police inspector and sergeant and a couple of newspapermen.

Probably the only occasions when King George and Queen Mary have ever been allowed to take a holiday free from the attention of the public have been when they have accepted the hospitality of such personal friends as the Earl of Derby and the Duke of Devonshire. The folk of the countryside surrounding such noble residences as Knowsley and Chatsworth seem to possess an instinct which leads them to avoid congregating in large numbers to witness the arrival of Royal guests. Nevertheless, one would have difficulty in finding a resident of any degree who had not contrived, in some way, to get a glimpse of the exalted guests of his Lordship or his Grace.

When Britain Declared War.

A SIGNIFICANT feature of the relations existing between Sovereign and people was afforded during the Great War, when immense crowds, comprising people of all degrees, instinctively gathered round Buckingham Palace, both in the opening days of the war and at its close. Upon that August night in 1914, following the declaration of war, Londoners in thousands, for no ostensible reason, trooped from the four quarters of the metropolis to the great space fronting the Palace. Seemingly, this great trek was a sub-conscious demonstration by the masses of sympathy and support to head of the state in so great a crisis. The response of their Majesties was all the more effective because it was so simple. While the tens of thousands were swarming before the gates of the Palace the King and Queen came out into the quadrangle, attended merely by an equerry and a lady-in-waiting, and strode backward and forward in full view of the concourse. For half an hour the little royal parade was continued, then the King and Queen returned inside and the people dispersed.

Four years later it was my privilege to behold the scene before the Palace on Armistice Day. I was in a car with a couple of Canadian officers, close to the great memorial to Queen Victoria which faces the Palace. A hundred other cars like our own were locked fast in the press of the crowd. A girl munition worker had clambered high on the monument and led the thousands in a stentorian chant, "We want King George." The demand was kept up at intervals for at least half an hour. At length King George appeared on the Palace balcony, and with him Queen Mary, the Duke of Connaught and half a dozen more of their kinsfolk. In a sense, therefore, Londoners saw the war both open and close before Buckingham Palace and in the presence of the King and Queen.

Two years to the day after the Armistice there was the Burial of the Unknown Warrior in Westminster Abbey. I was privileged to have a chair within a few yards both of the open grave and of where the Royal Family were seated. There is no need here to dwell upon the solemnity of the ceremony. A brighter memory which I retain is of how, at the close of the service, the late Archbishop of Canterbury (Dr. Randall Davidson) approached the King and Queen and the Queen of Spain who was next to them. For a few minutes his Grace remained chatting with their Majesties, much in the style of any village rector who greets some family at his church door after morning service.

Popular With the People.

SOMEHOW the King and Queen, in all but their highly ceremonial appearances, seem to contrive a touch of homeliness to their comings and goings. It has been my privilege to be present at the marriage of every one of the King and Queen's children. I have more than once witnessed the King open Parliament, and have seen him at the Cup Final at Wembley. Perhaps the happiest of all the regular appearances of King George before his subjects is when he goes to Wembley. Well over 90,000 uncover and roar him a welcome as he steps out on the ground, immediately before the game starts, to greet the teams. As far as the royal marriages at the Abbey are concerned, my chief impression about them was of the homely manner in which the chief participants bore themselves. Queen Mary, I may respectfully venture to suggest, is not given much to smiling in public, but as soon as her Majesty entered the chancel of the Abbey on the day that her only daughter was married to Viscount Lascelles, the royal mother plainly showed a joyous approval of what was happening. So it was when her sons were married.

In regard to state openings of Parliament, the comment has been made that the very gorgeousness of the trappings and the rather obsequious detail of some of the ceremonial render it all the more difficult for the King and Queen to pass through the ordeal with a real dignity. The robes of the peers, the tiaras and other jewels of the peeresses naturally make a brilliant show in the Lords' Chamber, but it all looks rather theatrical, and this effect is heightened by the gradual raising of the lights as the King and Queen enter. The royal procession, too, when the King and Queen ride in the great gilded coach with its escort of Life Guards and Beefeaters, is a piece of pageantry not without suggestion of pomposity.

Curiously, it has often been noted that the cheers given their Majesties are rather more subdued at the opening of Parliament than when they appear before the crowd under less florid conditions. It would almost seem as if the populace were a trifle awed by the gold and glitter.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

By McDONALD FEADER

READ THIS FIRST:

Consuelo, a beautiful gypsy girl who longs to dance, is loved by the Dummy, a deaf mute, and Marcu. She despises her mother, Anica, but is fond of her father, Girtza. Marcu temps Consuelo with a huge diamond and she agrees to marry him until she suspects her gypsy sweetheart tricked her about the ring's value. In town she sees three men playing cards near a private car on a railroad siding. She dances for them. Much impressed, one of the men, Stewart Blackmire, New York theatrical producer, promises to return in 10 days and give Consuelo a pair of slippers. Marcu bargains with Girtza for his daughter's hand. Reluctantly Consuelo agrees to marry Marcu and the gypsies celebrate. On her wedding day, Blackmire and his friends return with the slippers for Consuelo. She asks him to take her to New York.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 18

"I couldn't do that," Blackmire answered after a moment.

Consuelo moved closer to him.

"You like me, don't you?"

"Ye—es." He stepped back from her.

"Then take me with you, white man."

"Gypsy girl, what you ask is quite impossible. I can't take you back with me."

"Why?" she demanded.

"For many reasons—" he stumbled with the words, then thought came, "because I have a wife!"

Doug gave Bill a broad wink.

"Do you think that is reason to me? I am not asking you to marry me. I am flinging myself at your feet and all I ask is that you take me with you and let me dance in one of your shows in New York. Then I will not care if you say, I am through. I can make money once I get there."

He shook his head.

The gypsy eyes narrowed.

"I am not good enough for you, eh?"

"Oh no, it's not that, not that at all." What could he say? "You haven't any technique," he lied lamely.

Consuelo frowned at him.

"I don't know what you mean."

"I mean you've never taken dancing lessons. You can't dance, you know, without lessons and learning technique and—"

"You mean I can't dance good enough, white man?"

"Well—er—"

"You are a liar!" For an instant her anger flared out at him, then she laughed. "You would take me back if you didn't have a wife?" Inside she was still angry, for she had told too many fortunes to believe this he had said. "You would take me back if I could dance good enough?"

"Yes—" Obviously he was embarrassed.

Again she laughed.

"Then you have no reasons, my friend." She took her eyes from him.

There was uneasy silence between them.

"To-night I will be married to Marcu. I will dance for you first—if you like."

"No, you will not do that."

He had no answer.

"Will you take this and buy something pretty for yourself?" He was holding out paper money.

She shook her head.

"Money will not buy me the thing I want, white man." She hesitated and then reached out and took the money. "But it might help."

The train was in sight now.

"In just a minute we'll hitch onto this limited and be on the next lap to little old New York. Well, a kiss for the bride." Doug did so without ceremony and his lips lingered. "Oh man alive, what a kiss! Stewart's a plain ordinary specie of fool. He don't know what he's missing—"

"Next." Bill kissed the red lips.

The girl waited for the third gentleman from New York to kiss her goodby. Instead he took her hands, his fingers pressing hers until they hurt—and the hurt was good.

"Goodby, gypsy girl."

"Goodby." Her eyes were pleading with him.

The train came to a lumbering stop. The private car was hooked on. In the confusion the girl was lost from sight.

The brakeman swung the flag. The engineer answered the signal. The great black snake, nostrils belching steam and smoke, heaved forward and gaining speed, advanced on the road that leads to the east.

To the east, to the east, to the east, the wheels thundered.

It was later supper. Stewart and Bill were eating [illegible] and drinking champagne. Doug was [illegible] but now he was thawed.

"You're on."

Doug was watching them.

"Only babies and nitwits play that game. Now if there were four of us we could have a game of contract, but no, you two have to sit there hour after hour like bumps on a log and play that fool thing. We're stopping for 15 minutes at this next town and I suppose you will keep on sitting here in the heat—"

They paid no attention to him.

The train was slowing down. When it stopped Doug got off and walked up to the station. For lack of something better to do he went in and ordered a cool drink. When he had finished he noticed a crowd standing on the baggage platform and went up to them. Suddenly the inertia dropped from him and he ran back to the private car.

"Stewart—Bill, drop that game and come with me!" His voice rang with excitement.

"Another Indian!" snorted Bill.

"A blonde from—"

"No, come on quick!" Doug insisted.

"Aw, go away and leave us alone," was the rejoinder from Bill.

For a moment he cowed them. It was no use. With a look of disgust he left and went back to the baggage platform. The crowd had already dispersed except for a girl who was picking up something from the floor. When she had finished she turned back to the train. As she was getting on the day coach Doug spoke to her.

"Well, gypsy—"

She looked quickly. It was not the gray-haired man.

"Oh—"

"Look out, girl, here come[illegible]"

"[illegible] train." She raised her head. "I have money. Let train carry me as well as your friend who is too good to be seen with a gypsy!" She paused. "Tell him for me that gypsies get what they want!" She was gone.

Doug went back to the private car. He was chuckling to himself.

LITERARY PROGRAM FEATURES MEETING

Life and Works of William Shakespeare Reviewed by Lakefield Y.P.S.

(Examiner Correspondence)

LAKEFIELD, May 3.—A literary program sponsored by Miss Mary Davis, convenor of the Literary committee, featured the regular meeting of the Young People's Society of St. Andrew's church on Monday evening. As the birthday of William Shakespeare had occurred within the week, the topic, taken by T. W. Chaplin, was a review of the life and works of the great poet. Shakespeare's contribution to English literature was a remarkable one and was very ably dealt with by Mr. Chaplin. Musical numbers included a solo by Billy Clark, a cornet solo by A. H. Clark and a piano solo by Douglas Smith. Current events were given by Mrs. Turk. The next meeting will be the closing meeting of the spring season. Mrs. Davis was in the chair.

Miss Rosetta Frankish has returned home from a visit to Toronto friends.

Miss Marjorie Winslow of Peterborough was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frankish this week.

Y.W. PAGEANT FRIDAY NIGHT

COLORFUL SHOW

The Grand Opera House re-echoed this morning with bright talk and laughter, as the rehearsal progressed for the big Y.W.C.A. Gym Pageant which is to be presented there on Friday next, May 10th.

Although some of the costumes were in evidence, they did not give an adequate idea of the wealth of color which will animate the pretty extravaganza, "The Romance of the Toy Shop", which is the big feature of this season's presentation. Each year sees new and original ideas carried out in the costuming of the kiddies for numbers of pretty dances, and this year's collection appears to be better and brighter than ever. Beautiful colors, harmoniously combined, feature every section of the entertainment.

There are Teddy Bears with cunning little brown tight suits, wearing vari-colored bows around their necks and sporting fur paws, earflaps and feet. There are Kewpies in pale yellow gowns with blue frills; Spanish dancers in full skirts adorned with huge applique crimson poppies, their boleros and wide, flat-crowned hats just right; there are Irish colleens with their gossoons, all in emerald green, the 'boys' wearing tall Irish hats, the girls with frilly white aprons; tiny coons with huge watermelon slices, and pickaninnies in outfits striped in red and white.

Toy Soldiers, just in tune with the Jubilee motif of the year, will be startling creatures. Their very appropriate outfits and in bright scarlet with bandings of white and orange on the tunics. Their cuffs are deep white affairs with blue circles as ornamentation, and they wear red drummer hats and blue trousers, gold-banded.

Another very antique and striking ensemble will be the 'spinning-top' group. Their costumes are similar in every detail to the inflated two-sectional dimensions of a spinning top and they come in hues of emerald green and red, orange and blue, with high, peaked hats.

Jack in the Box comes in harlequin style in stuff of diamond-shaped red and white printing, and the Prince wears a dignified swallowtail coat of pure white. The Princess is a vision in pink tulle and silver, while pale pink tulle also clothes her attendants.

And what do you think of a streamline doll that will make her apearance at this gay party on the stage? She is modernistic in every aspect of costuming and dancing, with black and white colorings and a swaying, balancing glide.

Summer Gardens Delightful Spot

When the final decorations have been placed in position Monday night at Brock Street Summer Gardens, something new and very fine will be seen in interior summer amusement hall decoration. This work is being done by Mr. W. Parsons of Toronto, said to be one of the cleverest in the profession. the effect is altogether different from last year and is really delightful.

The pergola, fountain and corner rockeries were designed and built by Al Spencely of Pastime Gardens and dress up the front of the rink very effectively.

The Brock Street Summer Gardens has earned a reputation for having one of the largest and finest floors in the province, of providing superior and up-to-the-minute dance music, of furnishing clean entertainment and what is more important—of running a place of amusement and for dancing that parents can rest assured is a proper place for their sons or daughters to attend.

Last year hundreds of citizens who never danced themselves found pleasure in the music, the surroundings and in watching the young people enjoy themselves. An invitation is given the public again this year.

The management desire to thank patrons of the last two years for their co-operation in making it the fine amusement centre it is and ask the same conduct again this season. Every endeavor is being made to make it an asset to the city and the Central Ontario district.

The Gardens open Monday (Jubilee) night when a fine crowd of both dancers and spectators is expected to be present. Andy Rutter, a member of last year's band has been appointed manager.

With all the expense gone to this year the prices are the same as last year—admission to gentlemen, 10c; dancing, 5c, and admission Saturday's, ladies and gentlemen 10c, when cash door prizes for ladies will be given.

VISITORS TAKE GREAT LONDON CITY BY STORM

Over 300,000 Already Jam Streets, With Hordes Arriving Hourly.

WILD FESTIVITY STARTS.

(By Oscar Leiding.)

LONDON, May 4 (A.P.). — Jubilee visitors stormed London to-day and captured the city's streets with a barrage of merriment unparalleled since the signing of the Armistice.

The old Metropolis, beflagged to celebrate the 25th anniversary of King George's accession to the Throne on Monday, was a cross between a Latin-American harvest festival and a North American harvest festival.

Visitors from all parts of the globe—300,000 were estimated to be here already—choked the city. Hordes more were expected before Monday's great celebration.

Traffic conditions were a nightmare for the police. Taxicabs did well to travel three miles an hour in the jammed streets. Pedestrians trod on each other's heels.

The visitors made most of the noise. Londoners, for the most part meandered agape at the transformation of the city into a far-reaching bower of color.

Rain No Anchor

Weather conditions were uncertain, with unsettled skies forecast for tomorrow and possible rain for Monday. The ceremonies will go ahead however, rain or shine.

Placards reminded the merrymakers that there still is time to get good seats for the procession at $10 and up.

Throngs ceaselessly milled about Buckingham Palace. Inside the royal residence the staffs were busy opening letters and cablegrams. Most of them were addressed formally, but a few, in childish scrawls, were sent to "The King, London," or bore the King's full titles laboriously copied from a reference book.

"If in any cataclysm the crown vanished, the empire would vanish with it," Stanley Baldwin, Lord President of the Council asserted in a tribute to the King.

"When we watch the contemporary history around us," he said, "we realise in these islands the enormous value of that steadfast continuous, traditionand and nonpolitical head and we see other countries with their difficulties, with their privileges and power being usurped by dictators and tyrants."

The celebration found the government energetically boosting its accomplishments and touching up its national recovery program in preparation for the political tussles ahead.

More At Work

Viscount Hailsham, Secretary for War, in an address at Cardiff advanced the claim that "The King's best jubilee gift is the reduction of unemployment figures which the government announced last week."

Centreville

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Centreville Presbyterian Church was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Dawson Rutherford. Mrs. D. N. Dodds presided and read the Scripture lesson. Rev. R. H. Williams offered prayer. Mrs. James Whittington read a chapter from the study book, after which Mrs. T. Skitch and Miss Agnes Breckenridge gave readings. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served and a pleasant social hour was spent.

Mr. William Dodds is in London, visiting his brother, Rev. Thomas Dodds, who underwent a serious operation in the General Hospital.

A meeting under the auspices of the C.C.F. was held in the municipal Hall on Thursday night, with an attendance of sixteen. Rev. Mr. Cook of Fraserville was chairman. Dr. Lorna Cotton of Peterborough gave an address, describing the economic ideals of the C.C.F. Party.

About twenty delegates from South Monaghan Township attended the Liberal convention in Peterborough on Thursday night.

WARSAW

Pineapples are in, rhubarb will soon be ready for use, and after that one fruit after a nother comes. Even yet many do not like to put away fruit unless large quantities of sugar are used. Except in very few cases sugar is not necessary as a preservative. The only fruits I have never put away without sugar are strawberries and peaches and were my bag of sugar empty and I unexpectedly had either of these fruits I would try it and feel safe in keeping them.

One great essential is thoroughly sterilized jars, tops, rings and rubbers, and this should not be the chore it often is when the fruit comes in. Putting a lot of jars into a kettle of hot water on the back of the stove is no good, especially if the jars are partially above the water.

It is well to have jars in such condition that there is little time needed to prepare them for uses when needed.

Used jars should be thoroughly cleaned after use. Wash well with soap or ammonia or sodas with hot water, if stained use a brush to remove stains and see that all creases around the top are thoroughly scrubbed, also the lids, and what is most often neglected, the metal rings, as well as the rubbers. Contrary to many warnings, I usually use rubber rings two or three times if they are pliable, do not stretch and remain so, and have no signs of cracks. I have used them in canning meat and never yet lost a jar of meat since I understood how to can it. After washing rinse until glass is perfectly clear, then scald, not with hot water, nor water that was boiling a few minutes ago, but with good water that is jumping in the tea-kettle. Stand the jar on a plate—earthen or granite (avoid aluminum plates, or spoons, there sometimes seems some disastrous galvanic disturbance). If not too tall place a metal (silver is perhaps nicest) fork in the jar so that one end is on the bottom at one side and the other end rests on opposite side at top. If the jar be too large for the fork invert a toasting fork or long handled spoon, so long as it is all metal, the plate is better warm and your jar will be warm from the rinsings, then pour the actualy boiling water into the jar, remove fork and place lid on jar for about three minutes, empty water out and invert jar on a rack over a really warm place, on top of the hot closet is good, or if small enough, inside, let stay there until thoroughly dry, then put on rubber, lid and ring and screw down, but not at all tight. Put away. When needed remove tops, examine rubbers and if the least bit doubtful reject and use a new one. It is well to lay in a supply of new rubbers for there are always some which have been, or will be discarded. Place glass covers in one basin, and cover with boiling water, let remain there. Place jar in plate or if several are being used in a granite dish-pan or put a towel in the bottom of a metal one and pour a little boiling water into each.

Of course protect against breakage by use of the metal fork or spoon, use the same metal for all, as its usefulness is over when a little hot water is in. Then take each jar turn it around so the water swishes over all, empty, place so you can have them at hand when filling. Fill with boiling fruit—rubber which should be scalded and taken out at once should be on jar before filling. Fill jar full, then see that there is not a single seed or piece of skin (clear fluid will not hurt) on rubber or on screw part of top, use fork, not a dish cloth, put on cover, screw down tight when all jars are filled and covered, wipe outsides and let stand. As it cools screw top down, when cold, and tightly screwed insert, and if there is any leakage, it will have to be reheated, for something is wrong. But if jars are perfect, as well as tops, rubbers and rings there will be no leaks. The fitting edges of glass covers should be carefully examined, there is sometimes unsuspected trouble there even in new ones.

Once I had a lot of new half gallon jars leak, and found the ridge on the side of the jar protruded in a tiny ridge where the rubber fitted. A bit of sand stone soon removed that. Since then I examine new jars for that trouble. Unfortunately it was Canadian made jars which had the defect.

Nice fresh acid fruits do not actually need much boiling and for pies are nicer without the sugar. Raspberries, cherries, rhubarb, apples, red currants, so long as clean and fresh, will keep perfectly without sugar with never more than five minutes boiling. Fresh ripe tomatoes go into two quart jars as soon as they begin to boil without salt or anything else.

The great thing is absolute sterilization and then exclusion of air. By the way, it is not air that does the mischief, it is the impurities in the air. If there is a jar minus a fitting top, fill it, if you have it put over a thin film of parwax and then cover with a thick wad of cotton batting. Not absorbent, and tie may be covered with a paper bag around neck of jar. The batting should have been in a hot oven for a few minutes. It will keep. The only trouble mice or ants are apt to get a few nips at the cotton and then there is trouble, but the cotton with red pepper to keep the ants off, and if tied below the cotton the mice do not bother.

Properly cleansed maple syrup weighing thirteen pounds to the gallon or a little less will keep without heating if the jars are properly sterilized, and for this they must be dry inside and have lids which fit down to the contests. The easiest way to keep it is in bottles. The gallon wine jars, thoroughly cleansed and dry, are good, but in any case the jars or bottles need to be refilled for air always goes in with the syrup and it shrinks, parafine the covers of the bottles, and if there is the slightest doubt of the tops of jars, a film of hot parafine will secure things.

Towels are not apt to be absolutely sterile, therefore jars are drained dry and not wiped. Drying a jar with even a clean ordinary tea towel might undo all the work of sterilizing.

STAMP CORNER

By M. A. BESSEY

ANOTHER NEW ISSUE

As anticipated, Canada will shortly have an entirely new regular issue, necessitated by the changing of the contract for printing of our postage stamps.

A preliminary announcement from Ottawa, states that the new issue will be placed on sale in the larger cities on June 1st, 1935.

Following is a description of the series:

There will be seven double-size pictorial designs, as follows:

We understand that this series will be printed by the Canadian Bank Note Co., who are responsible for the fine reproductions of the 1908 issue and others previous to that. Should the designs and quality of workmanship live up to their previous standards, collectors are due to be dazzled by a truly beautiful issue. Further details will be given in our column as soon as they are available.

During the past few months many requests have been received from all parts of Canada for information as to what and how budding philatelists should start out. This is a problem that cannot be answered satisfactorily in one or two of our short articles. I will, however, try to give a very brief resume of how I would start out in stamp collecting.

First of all, one requires stamps. The best way to start is through the purchase of a large packet of stamps. One can purchase a packet of one thousand different postage stamps for less than one dollar. This is a good start for any boy or girl and it is hard to imagine anything much cheaper. Of course, it is seldom, if ever, that this type of stamp will ever appreciate in value, but on the other hand, if you do not know how to handle and take care of your stamps you do not want to start out with anything of any value. Thus for a very small outlay to start with you stand to lose very little.

A cheap, illustrated album should be used for a start, one that costs only about 25c to 50c; after this has been filled to the best of your ability, you probably have mastered the idea of mounting and identifying your stamps according to their various classifications and issues. It is of paramount importance that you consult a stamp catalogue during this early period of collecting; it does not necessarily have to be an up-to-date edition, all of the catalogues will have the information you require as to how to identify the various issues, from which you can quite easily figure out where they belong and how to mount them.

During the next week, call at your local branch of the public library and next week we will give you further information as to how to proceed with your stamp collecting.

Be Beautiful

By GLADYS GLAD

Back in the mid-Victorian era, when business offices were strictly masculine territory, life was a very simple matter for the average belle. In those days, all a girl did was sit at home, and if there were a date in the offing, she had plenty of time to prepare for it. But today, any of the lovely screen stars can tell you, the average modern maiden's background is no simple one.

They claim that nowadays, a girl has to be prepared for all occasions, which is certainly right. The average damsel must be prepared to step from her office into a dimly-lighted night club or a brilliantly illuminated ballroom. She must be ready to go from her schoolroom into the glaring daylight of a football field, or the dim seclusion of an afternoon tea. And she needs cosmetics to make her appear her freshest and loveliest.

It is the wise damsel who realizes this fact, and is always prepared for any event. If she's a housewife, of course, she hasn't much to worry about. For she has all the creams and cosmetics she needs right there at home. But if she's an office worker, or a high school or college girl, she's handicapped unless she's smart. For if she's clever, she'll keep a beauty kit in her desk or locker, and be able to prepare herself for any event, and upon even the shortest notice.

There's a young girl of my acquaintance who keeps a small beauty kit in her office, and she always sees to it that it is well stocked. It's not an elaborate affair by any means. It consists merely of a cardboard box that is divided into little compartments. It contains small-sized duplicates of all the articles that this lass uses at home—hand lotion, lipstick, cleansing cream, rouge, eyeshadow cream, soap, nail file, nail polish, cleansing tissues, powder and perfume. So she has almost all the advantages of home right in her office.

If you are a student or a business girl, I could recommend nothing better than that you follow this damsel's example. Keep a beauty kit in your desk or locker. You really can make one very cheaply. And with all your beauty aids right at hand, you'll be prepared for any occasion.

An extremely successful bridge party and tea took place yesterday afternoon in charge of members of the executive committee of the Ladies' section of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club. Forty-two tables of bridge were played at the home of Mrs. W. H. Hill. Mrs. Gerald Wood, Mrs. F. L. Roy, Mrs. J. F. Strickland, Mrs. B. D. Hall, Mrs. T. A. Mackay, Mrs. A. H. Stratton and Mrs. O. The spacious rooms were charmingly arranged with shades of rose predominating in hangings, cushions and softly-shaded lights, and there were quantities of rose-colored flowers: snapdragons, carnations, tulips and gladioli. Cosy grate fires that beckoned from the chill outdoors were lighted in the drawing-room and smoking room. The guests were received by Mrs. Martin, who is the captain of the Ladies' section of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club, and Mrs. W. H. Hill, the vice-president. In the tea room, many glowing lamps cast a soft reflection over the lovely table draped with lace and centered by a massive silver bowl filled with tall pink and cream snapdragon and pale pink carnations. There were lighted cream tapers in heavy silver candelabra and pink and cream sweetmeats in silver bonbon dishes. Silver services at either end were presided over by Mrs. W. H. Bradburn and Mrs. R. M. Waddell. Mrs. Reg. Turner was in charge of the tea room. In the smoking room an auxiliary tea table, covered with lace and done with cream iris lilies and stevia, was presided over by Mrs. C. G. Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Twenty-five years ago on May 6th our belover King came to the throne. A quarter of a century has passed and on Monday we celebrate the Silver Jubilee of King George's reign. And with him to share the honors and responsibility of the ruling of an Empire is the beloved lady who wears the crown of the Queen of England. Around the world celebrations are taking places and the wishes of an Empire proud of its Ruler and his lovely Queen go out in no small manner and may we in a very humble manner join with the rest of their loyal subjects in saying:

• • • • • • •

LONG LIVE THE KING—LONG LIVE THE QUEEN!

When Britain first at Heav'ns command
Arose from out the azure main,
This was the charter of our land,
And guardian angels sang this strain.

Rule, Britannia,
Britannia rules the waves,
Britons never shall be slaves.

Still more majestic shalt thou rise,
More dreadful from each foreign stroke,
As the loud tempest that tears across the skies,
Serves but to root thy native oak.

The Difference

STRATFORD, Ont., May 4. (CP).—Asked for an explanation for his being dressed in his best clothes, a farmer of this district said: "When you see me in town with my old horse and old buggy, and wearing my old clothes, I'm going to put money in the bank, but when I'm all dressed up it means I'm going to borrow money from the bank."

INTERESTING QUESTIONS

Three interesting hands with inquiries are given today. The first comes from Akron, Ohio. Bidding in the hand shown below went: South (fourth hand), 1-club; North, 2-spades, to force; South, 6-spades, as that is his second biddable suit; North 7-clubs; South, 7-spades; West, doubled. The question is, what should East lead? He lead the 8 of spades, and West "only smiled."

	♠K 10 6 2 ♥7 ♦8 7 ♣A Q 8 7 3 2
♠7 3 ♥10 9 6 5 ♦4 3 ♣Q 10 6 3 2	W. E. N. S.	♠J 9 8 ♥J 8 2 ♦K J 9 5 4 ♣J 6
	♣None
	♠A Q 5 4 ♥A K Q ♦A ♣K 10 9 5 4

I cannot imagine a worse lead. Having the K-J of diamonds East should not lead that. His choice had to be between leading hearts or clubs. As West doubled after hearing clubs bid, and as a grand slam was bid in the latter suit, I wonder that East did not suspect that his partner might be void of clubs, and lead the suit.

The second inquiry and hand are from Santa Monica, Cal. The inquiry is whether spades or hearts should be the final call.

	♠Q J 10 6 3 ♥K 10 2 ♦A 10 9 3 ♣8
♠K 4 ♥9 8 6 3 ♦5 4 2 ♣9 7 4 3 2	W. E. N. S.	♠8 7 6 ♥9 7 ♦Q J 8 6 ♣A K 6 5
	♠A 9 5 ♥A Q J 5 4 ♦K 7 ♣Q J 10

South must make an opening bid of 1-heart, which his partner must shift to 1-spade. After which sound bidding may vary. South may shift to 2-no trumps, support spades or rebid his hearts, to show a good 5-card suit. The last bid is the best. North then may support hearts and in turn South may support spades. It really makes no difference whether hearts or spades become trumps. Five-odd should be made at either call.

The third inquiry comes from Providence, R.I., and concerns the following hand, which East plays at 4-spades. Look it over before Monday.

	♠10 4 3 ♥10 7 ♦7 4 3 ♣A K J 8 2
♠9 6 5 ♥A K 3 2 ♦A 8 ♣10 6 5 3	W. E. N. S.	♠A K 8 7 2 ♥Q 6 4 ♦Q 6 5 2 ♣Q
	♠Q J ♥J 9 8 5 ♦K J 10 9 ♣9 7 4

The opening lead is the 9 of clubs, then North leads back the 3 of spades. Can East go game?

Menu Hint
Salmon Loaf
French Fried Potatoes
Stewed Tomatoes
Cabbage and Carrot Salad
Coffee Cream Pie Coffee or Tea

Add a wee bit of onion to the cabbage and carrot salad, or if you do not like onion, put a few raisins or some apple in. The recipe for salmon loaf is unusual.

Today's Recipes

Salmon Loaf—One can salmon, one can corn or two cups cut from cob, one-half cup milk, one egg, one tablespoon flour, one teaspoon sugar, salt and pepper, buttered crumbs for top. Mix ingredients thoroughly, shape into loaf sprinkling buttered crumbs over the top. Bake one hour in moderate oven 350 degrees. Good hot or cold with a relish.

Coffee Cream Pie—One and one-half cups hot milk, three eggs, separated; pinch of salt, three tablespoons coffee, two tablespoons flour, one-half cup sugar, one-half teaspoon vanilla. Put coffee into cold milk and bring to the scalding point. Strain to remove coffee grounds. Add sugar, flour and salt to hot coffee solution. Cook over hot water for 12 minutes. Beat egg yolks well, add some of the hot mixture to the beaten egg, stirring vigorously. Return to the double boiler and cook for five minutes. Flavor. When cool put in a baked pie shell and cover with meringue made of the three egg whites and six tablespoons of sugar. Bake 20 minutes in slow 325-degree oven.

FACTS AND FANCIES
Yum Yum Cake

Boil together for five minutes: One and one-half cups water, two cups brown sugar, two tablespoons shortening, three teaspoons cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half box raisins, one-half box currants. Remove from heat and add: One-third cup sherry, one-fourth pound crushed black walnut meats, one-fourth pound mixed citron, orange and lemon peel and candied cherries. When cool, but not quite cold, add three cups flour sifted with one teaspoon baking powder. Bake in moderate oven, 325 to 350 degrees, until brown.

Take two cups flour, one-half teaspoon salt, three level teaspoons baking powder. Beat one egg lightly, add to a cup of coffee and stir it into the flour. If too stiff, add a little milk or water. It should be more like a stiff drop batter than dough and not thin enough to pour. Bake 20 minutes.

AT THE CAPITOL

JUBILEE WEEK AT THE CAPITOL

Manager Stewart has announced that the Capitol Theatre has made special plans to co-operate with the local committee in commemorating the Silver Jubilee of Their Gracious Majesties King George V and Queen Mary.

The management of the theatre is preparing a lavish feast of entertainment for Jubilee Week which will bring enjoyment to all. The theatre is co-operating with other local organizations in planning a week of gay festivities and all citizens will be given an opportunity of expressing their loyalty and devotion to King and Queen and the glorious Empire of which we are proud to be an important part. As a tribute to this joyous occasion the Capitol Theatre is including in their program for Jubilee Week: For Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, in addition to Shirley Temple and Lionel Barrymore in "The Little Colonel", there will be a Special Two Reel Patiotic Subject titled "Long Live the King", and for Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Ronald Colman and Loretta Young in "Clive of India."

It is anticipated the Royal Jubilee celebrations will be the greatest period of rejoicing in the history of any nation. The achievements of our great Empire will be given expression in a glorious feast of joy and praise. Their Majesties have been on the throne of Great Britain throughout the most critical quarter of a century in the history of civilization and by their high ideals and uswerving devotion to duty have won the admiration of all their subjects.

In commemoration of this occasion Manager Stewart and the staff of the Capitol Theatre have caused the following proclamation to be displayed in the theatre: "Let us give thanks to God for the sterling achievements of our Rulers, Their Most Gracious Majesties King George V and Queen Mary, who have so nobly served the British people and preserved the traditions of Empire and helped us toward a lasting prosperity and the preservation of peace." This is signed by the management and staff of the Capitol Theatre.

ROBERTA'S CHAT

A column conducted by a reader of The Examiner for her other reader friends. Address all mail to Roberta in care of The Examiner.

Dear Friend:

What sort of a person are you? Good-natured? Grouchy? Easy-going?

Never forget that a smile begets a smile, yet some people go around with a chip on their shoulder, and wonder why others avoid them.

Others, again, are too easy-going, and never accomplish much. But the good-natured person is a joy to be with. They can laugh at a joke on themselves as well as one on the other fellow.

Yet the good-natured one is not a sissy by any means, but can stand up for themselves, if the need arises.

The grouch gets so little good out of life, that you would think they would wake up to the fact that it doesn't pay.

Try going downtown, one day, with a smile, and see how many smiling people you see. (I don't mean a silly grin, but an honest-to-goodness smile.)

Then try, on another day, going around with a frown, and you will be surprised at the frowning faces you see.

Have you every noticed the tremulous smile of an old lady? Just makes you want to help her. Or the smile a sick person gives, when they are racked with pain, in order to reassure a loved one. It takes courage to smile like that, so smile and watch the world smile back.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Weddings

WATERMAN—ALLAIRE.

The marriage was solemnized at four o'clock this afternoon by the Rev. David McLennan, in Emmanuel United Church, Drummond Street, Montreal, of Mr. Earle Waterman of Montreal, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Waterman, of 519 Romaine Street, Peterborough, to Miss Beatrice Allaire, daughter of Mrs. Louise Allaire-Simon of Montreal and the late Mr. Allaire.

Attendants were Miss Annette Durocher and Mr. John S. Lloyd.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Waterman are holding a reception, with buffet supper, at their new home, an apartment at 1430 Crescent Street, Montreal. They will spend the holiday week-end in the country near Montreal, and during the summer will visit the bridegroom's parents in Peterborough.

HOLLING—HUNTER.

A pretty ceremony took place at half-past one o'clock to-day at Mark Street United Church, when the Rev. C. D. Daniel officiated at the marriage of Miss Hazel Hunter, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Hunter of Peterborough, to Mr. Frank Holling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Holling of Folkestone, England. The church was prettily decorated with flowers by former associates in the bride's Sunday School class at Mark Street Church.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. John Hunter of London, Ontario, wore a lovely frock of white taffeta, with white veil, slippers and gloves. Her bouquet was of pink Butterfly roses with white ties.

The bridesmaid, Miss Kathleen Halliday, of Niagara Falls, Ontario, was gowned in pink lace and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Mr. Melville Hunter was best man. Ushers were Messrs. George and Hugh Hunter.

The wedding music was played by Mr. Harry Northrop, A.T.C.M., and Mrs. Hugh Hunter was soloist.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of Mrs. W. McMillan of Division Street, where refreshments were served from a flower-decked table to guests from Peterborough, London, Niagara Falls, and Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Holling left on the afternoon train for Toronto, where they will reside. The bride wore a navy blue silk ensemble with a grey hat and navy accessories.

A postcard poll on a greyhound racing stadium for Mitcham, England, resulted in a 60 per cent vote against the plan.

THE MAYOR'S MESSAGE

Your attention is again called to this yearly Paint-Up, Clean-Up Campaign, and on behalf of your City Council, I sincerely commend this worthwhile effort and request the co-operation of all citizens to do their share by improving the appearances of their homes and properties. Where possible, it is suggested to have these small jobs done by unemployed men; this would be much appreciated by those less fortunate. Peterborough has always enjoyed the distinction of a tidy and beautiful community and it should be our duty to maintain this reputation.

Yours for a more beautiful Peterborough,

ROLAND DENNE,
Mayor.

MANY CITIZENS WELCOME WORK CLEAN-UP WEEK

GIVE A MAN A JOB

Any normal person will, by preference, make his home in clean, attractive surroundings and, by inaugurating "Clean-Up Weeks," civic authorities are urging their communities to bring just such a state of affairs about. So everybody, for once, is in agreement.

"Spring Cleaning" is nothing new. Look through the pages of comic papers of fifty years ago and you will see jokes about Spring Cleaning, jokes of which the woman is usually the butt. For women have naturally always been the commander-in-chief in the war for cleanliness in the home.

But "Clean-Up Week" as a civic institution is comparatively recent. It is a community job, in which every member is supposed to participate, inaugurated because medical science has proved that clean surroundings mean healthy surroundings. And, of course, if surroundings are clean, it follows that they are, as a rule, attractive, so that "Clean-Up Week" has doubly pleasing results.

After months of furnace stoking, ash sifting and constant in-door life, there's an amazing lot of cleaning to be done in the home. Start chasing dirt right now, inside and outside the house.

Here's something to bear in mind, too. Unless your community is particularly fortunate there are many citizens who would welcome a little work just now to help them keep their homes together. Why not give a man that job of painting the worn spots, cleaning up accumulated rubbish, doing carpentry or one of a dozen other chores that want doing now. There's nothing like a spirit of co-operation.

CLEAN-UP WEEK NEW APPEAL TO SELF-RESPECT

Stimulous to Faith and Hope in Peterborough—Fair Face to Visitors.

GIVES WORK TO OTHERS

Campaign Means No Letting Down in Community's Confidence.

Spring of 1935 is already here, a little dubious and hesitant perhaps in its normal weather accompaniments, but withal a new Spring with its challenge and its opportunity to put on a bold and bright front to conditions which must yield and retreat before a stout and unshaken spirit that expresses itself in the community's decision to meet the new season with another "Clean-Up; Paint-Up Week."

Peterborough has managed to pull through five years of business depression with a courage that is sustained by keeping its house in order and good repair, with no let down in its policy of civic neatness, and private attention to homes and gardens, lawns and boulevards.

There is a psychologic influence in this habit of trimness. Those who have known the traditions of the British soldier, and that includes the Canadian, have recognized that polished boots and buttons, personal cleanliness even to the daily shave in the most trying circumstances of service and lack of customary facilities are a stimulus to discipline and morale that sustain the spirit and eventually win through to objectives that may seem long in gaining.

Behind the "Clean-Up Week" idea is naturally an aid to business which needs no apology; but primarily there is the broad recognition of the widespread results that are bound to be extended into every phase of the community's life and enterprise, and into its aspirations and its spirit of turning this year to better account than last.

Encourage Employment

The City Council promotes the idea of "Clean-Up" by the activity of the Parks Committee and also by the neatness which is seen in the appearance of the streets and boulevards and also in the civic buildings. That is an example which should be emulated by every citizen who can afford to contribute something to this annual campaign which is bound to have a renewed effect of impressing visitors once more with a local air of good order, trimness and self-respect.

There must be a great deal of truth in that expression of the common man who spends a part of his depleted funds and tells his friends: "You might as well look prosperous."

And in buying clothing for himself, he is following the same action as the community that joins in a "Clean-Up" Week of effort, and such effort means more goods bought in the stores, more employment for their staffs, and above all more work for the men who are anxiously seeking odd jobs.

Look at it the "Clean-up Week" idea, if you will, solely from a selfish point of view, and you will find yourself induced to give the present campaign, that should reach its peak next week, your endorsement and your active co-operation.

If one man's house and premises look dog-eared and run down, the neighborhood is likely to be infected by that same lack of pride and spirit and hope.

Let your house go, and the fences and lawns and flower boxes, and all the rest of the summer scene, and the extent of such deterioration is almost incalculable.

But, step out with new paint trims, new shingles on the roof, the lawn raked and rolled, and the flower plots ready for planting, and you place yourself on the side of the angels of faith and confidence, and even of determination that this community of Peterborough is going to buck up against the waste and the wear and tear of winter, and is going to look prosperous and confident.

Experience has proved that this is all true; and everybody can testify to its truth.

Don't fail to do your part; for you are essentially the community.

CLEANING UP CRAZE IS ON

Communities That Sponsor Clean-up Week Are Real Live Municipalities.

EVERYONE HELPS

Pick up the papers and, any day of the week, you can read about something or other, political or otherwise, that somebody or other purposes to "Clean Up" But there is nothing political about "Clean Up Week," because everybody of all classes, creeds and political affiliations are out to co-operate.

The communities that sponsor "Clean Up Weeks" are live communities urged by the spirit of good citizenship to make their city town or village a better, cleaner, safer and more attractive place in which to live.

Spring cleaning conjures up in the minds of some people, memories of a woman with a mop and broom and a pail of water, turning the house upside-down and making father's life a misery. But it is vastly different in reality. Modern mechanical appliances and cleaning products save the housewife hours of labor and make the whole home cleaner and more sanitary than was ever possible before, in half the time. And outside the house verandahs, front yards, back yards, doors etc., have to be looked after A coat of paint here, some new shingles there accumulated rubbish to be disposed of, and a hundred and one other little jobs the winter has left to be done.

And when "Clean Up Week" is over and home affairs get back to normal, everybody is happy, in the knowledge that, not only has a good job been done, but a job that assures sanitary surroundings and an object lesson in tidiness to those less particular

A National Message

THE Lord sent a word into Jacob, and it hath lighted upon Israel.

It is therefore injurious not to realise the importance of the combination which forms the Kingdom, namely, God the Father, God the Son, God the Holy Ghost, the House of David, the nation Israel, and the law or the constitution of Israel. To preach the gospel of the Kingdom to "the lost sheep of the House of Israel," and the gospel of salvation to all the world.

These are united together in our great Commonwealth of Nations at this time. The church extends beyond the nations and beyond the Kingdom. But its base is in the Kingdom; and every communicant, who is one in reality, is granted citizenship in the Israel covenants, among the seed of Abraham, no matter of what race they may be. We conclude to-day's study by repeating the fact that we have the state functioning amongst us; and that we are citizens of it at the present time. There will be no new state.

God will not turn from this, His own creation, to the one hand or to the other. He is carrying on the great purpose according to His published plans, through His Israel organization. It is the essential purpose and duty of the British-Israel movement to make it clear to each and to all that the basic institutions under which we are working, and which we have inherited as set forth herein, constitute the final and ultimate state.

That there are abuses and wrong things in the Kingdom as now constituted, is manifest to all. That there is one simple step to take to revoke and cast out all these is also clear. It is to restore, by a supreme national act of repentence, the constitution as it stands in toto; taking the Bible and the judgments which have been handed down in accordance with the law as our guide. Then, as Jesus swept the money-changers from the temple, together with all who otherwise defiled it, so the law will sweep away from the Kingdom nation all which is not of His own right hand planting.

We shall consider later (a) The constructive step forward about to be taken in the Kingdom according to the divine plan, and (b) the removal of those abuses which have crept in unawares, and those which have been enacted by human legislation.—Reprinted from "The National Message."

(To be Continued Next Week.)

CATHEDRAL M SINGS

A QUESTION that has perplexed many is why are so many prayers unanswered. There are many reasons, most comprised in the fact that very few people really know how to pray, in spite of the plain directions contained in Holy Writ.

The first requisite is to be really alone, to not only shut out all things and thoughts pertaining to this world, but to go further and shut out all thoughts of self and selfhood. It is really a matter of attunement and attunement is simply impossible unless the self is quiesc ent. How can we penetrate into the sanctuary of our hearts if the senses are not stilled? "Be still and know I am the Lord" is as true to-day as ever. Then when all is still, lift up the heart in love, and adoration, and thankfulness, for prayer is primarily a communion with the Most High, an act of worship and should be regarded as such. Most people think it the occasion for presenting a long series of entirely personal and selfish wants, never realizing that God knows all their needs and necessities without being constantly reminded of them. Prayer should be unselfish. Any gifts or boons desired should be sought for the sake of others rather than for oneself, or if for oneself should be sought for the purpose of increasing one's use or value to others. We should consider also that we do not always know what is good for us. Remember, we tend to see things in terms of this world, in terms of time, while the Cosmic powers view things in terms of our real good, in terms of eternity, and the two are not always compatible. Hence one should ask according to "Thy will," not according to "my will."

The last requisite is the occult one of praying "believing ye have already received." It is only by having this certain assurance and belief that we can set up causes in the spiritual world, which other conditions being favorable will produce results in this world.—Prater IX. NOW'S THE TIME to Beautify YOUR HOME

IN MOST HOMES EVERY WEEK IS CLEAN-UP WEEK

Hygienic Cleanliness Matter of Personal Pride With Most People.

SPRING LOGICAL SEASON

Talking of "Clean-Up Week", to the average woman, every week or even every day sees a little cleaning up around the home but the special week appointed by communities for this special purpose is a testimony to the advance that modern health science has made of late years.

Hygienic cleanliness is a matter of personal pride with most people, because they know from scientists and medical men that cleanliness makes for health and from their own experience, that it makes for comfort.

Spring is the logical season for a thorough clean-up. Winter has left dirt and dust in the house and unsightly rubbish and bare spots outside the house and the sunshine is here to help us in the task of making everything spick and span.

Women are, naturally, the most enthusiastic boosters of "Clean-Up Week."

Most communities sponsor "Clean-Up Weeks." It's not a fad or a stunt but the logical outcome of the teachings of scientists, medical men and health authorities as to the importance of clean, sanitary surroundings.

Here's another angle to the story. It is unfortunate but true that thousands of men are workless through no fault of their own. Now is a splendid chance to give a man a job, painting, mending, cleaning up the cellar or the yards. You'll be able to think of a dozen jobs that have to be done and you'll be happy in the realization that you've done a little towards bettering the lot of your fellow man.

AID DONATES $50 TO CHURCH BOARD

Trent River Society Meets at Home of Mrs. William Preston.

TRENT RIVER, May 4 (Examiner Correspondence.— A programe and tea-meeting tea served at the close of the Ladies' Aid meeting, Wednesday at the home of Mrs. William Preston brought out an attendance of over 40.

The president, Mrs. Gordon Shearer, had charge of the meeting and read the scripture lesson. Mrs. W. W. Redden led in prayer. The Deaconess reported on cards sent to the sick. The treasurer, Mrs. John Scott, reported cash in bank, $59.67. Mrs. Thomas J. Brown gave a brief report of church finances up to date, and the members voted $50 to the board of management.

Ways and means were discussed for raising money; an idea was suggested for each member to plant a slip of some favorite flower or foliage and find a purchaser for the same (not to exceed 15 cents); by the time of the June meeting.

Mrs. Kenneth Glenn announced she was having a quilting and ten-cent tea for the group dollar-a-member drive from her section on Wednesday, May 15. The June meeting of the Aid will be held in the church dining hall when tea will be served.

The following program was given: piano duet, "In Love's Garden," by Mrs. M. Lean and Miss B. G. French; vocal solo, "The Old Rugged Cross," Mrs. T. P. Lancaster (of Havelock); reading, "The Minister's Wife," Mrs. James Longmuir; vocal solo, "In The Garden of My Heart," Mrs. M. Lean; Miss B. G. French played the accompaniments.

A hearty vote of thanks was given Mrs. Preston for the use of her home and to those who so kindly contributed to the program. Those in attendance from Havelock were Mrs. Robert Jones, Mrs. J. Hoffman, Mrs. Douglas Hutchinson and Mrs. T. P. Lancaster.

Splendid Program Knox Church W.M.S.

The regular meeting of the W.M.S. of Knox United Church was held on Thursday afternoon in the ladies parlours. Mrs. McDonald, president of the society read the devotional leaflet, after which Mrs. J. Morrison offered prayer. A solo, "Was That Somebody You" was beautifully rendered by Mrs. Binks, accompanied by Mrs. Denoon. The circle of friendship was read by Mrs. Laing. Mrs. Denoon gave an interesting paper on H. D. Ashford's description of the people of India telling of their homes, their mode of living and the fear and respect they have for their gods.

Mrs. McCurdy gave a reading, Mrs. McDonald read an item from H. P. Morton's book. In His steps describing a pilgrim's visit to the tomb of our Saviour which was very interesting. Mrs. McDonald urged the ladies to bring and read at the meetings any paragraph that greatly impressed them in the course of their daily readings.

The singing of a hymn brought to a close a very profitable meeting.

Protected

ATLANTA, May 4. (CP)— Mrs. Joe King's car was parked four hours on a downtown street, but the police didn't put a ticket on it because a swarm of bees held the fort.

The bees moved onto the car while Mrs. King was shopping. She returned to find the car surrounded by a curious throng and a group of men tying to entice the bees into a box. The job took four hours.

Y'S MEN'S CLUB STAGES CIRCUS BROCK STREET

PLENTY OF ACTION.

Circus Opened With Street Parade—New Models of Cars Shown.

A tough break in the form of cold weather met the Y's Men's Club as they staged their big benefit endeavour of the year at the Brock Street Summer Gardens last night —the Bungling Bros. Mammoth Circus. The tough break failed, however, to prevent an outstanding success both circuswise and financially. And the underprivileged boys of the city, among whom the Y's Men's concentrate their work, will be the gainers.

It was a circus complete in all regards. A parade was the preliminary to the show. The entire troupe of circus animals—an elephant, a giraffe, an ostrich and a "gook"—and uniformed performers of several types among whom was even a corps of Bengal lancers, took part in the march accompanied by the Rangers Band and the Collegiate Bugle Band. Crowds jammed the curbs of the downtown streets to see the spectacle. The fact that there was something oddly human about the animals seemed not to dampen their enthusiasm a bit.

A good five hundred were lured into the Summer Gardens by the call of the bands and the circus was on. W. L. Ferguson in the traditional top hat and 'soup-and-fish' was the ring master, calling the acts with a satisfying embellishment of superlatives. At all times at least a half dozen clowns in full garb were running loose.

Elephant Act

A grand march by a large group of Y.M.C.A. youngsters — pioneers, beginners and juniors garbed in their regulation gym suits—opened up the program. Then came a trained elephant act. Jumbo, composed front and rear of Ray Lewis and Percy Ellison, cavorted in response to orders from scarlet-coated George Moore. The amazing animal could not only count and say yes and no with its feet but could also dance. When its intrepid trainer lay down to let the mammoth beast step over him, the beast seized the opportunity to trample him thoroughly into the ground.

The near-freezing temperature in the large auditorium numbed the hands of the Y Leaders' Corp members who staged an exhibition of work on the long horse. Despite the handicap, however, they put on an excellent show. Newt Hamilton, Clinton McGee, Nels Stanger and Bill Taylor were the performers.

Master Tom Stanley, a young Y. M.C.A. member, entertained the crowd with a complete assortment of tricks of his dog, a smart little terrier. Then pioneer and beginner "Y" members put on a demonstration of group games as played in the regular gym classes at the association. An exhibition of revolver shooting by Constable Flatfoot—Jack Thornton—fizzled out, much to the amusement of the crowd. The comedy constable had been firing with great success at a number of china cups suspended against a blanket at the other end of the Gardens when his revolver went out of commission. The accomplice who had been behind the blanket breaking the cups with a hammer came out in disgust.

A demonstration on the parallel bars by the Leaders' Corp won applause. The performers were Ron Howart, Clinton McGee, Bill Taylor, Newt Hamilton, Fred Williams, Bill Hogan, Mel Hunter and Jack Wolstenholme. Clint McGee and Jack Gardner and Andy Chartin with Earl Spencley staged an uproarious take-off on modern professional wrestling, complete in parody even to the last grunt and groan.

Bengal Lancers

The junior boys of the "Y" put on an interesting exhibition of elementary tumbling then the circus's corps of Bengal lancers—eight intermediate boys—staged a musical ride. Even though the horses they were riding were stuffed and though their locomotion was obviously through their own feet, the act impressed the audience considerably. The same group of Leaders' who performed on the long horse then demonstrated some clever advanced tumbling. A comedy weight-lifting act by Stan. Peryer and flying ring and pyramid exhibition by the Leaders rounded out a full program. Bill Taylor, Clint McGee, Jack Wolstenholme, Wilbert Ward and Bob French performed on the flying rings. The entire corps joined in the pyramid building.

The boys masquerading as Bengal lancers were Intermediates Galley, Weese, Clark, Williams, Mortimer, Pammett, Sedgwick and Caumick. Arnold Reynolds, Mike Latimer and Jack Huggins were the chief clowns in the apparatus numbers. Jack Stewart was the ostrich of the circus, Jim Goldie and Don Crawford the mysterious "Gook" and Bill Saunders the giraffe. Arnold Lillow, Fred Shaw and Ed. Shortt scored hits throughout as clowns.

General chairman of the show was E. Walker Jones while Doug. Loomis and Edward Shortt were the prime movers behing the program. Harry Tudhope, Ray Brown, George Nicholls and John Thornton played important parts in the production of the circus. Reg. Dyers' Orchestra served during the program.

Proposed harbor works in Korea and Manchurian extensions of the South Manchuria Railway Co., are expected to cost nearly $50,000,000.

Everybody Can and Should Become Member Of Clean-Up Campaign—No Fees Required

Everybody can and should become a member of the "Clean-Up" campaign because it is an association of public-spirited citizens which has no axe to grind, no fees to pay, and only one goal in view, namely the betterment of conditions around the home.

Of course, housecleaning is an all-the year round job, but with the coming of Spring and Nature's health-giving sunshine and the open air life, people everywhere give thanks that Winter and the days of stoking furnaces, sifting ashes and other cold weather "chores" are past. They are ready and willing to co-operate in a concerted effort towards making the whole neighborhood a cleaner and healthier plce to live in.

That's why "Clean-Up Weeks" were inaugurated and that's why the little Old Dutch lady who symbolizes healthful cleanliness, plays a leading role in the campaign, because she chases dirt from every nook and corner and helps the housewife to make everything spotlessly clean.

"Clean-Up Week" is here to stay. It's backed by medical men, health authorities, scientists everywhere. The householder who values his own and his family's and neighbors' respect will do his part to have his premises cleaned up both indoors and out-of-doors. The Good Book says that cleanliness is next to Godliness and there's a lot of truth in that. It's the real spirit of goodfellowship that respects the wellbeing of one's neighbors.

So, the more people who join the "Clean-Up" campaign, the more attractive your home will be ,the more healthy your community will be, and the better reputation your city, town or village will enjoy.

RAILWAY BOARD WILL MEET HERE

COURT HOUSE MAY 28.

Final disposal of the Canadian National Railway's request for permission to abandon the Port Hope-Peterborough branch of the railway was foreseen today in an announcement from Ottawa that the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada will sit here for a hearing of the matter at 10 a.m., May 28. The hearing will be held in the County court room according to a notice forwarded to Sheriff F. J. A. Hall.

Considerable opposition to the proposed closing of the line has been voiced at a series of meetings in Peterborough, Port Hope, Millbrook and Hope township during the past two months. Municipal representatives of the various communities concerned in the line have maintained that the abandonment would seriously affect their economic welfare and result in severe inconveniences. Among the outstanding opposition claims which have been made is one that the C.N.R. deliberately diverted freight traffic and mails from the line to put its financial operation in as bad a light as possible.

The C.N.R., on the other hand, makes its application with the claim that it has found it impossible to operate the branch profitably in face of trucking competition. The branch is being operated with increasing yearly deficits, the railway states.

An engineer of the Railway Board visited the various centres concerned along the line—Peterborough, Port Hope, Millbrook and Hope township among others—recently and heard the representations of the communities. He intimated at that time that the commissioners would either order abandonment of the line or grant a further hearing. The present announcement of the further hearing thus gives the opposition new hope.

Representatives of the C.N.R. will present their application to the Board at the hearing and representatives from the communities will be given opportunities to present their grounds for opposition of the abandonment.

WAR INEVITABLE MEIGHEN FEARS

States it is Difficult to Realize Lesson From Last Conflict Not Learned.

ADDRESSES KINSMEN.

LONDON, Ont., May 4. (CP).—A repitition of the disaster of world war is seen as almost inevitable by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Government leader in the Senate.

"The most important phase of world conditions at present lies in Europe and the Orient" the Senate leader said in an address to the Association of Kinsmen of Canada here last night. "It is not a happy scene nor one that augurs well for the happiness of the human race.

"Never since the war closed has the face of the universe been so troubled and foreboding," Mr. Meighen continued. "It is difficult to realize the lesson we thought we learned from the last war was not learned. It is hard to discern anything but a reptition of that insanity and hard to see contentment or prosperity ahead for us."

Five or six years of world economic upset had shaken the whole fabric of society and led to the disappearance of personal liberty and freedom of speech in many nations Mr. Meighan added. Institutions of democracy which had been known as the best only remained in Anglo-Saxon and two or there other countries.

DAY OF DECISIONS COMING.

WINDSOR,Ont., May 4 (C.P.). — For too long the average presentday person has been a "wishy-washy Christian' without any content or clearness as to his ideas on what to think or do, declared E. M. Best, general secretary of the National Councils of Y.M.C.A., at the annual meeting of the Windsor branch last night.

"In the next 15 years, important decisions will have to be made," he continued. "We will have to follow either one course or the other.'

DRAGOONS TO BE RE-ORGANIZED O. C. ANNOUNCES AT MESS DINNER

Millbrook and Norwood Squadrons Under Orders to Disband.

CHANGE IS REGRETTED.

Rumours that the 3rd. Prince of Wales' Canadian Dragoons are to be virtually disbanded in the reorganization of the Canadian Militia, were last evening merely substantiated by Lieut.-Colonel Claire H. Stuart, Officer Commanding the unit in an announcement made at the annual mess dinner at the Armouries. The function attended by a good representation of officers of the Dragoons and of sister units of the Garrison, was presided over by Captain Allan MacNab, as Mess President.

In response to a toast to "The Regiment", proposed by Lieut. A. E. Chalmers the Colonel intimated that Norwood and Millbrook squadrons had received orders to disband, while there was some possibility of Peterborough squadron along with Headquarters, maintaining the identity of the unit as a mechanized "flying squadron."

Future in Balance

He made it quite clear however, that the final disposition as to the future of the unit had not been decided upon, but hoped that the officers, whom he termed, "a particularly fine class of men," would be able to retain their rank if the necessity arose for their assimilation into some other branch of the service.

Through District Headquarters, Colonel Stuart further intimated the unit had been allotted enough money for the City Squadron and Headquarters Wing, to undertake a brief period of unmounted training during the summer. In this regard, he was promised the support of Lieut.-Colonel C. G. Winterbottom, M.C., D.C.M., OC. Rangers, and Major James Turnbull, O.C. "C" Company Machine Guns.

Colonel Winterbottom made the suggestion that the Dragoons could undertake their training along with the Rangers during the first week in July, out at the Rifle Ranges, and stated that Major Turnbull had promised that his unit would co-operate in a "big show" on the third day of the training period.

Represents D.O.C.

Colonel C. E. Connolly, D.S.O., A.A.Q.M.G. of M.D. 3, in replying to a toast to District Headquarters apologized for the absence of Colonel W. B. Anderson the D.O.C., who was unable to accept an invitation to be present on account of a prior engagement.

He touched briefly upon the pending reorganization of the unit, and spoke of it as being inevitable in the face of changing conditions. Proceeding to amplify some remarks made by a previous speaker he touched upon "the problem of the Pacific," and referred to Canada's strategic position in the scheme of Empire.

Then with reference to local plans for the Jubilee celebrations, with which he admitted he was not acquainted, he asked, "are we allowing this occasion to go by without teaching the children anything." He urged that, while he was not glorifying war he believed the militia should take a prominent part in any celebration in honor of the occasion, "to teach the children something of what we preach."

Ignorant of Plans

Apparently ignorant of the painstaking plans made by a local civic committee for proper observance of the occasion, Colonel Connolly referred to what was being contemplated in Ganonoque where a military Battery is to fire a feu de joie.

It is interesting in view of the remarks regarding cooperation between civic and military authorities, that the chairman of the local committee was in communication with the District Officer Commanding, and the suggestion that the local Battery of the C.F.A. be permitted to fire a Royal Salute of twenty-one rounds, was not entertained. Colonel Anderson made his refusal by telegraph.

It was further suggested by the committee as evidence of their willingness to cooperate with the militia that Jubilee Medal awards be formally presented to militiamen at the civic celebrations in Victoria Park.

Captain G. H Cutmore proposed a toast to "The Guests", and Lieut.-Colonel Winterbottom, M.C., D.C.M., and Colonel J. A. Dewart, M.C., very ably responded. The latter referring to reorganization remarked, 'whatever the future might have in store, the unit can pride itself on a very honored record."

Other guests included Lieut.-Colonel A. V. Thorne of Millbrook O.C. Durham Regiment.

New Amusement Tax Hits Racing Plants

TORONTO, May 4.—In the amended regulations of the Amusement Tax Act, every person attending a race meeting where running races are held, irrespective of the price of such admission, or whether admitted free, will be required to pay the amusement tax of 25 cents.

This means that no longer can any race track, such as Stamford Park, where they were admitted free or Thorncliffe and Devonshire, where ladies were admitted on certain days for 25 cents, escape the 25 cents government tax. The same, we believe, will also apply to Dufferin, where on certain days the crowd were admitted free after the running of the fifth race. The Government is stopping the good turn the associations have been doing their patrons.

W.M.S. Program On India Mission Work

JANETVILLE, May 4 (Examiner Correspondence)—The May meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church was held on Wednesday afternoon in the Sunday School rooms, with an average attendance of members and a number of visitors.

The president, Mrs. Harry Blatherwick presided and the meeting was opened by singing, "A Better Day is Coming," followed by responsive reading and sentence prayers by Mrs. James Thornton, Mrs. John Magee, and Mrs. H. Blatherwick.

The minutes of the April meeting the house-cleaning season, the N. W. McGill and approved, and it was arranged that the June meeting would be held in the church, when Mrs. Charles Deyell's group would be in charge.

The president suggested that during the house-cleaning season ,the ladies keep in mind the bale which will be packed in the Fall, and put by whatever might be suitable for that purpose. After receiving a collection of $1.70, Mrs. J. R. Magee took the chair for the following program, which was based on missionary work in India:

The devotional leaflet entitled "The Circle of Friendship" was read by Mrs. Thomas Robinson; "The Effect of Political Changes in India," by Mrs. Harry Blatherwick; "Does the Indian Church Want Missionaries?" by Mrs. James Thornton; a delightful vocal duet, "Let the Lower Lights Be Burning," was then rendered by Mrs. J. R. McGee and Mrs. Oswald McGill; reading, "The Future of the Church in India," was given by Mrs. E. A. Bradburn; a reading, "The Builders of the Indian Church," by Mrs. John Magee.

YOUR DREAM CASTLE

Take four friendly walls. Put into them some little scuffling feet and a few baby tears, paint them with Summer sunshine and Winter fire-light and touch them with laughter and the lingering voices of old friends. Heap there all your hopes and plans and cover them deep with love and living and you have a home. A home that will go with your children when they step out into the world, and yet, strangely, will keep them with you: Here is the living-room where Johnny had his first Christmas tree: there, the familiar hall where Mary looked so lovely as a bride. You, who once carried your own bride across its doorsill, rear your children to day in its shelter and will one day find peace in the million memories it can bring you—won't you make and keep your home the dream castle you've always wanted it to be?

Platers In Fine Fettle

WOODBINE OPENING SET

WOODBINE is a very busy place these days with all the horses arriving on the scene of action. The track itself is in midseason form and the water carts will have to be used if the weather turns warm as the dust is very bad. And with the opening of the Canadian racing season only a few weeks away, the King's Plate and its candidates is the main topic on everybody's tongue.

This is the oldest race on the American continent. Some folks may not know it but back in the old days when this turf classic was known as the Queen's Plate, it was run one year at Cobourg, another at Barrie, also at Woodstock, London and several other Ontario cities and towns. But of late years it has been always been the main attraction of opening day at the Woodbine course.

The Seagram stable has won it on more occasions than any other and this year Eddie Seagram has one in there called Gay Sympathy who may just do the trick. He showed last summer on numerous tracks that he likes a distance of ground and should be right at home over this trying mile and a furlong on Plate Day. He is going along nicely with his training and should be a fit horse when the time comes.

OLD GEORGE De Mar is now thirteen years old is out every morning and looking and acting like a two-year old. The veteran has a few more wins left in his ageing legs and will make a lot of the younger ones take his dust before this season's off. Young Kitty is another oldtimer who apparently never slows up and she seems to be going just as well as ever this year. Harry Giddings has twenty-nine head under his wing all quartered at Woodbine and well advanced in their training. Every stall is taken at the track so there will be no shortage of horses this year. The Hatch colorbearers are doing their stuff out at Long.

The Hatch colorbearers are doing their stuff out at Long Branch and are coming along fine. Donstick and Chickpea are the plate candidates from this stable and Trainer Bringloe thinks mighty highly of their chances. There are also plenty of horses over at Thorncliffe these days getting ready for the season's grind and Dufferin also has a fair quota. Trainer Jack Hutton brought the Ryland H. New plate hopeful, Lipton in last week and says he is the one they will all have to beat to collect the fifty guineas two weeks from today.

THERE WILL be about three steeplechase events during the seven day meeting at Woodbine. This form of racing is rapidly dieing out in this country as the Woodbine is the only track that even tries to cater to the jumpers. There are a great number of American horses coming over the line this year as with the addition of the new Orpen track at London and Devonshire operating again, it gives Ontario practically continuous racing from mid-May to mid-October.

"Beat Bradley" Battlecry Of Derby

KUNNEL BETS ON BOXTHORN TO COP DUKE

FAST TIME IN TRIALS

LOUISVILLE, May 4. — "Beat Bradley and take it all!"

That's what they are saying down here in regards to the sixty-first running of the Kentucky Derby. They have been saying the same thing, on and off for 20 years.

Col. Edward Riley Bradley, master of Idle Hour Stock Farm, has watched his green and white silks lead four Kentucky Derby parades in the past and he is depending on a horse called Boxthorn to make it five triumphs.

Boxthorn

And the folks who are here have reached the conclusion that the thoroughbred which beats Boxthorn to-day will take down the $40,000 in added money and the glory that goes with winning a Kentucky Derby.

May Be Favorite

Don't be surprised if Boxthorn is the favorite when the field is sent away. If the track is fast he may be the choice of the players. The early crowd is a western throng of course. It is partial to Nellie Flag and Boxthorn. Easterners start arriving Friday and boosters for steeds from that section will make themselves heard.

Boxthorn hasn't started this season but the son of Bubbling Over turned in a smashing workout Thursday, when he traveled the Derby distance of a mile and one-quarter in 2:06 4-5, the fastest time recorded in a trial spin this year. He did it easily and didn't make his real move until the last quarter, which he negotiated in :24 3-5.

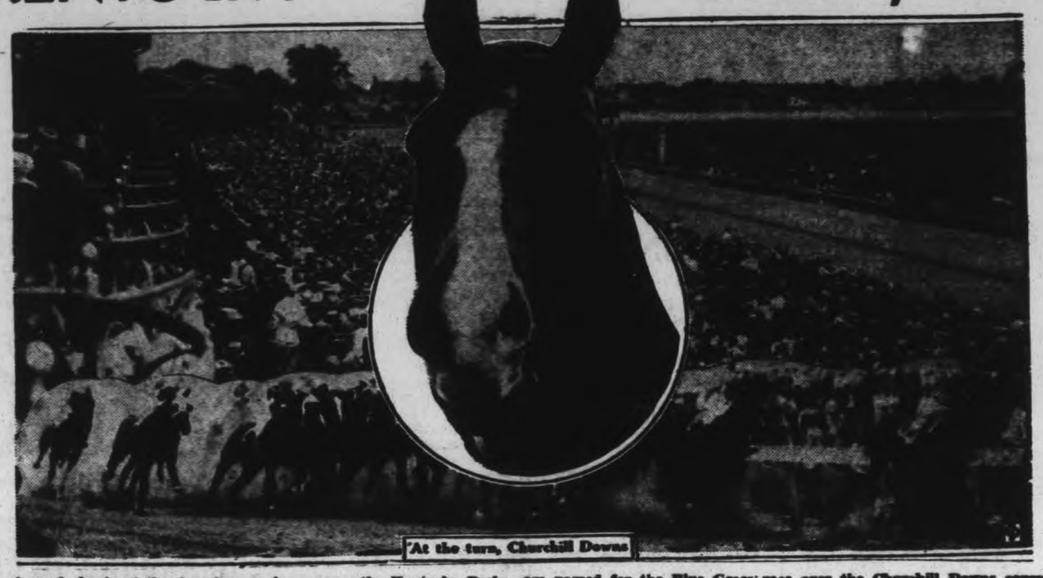
Jockey Don Meade thinks Boxthorn is "in". He will ride him.

Several other stars turned in good works Thursday, Omaha, Today, Plat Eye, St. Bernard and Morpluck impressed the railbirds. Commonwealth is coming in for his share of attention

KENTUCKY DERBY, 1935



At the turn, Churchill Downs

Annual classic of the American racing season, the Kentucky Derby, run this year on May 4, attracts the same enthusiastic gala crowds as does the famed English Derby. The best of American thoroughbreds are named for the Blue Grass race over the Churchill Downs course. Top layout shows general views of the scene on race day. Below, a line-up of the best-favored contenders this year.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, although the mercury has been hovering down near the hockey bracket most of the week, Mister K. Lee's athaletes has been getting in quite a jag of work, and Mon. they're going to celebrate the royal jubilee by staging 2 battles with the Valley Views from Toronto. The Riverside Park is to be the scene of the fray with games in the a.m. and p.m., and the fixtures oughta give the fans a lot of excitement and entertainment. Some new faces will be seen in the Petes' line-up, and the local bugs is all agog to see the 1935 team in action, so they oughta to be a crowd of the citizens over the river Mon. to see the doings.

The softballers and the lacrosse outfits both got organized this week, and altogether it looks like a busy summer round this neck of the woods, especially if the fans get in behind the City Ball League and help that loop do its stuff.

In the big shows, Mac, they's been a lotta screwery games and some real gilt-edged affairs, too. Up in Chicago they wasn't satisfied with throwing baseballs, but tossed a few fists around the other day, and several of the athaletes had to dig down in their jeans and pay for the pleasure of taking the odd swing. In Brooklyn the rubber plant belt fans has been having a royal time tossing firecrackers and choice language at Manager Bill Terry and his New Yawk Giants. If they live to be a thousand them Brooklynites will never forget Mister Terry's 1934 wisecrack, "Is Brooklyn still in the league?" They was still mad enough last fall to knock the Giants right out the pennant race, and they'll repeat this year if they's a chance in the world.

I don't like to do no crowing, you understand, Mac, but if you take a peak at the standing you'll find the New York teams not far away from the top rung in each loop, so mebbe that all-New Yawk world's serious dope ain't so damp after all. Of course, this Cleveland gang in the American loop is doing a Sir Malcolm Campbell right now, but they can be stopped, Mister, and somehow I still think the Yanks will do the trick, even with old Mister Babe Ruth sold up the river.

Sportfully yours,

A. WISE CRACKER.

BOBBY COOMBS SETS PACE, PRIVATE ALBANY MOUND WAR

Stars Played Seven Games in Which Starting Hurler Around at Finish.

MYLLYKRANGAS TOPS LOOP

(By The Associated Press)

Rain and cold weather scored a clean sweep over the International League program yesterday and gave statistically-minded fans a chance to study pitching records for the past 16 days of the campaign.

One of the surprising discoveries of that perusal of the records was the fact that Syracuse Stars, although they have won only five of their first 13 games, lead all the rivals in the matter of complete games, one of the surest indications of pitching effectiveness.

With Bobby Coombs setting the pace, the Stars have played seven games in which their starting hurler still was around at the finish. Coombs has pitched three of these complete games in winning three games and losing one so far this campaign.

As against Syracuse's average of nearly 54 per cent, the league as a whole shows only 41 per cent of starting hurlers able to finish.

The records for the other clubs follow: Baltimore, eight in 17 games; Montreal, seven in 15; Rochester, eight in 16; Newark, six in 16; Buffalo, five in 14; Toronto, four of 14; and Albany credited with both of them.

Birthday Greetings

(By The Canadian Press)

To C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville, Canada's No. 1 amateur golfer. Sandy was born in London, Ont., on May 4, 1903. He has won the Canadian amateur title four times and the United States amateur once—in 1932. Now he is gunning for the British amateur championship. A few years ago he was also a star at cricket, football and hockey. two of 13, with Jimmy Carithers

Individually the leader in complete games is Lauri Myllykangas, former Dartmouth star now pitching for Montreal. Lauri has pitched four complete games, winning three and losing one. Tied with Coombs with three are Ted Kleinhans of Newark and Jim Lyons of Rochester. Those with two complete games to their credit include Beryl Richmond and Harry Gumbert, of Baltimore; Pete Appleton of Montreal; Bill Harris of Buffalo; Carithers; Maywood Beicher of Rochester, and Vandenberg.

The hardest working pitcher in the league so far has been Phil Hensel of Albany. He has worked in eight of his team's 13 games. Bob Wicker of Newark has pitched in six of the Bears' 16 games for runner-up honors.

MONTREAL CITY CLUB SUFFERS HEAVY LOSSES

Dandurand to Ask Permission to Suspend Operations Next Winter.

MOVE TO ANOTHER CITY.

MONTREAL, May 4. — The hockey world received a shock yesterday when Leo Dandurand announced that Montreal Canadiens, the oldest professional hockey club in existence, might ask permission to suspend operations next winter.

The Bleu-Blanc-Rouge this year celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary—with a loss estimated by Dandurand at between $10,000 and $40,000. Co-owner of the club with Joe Cattarinich since 1920, when they purchased the franchise from the late George Kennedy for $11,000, Dandurand said that unless the club is given permission to negotiate with Cleveland or Boston it will ask permission to suspend for a year. The information had been sent to President Frank Calder of the National Hockey League, Dandurand added.

Each year for the last three seasons the club has lost $10,000 to $40,000, Dandurand said. He considered the contract with the Montreal Forum calling for 40 per cent. had much to do with the losses.

Dandurand made the announcement at a dinner at which Aurel Joliat, veteran and polished offwing star, was given $100 and a cocktail set as an award for being judged the best player on the team during the past season. George Mantha, also a left-winger, received second prize.

The Canadien Club has produced a galaxy of players in its long career. Few of them were purchased for any great sums of money, most being developed by Dandurand and a succession of coaches under his guidance.

Harris Likes Foxx—Says Jimmy Better Catcher Than Tiger Pilot

NEW YORK, May 4—Stanley (Bucky) Harris, manager of the Washington Senators, yesterday went a step farther than Connie Mack, veteran pilot of the Athletics, in his estimation of Jimmy Foxx as a catcher. "Foxx," said the frank Harris, "is not only as good a catcher as Mickey Cochrane, as Connie Mack said, but in my estimation, he's a better catcher than Cochrane ever was or will be. He can do anything Cochrane can do behind the plate, and in addition he can outthrow and outhit Cochrane."

In Harris' opinion there are just four teams in the American League, the Yanks, Tigers, Indians and Senators.

He thinks the Yanks are still the team to beat, believes the Tigers are just as good as ever despite their slow start, figures the Indians will fold up as usual when the going gets tough, and looks for his own hard-hitting but somewhat aged club to be in the first division.

"If I could get another starting pitcher to go with Burke, Whitehill and Hadley, I'd be right up there," says Bucky.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two.

(By G. J. S.)

There is a strong possibility that two senior ball games will be run off in Riverside Park on Jubilee Day—next Monday, ya dope! In fact, nothing short of a snowstorm, earthquake, flood or some such major calamity can keep the boys from waltzing out on the diamond. Personally, we wouldn't mind seeing it get nice and warm for Monday, say about 96 or 97 degrees in the sun, both for the sake of the players' soup-bones and the fans' shin-bones. Closed pores do not make for open enthusiasm at a ball game for some reason or other—maybe it's got something to do with keeping out the baseball germs. Be that as it may, we trust Old Sol does not give us the cold shoulder Monday.

• • • • • •

Toronto Valleyviews are the opposition to Johnson Motors—well, call 'em the Petes, then—and both games should be exciting. Valleyviews are plenty tough and the locals are shaping up well, despite chilly nights for practice lately. All local prospects will be given a chance to show their stuff for a time in one tilt or the other. Five or six hoopers are expected on the home hilltop—but not all together of course, since this is most decidedly against the rules. So all should be okay. If the weather is warm we will, as usual, jump around in jittery fashion as if there were ants in the pants. If it's cold, we will sit and shiver like a cove at a seance. Either way, it look like an active day for us.

• • • • • •

The Petes batted .267 last year and fielded .952. And just as a reminder here are few of the top averages: Batting—Foley .314, Calladine .296, Batten .286, L. Hollingsworth .283, Murray .280, Konopka .272, Ash .269, Burton .265 and Rose .250; fielding—Burton and L. Hollingsworth 1.000, Ash .963, Calladine .961, Whatley .938, Foley .918, Konopka .864, with all the pitchers fielding well up. Dysell and Kitchen led the heavers in games won and lost—Scriver only pitching one which he won with a two-hit performance—while Calladine and Rose split even winning the same number they lost.

• • • • • •

Down in Belleville, they seem to have unravelled a mystery. Harold Hansen of Toronto was brought into Belleville this spring to play senior ball. He disappeared shortly and now they find him back in Toronto, all caught up on the Quinte town. If that's a mystery, there are plenty of Sherlock Holmes in Peterborough as it has been known here for some time that Hansen was back in Toronto. And it might make interesting reading if the Belleville scribe were to find out and say why Hansen left. They announce down there that Dr. Harry Blakely—one a mighty nifty Quinte shortstop—is around there again and may play once more. And Vaughn Jack of Madoc may turn out also. He should be good yet, but Blakely has likely faded considerably since 1928 or thereabouts.

• • • • • •

The Peterborough team is being eyed askance—whatever that means—hither and thither about the Province. St. Thomas paper says: "Knotty Lee this year is going after the title. It will be a great spring if the Tom Cats ever upset his team. Peterborough, in the senior O.B.A.A. playoffs." And they quote the Limestone City scribe as follows: "At Peterborough, Knotty Lee's Sep-Tiops took a boost when Frank Whitehouse was granted a transfer from Toronto to Peterborough. Whitehouse was a smart hurler a few years ago and should still be good enough to show plenty in the C.O.B.I. The transfer of Red Hollingsworth was held up but the chances are he will play with the puddle-jumpers."

• • • • • •

And this from Chick in the Stratford sheet—would you call him the Bard of Stratford?—"Frustrated in their efforts to cop the senior O.B.A.A. championship last summer, the Peterborough Petes are leaving no stone unturned to realize their ambition this year and in that respect they seem to be ably assisted by the O.B.A.A. executive. Up to Saturday, the Petes had six transfers granted and on Saturday another was added to the list, so they now have seven new faces—almost a complete team." And again the Kingston writer comes forth, or fifth, with this: "Belleville and Peterborough will probably want an extra hour before the game to introduce their players to the fans." In spite of all they say, there will be only three new faces with the local seniors this summer, and don't forget we lost three players since last season.

• • • • • •

And, since we seem to be writing a good portion of this column aided and abetted by a pair of scissors and a paste pot, here's some more from Kingston: "The Ponies are likely to play an exhibition game at Smith's Falls on Monday, with a return game here later in the month. The Ponies have been out to practise every night this week, despite unseasonable weather, and they are not being spared any by Joe Daley." And young Stan Scrutton is being boosted down there for his showing—a youngster who may make the team this year.

Besides the two local gals' softball teams who will play in Lindsay Monday probably against Omemee and Beaverton, a men's team from here—the Fashion-Crafts—will meet a Lindsay squad. Millbrook lacrosse tangle with a Lindsay-Peterborough picked team in the arena, too. Of course, the softball tilts will all be played in the rink, the ground being rolled hard and level for the occasion. And in the evening by the moonlight, two or three pro rasslin' bouts will be dished up, but whether raw, rare or well done, deponent knoweth not!

B. WANDERERS REGAIN PLACE 1ST DIVISION

Brentford Also Advances to Major Section of English Soccer League.

HOTSPURS DEMOTED.

LONDON, May 4 (C.P. Cable).—Bolton Wanderers' end-of-the-season drive to regain its first position status proved successful to-day, together with Brentford will play in the major English Soccer League next season.

Bolton just nosed out West Ham United from the coveted runner-up position in the Second Division, by holding Blackpool to a 1-1 draw on the seasiders' ground. Playing up to expectations, the Hammers overcame Oldham Athletic 2-0 in Lonoon, but while the victory put them on equal terms with Bolton as far as points are concerned, their goal average was decidedly inferior. Brentford, already assured of the championship, defeated Sheffield United 3-1.

The battle to avoid relegation from the First Division ended in favor of Middlesbrough and Leicester City as a result will accompany Tottenham Hotspurs into the Second Division. Middlesbrough and Chelsea drew 2-2, while Leicester, in a valiant fight at Pratton Park, drew with Portsmouth 1-1. The Spurs were defeated 4-3 at Leeds.

Little interest was shown elsewhere in the closing games of the season. Arsenal, already English champion, was defeated 1-0 by Derby County at Highbury.

Oldham Athletic and Notts County will play in the Third Division during the 1935-36 campaign. Both teams lost to-day.

Charlton Athletic, winners of the Southern Section Third Division, finished the season with 61 points, well ahead of the pack. The Valley Parade team played a 2-2 draw with Reading. Doncaster Rovers, bracketed with Charlton to replace Oldham Athletic and Notts County, in the Second Division, lost 1-0 to Halifax Town.

Longshoremen Refuse to Accept Temporary Agreement Till May 25.

WANT ONE FOR SEASON.

MONTREAL, May 4. —(CP)— A provisional agreement reached last night by ship owners and representatives of 2,000 longshoremen who walked out from their jobs Wednesday was emphatically rejected when submitted to the membership at large of the union at a meeting today.

The temporary agreement was to run till May 25 while negotiations went on for a contract covering the entire shipping season. The striking members of the Syndicated Longshoremen of Montreal howled their derision at the proposal at the meeting today and declared that they would not return to work till an agreement for the whole season was concluded.

VAN LINGLE MUNGO OUTPITCHES JIM WEAVER FOR BROOKLYN WIN

Pirates Drop First Game of Eastern Invasion to Dodgers.

FINAL SCORE 2-1.

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Casey Stengel, who lacks much of the professional optimism of a baseball manager, admits that his Dodgers need a lot more good pitching than they have now if they're going places in the National League this season. But considering their limitations, they've done pretty well so far, leading at one time and now holding firmly to second place.

Even if they don't stay up there, the Dodgers seem sure to make plenty of trouble for the other clubs when Van Lingle Mungo is on the mound. So far this Spring the mighty right hander has gone the full route five times, winning three games and losing two.

Three Straight Wins

Watson Clark has been the only other consistent member of the Brooklyn flinging corps, chalking up three straight victories in his rather surprising comeback effort. Johnny Babich has turned in a couple of good efforts and one very bad one while Dutch Leonard and Ray Benge have failed to produce as starting pitchers.

Mungo had his troubles yesterday as the Dodgers ran into Pittsburgh Pirates at the start of the Western invasion of the league's eastern sector, but he came through impressively. Not only did the big South Carolinian outpitch the even bigger Jim Weaver, but he took matters into his own hands to drive in the winning run.

The Pirates, skidding into seventh place, collected only six hits off Mungo, but they put together a single by Babe Herman, the former Dodger hero, a force-out and Pie Traynor's double for a fourth inning run. That looked like enough to win until Weaver bega nto wobble in the seventh. Danny Taylor and Joe Stripp nicked him for singles and the former scored after Al Lopez's fly. Mungo then smashed a base hit through Cookie Lavagetto to bring Stripp in from second.

Fast Track Forecast

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 4. — (AP).—A cool, clear afternoon and a fast track were forecast to-day for the sixty-first running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs.

Work has been pushed to get the track in readiness after rains earlier in the week reduced it to mud. Only unexpected showers would undo the work, attendants said.

Job's Life a Picnic Say Burlesque Men To Task Of Keeping Strip Teasers Clothed

DETROIT, May 4.—(CP).—Compared to the troublous days and nights of a burlesque theatre manager, the life of Job was pleasant as that of an ant in a picnic basket.

At least, that was the impression one gathered as the managers of four Detroit burleque houses appeared in police headquarters to explain why they harbored that esthetic oddity known as the "strip teasers."

Detective Lieut. Lester Potter told of attending one show and being shocked when "a wisp of a girl wearing a wisp of something" appeared on the theatre's runway. The "wisp of something" was a minute collection of microscopic beads.

"Ah, me" sighed one of the managers. "There's no telling what the girls will do for applause."

"The girls," he continued, "are absolutely mad about applause. We try to hold them down, but as soon as our backs are turned, what do they up and do but jump out of their clothes."

After promising eternal vigilance and less back-turning, the managers were permitted to go.

HOLIDAY TWIN RIVERSIDE PARK

PARK IN GOOD SHAPE.

Weather permitting, Toronto Valleyviews and the local seniors—Johnson Motors—will play two exhibition games in Riverside Park Monday, one at 10.15 in the morning and the other at three in the afternoon. These games were originally billed for the Exhibition Grounds but have been changed back to the regular stamping grounds of the Petes in Ashburnham. Admission fee is 25 cents for each contest and, while the games are in the nature of practise tilts for the locals, some real competition is expected.

All six home hurlers may be used, according to Knotty Lee, these being: Lefty Lapper, Frank Whitehouse, Lefty Lesurf, Russ Kitchen, Spook Striver and Bill Calladine—though the latter may be kept on at third base regularly. Ash is a fixture on first with Murphy likely to stay at short. Konopka, Hollingsworth and others may see action at second. The possible outfield consists of Kearns, Foley, Burton, Cadd, Hope, Len Hollingsworth and a few more. Whatley and W. Starr are the receivers. The Valleyviews—champions last year of the Toronto Senior League—will be at full strength and will hustle the Motors' crew in both tussles.

Six Philadelphians To Go on The Block

PHILADELPHIA, May 4—On the heels of the Athletics' departure for Cleveland, reports sprung up in well informed circles here yesterday that Connie Mack is seeking waivers on six players, five of them pitchers.

The veteran manager, it is generally known, has long been discouraged by the White Elephant's losing streak and his lack of ready cash to make replacements.

Those on the waiver list are reported to be Ed Coleman, slugging outfielder; Sugar Cain and Lefty Mahaffey, mainstays of the unproductive pitching staff; George Caster, Dutch Lieber and another rookie hurler.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES

By ALEX J. MORRISON

Number 603

Some think they are on their game when they're scoring well. Others figure they've hit their stride when enjoying a run of good breaks. Little wonder that a player claims to be off his game when he has a bad hole or the breaks are against him.

Most players picture themselves as being on their game only when they have days of almost perfect co-ordination, days when they can't miss a shot, and even if they do top a drive they still hole out in low figures.

These days are few and far between even with the experts. They might be termed birthdays. The closeness with which you can approximate these days with their co-ordination and smooth swings represents your game.

TOO MANY POTATOES.

MILO, P.E.I., May 4. (C.P.) — Potato producers at a meeting here called upon the Dominion Government to limit acreage of potatoes planted to 10 per farmer with a penalty of $25.00 per acre for anyone breaking the restriction. The producers claimed 21 of the leading farmers of the district sold only 200 bushels of potatoes from their 1934 crop, for which each received about $1.00 profit.

SKIES CLEAR AT CHURCHILL FOR 61 DERBY

Form Players Receive Jolt With News of Injury to Whitney's To-day.

70,000 TO SEE FINISH.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 4. (AP). The storm clouds have rolled by, the crowds are rolling in and it's derby day again in old Kentucky, with all its fanfare and furor, the headaches and heart-thobs that go to make this event more magnetic to sports-followers than any other horse race in the United States.

By way of giving the form-players a final jolt, it developed overnight that C. V. Whitney's colt To-day, the favorite and one of the east's two best bets to turn back the challenge of the crack western filly, Nellie Flag, had pulled up with a slight bruise on one hind foot after a last workout.

The Derby "Jinx"

The mishap to the derby's 3 to 1 choice, said Trainer Jack Healy, wasn't serious enough to affect the colt's running or damage his chances but it caused quivers in the Whitney camp, long-pursued by a derby "jinx" and put the favorite "on the spot." The previous choice, J. E. Widener's Chance Sun, went lame suddenly and was withdrawn this week.

Otherwise, all was outwardly serene in the barns at Churchill Downs and the 61st running of the three-year-old classic "wide open" for a surprise finish.

Nellie Flag, the strapping granddaughter of Man o'War, shared the principal public support with the seemingly ill-fated To-day, William Woodward's fast-finishing Omaha and Col. E. Bradley's candidate for a fifth winner, Boxthorn, but it appeared at least seven horses had a chance to wear the victor's wreath of roses and receive the acclaim of a record-breaking crowd.

70,000 to See Finish

An unprecedented outpouring, expected to number close to 70,000 spectators, offered a spectacle in sports-following enthusiasm contrasting sharply with the top-hatted, hoop-hatted, hoop-skirted gathering of barely 10,000 that witnessed the launching of a national institution 60 years ago, when the "little red horse" Aristides won the first Kentucky Derby.

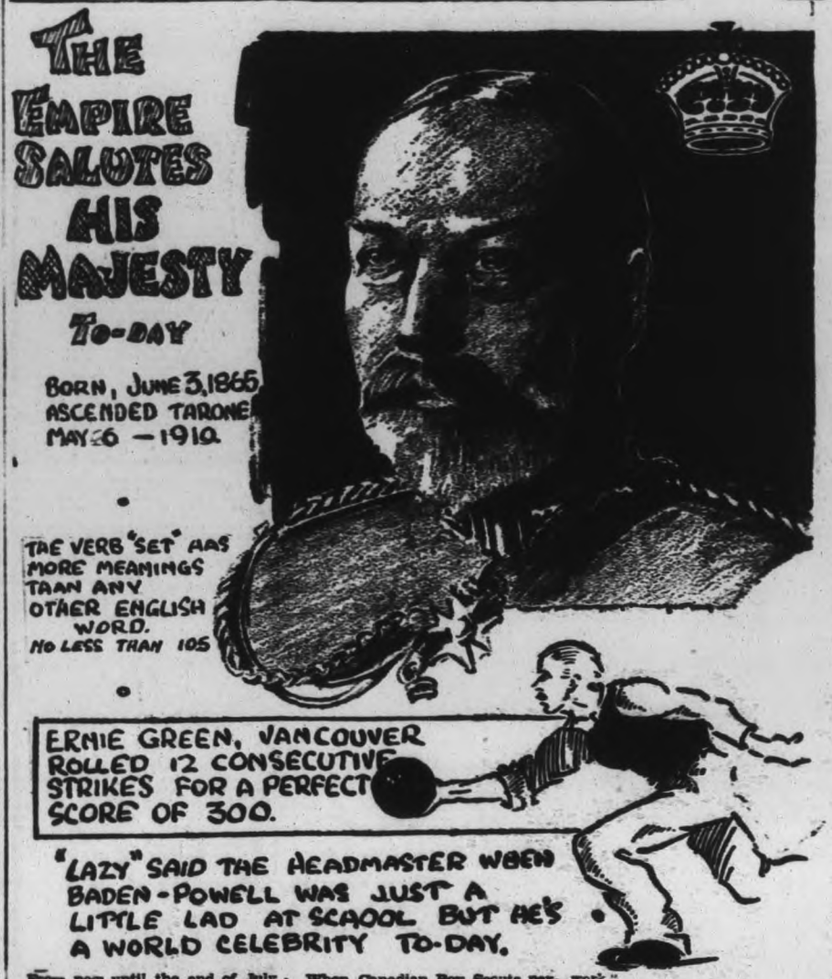
TELLING ON CANADA

and the British Empire
By HARRIS-STAPLETON



From now until the end of July, the interest of the 493,000,000 inhabitants of the British Commonwealth of Nations will be more intensely focused on King George than at any time during the 25 years he has reigned. The program of pomp and pageantry just inaugurated is the most elaborate in the history of the empire, surpassing even that of Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee celebration.

From the very ends of the earth loyal subjects are assembled in old London to honor the ruler who has occupied the throne during the most eventful years of Britain's history, and appropriate celebrations will be held in every part of the far-flung commonwealth. Solemn services of thanksgiving will contrast with colorful pageants. There will be military and naval reviews — banquets and receptions — levees and drawing rooms. Coins and stamps will commemorate the occasion by special issues. Blazing beacons will carry their eloquent story. The world will pay tribute.

The whole story of the historic event will be unfolded as it transpires in the columns of this newspaper.

When Canadian Boy Scouts participate in the program for Monday next, lighting a chain of beacons from the Atlantic to the Pacific, special interest will attack to Winnipeg's bonfire, for it will be ignited by the World Chief Scout himself. Lord Baden-Powell, touring Canada, will pay his tribute of homage in this simple yet impressive manner.

The distinguished visitor himself has often told with gusto the story of his schoolboy days, when he preferred playing backwoodsman and scout rather than the classroom. He admits that he often fell asleep at his desk, and was frequently described as lazy by his masters. His mathematical teacher reported that Baden-Powell had given up the study of that subject, and the science master that he paid not the slightest attention. In spite of these demerits, however, the headmaster expressed the opinion that the boy's ability was greater than his form work would indicate, and in after years the chief scout stated that this spark of encouragement "fanned itself into a flame of energy when I found it really necessary to work."

Baden-Powell was born on Feb. 22, 1857, in a quiet street near Hyde Park, London, and was christened Robert Stephenson Smyth. At 13, he became a pupil at Charterhouse school, where his natural scouting instinct revealed itself. Almost all of his leisure hours were spent in a stretch of woodland extending around the recreation fields, where he played scout and trapper, developing the powers of "observation that afterward became so valuable when he soldiered in India and Africa. By actual experience, he learned to snare his rabbits and squirrels, to skin and dress them, and then to cook them over a fire that wouldn't smoke and give the show away to schoolmasters who were not likely to approve of the practice.

It was during the Boer war (1899-1902) that his abilities fully revealed themselves and he became "B.P., the hero of Mafeking," but it was at Charterhouse school that the foundation was laid.

TRIES FOR CROWN IN BRITISH GOLF

Friends of Sandy Somerville Have Great Hopes for Success This Year.

LONDON, Ont., May 4 (C.P.) — When Sandy Somerville leads his Canadian team of nine into the British amateur golf championship late this month, the quiet London player will be linked with W. Lawson Little of San Francisco, defending champion, as the man to beat.

This is only Sandy's second attempt to lift the third major amateur title within his reach, and he only one of the three he hasn't captured. He went to the fifth round in the gruelling match-play test in 1933 before being eliminated. This time he ranks as one of Little's most dangerous challengers.

Four-times amateur champion of Canada and winner of the United States amateur in 1932, Somerville remains Canada's greatest amateur. It required an American, Scotty Campbell of Seattle, to keep him from winning the Canadian amateur for the fifth time last fall at Montreal. If he's "hot" in England, his friends here believe, Sandy will come through with a victory.

Against his chances is the fact he hasn't played all winter and got in only a couple of weeks drilling over the London Hunt Club course before sailing. It is largely a question of whether he can lift his game to championship peak within a short time. His Canadian henchmen are up against the same problem.

Except for the British Columbians, Dick Moore and Ken Black, the Canadians have been away from golf courses since late last fall. But Somerville left home confident that the team would achieve something like real form for the big test.

This is Sandy's 12th season of major tournament play. He was runner-up for the Canadian amateur in 1925 and won the event for the first time the following year, then went on to capture it three times more before he startled the world at large by winning the U.S. amateur.

All his other interests in sport have been virtually abandoned in favor of golf. He plays badminton in winter, but only moderately well. In his school days he was regarded as one of the most promising cricketers ever developed in Canada. Ridley College has yet to turn out his equal.

He went to University of Toronto and starred at both football and hockey. He was an exceptionally accurate drop-kicker and he might have made a professional career out of hockey. He was a good ball player, too.

May 6th, 1935

A holiday of play for the imagination! When thoughts will go roving over the sea to follow a carriage wending its stately way amid massed millions of men, women and little children shouting hurrahs for their King and Queen. Homage in the modern age! And what colour, what glamour, what verve! Flower boxes, Venetian masts, pennants, flags, Continental potentates—against a scene so British: Buckingham Palace. Westminster. The City. St. Paul's Cathedral. The glistening helmets of the Life Guards. The vivid blue of the Order of the Garter. Princes and Princesses of the Royal House. India's Maharajahs, turbaned and jewelled. Empire representatives from Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia, North America, the Islands of the Seas—every region under the sun. Great personages of the arts and professions. Army, Navy and Air Force in all their splendour. Church and State in all their dignity. Famous bands playing joyously. . . . Canada echoes the thanksgiving of resplendent London acclaiming the 25th Anniversary of Their Majesties' accession to the throne.

KIWANIANS OBSERVE SILVER JUBILEE OF KING AND QUEEN

Special Luncheon Program is Held With Music and Readings Featured.

REV. A. G. EMMETT SPEAKS

The Silver Jubilee anniversary of Their Majesties King George V and Queen Mary was fittingly recognized by members of the local Kiwanis Club with an outstanding program specially drawn up for the occasion by the program committee.

Past President A. B. Gates occupied the chair in the absence of President Ivan T. Lillico at the luncheon meeting held at Empress Hotel yesterday, while the twenty-five year period of King George's reign stressing the greatness of the King's character and the might of his achievement through one of the most stressful periods of British history.

Songs and Readings

The program was greatly enhanced by vocal solos, appropriate to the occasion which were contributed by Mrs. G. H. Oulmore, accompanied at the piano by Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., and by patriotic readings by the Misses Merrell Smith and Elsie Chambers.

The speaker declared that nothing but "the miracle of prayer" could explain the Empire-wide celebrations to be held on Monday.

Comparing the sentiment that lay behind similar events in national history, the speaker referred to the funeral of the late Queen Victoria and the Coronation of King Edward VII, which was delayed on account of the late King's illness.

No more ambitious national celebrations had ever been prepared imperially than those originally planned for the Coronation of King Edward, but his illness like the passing of good Queen Victoria awakened a dread in the minds of the people. In both cases it was an unnamed dread of what the future might hold.

Unfounded Dread

There was even a deeper dread, the speaker believed, when following the death of King Edward, the Duke of York (now His Majesty King George V) succeeded to the throne, fears were felt that the present King would be unable to meet the great responsibilities that were his.

Just how well King George had born the burdens and responsibilities that were thrust upon him, and how deeply he had attached himself to the common people was demonstrated, the Rev. Mr. Emmett observed, when in November 1928 His Majesty contracted pleurisy while attending Armistice services at the Whitehall Cenotaph, and special prayers for his recovery were offered in churches throughout the Empire.

"And now we are to celebrate the Silver Jubilee of the King's accession," the speaker remarked, "and we regard it as a time at which we can lift our hearts in thanksgiving to Almighty God."

Empire Service

He continued to review the King's leadership through the critical years of the last quarter century, and believed, "the British Empire is more secure now than ever before, as a result of his Kingship—an achievement he has won by sheer character and not genius."

The Rev. Mr. Emmett expressed the opinion that one of the secrets of the deep love and regard in which His Majesty is held is that, "he knows and understands the people and can always see and interpret the point of view of the man on the street."

"He is his people; he draws no breath apart from them," the speaker said using a borrowed quotation.

Besides being so near to his people, King George was a God-fearing monarch. His religious faith was so deep that his people knew he feared God and would always do his duty. "He has filled his role at all times as a constitutional monarch no matter how hard or how difficult the role has at times proved to be. Through all the troubles of the past years, he has been the one man in the Empire who could be depended upon to keep a cool head," the speaker said.

"Head of Household"

Quoting from a recent book written by John Buchan the newly appointed Governor General of Canada in which reference is made to the King's series of Empire broadcasts, he said: "The King's wave length subtly attuned itself to every heart. It is not the Sovereign or symbol who speaks, but the head of a household who summons his family around the hearth and commends them to the Father of every family in heaven and on earth."

"The King has led his people because he has evoked what was best in them," and he concluded, "God bless the King."

The vote of thanks to the speaker and to all others who assisted with the program was ably moved by Dr. F. C. Neal.

One of the unrehearsed items on the program was the appearance of a demure little tot attired as a "darkie" complete with watermelon, who very effectively advertised the forthcoming Y.W.C.A. pageant entitled, "The Romance of the Toyshop."

Foreign Consuls Refuse Attend Jubilee Service

MELBOURNE.—The entire consular corps here, excepting the Japanese and Italian representatives, declined to attend the levee at Hunting Fields on the occasion of King George's jubilee. The consuls of the various countries explained to-day they meant no lack of respect to the sovereign and pointed to the fact the British flag hung from their offices yesterday. They stayed away, they said, in protest over the fact at the official ceremonies recently incident to the visit of the Duke of Gloucester, consular officers were given seats in the far rear.

EMPIRE JOINS LONDON CROWDS IN GALA JUBILEE

Thunderous Ovations Greet Royalty in Drive To and From St. Paul's.

CELEBRATIONS CONTINUE.

Pageantry, Solemnity and Pomp Intermingle to Make Unforgettable Event.

LONDON, May 7.—(C. P.-Havas) — "God Save the King," uttered as with one voice by his subjects in a vast outpouring of loyalty, heartened the sovereign today as he began the 26th year of his reign on the throne of Britain and the Empire.

The 25th anniversary of the King's accession was over—but the Silver Jubilee celebrations went on.

The people of the United Kingdom resumed their customary toil, the memory of a great spectacle lingering in their minds, but on a lesser scale the demonstrations were scheduled to continue today. Tomorrow the King will receive representatives of the diplomatic corps and of the Empire and a service of thanksgiving will be held in the Albert Hall.

Venerable St. Paul's cathedral was hushed today. But the strains of the National Anthem, the solemn prayers of thanksgiving, the words of the Archbishop of Canterbury, the colorful spectacle as dignitaries and royalty arrived, were still fresh in the minds of those who attended the Jubilee services yesterday.

RITCHIE ESTATE IS UNDERVALUED

$2,000,000 SLIP.

TORONTO, May 7 (C.P.) — Estate of the late Harold F. Ritchie, Toronto manufacturers' agent, has been billed for an additional $800,000 in succession duties, Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn announced today.

Examining the estate along with others assessed for succession duties by the government of former Premier George S. Henry, Treasury officials estimated the estate had been undervalued by about $2,000,000, and as a result the bill for additional duties was submitted.

Revenue of the Provincial Treasurer's Department showed an increase of $1,126,822.90 in the five-month period ending March 31 last, compared with the corresponding period of the previous year, the Premier said. Main part of the increase came from collections under the Succession Duties Act.

Piccolo Pete to Stand Trial

Foreign Words

Testifying on the proposed "safety at sea" treaty before the United States Senate Commerce Committee yesterday, Furuseth said the ill-fated liner 'Mohawk' sank because after the steering apparatus failed and the emergency wheel was manned, the helmsmen were ordered to go "left" and to go "right."

"They didn't know what was meant," he said.

BRITAIN READY TO AID FRANCE IF RHINE ARMED

WATCHING GERMANY.

LONDON, May 7 (C.P.-Havas).—Great Britain will come to the aid of France in the event Germany violates the demilitarized zone in the Rhineland, Sir John Simon, Foreign Secretary, said in the House of Commons to-day.

The statement was in reply to a question from the Liberal member, Geoffrey Mander, who asked the Foreign Secretary whether Britain would go to the immediate aid of France with all of her armed forces if Germany violated the demilitarized zone.

Will Fill Promises.

"The circumstances in which the British guaranty under the treaty of Locarno would operate are specified in the treaty itself," Sir John replied. "As stated in the Anglo-Italian declaration embodied in the resolution at the Stresa conference, His Majesty's Government stands by all its obligations under the treaty of Locarno and intends, should the need arise, faithfully to fulfill them."

The treaty of Locarno, signed by Great Britain, France, Germany, Belgium, Italy, Czechoslovakia and Poland at London Dec. 1, 1925, guarantees to France by Germany the present frontiers in Alsace and Lorraine, with an undertaking of Great Britain, Italy and Belgium to support France in case of aggression by Germany and vice versa.

LABATT NAMES PRISONER AS ONE OF 3 KIDNAPPERS

Court Overrules Defence Protest Evidence is Too Slim to Commit for Trial.

HEARING IN JUNE.

Accused Looking Labatt in Eye Charges Brewer Making Mistake in Identity.

LONDON, Ont., May 3. — (CP) — Kingston P. "Piccolo Pete" Murray today was committed for trial on charges in connection with the kidnapping last August of John S. Labatt.

Murray, brought to London from Covington, Ky., late in the winter, was identified at today's preliminary hearing by Labatt as one of three men who stopped his car on a road from Sarnia to London and abducted him.

It is expected Murray will go to trial at the next sessions opening here the first week in June.

"Slim Evidence"

"My submission is that the Crown has presented very slim evidence, indeed, on which to ask your worship to commit a man on such serious charges of kidnapping and robbery while armed," George Mitchell, defence counsel protested. "The only evidence is that of Mr. Labatt himself that he had three fleeting glimpses of the man he says was Murray. I submit that that is very, very slim evidence.

"On charges of such seriousness as these, I do not think that evidence is sufficient," the lawyer contended.

"I only have to find a probable case of guilty," the bench reminded.

"Well, I think that evidence is so slim as to be negligible," counsel retorted.

TEMPLE BURNS AT CROWLAND

Police Probe Blaze That Razes $5,000 Ukrainian Labor Building.

RELIEF FOOD DEPOT.

WELLAND, Ont., May 7 (CP) — Ontario police are investigating a fire which early to-day destroyed the Ukrainian Labor Temple in the Crowland district, headquarters of the striking relief workers in their battle for higher vouchers two weeks ago.

The building was destroyed with damage estimated at $5,000, Chief of Police Daniel Boyd said the building was a mass of flames when firemen arrived.

The cause of the outbreak was unknown, but it is understood an official of the Ontario Fire Marshal's Department has been asked to start an investigation.

Crowland and Welland fire departments confined their efforts to saving adjoining residences when it was seen the temple couldn't be saved. The fire fighters were able to prevent the flames from spreading.

The temple was used as a food station for relief strikers. Officials were unable to ascribe a reason for the outbreak.

MAN WHO SANK LUSITANIA CLAIMS DEED LEGITIMATE

BERLIN, May 7 (C.P.-Havas).—The sinking of the Lusitania 20 years ago to-day by the German submarine U-20 was "a legitimate act of war," Adolf Hitler's journal, Voelkischer Beobachtung asserted to-day in an article written by former Lieut. Karl Scherb, officer aboard the U-boat at the time.

Scherb blamed Great Britain for the sea disaster, saying the liner's passengers embarked in spite of warnings from Count Bernstorff, then Reich ambassador to the United States. He asserted Germany had no alternative but to defend itself against the food blockade set up by England. It was for the reich he wrote, a question of life or death.

According to him only the one submarine effected the sinking and only one torpedo was sent which struck the Lusitania "by accident."

WHOLE FAMILY OF 5 MURDERED IN THEIR SLEEP

Slayers Make Off With $32,000 in Cash and Jewelry After Crime.

IN BRITISH GUIANA.

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, May 7 (C.P. Cable). — An entire household of five persons was wiped out in a mass murder on the little island of Leguan in the Essequebo River, said terse reports reaching here to-day. The victims were apparently slain as they slept by burglars who made off with $32,000 in cash and jewelry.

The dead are Abdool Rahaman Khan, 65, wealthy farmer; his daughter-in-law; her two children, aged 15 and 12, and the estate watchman. All were found hacked to death in the home yesterday. Another watchman, attacked on the grounds of the estate, is not expected to live.

Police said they had no clue to the murderer or murderers. Absence of any sign of struggle indicated the household had been taken by surprise at night. ... ...

PORT ELGIN, Ont., May 7. (CP) Annie Spark, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Spark of Tenth Line Saugeen township, was killed early to-day when she was returning to her home after attending a dance at the beach. Two sisters, Isabel and Florence, received slight injuries. The young woman was struck down by a car, which did not stop.

The three sisters were walking along the road, travelling in a northerly direction in the company of Mr. Hesseneuger, when the car came up from behind, travelling in the same direction.

Provincial Constable McClevis, of Walkerton, was notified and is working on the case but so far has been unable to get an accurate description of the car. Dr. Fraser, coroner, has ordered an inquest.

9-Hour Search Vain For Ship In Distress

NEW YORK, May 7. (AP).—After more than nine hours' fruitless search for a vessel reported in distress 20 miles off New Jersey, coast guard headquarters to-day appealed to all shipping to watch for the mysterious vessel.

The position given by the ship, 20 miles off "Sea Bright," is the "grave yard" of the Atlantic, near the scene of the Ward liners Morro Castle and Mohawk disasters.

Coast guard headquarters, baffled by the night-long search in a comparatively well-defined area, believe the call may have been a fake as was the game of rum-runners during prohibition, to draw the cutters away from their position.

The ship was reported leaking and disabled by motor failure but able to "keep afloat about two hours."

Trinidad will launch new public works projects for unemployed.

BOSTON BLAZE WIPES OUT LIVES OF FOUR WOMEN

Charles O'Brien, fractured leg; Ladderman John Murphy, smoke inhalation and burns; Molly O'Reilly, 25, cook, who escaped the flames but suffered smoke inhalation.

Floor Falls on Fireman.

Fire Lieutenant Charles O'Brien was critically injured when the second and third floors of the four-storey brick house collapsed as firemen were attempting to rush through flames and smoke to the aid of the screaming victims.

The screaming women, who hung from third and fourth floor windows, fell into the sills, horribly burned, before firemen could reach them.

Twelve-year old John, who fire officials at first reported burned to death, was located at the nearby home of Dr. Albert C. Burrage. Apparently, he had jumped from his bedroom window, firemen said, and, bewildered, had scurried to Dr. Burrage's home.

The artist was in New York city on business, police said they learned, and it was believed the children's mother was in Cincinnati, O. on a visit.

Loyal Tribute Paid To Their Majesties At Jubilee Service

Fully Representative Gathering Is Held In Victoria Park, Where Patriotic Songs Are Sung And Loyal Messages Delivered.

JUBILEE MEDALS PRESENTED BY THE MAYOR SONGS JOINED HEARTILY IN BY AUDIENCE.

One of the largest crowds ever seen in Peterborough on any single occasion gathered in Victoria Park yesterday forenoon in a combined tribute of loyalty and devotion to Their Majesties King George V and Queen Mary, on the occasion of the Silver Jubilee anniversary of their accession to the throne.

And not only was the gathering outstanding because of mere numerical strength, but by reason of the fact that it was fully representative of a cross section of the City and County of Peterborough. In it was represented the Mayor and Corporation and local civic officials; the County Council; the Federal and Provincial governments; the church, bench and bar; the nursing and medical professions; trade, commerce and industry; the Canadian Militia, the Canadian Legion and other ex-servicemen's organizations; music and choral societies; and by no means least outstanding a huge throng of schoolchildren and Boy Scouts and Girl Guides.

Three Main Speakers

Long before the official program commenced at eleven o'clock, old people and young started to gather in the Park undeterred by the threat of rain and oblivious to the unseasonable chill that was in the air.

The schoolchildren fully in tune with the joyousness of the occasion, took up their allotted places in the park under the direction of their respective teachers, where they were joined by a large contingent of ex-servicemen, militiamen and Boy Scouts shortly before the time scheduled for the start of the program. Traffic was admirably handled by th City Police under direction of Inspector James Reid.

With their bright hued berets and bemedalled breasts the ex-servicemen marched from the Canadian Legion Hall south on Aylmer street and north on George

ERIEAN LAD DIES IN FIRE ABOARD COAL FREIGHTER

Two Other Members of Crew Are in Chatham Hospital With Burns.

CHATHAM, Ont., May 7 (C.P.).—Douglas Aytes, 17, of Erieau is dead and two others are in hospital here with burns received in a fire of unknown origin which broke out early to-day in the crew's quarters of the Alexander Leslie, 5000-ton steel coal boat, as it lay in dock at Erieau.

The men in hospital were reported to be not in serious condition, are Andrew Masson, 42, and William Punnock, 18, both of Erieau.

Fire Lasts Half-hour.

Several other members of the crew of 23 were slightly burned as they ran from their burning quarters to man pumps and bring the blaze under control in about half an hour. One of these was Bert Fry, first mate of the vessel, in charge in the absence of Captain Gunn.

When the flames had been controlled, a roll-call revealed the Erieau youth was missing. A search resulted in the discovery of his charred body at the foot of the hatchway leading from the men's quarters to the deck.

Coroner Hanks of Blenheim opened an inquest and the jury after viewing the remains adjourned until a date to be let later.

A watchman on duty in the stern of the boat gave the alarm when he noticed a glare in the bow where the crew's quarters are located.

Whistles Sound Alarm.

Fire whistles aroused the crew, who dashed into the corridors to be confronted with a wall of flames.

Ayres, Masson and Punnock occupied one cabin. In the excitement of battling the blaze it was thought all had got out safely. The youth evidently collapsed in his dash through the fire.

The boat was partly filled with coal, but flames were prevented from reaching the cargo.

Car Is Ditched Near Lakefield

Harold Black of Lindsay is to face a charge of reckless driving as driver of a car that was involved in an accident on Peterborough-Lakefield Highway at 9.40 p.m. yesterday, according to Provincial Constable David Silvester. En route to the highway camps north of Lakefield, it is stated, Black's car was involved in collision with another vehicle just beyond Gale's butcher shop. It left the highway plunged into a ditch and the force of the impact buried the front springs and axles deep in the earth.

Thomas Hutchison and M. J. Atchison, both of Lindsay, who were passengers in the Black car sustained severe shock and bruises.

James Seymour of Springville was driver of the other car involved. He was driving towards Peterborough at the time of the crash-up, which resulted in damage to the left running board and left front wheel of his car.

EXAMINER'S TRAVEL CLUB HAS SWUNG INTO ACTION

Thousands of Votes Are Expected to be Polled During First Period—Former Member Tells of Experiences.

EVERYWHERE THROUGHOUT DISTRICT CANVASSERS PUTTING FORTH SERIOUS EFFORT TO GAIN VOTES

The following letter was received from Mrs. E. C. Taylor of Hanover, who was a member of the Travel Club party that spent a glorious holiday in New York and Bermuda as guests of the Owen Sound Daily Sun-Times:

I have recently returned from the most wonderful experience I have ever had, a two weeks' free trip to New York and Bermuda as a member of the Owen Sound Daily Sun-Times Travel Club. I have travelled considerably over the Dominion of Canada and seen many sights but I will always consider my visit to the beautiful island in the Atlantic as the outstanding event of my life both from an edecational and pleasure standpoint.

From the time we left home our trip was just one round of fascinating diversion. Such enjoyable meals, such comfortable rooms, such glorious thrills, such wonderful sights and such marked courtesy and attention shown us that I doubt if they could be equalled anywhere else, and after the hustle and bustle and the noise and turmoil of New York the quietness and peacefulness of old Bermuda is so soothing on the nerves that if another opportunity ever arises I will put forth unlimited efforts to repeat the trip.

New York, the largest city on the American continent, has to be visited before on can get a proper conception of the stupendous heights of the bluildings, the never-ending throngs of humanity, and the wonderful variegated lights of Broadway's great White Way.

Our first sight of Bermuda was in the early morning when the white coral buildings and waving palms stirred our imagination and served as an introduction to the wonderful sights to be seen on landing. We were met on the pier at Hamilton by a crowd of whites and blacks with each face bearing a welcome smile. All were dressed in light summer attire for despite the fact that it was January and below zero it was June weather in Bermuda.

Too Realistic

NEW LONDON, Wis., May 7 (C.P.). — Theodore Knapstein to-day looked at his left foot where his great toe used to be and solemnly promised that he would do no more sleep-walking.

As he told the story:

"I had a dream there were burglars in the house and got out of bed. Thinking to shut them out of my room, I slammed the door. Suddenly he came to, snapped on the light, and found I was on one side of the door, and my toe on the other."

Dr .C. J. Pfeifer, Knapstein's physician, said the door did a neat job of amputation.

King Thanks Britons for Their Love And Expresses Grief for Workless

London, May 7.

RULER OVER 493,000,000 people, Monarch of the world's mightiest Empire, King George V. spoke to his subjects yesterday in a spirit of humility and gratitude to God for the opportunity of serving them.

His voice, which trembled at first with the depth of his emotion quickly took on characteristic resonance as His Majesty addressed to the children of the British lands an impassioned appeal that they devote to their country "the service of your work, your mind, and your heart."

The King spoke as follows:

"At the close of this memorable day I must speak to my people everywhere. Yet how can I express what is in my heart?

"As I passed this morning through cheering multitudes to and from St. Paul's Cathedral, as I thought there of all that these twenty-five years had brought to me and my country and my Empire, how could I fail to be most deeply moved?

"Words cannot exxpress my thoughts and feelings. I can only say to you, my very dear people, that the Queen and I thank you from the depth of our hearts for all the loyalty and, may I say, the love with which this day and always you have surrounded us.

"I dedicate myself anew to your service for the years that may still be given to me. I look back on the past with thankfulness to God. My people and I have come through great trials and difficulties together. They are not over. In the midst of these days of rejoicing I grieve to think of the numbers of my people who are still without work.

"We owe to them, and not least to those suffering from any form of disablement, all the sympathy and help we can give to them. I hope that during this Jubilee Year all who can will do their utmost to find them work and bring them hope.

"Other anxieties may be in store, but I am persuadeu that with God's help they may all be overcome if we meet them with confidence, courage and unity. So I look forward to the future with faith and hope.

"It is to the young that the future belongs. I trust that through the fund inaugurated by my dear son, the Prince of Wales, to commemorate this year, many of them throughout this country may be helped in body, mind, and character, to become useful citizens.

"To the children I would like to send a special message. Let me say this to each of those whom my words may reach: The King is speaking to you. I ask you to remember that in days to come you will be citizens of a great Empire. As you grow up always keep this thought before you, and when the time comes be ready and proud to give to your country the service of your work, your mind, and your heart.

"I have been greatly touched by all of the greetings which have come to me today from my Dominions and Colonies, from India, and from this home country.

"My heart goes out to all who may be listening to me now, wherever you may be, either here at home, in town or village, or in some far-off corner of the Empire, or maybe on the high seas.

"Let me end these words to you with those that Queen Victoria used after her Diamond Jubilee thirty-eight years ago No words could more truly or simply express my own deep feelings: 'From my heart I thank my beloved people; may God bless them.'"

Small lots to retailers ended the week at 23½c to 24c for solids and a cent more for prints. CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 7.— Quick jumps in grain prices yesterday followed stock market upturns that accompanied United States Supreme Court invalidation of the Railroad Pension Law.

Corn led the rise of grain values and stubbornly held most of its advance, whereas wheat fell back. Independent strength of the corn market was associated with meagreness of offerings of May delivery of corn and to excessive rain delay to planting of the new domestic corn crop.

Corn closed firm, ¾c to 1¾c above Saturday's finish; July 83½c to 83¼c. Wheat, unchanged to ¾c higher. July 96⅝c to 96½c; oats, ⅛c off to ¼c up; and provisions unchanged to a decline of 2c.

Speculators absorbed surplus offerings of corn and made the fact manifest that the market for that cereal was in an oversold condition, temporarily at least. As a result, corn climbed to within 3c of the season's top price record.

Wheat was bearishly affected at times owing a good deal to light rains in dry districts of domestic hard winter crop territory, as well as good rains in soft winter wheat States.

Oats and rye reflected the action of other grain, although rye was inclined to show relative strength at times.

Provisions were responsive to hog prices downturns.

CANADA UNITES IN EMPIRE-WIDE THANKSGIVING

10,000 CITIZENS HONORED.

Inclement Weather Does Little to Dampen Ardor—Montreal Unveils Tablet.

(By the Canadian Press).

Buoyed by the lingering sentiment of a great thanksgiving day, Canada went back to work to-day as the 26th year of the King's reign opened amid Empire-wide acclaim. Canada celebrated His Majesty's Silver Jubilee yesterday with as much enthusiasm, joy and devotion as any British people.

Thousands assembled in cities, towns and hamlets across the country to join in ceremonies that had their centre in London and that stretched to every part of the world that was British or where Britons happened to be "God Save the King" rolled around the world.

A crowd of 30,000 thronged Parliament Hill in Ottawa, where the Governor-General the Earl of Bessborough, was the central figure in the national ceremony. He said: "We are here to testify our loyalty and devotion to our Sovereign Lord King George, and to our gracious Queen Mary, who throughout their lives have been faithful servants of God and of their people, and to render thanks for their service to us all for a quarter of a century."

This event in the capital was but one of scores—hundreds—of similar ceremonies throughout the Dominion. It was a cool damp day over a great part of the country but only at one point, Calgary, where it snowed six inches, was the celebration delayed. Calgary will hold its official ceremony Saturday.

The greatest gathering was at Montreal where 100,000 people watched Mayor Camillion Houde unveil a bronze tablet commemorating the day of thanksgiving. At Quebec, Cardinal Villeneuve was among those to receive one of the King's Jubilee medals. Nearly 10,000 were presented to Canadians.

Premiers, cabinet ministers, leaders in church and social life took part in other outstanding celebrations in Charlottetown, Halifax, Fredericon, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Edmonton and Victoria. At each of these provincial capitals Lieutenant-Governors played leading roles.

There were booming military salutes at each government seat. Thousands of school children, in most cases carrying flags, took part in the celebrations not only in the provincial capitals but in hundreds of other places.

Fifteen thousand persons, including 7,000 school children, paraded at Windsor. Another 15,000 met in London, Ont. Assemblies of 10,000 at Sault Ste. Marie and Kitchener, 5,000 at Stratford and Owen Sound were among those reported.

And after a day of paying tribute, Young Canada heard him say: "The King is speaking to you. I ask you to remember in days to come you will be citizens of a great Empire. As you grow up always keep this thought before you, and when the time comes be ready and proud to give to your country the service of your work, your mind and your heart."

Radio listeners also heard brief speeches by Lieutenant-Governors as part of the Canadian Radio Broadcasting Commission's special Jubilee program.

Luxury U. S. Airliner Crashes In Dense Fog Killing Four

SEN. B. CUTTING WOMAN, PILOTS DIE IN SMASHUP

IN MISSOURI.

Navigator Bring Craft Down on Roadside After Flying Blind 2 Hours.

MACON, Mo., May 7 (UP)—The crack, luxury air liner, "Sky Chief," of the Transcontinental and Western Air Lines, Inc., crashed in a fog early yesterday on a mud road near here, carrying United States Senator Cutting of New Mexico, two pilots and the sister of its dispatcher to death.

Nine other passengers of the capacity load of 11 were injured. Among them were a group of Hollywood people en route to Annapolis to work on a motion picture. Senator Cutting was returning to Washington from a brief trip to his home.

The dead were:

Senator Bronson Cutting, Republican, of New Mexico; Pilot Harvey Bolton, Kansas City; Co-pilot Kenneth Greeson, Kansas City; Miss Jane Hillias, Kansas City.

The injured:

Richard Wallace, Hollywood; Henry Sharpe, Hollywood; Paul Wing, Hollywood; C. B. Drew, Hollywood; Mrs. William Kaplan, Hollywood; Mrs. Dora Metzger, Hollywood; a three-months-old child of Mrs. Metzger.

The other two passengers were Mrs. D. Mesker, Kansas City, and William Kaplan, Hollywood.

Of the injured, Wing, who is a motion picture director, was in most critical condition. He suffered a crushed chest.

Plane Lands in Ditch

The crash followed a futile two-hour search from aloft to find a hole in the dense fog which apparently mantled the entire western half of Missouri.

Pilot Bolton brought his huge liner down in a ditch at the side of a country road. It capapulted against a fence and drove through it across a field hurtling several passengers through windows and sides of the plane.

It was this fog which forced Bolton to take his plane far to the northeast of his destination, the Kansas City airport.

At the T.W.A. headquarters there Marmaduke Hillias, 25, brother of the girl victim and T.W.A. dispatcher had watched the fog slowly close down on the landing field as the plane thundered north from Albuquerque where it had stopped to pick up Senator Cutting. Hillias' father and younger sister were at the airport.

As the liner neared Kansas City on schedule, Hillias warned Bolton not to attempt a landing. Bolton obediently passed over the Kasas City airport at 2.56 a.m. toward an emergency field at Kirksville, Mo.

Dwindling gas supply worried Bolton as he sped northward without finding a break in the fog. He was unable to find the Kirksville field. The crash occurred a dozen miles south of there. With sputtering motors, Bolton was forced to come down blind.

He skimmed along at low altitude between a farm house and a barn, clipped a tree and struck on the road running alongside the Charles Bledsoe farm, six miles west of Atlanta, Mo.

The noise of the crash awakened half a dozen farmers within a quarter-mile radius of the Bledsoe farm. Bolton apparently cut his switch. There was no explosion.

Cutting Badly Crushed

Bledsoe and Glen Gentner found the wreckage of the plane within 15 minutes.

"Most of the injured were crawling or walking around," Gentner said. "They were all shocked and dazed. The pilot was there and was muttering that he ran out of gas. Many didn't know where they were. Parts of the wreckage were thrown 75 feet. The plane's motors were torn away and a wing broken off. Passengers had been thrown several feet.

"When we had to move them they moaned, but none of them was crying."

Farmers carried the injured to the Bledsoe home. Bodies of the dead were placed on two trucks and taken to an undertaking establishment here. Cutting, Greeson and Miss Hillias were killed instantly. Bolton died en route to the Samaritan Hospital.

Cutting's body was identified with difficulty. He was crushed in the fuselage of the plane. Identification was made through his wallet, which contained a telephone bill made out to Olivia Cutting and a preliminary draft of a bill which the senator expected to introduce in the Senate.

Authorities telephoned Washington and verified the identification through a ring that the senator wore.

ourselves in one wing and believe me we had a glorious time. Let me say right here that the sponsors of the trip spared no expense whatever; we had the best of everything, saw everything we wanted to and in all nothing was too good for us.

Places of high interest were the Government Aquarium which is rated as the best in the world and houses ocean life in detail with living examples from the tiniest coral insect to the Giant Devil Fish with arms from 12 to 15 feet long and nearly as thick as one's body; this octopus is the largest in captivity.

The caves of Bermuda are known the world over, with their wonderful crystalline stalactites of natural formation and various shades. The Devil's Hole is one of Bermuda's most noted attractions, here thousands of fish of every color and size disport themselves in this huge hole in the rock.

The quaint old town of St. George, the oldest town in Bermuda, with its narrow winding streets and century-old scenes transplants one back to the middle ages. St. Peter's Anglican Church, built about 1612, is the oldest church in the new world.

Visits Sea Gardens

Something different was our trip to the sea gardens where we gazed at the teeming life and various colorful profusions of flowers. The fields of onions that made Bermuda famous and numerous other places.

We were in swimming every day either in the ocean at Bliss Beach or in our hotel pool and let me tell you salt water bathing is a grand stimulant for tired nerves.

We were at last reluctantly forced to bid adieu to the quiet old-fashioned charm of Bermuda, which is something that must be experienced to be understood because the old historical buildings and the marvellous works of nature are beyond description and we left this island where women have no vote and the colored women carry their washing on their heads, and we stepped aboard the Monarch of Bermuda, which carried us from the land of sunshine back to the chilling winds of the north.

How sweet it is to dream with closed eyes and see again the ripples on the beach, or music in silent meditation and again in memory see Bermuda, the home of rest.

EMPIRE JOINS LONDON CROWDS

that may still be given to me," he said. His voice betraying emotion, the King went on to express his concern for "The numbers of my people who still are without work."

Under a canopy of blue sky, millions of Britons along a four-mile route in London yesterday accorded to the King and Queen a triumphal Jubilee celebration. Flags of the Empire and of many nations decked the "Royal way" from Buckingham Palace to St. Paul's Cathedral for a parade of unsurpassed brilliance, enthusiasm and majesty.

Thunderous Cheers

The cheers thus begun volleyed down the ranks of the spectators from the Palace, along the Strand, Fleet street and Ludgate Hill to the Cathedral, and then back to Buckingham Palace along the Thames embankment.

The Monarch, smiling, waved a white-gloved hand in acknowledgment. The Queen bowed, right and left. Ahead of them were carriages bearing the Prince of Wales, the Dukes and Duchess of Kent and York, the Duke of Gloucester and Queen Maud of Norway.

Separate salvos of applause greeted each royal personage. Begrimed old London, decked with bunting and flowers, resplendent with scenes and sounds of medieval chivalry, became magically transformed into a new, unparalleled field of the cloth of gold.

One Hitch

At the height of gaiety came a snag. As the royal coach reached Ludgate circus a banner appeared decorated with hammer and sickle, and bearing the Communist Cry: "Workers of all countries—unite." Crowds tore down and trampled the offending sign.

The ovation rose to deafening heights as the procession went down sun-drenched streets, where the omnipresent Union Jack whipped between the emblems of the Dominions and other nations.

A climax of splendor and ancient pagentary was reached at the Temple Bar, entrance to the historic City of London. Sir Stephen Killik, Lord Mayor of London greeted the royal coach, handed to the King the traditional sword and, in accordance with ancient custom, granted to him the right to enter the City of London.

The gold-helmeted gentlemen-at-arms, the gray-bewigged magistrates and the blue-and-gold uniformed ambassador followed the Royal coaches and their military escorts into fleet street Presently the great dome of St. Paul's Cathedral loomed mightily over the procession.

"God Save the King"

The solemnity of the setting was communicated to the gay, teeming crowds. With bared heads, and with one lusty will they joined in the National Anthem—"God Save the King" the round, dominant notes of the melody were taken up by the four miles of spectators. The song echoed across the Thames, through all London.

Then silence fell—the hush of a multitude. King George, resplendent in the scarlet uniform of a field marshall, and Queen Mary, in a blue-and-silver gown, alighted and walked along the rich, tulip-decked carpet to the great portal of the Cathedral.

The Duke of York wore his uniform of a vice-admiral, and the Duke of Kent was in the uniform of a naval commander. Princess Marina, now the Duchess of Kent, wore a gown of pale beige, and the Duchess of York wore pastel-blue.

Through the shadowy Gothic cathedral echoed the National Anthem, played by the mellowed old organ and sung by a white-surpliced choir. Then, in the proud humility of a world-embracing Empire, the choir sang a hymn, not for the King, for Commonwealth, but for "All People That on Earth Do Dwell."

Distinguished Guests

In the cathedral were Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald; his daughter Ishbel; the Premiers of Canada, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand; the members of the Royal Family; the Diplomatic Corps to the Court of St. James', and countless other dignitaries.

The Most Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, Archbishop of Canterbury, delivered a short impressive sermon. The Bishop of London offered divine thanks for safeguarding the King during the 25 years of his reign. Prayers followed, and the Archbishop of Centerbury, wearing the mitre, pronounced the Benediction. All rose to sing the National Anthem.

The King and Queen then left, escorted by the Bishop of London and the College of Canons. The procession reformed and moved along the Thames Embankment back to Buckingham Palace, amid renewed salvos of far-echoing plaudits.

Business Booms

London tearooms did a roaring trade. Hungry patriots, many of whom began keeping vigil overnight in order to gain vantage points, formed queues for meals as restaurants were crowded.

Stone and brick facades, cloudy with the smoke of centuries, were cloaked with fresh flowers as well as bunting along the route of the procession.

Messages of congratulation poured into Buckingham Palace from all parts of the world.

A great Jubilee bonfire, lighted in Hyde Park last night was the signal for the largest chain of beacon fires, the length and breadth of the British Isles, since the Spanish Armada was spotted off Plymouth Hoe.

King and Queen Appear

More than 200,000 persons, the greatest throng since the armistice, milled around Buckingham Palace, hoping for another glimpse of their sovereigns. Their patience was rewarded when the King and Queen appeared on the balcony. The applause was uproarious.

With one voice the 200,000 sang "God Save the King," as perhaps the mightiest serenade in history.

Till early morning crowds thronged the streets, celebrating the Jubilee.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald tendered the Premiers of the Empire a banquet. He also expressed in a broadcast speech the loyal homage and heartfelt congratulations of the people of Great Britain on the occasion.

Rudyard Kipling issued a warning to build up national defences in an address to the Royal Society of St. George's. Failing this, he saw the possibility that "before we are aware of it our country may have joined those submerged races of history who passed their children through fire to Moloch in order to win credit with their god."

RESIDENTS OF LAKEFIELD PAY FITTING TRIBUTE TO RULERS

Village Post of Canadian Legion Has Full Charge of Day's Program.

STREETS DECORATED.

LAKEFIELD, May 7. (Examiner Correspondence). — The celebration of the King's jubilee was in charge of the Lakefield Post of the Canadian Legion and was a full program which was carried through by committees in an admirable manner. Lakefield's loyalty has always been strong and the long list of names on the cenotaph of men who gave their lives in the service of King and country, is abundant evidence of the quality of loyalty felt in the village and the effort of the Legion met with heartiest co-operation from citizens who decorated their houses with flags attended the events of the day's program in large numbers.

The streets were decorated with flags and streamers and at the cenotaph the flag flew in honor of the national event.

Softball Tournament

A softball tournament was arranged for Monday afternoon and it was carried out in an abridged manner, for, owing to Sunday's rain, only one diamond was dry enough for use so that the games were held in rotation, which meant shortened games. In order to fittingly mark the opening Dr. W. T. Brown, president of Victoria University, and one of Lakefield's distinguished sons, pitched the first ball to C. S. Tanner while Reeve Burrows acted as catcher. The first game was between two teams of old timers and the result was a top heavy score in favor of Mr. Grier's team as against Mr. Tanner's nine. Messrs. Chittick and L. Sabatino acted as umpire for the afternoon.

The second game was between the High School, and Public School girls and after a short game the latter won by a new nose in a snappy fixture. Miss Dunne is the manager of the High School team and Mr. Chaplin of the Public School girls..

The High School boys defeated The Grove in a four inning game which had much too lopsided a score to make the game interesting.

A revival of the Lucky Strikes team was sadly defeated by the re-vamped Central Garage outfit. The latter then played off with the High School with a see-saw type of scoring which kept the fans guessing but the time would not permit the game being finished so it was decided to have the same two teams meet again at an early date and play a game of at least five innings to determine the winner. The committee regretted the calling the game but the time alloted had been all used up.

The fans were out in full force and as peppy as ever showing a keen interest, improvements are being made in the grounds and only the rain prevented all being in readiness for the day.

Street Parade.

At 4.30 a parade was formed at the school grounds and proceeded to the Town Hall, where a program was put on. The line of parade was north on Chippewa Avenue to Strickland Street, west to Queen and down Queen to the Town Hall. Headed by two large Union Jacks, borne by Comrades Tom Cunningham and Charlie Birch of the Canadian Legion followed by the Citizens' Band, the Canadian Legion, the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Legion and the pupils of the Public and High Schools.

At the Town Hall an excellent program was presented, with the band taking a leading part and with several patriotic numbers sung by the audience, directed by Mr. E. de C. Fletcher with Mrs. H. E. Moore the accompanist.

Reeve A. B. Burrows, who was chairman, gave a hearty welcome to one and all in his brief address.

Dr. J. R. Fraser gave a very fine address on the theme of the day's celebration. The King is the corner-stone of the Empire, which is bound together by the loyalty of the people. That loyalty to the Sovereign and his family holds the Empire together. King George is a good king, and an earnest Christian, with the good of his people very close to his heart. His counsel is wise and his advice sound and good. As a lad he served his term as midshipman on a man of war, and his love for the sea has never failed, and he is still an expert yachtsman. He was called for the life he loved in the navy to be trained for his future position. The Great War came early in his reign, and his personality did much to hold the Empire a solid unit through these troublous times.

Comrade K. A. Mackenzie, president of the Legion, spoke of the stability of the British constitutional monarchy in these days of national unrest with dictators, new deals and old deals. The speaker was an officer on the H.M.S. "Renown" on which the Prince of Wales made his first trip to Canada.

Mr. Casement, Lakefield's veteran past master, in a few brief words paid his tribute of loyalty to the Crown.

Dr. A. W. Mackenzie appreciated the community gathering which, regardless of political or religious differences, is characteristic of Lakefield on great occasions. The work of the King is heavy, full of responsibility and anxiety, and his interest is with all his people. The royalties of Germany, Austria and Russia are in exile and our King and Queen remain almost the only ones in Europe, and to-day millions are joining in the prayer. "God Save the King."

Mr. J. F. Harvey presented the medals to the winning girls' ball team, of which Pat Wannamaker is captain. The members of the team were: Lilian Reid, Winnie Blewett, Isabel Bullock, Denice Hill, Alive and Margaret Hunter, Doris Chittick, Veronica McFadden, Dorothy Matthews.

ing their pleasure on the occasion of the Silver Jubilee of their Majesties, King George and Queen Mary. "We as citizens of Campbellford, do thank God for His divine blessings. With thrones falling all around, the throne of the British Empire stands unshaken" said the speaker "and may King George and our beloved Queen long be spared to rule over us and lead their loyal subjects in the paths of peace". Rev. L. M. Smith of the Baptist church and Rev. Simpson Black of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church then addressed the gathering paying great tribute to King George V and his queen.

Medals Presented

This was followed by the presentation of the Jubilee medals to Harold N. Carr as member of the legislature for Northumberland riding and to Alexander MacColl as representative of Zone 15, Provincial Command of the Canadian Legion B.E.S.L. Mayor Long making the presentation of the King's medal on behalf of Lieutenant Governor H. A. Bruce. During the portion of the ceremony and accompanied by the massed bands the entire group joined in singing "The Maple Leaf Forever". Rev. T. H. Floyd of Christ Church then made a brief address and pronounced the benediction. After thanking all those who had taken part in the ceremony Mayor Long on behalf of the town council brought proceedings to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

FLU EPIDEMIC HITS ESKIMOS

Eleven Already Dead of 300 Stricken at Point Barrow.

SERUM COMING BY AIR.

POINT BARROW, Alaska, May 7. —Healthy Eskimos of this outpost of the Far North tore down buildings yesterday to make coffins for victims of an influenza epidemic, while the lone medical missionary took six Eskimos to the "white man's heaven."

The ice pack locked the harbor in two below zero weather. Influenza struck down 300, killed 11, with more expected to die. An airplane which came north from Nome brought no serum. There was a shortage of food.

The Rev. Dr. Henry G. Griest, medical missionary of the Presbyterian Church, ministered to the sick, prayed for the dead, put them aside until the strongest of the young men could dig graves in the frozen ground.

"This is the white man's heaven," Eskimos often say when they come to the Presbyterian Hospital, which cares for them free of charge. "These are angels,' 'one native said of the two nurses in attendance.

For years the natives were afraid of the hospital, but now they hate to leave it.

Another plane was en route from Seattle to Cordova with serum.

ARTIFICIAL TRADE BARRIERS.

While a provincial government has recently taken the position that it is illegal for electric power to be sent from one province of Canada to another, let us hope that this attitude does not presage the arrival of trade restrictions such as are developing in the United States.

Out in the state of Washington, Business Week reports, a revolt is brewing against the enforcement of a recently enacted law imposing a tax of 2 per cent. on all good exceeding $20 in avalue purchased outside Washington and then brought across the state border.

The purpose of this law may be understood when it is recalled that Washington has adopted a state sales tax law which extracts a 2 per cent. tax on all retail purchases and a graduated tax on sales by wholesalers and jobbers.

Naturally there has been considerable buying outside the state, and the new tax on imports is designed to plug the leaks.

It is not surprising to find that many citizens are strenously objecting to such a tax, and are demanding a referendum, while outside interests are lending their moral support and declaring that the Washington tax is illegal.

No wonder there are those who declare that the erection of artificial trade barriers will eventually make each of the 48 states of the Union a separate commercial dominion and push up the cost of doing business to exoribtant levels.

JUST WHAT YOU MAKE IT.

Penitentiary terms, like a great many other things, are evidently just what you make them.

Thus we find in newspaper interviews with former inmates of Portsmouth released under the jubilee amnesty a widespread difference of opinion as to the institution.

According to some of these men, there is nothing right, the library is inadequate, there is no opportunity to learn a trade, and the prisoners are harshly treated.

And yet from the lips of one of the Russians who in 1919 was convicted here of murder in connection with the killing of a paymaster at Rockcroft, there comes a story that seemingly gives the lie to the complaints of other prisoners.

This man, who with his two companions had been longest in Portsmouth of all the released convicts, declares that in the fifteen and a half years he has been behind the walls of the penitentiary he has not only succeeded in becoming expert in three trades but by diligent use of the prison library has educated himself.

Many citizens will remember that when these men were tried in Peterborough they were unable to speak English, and the trial had to be carried on with the assistance of an interpreter.

Yet this prisoner emerges from Kingston able to converse fluently in the English language and with his mind broadened by reading biography and philosophy as well as good fiction, giving the penitentiary credit for making a better man of him.

One would say from reading the interview with him that he will go straight as he starts life over again, and just as unhesitatingly predict that some of the others who so bitterly condemn conditions in the penitentiary will be back in the same old surroundings before long.

DRIVING SENSE FAILS TO KEEP PACE.

Insurance actuaries, who look at the thing simply from a dollars and cents viewpoint, have been scanning the automobile accident records and are looking gloomily ahead to a worse year in the United States than last.

That is a disturbing condition when it is remembered that 1934 set up a record across the border of 36,000 killed and 950,000 injured in 882,000 personal-injury accidents, figures the significance of which stands out vividly in view of the fact that the American casualty list in the World War was 37,541 killed in action, 12,934 died from wounds and 183,622 wounded.

These insurance men, their companies hard hit by automobile liability, have been studying the situation, and have arrived at the inevitable conclusion that common sense among drivers has not kept pace with mechanical improvements in motor cars.

In two-thirds of the accidents they say the driver is at fault, and in nine cases out of ten he is going too fast under the circumstances.

Last year there were 5 or 6 per cent. more cars on the road than in 1933, and they burned 6 per cent. more gasoline, indicating more mileage.

But fatalities were greater by 16 per cent.

Excessive speed, these experts all declare, is the immediate cause of a large proportion of accidents.

Drivers have not yet learned to use the improved highways nor the faster car.

Freed of traffic congestion and given a smooth-running machine that does not prompt remonstrance from the back seat, he "steps on it and hold 'er open."

In consequence highway accidents, although only half as numerous as street intersection accidents, are twice as deadly.

In the United States the same condition as prevails in Canada is met that when bad conditions warn the driver to be cautious accidents are rare; in other words, the car behaves when the driver does.

THAT AMUSEMENT TAX.

With Mr. Hepburn's desire to carry on relief operations on a pay-as-you-go basis, The Examiner has nothing but praise; it is the only business-like way of dealing with a most difficult problem.

Committed to that policy then, of course, the Ontario Government must find the necessary revenue to finance the plan, and as one means to that end the amusement tax is to be expanded in the hope of raising in the neighborhood of $1,500,000 for relief purposes.

Unfortunately, however, the new schedules have been extended to cover even the lowest possible admission charges, and to that extent are likely to prove a nuisance to all concerned and a financial hardship to those who can least afford to bear such burdens.

should be taxed for relief purposes those who afford to pay money on amusement should be willing to pay something toward the relief of others suffering from the long period of depression, but it is carrying that principle to an extreme to apply it to the five cents charge a child pays for riding on a carnival merry-go-round or to collect two cents from the youngster who patronizes a moving picture matinee, while the levy of a five-cent tax on an admission of 25 cents—a 20 per cent. tax in other words—will be regarded as "cracking down" in the wrong place.

When these new amusement taxes are compared with the new schedule of liquor prices announced on the same day, there will be many people who will be inclined to ask why, if it is considered logical, that the individual who can afford to pay a dime to attend a matinee or twenty-five cents to go to a ball game should be taxed for relief purposes when those who are able to buy fine imported Scotch should not also be called upon to make their special contribution to the treasury for relief purposes.

As it works out, the citizens who take their amusement in the form of alcoholic refreshment are being favored by a reduction of from 20 to 35 per cent. in prices, while the child patrons of the carnival side shows, the folks who attend the movie theatres and the sporting fans are being hit hard.

Drinking, so far as the initial outlay is concerned, at least, threatens to become the cheapest form of entertainment, which can scarcely be regarded as a desirable development.

FORGOTTEN MAN: THE FELLOW WHO WORKS.

Let us get this British Columbia relief camp trouble straight. It is not a strike. It is a refusal of a group of unemployed single men to accept a form of relief. To accept good shelter, good food, good clothing, plus a small allowance in cash, in return for a day's work.

The work being carried on in these relief camps isn't at all necessary. It could be stopped without injury to the country. Perhaps with benefit to the country. The only reason for its existence is that it is one way of taking care of single men who are unemployed and homeless. In short, it is a measure of relief paid for by taxpayers; one way of seeing to it that nobody goes hungry or shelterless.

It is said that the men working in these camps should be paid ordinary wages; the existing wage scale. Who would pay them? Are the people of Canada to be saddled with millions of dollars of expenditure for works that are not required? Surely the man who is working, trying to pay his debts, trying to make both ends meet, trying to take care of his family, or trying to save his business—surely he is entitled to some consideration. Or does he just exist to be penalized; to be made what the world calls a "sucker"?

Let us look at this thing sensibly. If a man came to our door to-morrow and asked for work, and we said to him that we had no work for him, no work that we needed to have done, but that if he cared to take a rake and go over the lawn, or to do some other unnecessary thing, we would be glad to give him food, shelter, clothing and some small change to boot—would we be treating him badly? And if, in such a case, the man said that he wouldn't work, that he wouldn't rake our lawn unless we paid three or four dollars a day for it, would or could he be regarded as a striker? Or be entitled to sympathy?

That, precisely, is what is happening in British Columbia. These single men, out of work, are refusing good shelter, good food, good clothing, plus a small allowance in cash, offered them as a measure of relief. Are demanding, as a right, that the rest of us pay them full wages for work that is unnecessary.

The time has come, we suggest, when this country should "crack down" upon such nonsense. It is going to be called upon to do so sooner or later, and it may as well be now. All of us should favor unemployment relief—where it is necessary. No deserving man or woman should be permitted to go hungry. But Canada can't afford to permit relief to pass into a "racket." Can't sanction the idea—becoming all too prevalent—that indolence should be bonused. Can't get to the position where relief becomes number one Big Business.

What is becoming clear, all too clear, is that for a great many, at this moment, relief is a "racket." That idea, if it be permitted to develop, will end up by bankrupting every community in the country. Pity, compassion, mercy, the heart to give every man a decent chance for a livelihood—these are admirable things. As admirable as a belief in human dignity. But there is a wide gulf between these things and a mere sloppy sentimentality. The last, with a muddled idea about where we are going, or about what it is we want to do or can do, will get us nowhere. It may well end up in ruin for us all.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Amusement in Ontario is going to cost more after June 1, unless you make liquor-drinking your recreation. The amusement tax goes up as the price of liquid goes down.

Ex-Mayor Stewart of Toronto, according to Premier Hepburn, is to be the new leader of the Ontario Conservatives. Now that that's settled, what is the next order of business?

Yesterday's demonstration throughout the Empire was based on affection for the King and the royal family, rather than on loyalty to the throne, although that too was an important factor.

Evidently the depression has had no terrors for cupid. 1934 saw the largest number of marriages in Ontario since the boom years. Unfortunately, however, there was a notable increase in the number of divorces.

The announcement that Hon. H. H. Stevens is to speak here on Saturday has aroused an interest that clearly indicates that the ex-Minister of Trade and Commerce is regarded by a great many people as the man of the hour.

WHAT IS the physiologic action of tobacco? What changes occur in the body to make smokers get so much comfort out of it? In answering these questions from the scientific point of view we meet a paradox at the very beginning.

Nicotine, which is the chief ingredient of tobacco, is an extremely vigorous poison. Two drops of nicotine placed on the tongue or rubbed into the gums of a dog or cat will produce death in one or two minutes. In man death has followed the use of nicotine as a poultitoe, and even from the plugging of a wound with a quid of tobacco to stop bleeding. The injection of nicotine into the intestine for the relief of worms has been followed by death.

A tobaco smoker, however, gets very little nicotine into his system. The best grades of tobacco are by no means those which have the highest amount of nicotine. It is probable that the nicotine is volatilized or destroyed largely by the heat, and that the smoke which is taken into the system contains only a very small percentage of the drug. This must be so or there would be many deaths, even when tolerance is established, from the amount of smoking that we do.

Not Settled Habit.

Another fact about tobacco as a drug is that it is far from a settled habit. The most complete example of a drug habit is that of the morphine addict. A morphine addict canot stop the use of the drug whether he is sick or well, under any circumstances, without help or without great suffering. No such events occur to tobacco users. Everyone is familiar with the fact that if he has a slight illness, such as a cold, he stops the use of tobacco without any discomfort whatever. I, myself, in London once began to get an irregularity of the pulse from those murderous English cigars and stopped smoking for six months. I cannot remember to have had a single minute's discomfort or the slightest desire to resume the habit. This is also borne out by the experience of many people for whom smoking aggravates attacks of angina, and who give it up abruptly without any desire to return to it.

All of this leads to the supposition that a great deal of the pleasure of smoking is sensuous and psychic. In other words, it comes from the stimulation of smell and taste and the habit of having something to do with the hands and lips.

Some Reaction Noted.

Tobacco however, even as ordinarily used, does have certain physiologic reactions. Some of these were described in the article yesterday. There is no question that it has an elective effect on the small arteries of the heart and the limbs, causing them to go into spasm. Indeed, one of the few diseases that is ascribed to tobacco is that of spasm of the arteries of the leg, resulting in poor circulation and even gangrene.

Another bad result of tobacco is in tobacco amblyopia, or blindness. These cases usually clear up after the tobacco has been stopped.

Summarizing, we feel that tobacco does little harm except in a few cases, but the habit is easy to stop, if necessary, and its efects are almost entirely functional. It is generally agreed that adolescents should not smoke, as it has more deleterious effects on the young man than on the old, and that the proper time to begin to smoke is the time when one casts the first vote.

What's in the Name of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

DESERONTO, ONTARIO

Deseronto was established as an Indian reserve when Haldimand and Sir Guy Carleton purchased this tract of land from the Mississauga Indians to give it to the Mohawks, under Capt. John Deserontyou, a Howhawk chieftain and a contemporary of Joseph Brant and Sir William Johnson.

No provision has been made in the treaty between the United States and Canada for special rights for the Mohawks, which had been promised by Haldimand, so the Mohawks were advised to move to British territory where such rights could be accorded them.

Deserontyou established a fine colony here with the help of the government, the Indians being supplied with tools, equipment of all sorts, food, clothing and supplies, and later provided a church, schoolhouse and schoolmaster.

This colony was established in 1784 and it has borne no other name, although the spelling has been slightly altered.

A Thought

Sometimes I think it's helpful
To make a little song,
To cheer a weary brother
Whose days are sad and long.

Sometimes I think it useless
And wasting precious time;
The sweetest songs and stories
Are not those made in rhyme.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

I'D LIKE TO KNOW, TOO.

A MAN SAID to me:

"I'd like to know why a friend sometimes treats you as he wouldn't think of treating a casual acquaintance.

"The other day I had an appointment with a friend on a certain corner, at a certain hour. I was there at the time but he wasn't. I waited and waited, wondering what had happened to him. And when he finally appeared, about 25 minutes late, he casually mentioned that an acquaintance had come in just as he was about to leave his office and he stopped to talk with him...Now I don't think I'm so awfully important but I think a friendship is, and why should my friend have left me out on a limb while he was talking to a mere acquaintance?

"And this isn't the first time that sort of thing has happened. I'm against it, but I'll bet I've done it myself. If you happen to write anything about this, don't use my name because if you do some friend is sure to come around and remind me of the time I stood him up...But I never mean to do it, and I figure it's one of the worst things you can do to a friend.

"It happens in families, too. Wives treat husbands that way, and husbands treat wives as if there were nothing between them but a purely formal acquaintance. Because they love each other, they think that's enough, and they don't even trouble to act like friends.

"Don't get me wrong. I'm not arguing in favor of rudeness toward acquaintance. But I do think that if there's any choice between people you merely know and those you love, you ought to receive the difference in favor of those you like best. You don't need to lean over backwards and be nice to a guy you don't care a whoop about and say to yourself: 'Jim won't mind,' or 'Jane will understand.' Maybe they WILL understand, but you can't blame them for being annoyed. What do you think?"

"I think," said I, "that you've said everything."

SPECIAL ANGLICAN SERVICE IN MADOC

Splendid Review of King George's Life is Given by Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne.

MADOC, May 7. (Examiner Correspondence)—The morning service at St. John's Anglican Church, Madoc, on Sunday, followed the form of prayer and thanksgiving to Almighty God for the protection afforded to the King's Majesty during the twenty-five years of his auspicious reign.

The address of Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne, rector took the form of a brief review of the outstanding events during the past twenty-five years in the Empire the speaker dealt largely with the critical state of national and international affairs in the Empire and in Europe during the latter part of Queen Victoria's reign, the drift of radical opinion during King Edward's reign and then reviewing carefully the training and character of Prince George, the second son of King Edward, who on the death of the Duke of Claremont, became heir to the British throne. Finally summing up the part the King has taken as counsellor, friend, and most respected of arbiter, the rector dwelt on the loyal love given to King and Queen both as ruler and as gentleman and noble lady, and as man and his wife, and of the sympathy and grief of the people during the serious illness of the King in 1928.

The form of service was followed throughout. The church was decorated with Union Jacks and the congregation joined heartily with the choir in thanksgiving hymns and the National Anthem.

PLYMOUTH, Montserrat, May 7 (CP)—Hundreds of thousands of dollars damage was estimated and not one stone building here or nearby was habitable to-day after the most severe earthquake Monserrat has suffered since 1843. No fatalities were reported.

No More "Lockstep."

And He's No Longer a Citizen.

In view of the probability of royal commission investigating Canadian penal institutions, the above pictures of Sing Sing, one of continent's most famous prisons, are interesting. The candid camera records some of events in a day's life of the inmates and officials of the "Big House" on the banks of the Hudson at Ossining, N.Y., in which more than two thousand of New York's law breakers are serving terms of from one year to life. Seventeen others, including a woman, Mrs. Eva Coo, wait in the condemned cells for either commutation or death in the "hot seat." Despite drama and tragedy, Sing Sing is a comparative happy institution. Inmates work in the shops, enjoy radio music in their cells, are well fed, play handball and baseball, and in general enjoy life as much as is possible behind prison walls. Sing Sing's military corps, latest innovation in the "Big House" sponsored by Warden Lawes, drill frequently to inmates' band of 66 pieces. Rehabilitation rather than punishment is the objective.

Tomorrow, when the fishing schooner Bluenose sails on her barnstorming tour of the British Isles, the famous aviator will be aboard as a passenger, accompanied by his two sons, Robert, 21, and Pat, 13.

NO SECRET NAVAL PACTS.

LONDON, May 7 (C.P.-Havas).—Premier R. B. Bennett of Canada was assured to-day by British Cabinet members, it was learned here, that Britain would not arrive at any naval agreement with Japan without United States collaboration. There is no danger, it was added, of decreasing the close relations between Britain and the United States.

Radio telephone service has just been opened between Japan and Germany.

Much Rheumatism Becomes Chronic

DUBLIN, May 7 (C.P.) — Rheumatism as an industrial scourge costs in the United Kingdom $85,000,000 a year under the National Health Insurance Scheme, said Dr. F. Bach of the International League against Rheumatism, lecturing to the Women's National Health Association of Ireland at Dublin.

Although the complaint caused less than five per cent of the annual death roll, said Dr. Bach, many thousands of men and women were, in the most productive years of their life, made invalids by chronic rheumatic heart disease, chronic rheumatism, arthritis and gout.

In 1922, nearly nine per cent of Britain's population was suffering from some form of the malady and the lack of interest taken by many of the clinical teachers in the general hospitals had caused many medical students to graduate and go into practice with little knowledge of the causation and treatment of the rheumatic diseases.

A special committee of inquiry was set up in Dublin in connection with the campaign.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

The metals, up at one time, back-tracked with U.S. Smelting, Cerro De Pasco and Howe Sound losing about 2 each. LABATT NAMES PRISONER AS ONE OF 3 KIDNAPPERS

As to the armed robbery charge, Mr. Mitchell moved it be dismissed on the grounds there was no evidence to link Murray with the robbery of Labatt of $98 in cash.

"Party to Robbery."

Crown Attorney Norman Newton declared not only had Murray "deprived Labatt of his automobile," but he was a party to the robbery of the money in the "common purposes" of kidnappers.

"He didn't steal the car, it was taken without his permission," Mr. Mitchell said.

"There is sufficient evidence to warrant commital on both charges. I think they should be decided by a jury," Magistrate Hawshaw declared, ending the argument.

Mistake Says Murray.

LONDON, Ont., May 7.—(CP).—After being pointed out by John L. Labatt as one of his three actual kidnappers Kingdon "Piccolo Pete" Murray to-day rose in the prisoner's dock and looking at the London brewery president declared:

"I have only one thing to say. I can look Mr. Labatt in the eye and tell him he's making the greatest mistake ever made in this country."

Murray seemed on the verge of tears as he made this declaration. Labatt sat in the front of the spectators' seat, between a provincial police inspector and one of his private bodyguards. He met Murray's gaze and then dropped his eyes.

Unique Collection Of Badges Displayed

he remarkable display, one of the most complete in the Dominion, is the product of a hobby which Rev. Wright began in 1917. It contains a total of 750 insignias and is augmented by a number of the collector's own reproductions in miniature of the colour badges worn by the various units. With but a few exceptions, every unit from Halifax to Vancouver is represented The collection is displayed on a mounting, each piece identified with the name of the original unit and, if any, the name of the unit which to-day perpetuates the original.

Rev. Wright states he has obtained the badges from many different sources. While some have been secured directly from soldiers and military units, a great number were purchased or gained through exchange with other collectors. Many badges were added to the collection within the past year and Rev. Wright hopes to have the collection complete in the near future.

FINANCIAL NEWS BRIEFS

HOLLINGER

The Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines Limited have always followed the proceedure of setting aside a considerable amount from earnings for exploration and development work. The management's idea along this line is to keep this fund as close to $5,000,000 as possible at all times. By following this course, Hollinger is therefore, in a strong position to take advantage of any opportunities that might present themselves. Failure to pay the usual bonuses to shareholders during the months of March, April and May will mean a saving of $736,000. Thus the above mentioned reserve will be re-inforced. Although the shareholders of Hollinger were disturbed at the time when the bonus payments were stopped, in the long run the action of the directors will probably be regarded as a sound one.

ALGOMA STEEL

According to press despatches from Sault Ste. Marie, the Algoma Steel Corporation have equipped their steel plant to manufacture large structural steel shapes up to 15-inch beams and channels, and to manufacture steel sheet piling for dock and canal walls, neither of which products was previously made in Canada. This is an important development for the Sault. With the large rail mill no longer entirely dependent on rails to keep it busy, there should be steadier employment for steel workers.

MONEY PLENTIFUL

Money is a drug on the market in Canada and the United States at the present time. On Wall Street, loans are made to-day at an interest rate of ⅜ of 1 per cent. In this country the general public are apparently satisfied to leave their idle funds in the banks at 2 per cent per annum. The statement of the Chartered banks for March showed the total savings bank deposits to be $1,447,000,000. The highest level since October 1931. A gain of $40,000,000 has been recorded since the first of 1935. What does this mean? The answer is not hard to find.

SHOW AN INCREASE

The export of Canadian farm products to the United States in March was of the value of $2,356,000. A year ago it was $941,000. While this is a very large increase, the amount is far below what it was before United States tariffs rose. Fourteen years ago the average monthly export was over $17,000,000, which dropped, following the Hawley-Smoot tariff, to less than $300,000.

COST OF LIVING LOW

"Blundering John Bull" is again showing the world a thing or two in the line of business. Last year the industrial output of Britain increased by 12 per cent and established a new high record. The nation has regained 80 per cent of its former prosperity. The government was able to show a surplus on the year's operations and is again budgetting for a surplus. Yet it is restoring in full the cut made four years ago in the pay of civil servants and is lowering the income tax, increasing children's allowances, reducing the duty on sugar and reducing the amusement tax. Building is going on at a high rate and the cost of living is remaining low.

ONTARIO HOG PRICES.

TORONTO, May 7 (C.P.).—Peterborough, with a 25-cent advance, showed the only change on bacon hog prices from reporting market points to-day selling at $8.50 along with Stratford and Kitchener. Barrie supplies brought $8.35, while Chatham's sold at $8.

Citizen Protest Closing of Jails

LONDON, May 7 (C.P.) — People are proud of their penitentiaries, according to Mr. Justice Sir Rigby Swift, one of the judges of the King's Bench. The judge was giving evidence before the Royal Commission on the despatch of business at common law.

"Nothing has created greater indignation in some parts of the country than the closing of jails," declared the judge. "No one would think that they wanted a jail in their midst, but I know several towns which were highly indignant that their prisons should be taken away. Prisons bring people into a town as visitors to see it, and the same thing applies to the holding of Assizes."

DRIVER INJURED ON BYERS' HILL

Car is Alleged to Have Sideswiped Second Vehicle.

THREE TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

Driving up Byers' Hill between Bailieboro and Bewdley shortly before midnight Saturday Norman Sanderson, 569 George street, is alleged to have sideswiped another car being driven in the opposite direction by William Atkins of Bewdley. Highway Traffic Officer A. E. Hornick, who investigated, stated that Sanderson's car proceeded on for some distance before crashing the ditch on the wrong side of the road. Sanderson was thrown through the windshield by the impact and sustained cuts and abrasions to his face and head.

Harry Sanderson of Toronto was the driver of another car that was involved in a smash-up on Highway 7 east of Peterborough Sunday noon. Sanderson, according to the officer, swerved his car to avoid an imaginary bump in the road and as a result struck a car being driven by Joseph O'Keefe of this city. O'Keefe's car was badly damaged by the impact, but none of the parties involved suffered personal injuries.

For some undetermined reason John Chambers of this city, crashed into a guard rail south of Sunnybrook Farm on Highway 28 on Monday afternoon, the impact ripping out a number of posts and damaging Chamber's car.

Base Metal Shares Remain Quiet While Oils Develop No Changes.

ACTIVE SELLING.

TORONTO, May 7 (C.P.)—Selling was rather active in the gold and silver groups to-day on the mining department of the Toronto Exchange and prices were pared down though losses were not severe. Base metal shares were quiet and steady and the oils developed no changes of importance with the turnover concentrated in Midwal.

Braforne, weakest of the big golds, sagged 50 cents to 6.25 while Hollinger Dome Pioneer, Wright Hargreaves and Teck Hughes closed 5 to 20 cents lower. Pickle Crow drifted down to 2.45 for a loss of 17 cents.

Eldorado and Castle silvers weakened until Eldorado had a loss of 19 cents at 2.20 and Castle 6 at 1.14. Bear had a rally to 62 but drifted back to 58, where it showed a gain of only about a cent.

She acknowledged to-day her Hollywood ambitions had always been thwarted by a too operatic figure, but that since taking daily bicycle rides in Riverside Drive she has achieved the willowy lines that producers ask about before they ask, "Can you sing?"

Miss Ponselle is now negotiating for a series of musical motion pictures.

MILLBROOK CHURCHES OBSERVE SPECIAL SERVICES FOR JUBILEE

Splendid Addresses Centering on King George's Reign Are Features.

EXCELLENT MUSIC.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MILLBROOK, May 7.—The observanceof the King's Jubilee locally was confined entirely to special services in the three churches on Sunday, May 5, with patriotic hymns, and suitable selections by the choirs, also messages in keeping with the occasion by the ministers.

St. Thomas' Anglican Church

In the parish of Cavan the services for the day began with Holy Communion at St. Thomas' church Millbrook, at 11 a.m., the celebrant being the rector, Rev. William Simpson, B.A. This was followed by the National Anthem, the special Jubilee prayers, and the sermon based on the text: "All the people shouted and said, God save the King" (1 Samuel 10:24). An historical outline of the kings of England under four groupings, military, ecclesiastical, the House of Hanover, according to their powers and characteristics, combined in the monarchy of the present day, preceded a strong tribute to the personal character and reign of King George the Fifth, and formed a fitting conclusion to an impressive sermon, and the service of thanksgiving which marked the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Empire's beloved Sovereign.

St. Andrew's United Church

The Special Form and Order of Divine Service for the twenty-five years of the reign of His Majesty, King George issued by the General Council was used at morning worship in St. Andrew's United Church, the choir singing, "Great God of Nations", and the minister, Rev. A. L. Sisco, preaching from the text, "Honor all men; love the brotherhood: fear God; honor the King" (I Peter 2:17).

"All through the centuries the cry has gone forth," The King is dead; long live the King", stated the speaker, pointing out that many present had lived under three sovereigns, and outlining the outstanding events of the reign of the present king, with its many changes economically and politically, and paying warm tribute to the "simple manly ways of the one man who, through turmoil and danger, has gone quietly about his daily tasks, and is loved by his people not only as a king, but also as a man. If we are to be an empire that will live and last we must be ruled by one who loves the Great King, the God and father of the universe."

In the evening the church was filled almost to capacity when the Oddfellows paraded from the I. O. O. F. Hall, headed by the Citizens' Band under Martin Chenhall, Junior, for their annual attendance at divine worship. The sermon had special reference to the three links of the Order, friendship, love, and truth, was appropriate scripture passages connected with each. Ken Kidd sang, "O Love that Will Not Let Me Go", and the young peoples' choir led in the music.

Grace Presbyterian Church

Grace Presbyterian church held its Jubilee service at 7 p.m., the eminister, Rev. H. R. Williams, B.A., preaching from the words found in Revelation 22:3, and like the other churches having the National Anthem as a prominent part of the ritual.

The words of the text were: "And there shall be no more curse; but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it; and his servants shall serve Him", and the speaker emphasized the religious side of the King's nature, his attitude towards the King of Kings, his attendance at public worship not to conform to a rule but because of his personal belief in the Infinite Being, and his humble devotion to Christ as Saviour. The glories of the reign, its changes and vicissitudes, of King George were recounted, and from the earthly kingdom it was easy to pass on to the heavenly with its promised rich and varied blessings. "And the heavenly inheritance will be incorruptible, undefiled, and one that fadeth not away."

street to the Park being headed by the P.C.I. Cadet drum and bugle band. Major H. K. Clifton, M.C., was parade marshal.

At Simcoe and George streets the various troops representing Peterborough Boy Scout Association joined the parade, the boys making a brave showing in their trim khaki shirts and shorts.

Choirs and Bands

The program which was preceded by a radio broadcast from Ottawa amplified over equipment loaned through the courtesy of the Kawartha Golf and Country Club and the Canadian General Electric Company, commenced at eleven o'clock with the chorus "O Canada" sung by the entire assemblage.

Singing of the opening number and also the remainder of the patriotic songs of the program was led by the combined choirs of the city churches and the Madrigal Singers under the baton of Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., and the massed bands of the Peterborough Rangers and Salvation Army, under direction of Bandmaster R. G. Routley.

The Chairman

James Dutton, chairman of the Civic Committee presided and in his introductory remarks stated in part: "We meet today to celebrate an occasion which adds another chapter to the story of Empire." Referring to the anniversary of the Accession of Their Majesties, he said: "We are proud today because we are members of the great Commonwealth of Nations which go to make up the Empire—an Empire whose bounds are far-flung and whose influence still continues to be felt amongst the nations of the world."

"The prayer of all our hearts today will be a fervent 'God Save the King'. May he and his gracious consort be long spared in health and strength to reign over a loyal and loving people."

Following the singing by the school children of "We are Part of Britain", and "Let Us Sing Unto Their Majesties," under the conductorship of Miss M. R. Rannie, an address was delivered by Mayor Roland Denne, who afterwards presented the King's Silver Jubilee Medal awards to those entitled to them.

The Mayor

His Worship stated:

"The celebration of this, the 25th anniversary of the accession of King George and Queen Mary to the throne of the British Empire, is deeply significant in my opinion to us all. It is well that the citizens of Peterborough should join full-heartedly in it, because in doing so Peterborough is giving expression to a worthwhile pride and enthusiasm in British traditions and achievements. Similar services of praise and thanksgiving on this most historic occasion are being held in every part of the Empire.

"Their Majesties symbolize all that is best and finest within the Empire—the highest standards of the British peoples, customs and institutions. They represent the fountain head of our state and how fittingly and well they have fulfilled the important duties that have devolved upon them during the 25 years they have sat upon the throne is today the subject of thought and rejoicing by all British peoples.

"The task of our King during the past 25 years has been difficult—more difficult than any here can fully realize. The resolute manner in which he has continued to serve his people has been an inspiration to the Empire and to the world. In times of great stress, when doubts caused others to falter, the King's serene faith in the forward march of the Empire has proved a most steadying force.

"He and his Queen have always loved the people. Their kindnesses are to numerous to dwell upon. Thre has not been an undertaking launched anywhere within the Empire to benefit the people that has not had the full support of Their Majesties. Most of their days are taken up in helping, in charity and hospital work and other service work.

"It is this great leadership that the King has given the Empire and his unfailing kindness that has made him and his Queen so loved and respected throughout the Empire. He has been a truly British king.

"British peoples have never lost faith in King George. In this changing world their loyalty to their King has not changed. This has been one of the secrets of the Empire's success in leading the world out of the depression.

"While of[illegible] countries, their people having lost their trust in old institutions have been blindly accepting the leadership of Hitlers, Mussolinis and Trotzkys and have been willing to gamble with N.R.A.'s and other easy roads to prosperity, the British people have clung wisely to old established things, old and true standards and safe and sure methods. The result is plainly to be seen. Today Great Britain and the dominions are far ahead of other nations along the path to recovery.

"My hope at this time is this—that we citizens of Peterborough will take this opportunity to pledge anew our faith in things British. Let our confidence in final success not be shaken by the mouthings of agitators. They would have us throw overboard our great heritage of British customs and institutions, the blessed heritage of sane freedom and clean living. The heritage that our forefathers gained for us and which has stood the test of time.

"Let us beware these new-found theories of Government that sound so good and yet are so false in every principle.

"But let us on the other hand stand firmly British, having faith in our leaders and customs of proven worth, and let us do honor to the King."

Jubilee Medals

Jubilee medals awarded by His Majesty the King to his subjects throughout the Empire in recognition of outstanding services in various walks of life, were presented by His Worship the Mayor, as follows: Peterborough Militia Garrison—Lieut.-Colonel C. G. Winterbottom, M.C., D.C.M., O.C. Rangers; Lieut.-Colonel J. A. Dewart, M.C., O.C. 4th Battalion C.M.G.C.; Lieut.-Colonel Claire H. Stuart, O.C. 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons; Major J. A. Morris, Canadian Legion British Empire Service League; John Davidson, retired principal Norwood Public School; Dr. H. G. Park, retired from the staff of Peterborough Normal School.

Rev. Paul Costello

Speaking after the massed choirs and assemblage, accompanied by the bands had sung "Rule Britannia", and "God Bless the Prince of Wales", the Rev. Paul Costello stated:

"A jubilee is proclaimed at a time when there is reason for commemorating some extraordinary event and for the purpose of offering the gratitude of people's hearts to The Almighty. This year we commemorate the accession to the throne of King George V and His Royal Consort Queen Mary, and today we rejoice and thank God for having preserved Their Majesties for the long span of 25 years.

"Across the broad expanse of the British Empire, upon which the sun never sets, millions of rejoicing subjects are today giving expression to their gratitude for the preservation of Their Majesties for this their jubilee year. Visualize far distant Australia, New Zealand, the Hindoo, the Arab and the African as they join, in their own way, in this empire celebration! But there is no part of the Empire in which more loyal sentiments will be evoked than in this great Canadian nation.

Represents Bishop

"On this occasion I am representing one of His Majesties most loyal empire citizens, His Excellency Bishop O'Connor of the Diocese of Peterborough. The Bishop's heart is filled with true sentiments of fidelity to, and admiration for, Their Majesties, King George and Queen Mary. His orders were that yesterday, in all the churches throughout His ecclesiastical jurisdiction, a special 'Te Deum' of Thanksgiving should be sung and suitable reference made to Their Majesties on this occasion. His absence here today is unavoidable.

"The British Crown is something mystical, if you will, but nevertheless real. It is the binding link that unites the many far-flung dominions and colonies and British possessions, which extend all around the world, into the grand harmonious whole, known as the British Commonwealth of nations. Without the King this unity would be impossible. This marvelous network of nations is unique in the civil life of the world. These units of this great Empire are not bound to the Crown by means of force but by sentiments of love and affection for His Majesty King George V.

"King George's paternal character is what makes him loved by his millions of subjects in the Empire. He possesses the qualities of the true Father. At all times he has shared not only in the joys btu also in the sorrows of the children of his Empire. On several occasions we saw him visit his suffering subjects on the Western Front during the late war. During the same period we read of him having visited the restless factory workers and having settled their disturbed minds by his wise counsel and sympathetic words. His simplicity and his kindliness profoundly affected the national temper. In a word he graciously interested himself in the affairs of the common man. Hence he is known today as 'The People's King.'

A Faithful Partner

"Her gracious Majesty, Queen Mary, has been during this quarter of a century, a faithful partner to Her Royal Spouse. Thoroughly christian and virtuous, she gives to the Mothers of the Empire an example of a truly Christian Mother. Her dignified deportment and her intense cordial feelings and sympathy for the poor and the suffering have endeared her to His Majesty's subjects. She loves to visit the orphans homes; she frequently visited the war hospitals, in trying times in France, and the people of the slums of London are often cheered and encouraged by her presence, kindness and charity. At the present time she is most anxious that sufficient funds be raised in this country, to enable medical science to check the inroads of cancer amongst the Canadian people.

A Household

"With the British Throne so blessed as it is in the persons of Their Majesties King George and Queen Mary, it is not to be wondered at, that peace and harmony exist throughout this great Commonwealth. As has been well said, 'Their Majesties have made Britain not only a nation but a household.' The civil and religious freedom of her citizenry is, as the corner stone, which make our Empire-structure invulnerable. Within recenty memory other Royal Houses have been thrown into the discard; at the present time many are resting on unstable foundations; but The British Royal House is more secure today than at any time in its age-old history. The Union Jack is the emblem of our union with the British Crown. It is emblematic of the principles and the protection of Britain. Notwithstanding, therefore, what others may think about the question of a specific national Flag for Canada, I wish to say that the Union Jack is quite sufficient for me.

"At the conclusion of his Christmas message to his subjects The King expressed his greetings to us in these beautiful words 'God bless you.' May I conclude my remarks this morning, expressing the hope that Almight God may bless and preserve our King and Queen for many future years."

"Land of Hope and Glory" by the massed choir with Harold Lee of Trinity choir taking a solo part followed after which the final speech of the program was delivered. Concluding numbers were the "Hallelujah Chorus" and the National Anthem.

The Rev. Dr. T. A. Barr, president of Peterborough Ministerial Association stated: "Today is one of the greatest days in the annals of the Empire, for we are gathered here to pay tribute to our Royal Family. Particularly are we expressing gratitude for the Divine bestowal of health and happiness on Their Most Excellent Majesties, King George and Queen Mary. For twenty-five years they have been privileged to reign over the great British commonwealth, and these have been trying years. All over Europe, kingdom have toppled and the strivings of the proletariat have laid thrones in the dust. Yet, this mighty Empire over which the sun never sets, still stands secure. And why?"

Good Leadership

"Because," he stated, "first we have a democracy which is true to the highest and best that the word signifies. Such a democracy, having ideals, goals, admirations, in order that it perdue and be safe for itself, must accept the right sort of aristocracy. And what does this latter word intend? Only that we shall have leadership of the best. Such leadership we have had from the present head of the royal family."

Dr. Barr made brief reference to His Majesty's early training in the Royal Navy and his wide travels, which has made him a true leader of men and had given him the ability to guide and rule his people in a manner unrivalled in "the history of kingship."

"Under his beneficent rule, we have enjoyed a liberty, which is a pattern for all other nations to follow," the speaker maintained, "and by means of a mild and free and humane government, a conception of liberty has been revealed which is the nurse of all great wits; and we have been participants in a contact as between king and people that has rarefied and enlightened our spirts like the very influence of heaven. Ever since the close of the Great War, formalities hitherto associated with kingship, have been cast aside, and at innumerable investitures, our beloved king has taken his place in the dangers and achievements of his people in a way that stands unexcelled in the annals of royalty. By his indefatigable attention to the sick and wounded during the War, by his philanthrophic efforts in all spheres of human need ever since, he has come to be loved by every citizen rich or poor."

The First Lady

The speaker proceeded to enlarge upon the notable example that has always been set by the royal family in their love and home and family life, and spoke of the Queen as "the first lady of the Empire by her attitude to prevailing trends." Her example had been copied to the general welfare of Society.

Referring to the recent marriage of the Duke and Duchess of Kent, Dr. Barr believed the ceremony had provided a setting for a new emphasis on the sanctity of marriage. It was an emphasis that was needed, he said, not only in Canada but in every land, where the home is threatened with destruction.

With a few exceptions where those who were officially invited by the committe were unable to be present for various reasons the following is the list of invitations that were sent out:

All Employees periodically undergo Medical Examination at the Factory Hospital.

Medical and Nursing Services

IN each of its factories, the Imperial Tobacco Company maintains a well-equipped hospital, with one or more nurses constantly in attendance, and a doctor either in attendance or on call. In adopting these precautions to safeguard and conserve the health of its workers, the Company confesses to a personal interest in the well-being of every one of them. At the same time, it has the additional satisfaction of knowing that its course is strictly in line with sound business practice.

Time lost through sickness means earnings lost to the worker and production lost to the Company. Because there is a mutual advantage in reducing such lost time to a minimum, at the first sign of sickness or of undue fatigue the worker is expected to report immediately to the hospital for examination, treatment, and rest if need be. Hours or even minutes spent in checking incipient trouble may easily mean days, possibly weeks, saved in fighting serious illness.

A complete case history card is kept for every employee, based upon a thorough medical examination that is repeated at varying intervals, depending upon the facts and conditions revealed. Minor conditions needing correction which can be effected without absence from work, are treated in the Company's hospital.

To the hospital, of course, come all emergency cases. Fortunately, accidents are so few that on the average less than one day's work per year is lost for every nine employees. But even the occasional scratch or cut is immediately brought in for dressing, as a precaution against infection. To the hospital too, at mid-morning and mid-afternoon every day, come all underweight cases for their free ration of milk. And to the physician in charge, any employee may come at any time, for free diagnosis, free medical advice.

Any absence from work of more than three days' duration is promptly investigated by a Company nurse, who calls at the employee's home, taking with her any wages earned but unpaid. If sickness of a serious character is found to be the cause, she sees to it that competent medical supervision is provided at once.

It affords the Company real pleasure to serve the interests of its workers in these ways, and none the less so since experience has proven it is mutually beneficial.

SLIGHT ERASED FROM THE OATH BY KING GEORGE

SACRED HEART CHURCH.

Rev. John J. O'Brien, pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart, addressed three congregations Sunday morning in grateful commemoration of the silver jubilee of King George V. At the eight o'clock Mass the men of the parish received communion in a body, and a group of little children received their first holy communion.

"We join with His Majesty in rejoicing and in thanking God for His manifold blessings during the last twenty-five years," Rev. Father O'Brien said. "The office held by His Majesty and our kindly Queen is a most onerous one. In their hands are the destinies of their millions of subjects who make up this Empire. King George is a just, kind and wise ruler, and Queen Mary has a mother's heart for all her subjects.

When we look over the world and consider Russia, Germany, Spain, Mexico, where liberty is destroyed where consciences are crushed, where tears and blood moisten the land, where sympathy from the rulers is unknown, where rule is by fear and not by love, have we not every reason to thank God that we have a King who is a profoundly Christian gentleman.

It was King George who erased from the coronation oath an offensive clause which spoke of the holy sacrifice of the Mass, the central act of worship of millions of his Catholic subjects, as blasphemous idolatory. In his strength of character and justice he refused to take the oath while that clause remained in it.

King George and Queen Mary do not distinguish between rich and poor, between the high and the low, nor between race, color and creed. Justice, humanity and mercy are the attributes of our great King and his gracious Queen, and it is a deeply touching sight to see them visiting the sick and afflicted in the hospitals, the little orphans and the poor. They have been as parents to them, and have promoted every work of charity. And on this occasion of their jubilee instead of accepting any fortune for themselves from their loyal subjects, they have requested only that a fund be created to fight the dread disease of cancer."

Father O'Brien said that the Catholic people of Peterborough were pleased that in the name of His Majesty the jubilee medal had been presented to four Catholics among the citizens who had been signaled out for this honor, Bishop O'Connor, Rev. Paul Costello, Mother St. Joseph of St. Joseph's Hospital, and Sister St. James a veteran teacher at Mount St. Joseph.

"We all appreciate that very much, and it is further proof that there is no distinction by the King in giving honor where honor is due. The home life of the King and Queen has been simple and humble, a model and ideal for everyone to look up to. It is a doctrine of our Church to be loyal and patriotic to the King. Your children are taught it in school, and we pray for the King every day. I can take the Mass book off the altar, and show to any one the prayer 'pro rege' (for the King). If you meet with anyone who is ignorant of Catholic doctrine and what is taught in our schools you have only to refer to the catechism in which loyalty and obedience to the law is taught not because of fear but because it is the will of God. In this matter which concerns us it is worth while to remember that there is no school question in England. You are only asked there how many children are you educating and what are your requirements for the year. We sincerely hope that in this province of Ontario we shall receive the same British fair play. I ask you on this occasion of the jubilee of King George V that you remember His Majesty and his consort in your prayers that they may be spared long to reign over us."

The hymn, "Holy God We Praise Thy Name", was sung as a special prayer of thanksgiving in connection with the national day of thanksgiving.

Let This Be An Object Lesson!

Let the grim horror of this picture be an object lesson not only to motorists but to pedestrians as well. Close to 1,500 Canadians lost their lives last year in just such accidents as this. Photo shows tragic aftermath of a truck-taxi crash. Mrs. Rose Samanoff, a pedestrian, was killed when the two machines jumped the curb and struck her. The man covering his face is the husband, Samuel Samanoff. Mrs. Samanoff was doing her morning shopping when the tragic accident occurred. One of the cars which was turned over on its side it seen beyond the body of the woman.

MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL ATTEND DIVINE WORSHIP

Peterborough's observance of the Silver Jubilee anniversary officially opened on Sunday with special services of thanksgiving in churches of all denominations throughout the city. The program continued with a monster civic celebration in Victoria Park yesterday forenoon and concluded at night with a beacon fire and pyrotechnic display at Exhibition Park.

On Sunday Mayor Roland Denne, the City Council and other civic officials attended the morning service at St. John's Church, where throughout the day special services were conducted by Archdeacon Dr. R. C. Blagrave, assisted by the Rev. Clarence Jackson of Niagara Diocese, whose home is in this city.

A feature of the morning service was the dedication of the colors of the 1st Peterborough Company Girl Guides, under Guidemistress Mrs. J. H. Bell, with Miss Morley Brown as assistant. The color party was composed of Patrol Leaders Alicia Langley, Joan Ottewell and Doris Glover, and Guides Catherine White and Grace Marshall.

OTTAWA STAGES REAL PAGEANT ON JUBILEE DAY

21 Guns Boom in Royal Salute as Governor-General Opens Program.

MASSED CHOIRS SING.

OTTAWA, May 7 (CP)—People of Ottawa turned back to work again to-day cherishing the memory of a great and spectacular tribute to a beloved King and Queen.

The great crowds, the pageantry of military uniforms, gay flags and all that went to make the picture on Parliamen Hill yesetrday one of exceptional interest had disappeared. But the spirit of loyalty and devotion which animated the celebration of the silver Jubilee of King George's reign remained srong as ever.

Monster Crowd

Estimates of those who gathered before the flag-draped pavilion on Parliament Hill yesterday morning varied, but general agreement said the crowd was one of the greatest ever seen there on any occasion. While the official celebration lasted for only about one hour, the entire day and a good part of last night were utilized by visitors and others who came and went on the green lawns of the stately buildings.

Booming guns, massed bands, patiotic tunes sung by a large choir recruited from church and schools, and speeches by the Governor-General, the Acting Prime Minister, and the Leader of the official Opposition, furnished the program for the official ceremony.

It opened at 11 in the morning with the arrival of the Governor-General and members of his party. In a gay pavilion specially erected in front of the soaring Peace Tower of the Parliament Buildings, those persons who had obtained seats in the reserved enclosure were waiting, below them was the great crowd stretching far in front and to either side.

21-Gun Salute

A royal salute of 21 guns and ringing of church bells all over the city marked the arrival of His Excellency and the opening of the program. Then came the singing of the National Anthem led by the massed bands and choir. The Governor-General spoke, in English and in French; and Sir George Perley, Acting Prime Minister, as well as Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Opposition Leader, followed also in the two official languages of Canada. Their speeches emphasized the spirit of affection which flowed between the King and Queen and the people of the British Empire. They referred to the intense interest felt by Their Majesties in the welfare of their people. They also reviewed he events of the quarter century during which King George has sat upon the Empire throne.

Presentation by the Governor General of the King's Silver Jubilee Medal to about 30 priminent citizens formed one of the items on the brief official program.

The singing of "O Canada" closed the proceedings, after which the government house party left the pavilion, and the grounds were given up to the crowd which listened to the speeches broadcast from various parts of the Empire.

SCOUT NEWS

The Chief Scout and Guide will reach Ontario, at Fort William, tomorrow, where they will be welcomed by Mrs. G. A. Routledge of London, Provincial Commissioner for Guides, and P. G. Irwin, Assistant Provisional Commissioner for Scouts, and by the Fort William executive. On Friday, the party will arrive in Toronto and on Saturday afternoon about 10,000 Scouts and about the same number of Guides will attend the rally in the Coliseum.

Local Scouts and Guides will leave Peterborough on Saturday morning at 9.15. From the C.N.R. station on a special train picking up additional Scouts in Lindsay and other points. Prior to leaving Peterborough Scouts with the Guides will assemble in front of the Armouries and from here they will parade down to the C.N.R. station. The train will come back to Peterborough on the same day, and it is expected to arrive about 8.30 in the evening. It is also expected that about 350 Guides and Scouts will go from Peterborough.

At yesterday's celebrations, local Scouts took part in various forms. In the afternoon from about 3 p.m. till late evening four Rovers and other Scouts from the various troops were busy setting up the huge bonfire. Scouts of the troops in the evening formed a guard line to keep the crowd away.

Last Wednesday evening the Rovers again enjoyed a dinner party. The dinner, in an informal way was held in the Rover den in honor of John Langley who is a member of the crew. With his presence, this was the first meeting fully attended. The dinner was cooked in the den by the Rovers. John showed various articles he brought back from Australia and presented the Crew with a set of Jamboree papers, 2 pennants, and several other articles. The evening ended with a singsong.

And, what's more valuable to a Scout than a letter from the Chief Scout himself in his "own" handwriting. The letter was written by the Chief Scout to John Langley while in Australia. It reads as follows:

"Good-bye Scouters and Scouts—Thank you for coming to the jamboree and for your Scouty behavior while there. Keep alive the memories and the friendship of that happy gathering and act as apostles of Scouting by spreading it far and wide. By doing so, you will be helping to promote on earth a goodwill among men.

Baden Powell, Chief Scout."

Frankton, 6 Jan. 1935.

Another letter typed and signed by the Chief Scout accompanies a beautiful boomerang that was presented by the Chief to each country, to be given over by their representative, reads as follows:

"May this boomerang of love carry the spirit of goodwill to others and bring in return their friendship as a step towards peace in the world.

Baden Powell.

Frankston, 6th, Jan., 1035.

This boomerang will be presented to the Chief Scout of Canada at the annual meeting of the Canadian General Council on Thursday, May 16, in Toronto.

Last week 1st (St. John's) and 5th (All Saints') troops held a joint meeting at St. John's Hall. Instructions were delivered to members of both troops in first second class and tenderfoot work, followed by a period of games.

An investiture ceremony carried out by S.M. George Groombridge was held when two members were invested to the St. John's Troops and by S.M. Everitt Peters of the All Saints' Troop, also invested two members to his troop.

Eight members of the 8th (St. Andrew's) Troop has successfully passed their work for carpenter's badge. The examiner was A. Hope, assistant district commissioner, who is also on instructor in carpentry in the local schools.

Prince Recalled Her Maiden Name

CAPE TOWN, May 6 (C.P.)—Here is a little story from the brochure describing the railway route between Bloemfontein and East London and supplied to the members of the Imperial Press Conference as they travelled that way.

At Tylden, a village of 30 inhabitants, including the Mayor, the Prince of Wales, during his tour in 1925, scored one of his many startling hits. His train had to stop at Tylden half an hour. Soon the Prince espied a lady standing on the platform apart from the others. "Who's that?" he inquired. "Oh, that's my wife," heplied the mayor. "Splendid—is she a South African?" asked the Prince. "No, she comes from Glasgow." "What was her name?" "She was a Miss—"

A few minutes later the Prince strolled along the platform. He came opposite the Mayoress, looked hard for a moment, then to her utter astonishment addressed her: "Well, I'm blest if it isn't Miss—, from Glasgow. Surely I haven't made a mistake—you remember me? I'm the Prince!"

Biliousness Entirely Checked

Sick since she was 15 years old, Mrs. Walter Smith, 40 Toronto St., Guelph, is now well again. She tells her experience in a legal statement made before a lawyer so you can be sure it is true. Mrs. Smith says, "Since I was 15 years old I was subject to bilious attacks that usually lasted two or three days. They were so severe that I would have to go to bed. The attacks came 5 or 6 weeks apart. No matter what I tried, I got little relief until I started Fruit-a-tives. After taking them for a few weeks I felt in much better health and my biliousness was entirely checked."

Fruit-a-tives are at once natural and scientific. They contain extracts of apples, oranges, figs, prunes and herbs combined with medicinal ingredients in accordance with the formula devised by the famous Canadian doctor who discovered Fruit-a-tives. If you suffer from constipation, indigestion, biliousness, or kindred ills, try Fruit-a-tives at once. You'll be amazed how much better they'll soon make you feel.

Questions and Answers

Q.—Do I get vote credits for collecting back subscriptions?

A.—Yes. Back subscriptions are classified as renewals. Votes are issued for such subscriptions.

Q.—What is the longest term subscription a candidate is allowed to take?

A.—Not more than two years.

Q.—Could a candidate take a year's back subscription and two years' in advance?

A.—Yes. While this would constitute a three years' subscription, the subscriber would only be paid two years in advance.

Q.—How many votes would be allowed for a three-year subscription?

A.—Add 60,000 for each additional year over two years.

Q.—Can members take subscriptions in Peterborough?

A.—No.

Q.—Is a member confined to her own particular town or village?

Q.—Is a candidate allowed to pay for other people's subscriptions.

A.—A candidate may pay for her own home subscription and for not more than one distant friend. All candidates are warned against buying subscriptions. This is a contest of effort and not a case of "who has the most money to spend." The Examiner reserves the right to disqualify any member for violation of this rule.

Q.—Is it wise to hold subscriptions back?

A.—Absolutely, no. It would be most unwise as the votes will decrease each period.

Q.—Will my standing be revealed to my competitors while the contest is on?

A.—Absolutely, no. While a relative standing will be shown, the true standing will not be published until the club closes, in order to avoid unfair competition. Further, candidates are advised not to expose their hands to even their best friends. All possible will be done by The Examiner to maintain secrecy and candidates are advised, for their own good, to co-operate with the Travel Club Office.

REV. H. L. STEPHENS
After conducting a very successful evangelistic campaign in High Park Baptist Church, Toronto, and well known in Peterough through his recent campaigns in Mark Street United and Park Street Baptist Churches, Evangelist Stephens is returning to this city for two days, and will be at Bethany Tabernacle Thursday evening and Park Street Baptist Church Friday.

ITALIAN VETERANS PARADE
Among the large number of ex-servicemen who paraded with the Canadian Legion here yesterday, were eight veterans of the Italian army, it is learned. The Peterborough Fire Department also provided a smart detachment, the firefighters being attired in blue uniforms, with white-topped caps.
Prior to dismissal of the parade at the Legion Hall, Major Max Sloan president of Branch 52, took the opportunity of extending thanks to Principal H. R. H. Kenner, and Captain H. A. Craig, M.C., cadet instructor, and through them to the P.C.I. Cadet drum and bugle band, who headed the parade.

CYCLED TO TORONTO AND BACK.
Many may have taken advantage of the Jubilee week-end to catch up on their back sleep but not Angus Bradley of 299 Sherbrooke street. He pedaled his bicycle to Toronto and back.
The hardy cyclist set out from Peterborough, at 6.06 a.m. Saturday morning and arrived in Toronto 6 hours and 45 minutes later at 12.50 noon. He made the return trip Monday in 6 hours and 48 minutes, leaving Toronto at 9.15 a.m. and arriving here at 4.03 p.m.
"That highway is sure hilly," he declares.

EXCHANGE OF PULPITS
On Sunday next in an exchange of pulpits, Archdeacon Dr. E. C. Blagrave is to revisit Christ Church, Belleville, where he was rector for a period of thirteen years, on the occasion of the 78th anniversary of the church. The Reverend George G. Wright, present rector of Christ Church will preach here, according to announcement made in St. John's on Sunday.

COUNCIL POSTPONES TOUR
"Wet grounds" was the baseball phrase accounting for the postponement this afternoon of the council's tour of the city. It has been planned to enable all aldermen to acquaint themselves of sectional needs, and of some improvements that are contemplated.

While walking across the intersection at Park and Westcott streets at about nine o'clock last evening, Mrs. Minnie LaFolley, 270 Lake street was struck by a motor car being driven north on Park street by Leonard Garvey. The woman who suffered shock and bruises was attended by Dr. W. S. Fitzpatrick afterwards being ordered to her own home.

FUND FOR WHEEL CHAIR
Chris Hughes, manager of the Grafton store, has opened a fund to buy a wheel chair for Murnie Young, street vendor of pencils, whose physical disability has left him unable to walk or work. In summer and winter Mr. Young has been a familiar figure on Peterborough streets, often in front of the Grafton store, and by the sale of pencils he manages to keep himself. Mr. Hughes believes that there are many sympathetic people in the city who would be willing to make a small contribution toward the cost of a new wheel chair which Mr. Young needs. Donations may be left with Mr. Hughes, who already has a nucleus of the sum required to pay for a new chair.

FURTHER MEDAL AWARDS
In addition to the King's Silver Jubilee medal awards, presented at the Civic celebrations here yesterday by His Worship Mayor Roland Denne, and mentioned elsewhere in this issue, three other medals reached City Clerk S. R. Armstrong by mail to-day, for the following officials: Roland Denne, Mayor of the City of Peterborough; His Honor Judge Sheldon L. Smoke; and Chief Constable Samuel Newhall. It is also learned by The Examiner that A. L. Killaly, Superintendent Engineer of the Trent Canal, and W. M. Lang, Collector of Customs, received their medals by mail.

CANCER FUND DONATIONS
The total sum of $49 was showered into the special convas receptacles provided in Victoria Park yesterday for donations to the Jubilee Cancer Fund, it is announced.
Co-operating with the civic committee, uniformed nurses from Nicholls and St. Joseph's Hospitals together with a group of business girls took charge of the donations and took the names and addresses of all persons making contributions of one dollar and over, in order that they might received the official receipt from Their Excellencies Lord and Lady Bessborough.

Good Crop Of Wheat Looked For In County

Hopes for a good crop of Fall wheat in Peterborough County are high, Agricultural Representative A. D. Runions reported today in a comment on the heavy week-end rains. Warmth in the next couple of weeks will result in an excellent crop here, he stated.
The rain has retarded seeding but will be of great benefit to meadows and pastures as well as wheat crops. Peterborough County farmers are congratulating themselves on having escaped any serious winter killing of wheat. Patches of wheat in this district in more exposed spots were killed by the recurrent early frosts but very few fields have been given up as a total loss.
The fortunes of Fall wheat growers in Durham and Northumberland counties to the south have been less favorable, Mr. Runions states. In those counties almost fifty percent of the Fall wheat fields have been plowed up.
Due to the unusual Spring weather experienced this year, seeding operations have been very irregular in the Peterborough district. Although some farmers took advantage of the warm spell in April, others deemed it too early for the work. Many experienced farmers have not begun seeding operations even yet, the representative reports.

Obituary

MRS. HAROLD McLEAN.
Succumbing to a lengthy illness, Mrs. Harold Henry McLean, 135 James street, passed away in Nicholls Hospital yesterday. She was 33 years of age.
Mrs. McLean was born in Wiltshire, England. She was Alice Davis, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Davis. She had been in Peterborough twenty-five years.
Besides her father and husband, two daughters, Rosamond and Beverly, survive. Remaining also are five brothers, Alfred Davis, Bert Croft, William Croft and Ernest Croft in Peterborough, and Herbert Croft in Rochester, N.Y., and four sisters, Mrs. Primrose Shannon, Phyllis Davis and Mrs. William Hales of Peterborough, and Mrs. Amy Pearce, London, England.
The funeral will be held to-morrow afternoon at 2 p.m., from the home to Little Lake Cemetery, Rev. G. J. Bousfield conducting the services.

MRS. RUTH HERON.
In Springville United Church on Monday afternoon at two o'clock the funeral services of Mrs. Ruth Heron, beloved wife of the late James Heron, were held with the Rev. H. P. Seymour officiating. Mrs. Heron, who was in her 88th year, died on Thursday night after an illness of about four weeks. She was born in South Monaghan and has spent her entire life in the Centreville and Springville communities. She was highly respected and loved by everyone who came in contact with her, and the church was filled to capacity for the funeral services. During the service hymns loved by the deceased were sung, while two solos were beautifully rendered by V. George of Port Hope and B. Preston of North Monaghan.
Predeceased by her husband 13 years ago, she leaves to mourn her loss, one daughter, Mrs. Lindsay Vance of Regina and two sons, Bruce at home, and Lloyd. Also two granddaughters, who made their homes with her after the death of their parents over 20 years ago, Mrs. William White of Cavan township, and Miss Sybil Robertson at home. Interment was made in the Fraserville cemetery.

MRS. C. E. SMITH
The funeral of the late Mrs. C. E. Smith took place from George Street United Church on Saturday last at 2.30 p.m. A large congregation assembled to do honor to one who, until her recent removal from the city, was prominent in the church's work, and had won for herself a very high place in the esteem of all who knew her. The service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. E. J. Millyard, who paid fitting tribute to Mrs. Smith gracious personality and unselfish devotion, and the interment was made at Little Lake Cemetery.
Mrs. Smith was a daughter of the late Richard Trinder and his wife, Margaret Stickney. She was born at Simcoe in 1880, and lived there until, following her marriage to Clinton E. Smith in 1908 she moved with him to Belleville. They came to Peterborough in 1911 and removed to Seaforth last November. Mrs. Smith was thus a resident of Peterborough for twenty-four years, and during that time she made a wide circle of friends outside as well as within George Street Church. Her last sickness was brief. She entered St. Mary's Hospital, Kitchener, on April 22nd, for what was expected to be only a slight operation, but proved a critical one, and on Wednesday, May 1st, she passed away. The remains were taken first to Simcoe for a service among her own people, and then brought to Peterborough for the final rites. Besides her husband, the immediate surviving relatives are two brothers and two sisters, Charles Trinder and Thomas Trinder, and Mrs. Bertha Bridge and Miss Sarah Trinder, all of Simcoe.

Gough gathered to pay their last tributes. The procession started from his late residence, 92 Crescent Road. At the church, Requiem High Mass was celebrated by Father M. J. Oliver. Music in Gregorian chant was rendered by students of St. Michael's College. The cortege then proceeded to Mount Hope Cemetery, where interment was made. Father Oliver, assisted by Father Leonard Rush of Buffalo, conducted the service by the graveside.
Among the profusion of floral tributes were wreaths from directors of Sellers-Gough Fur Company; staff of Sellers-Gough Fur Company; President and directors of the T. Eaton Company; Robert Fairweather; directors of the Capital Life Assurance Company of Ottawa; J. Kaufman & Co., Montreal; Messrs. Maguire & Connon; Oscar Hudson & Co., A. Hollander & Co.
The honorary pallbearers were Tom MacDonald, Alfred Maguire, Dr. Andrew McDonagh, J. D. Ward, James McGrath, James J. O'Neill, John Harkins, Fred Killer, James E. Day and Judge Lee.

Magistrate's Court

Reginald "Winch" Buck was again remanded for a fourth time when he appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to-day on a charge of unlawful possession of a revolver.
Through his counsel, Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., the accused pleaded "not guilty" and intimated that he was not going to elect summary trial.
When the Crown stated that the prosecution was not ready to proceed and asked for another remand, Mr. Gordon objected, stating, "This man has a large sum of money coming to him from the residue of his mother's estate, and the Crown does not stand to lose." He argued that under the circumstances, Winch should be given an adjournment.
"There is no reason why the police should comb the whole of Canada and the United States in an effort to get evidence against this man," counsel declared.
In ordering a further remand until Thursday at 2 p.m., His Worship said that bail would be granted.
The King's Jubilee celebrations did not serve as an excuse for drunkeness in Magistrate O. A. Langley's court here today as offenders found out to their dismay. However it did bring one concession, in so much as four offenders were let off with a fine of $10 each, and allowed to forego court costs.
Thomas Hughes, Rose avenue argued that he was hurrying-up to get back home to his children who were alone in the house, was ordered to pay a fine of $5 and $2.75 costs, upon pleading guilty to driving a car at a speed in excess of twenty miles an hour.
Frederick Mathewson, 26,77 Albert street south, Lindsay pleaded guilty to operating a commercial vehicle on Highway 7 in Smith Township, while in an intoxicated condition. He was sentenced to 7-days imprisonment, the term to be retroactive to May 4, the day following his arrest.
Harold Black, 7 St. Peter's street, Lindsay entered a plea of "not guilty" to a charge of reckless driving, laid upon the information of Provincial Constable David Silvester following an accident on Lakefield road last evening.
Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., stated the prosecution was not ready to proceed and the case was adjourned to May 15.

Jones Given 40 Days Toronto Magistrate

On two charges of forgery and two of fraud involving $77.00, William R. Jones, 42, was sentenced to 40 days in jail after pleading guilty on all counts before Magistrate Browne in Toronto on Saturday.
Jones was arrested here by city police on a charge of vagrancy, being apprehended, it is alleged, in the act of forging a cheque in a box car in the C.N.R. freight yards. When taken into custody he had several cheques in his possession.
"As soon as I get drunk I start signing cheques. Since 1928 I've been in almost all the time—cheques—cheques," he told Magistrate Browne.
"I'm no good to anyone. I'm finished," returned Jones on hearing the sentence.
"You're not finished. You'll find friends when you come out," he was encouraged.

COMEDY - DRAMA ABLY PRESENTED NORWOOD GROUP

"The Red-Headed Stepchild" Presented by I.O.D.E. Chapter.

IN THREE ACTS

NORWOOD, May 7.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Local talent very ably presented the three-act comedy-drama, entitled "The Red-Headed Stepchild," on Thursday evening in the Town Hall, under the auspices of the 40th Northumberland chapter of the I.O.D.E.

Mr. Breckon, B.S.A., in introducing the play, spoke of the splendid work that the local branch of the I.O.D.E. had done, and are still doing.

The three acts of the play take place in the living-room of the fashionable Chicago home of Richard Russell.

The first act opens with Mrs. Russell (Margaret Burgess) serving tea to two guests, Mrs. Scot t(Florence Brockies) and Mrs. Woodruff, a widow (Lola Stark). Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Woodruff are very much interested in Elizabeth (Yvonne Finlay), Richard's daughter, who is arriving from Montana. They are inclined to gossip, but obtain very little information from their hostess. Following their departure, Lucia Russell (Evelyn Godin) and her conversation with her mother plainly conveys their aversion to Bess' coming. Lucia surprises her mother with the news that her brother, Dudley (Harry Godin), is quite interested in Flora Farnum (Jean Webb). Dudley overhears the conversation and shocks his mother and Lucia with his boyish slang. Lucia thinks he is hopeless, but Flora doesn't. Dudley is most enthusiastic over the coming of his stepsister. Richard (Roger McMillian) brings home his daughter, Bess, who has looked forward to having a "maw" of her own after having been raised on a ranch by her Uncle Charlie, who has recently died. Bess' enthusiasm is squelched when Mrs. Russell attempts to come to an understanding immediately. Dudley soon discovers a kindred spirit in his stepsister and is much interested by her tales of the ranch. At this critical time Briggs, the butler (Wilson Webb), announces the arrival of George Garrison (Jack Duffield), Lucia's beau. Lucia and Mrs. Russell are on the point of sending him away, but Richard insists that George meet his daughter now. George is interested at once, and Bess enlarges upon her favorite subject, "the ranch," much to the disgust of Lucia and Mrs. Russell and to the delight of Dudley. Dinner is announced, but before leaving the stage Bess and Dud. are left long enough to discover they are going to be great pals, because Dudley is the only one of the family who "speaks Bess' kinda talk."

Second Act.

The second act takes place some months later. Great pains have been taken to polish off the stamp of the plains from the new member of the family, and a grand affair is being held to introduce Bess into the society circles.

Mrs. Woodruff, Mrs. Scott, Ethel Ashley (Echo Rogers) and Lucille Christy (Florence Scott) are discussing Bess. Lucille is inclined to sympathize with Bess, while the others are very much excited over Ethel's gossip regarding Bess' life in the city where she is treated as an outsider by Lucia and Mrs. Russell. Bess enters in search of Mr. Garrison, who has "left her flat." Her feet are killing her in her new shoes, so she proceeds to take them off, to the disgust of Mrs. Scott. One by one the ladies go to dance till Bess and Mrs. Woodruff are left alone. Bess tries to be friendly, but hits on the wrong conversation. Mrs. Woodruff leaves in a huff on being told that Mrs. Russell and Lucia have many laughs over her "dear dead Oliver." George enters in time to see her hurried departure. Bess is her frank self in the face of George's pointed conversation regarding his feelings toward her, and tells him quite frankly that when she plays the game of love it will be fair and square. Lucia enters, and having overheard what was said, proceeds to "put Bess in her place." George is apologetic and Bess furious. Flora and Dudley enter. Flora's main thought seems to be love and eloping. Dudley agrees to elope with her when they finish school, but it is to be a secret. Flora immediately tells the other guests on their entrance. As soon as the guests depart the family is called together by Mrs. Russell for the purpose of chastising Bess for her shocking behavior. Bess is furious and decides to return to the ranch which she inherits on her twenty-first birthday, and rushes from the room. Briggs enters with a telegram for Richard, who reads it with obvious terror. Mrs. Russell and Lucia show genial alarm.

Two Days Later.

The last act is two days later. Bess gives all her fine dresses to Briggs for his daughter, and is determined to make the sober butler smile before she leaves. In this she is successful. A telephone message brings Richard more bad news. Bess persuades him to disclose the fact that he has been hit very hard on the stock market slump.

When Richard leaves for the office Bess is puzzled as to how she can help him. A letter arrives from her Uncle Charlie's executors containing a cheque for thirty-five thousand dollars. Bess immediately sends Dud. with the cheque to the broker's office to cover her father's margin call.

Lucia and George come from having a talk, and Lucia tells Bess she is sorry for everything, wishes her and George luck, and leaves the room. George finally persuades Bess to say she will marry him and he will accompany her to Montana as her ranch foreman.

Thanks to Bess, Richard's stock troubles are ended. Mrs. Russell has relented and tells Bess so. She says Bess now may even call her "maw."

Miss Annie Goheen, regent of the local branch, thanked the members of the cast for their splendid presentation of the play, and Mrs. E. Finlay, director, for her time and work, also Miss Margaret Brethen for playing piano selections between acts.

CAVAN SOCIETIES MEET IN CHURCH

W.A. and W.M.S. Hold Regular Monthly Meetings.

PLAN HOSTESS TEA

CAVAN, May 7 (Examiner Correspondence)—Cavan W.A. and W.M.S. held their regular monthly meeting in the church on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. J. C. Swain was in charge of the devotional period. The W.A. members discussed repairs and decorations for the parsonage and decided to let the matter go before the Circuit Parsonage Board and if the other appointments would co-operate, Cavan voted a sum to be paid for the purpose.

There was a sale table of miscellaneous articles donated by the members, which found ready sale, and netted $9.20 for the W.A.

During the W.A. session conducted by the president, Mrs. J. W. Perrin, a thankoffering of $16.75 was reported, with more envelopes to be handed in.

Expense Fund

There was discussion regarding raising money for the W.M.S. expense fund which resulted in plans for a hostess tea to be held on Thursday afternoon, May 30th. Each member to act as a hostess and provide a cover for her table and invite three guests.

The program for the tea will be in charge of Mrs. Snider and Mrs. Matchett. There will be a sale table at the tea.

Mrs. Hunter contributed an interesting article on Chinese Women and Mrs. James Douglas one on Japanese Women. Mrs. J. C. Swain read a short temperance extract "Pray for her." Mrs. Perrin gave a good paper on the third chapter of the study book. Its topic was "They are fishers." The book is written on the history of the Church of India.

The meeting closed with singing and prayer by Mrs. M. Nill.

Bailieboro

The members of the dramatic club of the Young People's Society of the United Church met at the home of the president, F. Barnard on Thursday evening and held a social evening. The evening was spent in playing bridge and dancing. During the evening a presentation was made to the instructress of the play which was recently staged, Mrs. Will Lang. The gift presented by the play cast was a buffet set. The girls of the club prepared a bountiful luncheon which was greatly enjoyed. BRIDGENORTH CLUB PRESENTS COMEDY

Two Successful Presentations of Play, "The Adventures of Grandpa."

BRIDGENORTH, May 7. — (Examiner Correspondence). — The Bridgenorth Dramatic Club has had two very successful presentations of the three-act comedy, "The Adventures of Grandpa." First, to a full house in Bridgenorth, and later in Knox United Church lecture hall, Peterborough. A great deal of credit is due Mrs. McLaughlin and Mrs. Blewett in their untiring efforts in the preparation of the play and its successful presentation.

The play itself, while probably without a moral, is full of clean, wholesome humor and provides a laugh for every minute from the first curtain until the last.

Special mention needs to be made of Grandpa, so capably played by Melville McWilliams, though many exasperating situations are forced upon him, but he very ably handled them all. The cast supporting Grandpa is as follows: Tod Hunter, a young dancing master, Mr. Earle Blewett, and his (or "our") wife, Miss Anice Forsythe. The scene of the play is laid in Tod's home, often very much to his embarrassment. Mrs. Pansy Hopscotch, fair, fat and forty, Miss Olive Sidey, and her attendant, Dorothy Mae, just out of college and a friend of Montgomery, Miss Madge Jopling. Montgomery Ray, Grandpa's grandson, whose allowance depends on grandpa's orders, Earle Nicholls; Marie Ribeau, of Paris, dancing instructress, Miss Christina Roberts; Vicloompy, who "spills the beans," Miss Elsie Weiss, and Officer McCormack, who does his duty and knows smallpox when he sees it, Donald Jopling.

The club have several other engagements for their play.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Telford, of Peterborough, and Miss Udy, of London, have again taken up residence in the village for the summer.

At the Easter reception services, forty-five were received into full membership of the three United churches.

Last week saw the regular monthly meetings of three Women's Associations: Fairview meeting at the home of Mrs. Walter Heard; Bridgenorth at the church, and Selwyn at the home of Mrs. Howard Sanderson. The presidents presided.

The closing meeting for the three Young People's Societies will take place at Fairview on Tuesday evening, May 21, when the Gilmour Young People will present their play.

Next Sunday, May 12, is Mother's Day, and services will be in keeping with the occasion. Each service will be in charge of the Sunday School. At Selwyn and Bridgenorth a pageant depicting the spirit of motherhood will be presented.

Next Friday evening, May 10, the Selwyn United Church Dramatic Club will present their four-act drama, "Jerry the Tramp." This play will keep you in both tears and laughter from the rise of the curtain until the fall. It is a play with a wonderful story. The W.A. are serving a plate lunch (optional) after the play.

Commencing next Sunday and continuing throughout the summer, Fairview service will be at 9.45 a.m., with Sunday School following.

At a recent church night service at Fairview, the Friendship group from St. James' Church took charge of the evening's proceedings and presented a very interesting and instructive program of music, singing, solos, Bible readings and topics. The thanks of the group, Mr. F. Bell leader, under whose auspices this visit was made, is extended to the St. James' young people.

The Fairview young people met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Bell for a progressive crokinole party. Mr. Lorne Reynolds, president, was in charge of the meeting and Miss Ferne Armstrong gave the topic, with readings by Miss Marjorie Mahood and Gerald Harrison.

The Sunshine Class of Fairview Sunday School, Mrs. H. Lewis teacher, held a crokinole party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mahood on Thursday evening. Mrs. Armstrong and Everett Rosborough won first prizes, and Mrs. Poast and Lorne Reynolds coming in for the consolation prizes.

DELORO MARKS KING'S JUBILEE

Judge E. H. McLean is Special Speaker—Lt.-Col. Gates Receives Medal.

ESSAYS ARE READ.

MARMORA, May 7. (Examiner Correspondence). — The village of Deloro celebrated the King's Silver Jubilee on Monday with a public meeting in its flag-decorated hall, at 10 a.m. F. A. Bapty was chairman.

After listening to the Ottawa broadcast for several minutes the local program commenced. Mr. Bapty expressed regret that Reeve S. B. Wright was not present for the occasion, but reminded his hearers that Mr. Wright being in London for the occasion would have a wonderful experience there. Following the singing of a composition, "Gratitude," seven essays skilfully prepared by Mrs. F. A. Bapty were read by seven young people whom she had well coached. The titles of essays and readers follow: King George V., Stanley Gray; Queen Mary, Hilda Mumby; the Prince of Wales, Floyd Loveless; the Duke and Duchess of York, Theresa Shannon; Princess Mary, Peggy Ethier; the Duke of Gloucester, Earl Trumble; the Duke of Kent, Ewart Haacke.

Lt.-Col Yates Honored

Next came the singing of "The Maple Leaf," after which the chairman introduced His Honor Judge E. H. McLean as the speaker for the occasion. Before giving a sketch to the children of the Royal Family from the reign of Queen Victoria onwards, His Honor brought off a real surprise as he pinned on the breast of Lt.-Col. A. V. Yates, M.C., one of the King's Jubilie medals which all others present were totally unaware had been awarded.

The singing of "Rule Britannia" and the National Anthem completed another memorable patriotic meeting at Deloro. Incidentally Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Bapty, who were so largely responsible for its success, celebrated the same day, the thirty-third anniversary of their wedding.

In the evening a large number attended the Jubilee dance and opportunity was afforded the patrons to contribute to the King George Silver Jubilee Cancer Research Fund.

ROBERTA'S CHAT

Dear Friend,—Have you ever been called a "Good Sport?" I have, and I don't like it a little bit.

A good sport seems to be one that can be imposed on. They get left but when parties are given because "You know dear, our table only seats six comfortably, and I knew you would understand."

As one man inelegantly said, "A good sport always get it in the neck."

Now, the word "sporting" means that you have a sense of fiarplay, that you can be counted on in an emergency.

But to be called a good sport sets up a spirit of antagonism, inside me, because I know that something unpleasant is coming.

After all, why should the understanding person get the short end in friendship, whereas a much inferior person will be catered to.

Always remember that people will value you by the value you place on yourself, so when they push that "good sport" stuff at you, push it right back.

Give them a dose of their own medicine, and watch their reactions. You will see they don't like it at all.

So in conclusion, I hope you never pin that name on me, but always consider that I am,

Yours Friend,
ROBERTA.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Dessert is the grand final of the meal. If it is plain and stolid, it suggests that the cook is too—she felt that she had done enough and would not use her imagination to create a delicate whip or clever fruit-cup. But the pudding that has a bit of smartness, leaves everyone with the feeling "That was great! Isn't she wonderful!"

Apricot Meringue Tapioca is so very fine, and rather grand that it should have a special French name. But it's not hard to make.

4 tablespoons minute tapioca; 4 tablespoons sugar; ¼ teaspoon salt; 2 egg yolks; 2 cups milk; 1 teaspoon lemon juice; ¼ teaspoon grated lemon rind; 1 cup sliced canned apricots, drained; 2 egg whites; 4 tablespoons sugar.

• • • • • • •

Combine tapioca, 4 tablespoons sugar, salt, egg yolks and milk in top of double boiler, and stir enough to break egg yolks. (Tapioca that cooks in five minutes must be used). Place top of double boiler over rapidly boiling water, bring to scalding point (allow 3 to 5 minutes) and cook 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Add lemon juice and rind. Turn into greased baking dish. Cover with apricots. Beat egg white until foamy; add remaining 4 tablespoons sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating after each addition until sugar is thoroughly blended. After all sugar is added, continue beating until mixture will stand in peaks. Pile lightly on pudding and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 15 minutes, or until delicately browned. Serves 6.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

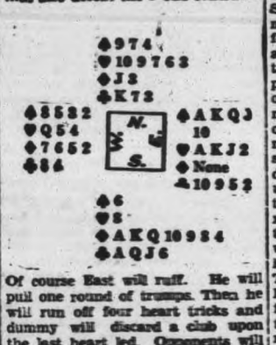
By E. V. Shepard
"Teacher of Teachers"

CAN 5 SPADES BE DEFEATED?

An inquirer of Greenwich, Conn., writes that a famous player claims East cannot make 5 spades, even against indifferent defence. Is this so?

An opening lead of clubs will yield two defensive tricks, but the next lead will put East in. He must take a single round of trumps, to prevent South from ruffing hearts, then dummy will ruff a third lead of clubs, but dummy cannot ruff declarer's last club without being over-ruffed by North, holding the declarer to 4-odd. Of course, East cannot afford to pull trumps, as then dummy can ruff only a single club.

Opening clubs from a tenace is not so natural as laying down one of South's solid diamond tops. Will that also defeat the 5-odd contract?



Of course East will ruff. He will pull one round of trumps. Then he will run off four heart tricks and dummy will discard a club upon the last heart led. Opponents will win a club trick. What opponents next lead determines the fate of the contract. If North leads back a spade East will make 5-odd. He will win the spade trick. Dummy will ruff a club. Declarer will regain his hand by ruffing one of dummy's diamonds. Dummy will ruff another club leaving East a single club, which dummy cannot ruff without being over-ruffed by North, but the declarer will win 5-odd. If instead of leading a trump when North wins the first club trick, he leads back a heart, East will discard a club and dummy will ruff the heart, but that will do the declarer no good. He will ruff himself in with a diamond. Dummy will ruff the second club yet led. East must again ruff himself in by leading a diamond. North having no more diamonds will discard his last club, ready to over-ruff dummy, when East's last club is led. East will make just 5-odd.

In case the winner of the first club trick leads back a diamond, East cannot make 5-odd, as that will allow North to discard a club when East has to lead and ruff a diamond, after dummy has ruffed a club. When dummy ruffs the next club North will over-ruff, and lead back his last trump, taking dummy's last trump and leaving East with a losing club. Either an opening lead of a heart or trump will enable East to win 5-odd.

Do not be surprised at an expert's incorrect statement. Like every other person, bridge experts sometimes make mistakes. Accepting another's statement, hasty review of a situation, a slip of the pen or tongue, failure to reread an article or poor proof-reading may cause an error of statement. Each of us slips sometimes.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

SHIRLEY TEMPLE IN "THE LITTLE COLONEL"

There were line-ups for each show at the Capitol yesterday, with a huge crowd waiting for entrance at the first of last night's performances.

Although Lionel Barrymore gives one of the best of his many fine portrayals, in the role of old Colonel Lloyd of Kentucky, the honors go to the little lady, Shirley Temple, with her curls and her straight small back and her winsome ways. She has the faculty, extraordinary in such a small child, of acting a part as if she were really living it and this role of the "Little Colonel" suits her to perfection.

The sweet and sticky Evelyn Venable is better than usual as the Southern girl, Elizabeth, who runs off with a Northern lover and earns the displeasure of her fierce old fighter of a father (Colonel Lloyd). They go West and there the child, named Lloyd, is born. Later, the mother and child drift back to the South, while the father, Jack Sherman, essays to mend his shattered fortunes in the West. The child and grandfather meet and the tiny thing, with the famous Lloyd temper, gets around the old man in her own inimitable style. But that is not all the story. There are plenty of little amusing episodes; the camp meeting and baptizing on the stream's edge; the way in which the darky butler teaches Lloyd to go upstairs, and the manner in which the old, fierce man gallops to the rescue in a final scene in a picture that has its setting in the old, post-war South, when ladies played harps and sang melting love songs. The lovely music of "Love's Young Dream" to a harp accompaniment forms a beautiful opening for a picture in which the same old song runs in a far-away thread of melody.

And there is one poignant little scene with the child singing the mother's old song that is affecting in the extreme.

"Long Live the King" is a very appropriate addition to the program. It gives some marvellously interesting closeup views of the Royal Family and allows a glimpse of the meaning of monarchy as exemplified in the British crowned heads and their affectionate subjects.

OUR MAIL

Dear Anne:—

I have not written to you for a long time but it is not because of lost interest. I am not very strong, and I have not felt very well, since Christmas. But work has to be done anyway, and that seemed to be all I was able for. However, I have been reading the letters from Quid Est and Water Lily and they are fine. They suggested a few thoughts that I will try to put down here. If I make my letter too long, just consign it to the W.P.B.

Speaking of Peace, I have a very beautiful little poem on it, which I will quote:

"My peace I give unto you."
We bless Thee for Thy peace, O God,
Which falls like sunshine on the road,
Of those who trust in Thee.

That peace which suffers and is strong,
Trusts where it cannot see,
Deems not the trial-way too long,
But leaves the end with Thee.

Such, Father, give our hearts such peace,
Whate'er the outward be,
Till all life's discipline shall cease,
And we go home to Thee.

All around us is strife and contentions of various kinds and the remedy seems hard to find, although I think that peace like morals and manners cannot be legislated into our lives. But if peace between nations, communities, even in families is difficult to accomplish we can have the peace of God in our own hearts. "I will keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on me."

Another thought I will pass on. Just lately I was thinking over a very difficult personal problem and almost unconsciously I found myself praying for courage. And at once came the conviction that, that is what is needed in the world to-day, in public as well as private affairs. Real courage to face our difficulties. Everything has been so hard for so long that it seems we have let ourselves get into the spirit of an endurance contest, which is good alright, but we need something more to carry us through. In all great problems and tasks courage was at the top of the list of needed things to go to our greatest authority, the Bible, when Joshua took over the great task of leading the children of Israel, the word the Lord gave to him was, "Be strong and of good courage." Only be thou strong and very courageous." This came after all the long, hard experience of the desert and with Joshua facing a great unknown task.

Again when Our Lord was preparing His disciples for the greatest of all understakings the founding of our church and a new religion, He said "Be of good courage." This after the unsettled and, (to them) strange period of Christ's ministry. Facing untold and unknown difficulties they were told to "Be of good courage" why? "I have overcome the world." This is our need and our message to-day. I am not making small of the splendid courage and endurance of the past, but we, you and I, need a new outlook if we are to go on to better things.

And for the peace and well-being of the world I suggest prayer. No doubt we pray daily, "Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done" but do we realise as we should that God's will and God's Kingdom in the earth embodies, "Peace and Goodwill to all Men." "Prayer changes things." So I submit a proposal to all the neighbors and all others who will join in, that we pledge ourselves to spend five minutes each day in earnest prayer for peace and goodwill among men which is God's will for the world. Each one setting their own time for prayer as is convenient to their duties.

Another thing, Christ foretold all this confusion and perplexity and trouble in the world and He told His disciples, "See that ye be not troubled." God's kingdom will come in the world and we can help to bring it about through earnest prayer.

May I just add that I am very much interested in your plan for our page. I will be glad to see it started and will do anything I can to help it along.

Yours sincerely,
Pal.

Dear Pal,—It certainly is nice to hear from you again. I regret very much that you have not been feeling very well, and trust that the approaching finer weather will bring you a return to perfect health. Your letters are always very welcome and so full of lovely thoughts. You seem to have found the secret of happiness in your perfect trust in God, and the spirit with which you accept your troubles and crosses is very wonderful indeed. We can all learn a valuable lesson from your courage and faith. I am sure it will carry you through to a triumphant finish. Do write again, Pal, when you can.

Sincerely,
Anne Wilcox.

Exhausted Nerves Cause of Many Ills

Do sudden noises make you jump . . . the radio set you on edge? Are you irritable, impatient . . . snappy with your family? Do you easily get the "blues"? Digestion poor? Sound restless nights?

Exhausted nerves probably explains it all. For remember, it is our nerves that govern and control everything that goes on within us—every activity of brain and body. When sufficient nerve-force is lacking, the entire human machinery slows down—some of our organs function properly. Restore nerve-force and improvement immediately takes place.

KOLA ASTIER will help you. This wonderful preparation developed by Dr. F. Astier of Paris, is what leading European doctors themselves take when they get tired out and nervous and want quick new strength. It is a sustaining tonic that never lets you down—that leaves no depressing after-effect. It tones, strengthens, sustains, promotes abundant nerve-force. So highly does the medical profession look upon Kola Astier that since 1928 alone over 10,000,000 bottles have been used, mostly as a result of doctors' prescriptions.

Start taking Kola Astier today and see how quickly calm nerves, poise, cheerful ness, mental keenness, and physical vigor pep and endurance return. You don't risk a penny. Your money back unless that first bottle convinces you that Kola Astier is wonderful for you. Your nearest druggist has KOLA ASTIER or can quickly get it for you from his wholesaler.

TORONTO VALLEYVIEWS FALL PREY TO SENIOR PETES

SCRIVER HURLS GREAT BALL TO SUBDUE TORONTO OUTFIT FOR PETES' 7-3 FIRST WIN

Spook Allows Three Hits and Strikes Out Ten of Opposition.

BIG SIXTH INNING.

Both Teams Put Up Snappy Fielding Exhibition—Murphy, Whatley, Cadd Hit Good.

Behind Scriver's three-hit twirling in the morning fixture yesterday, Johnson Motors defeated Toronto Valleyviews, 7 to 3, in their exhibition game before a small crowd in Riverside Park. The Spook was in July form and whistled the ball by ten batters while walking two. He held the opposition hitless till the sixth. The Petes broke loose to tally five runs in the sixth frame and put the game in the bag.

Valleyviews used two hurlers, McConnell and Hayes. The former blanked the locals till the fifth without a hit. He allowed two singles and a run this inning. Hayes went in to start the sixth but was hit hard the next two cantos. Toronto got their three runs in the sixth, also. The fielding on both sides was snappy all through with Cadd and W. Dowling featuring with smart catches. Murphy, Whatley and Cadd led the homesters at bat with two hits each, none of the visitors getting more than one.

Neither outfit threatened the first four stanzas. In the Petes' fifth with one out, Ash was safe on an error and went to third on a single by Whatley. The latter stole and Ash was nipped at the plate trying to score on the throw. Cadd's single tallied Whatley. In Toronto's sixth Hart walked and took second on J. Downing's pinch single. Both runners moved up on a sacrifice and both raced home on Jefferies' double to centre. The latter got to third and McGregor to first when Whatley missed a third strike and Jefferies scored on an infield out. McGregor died on second.

Down two runs, the Motors' crew broke out in a rash of hits in the sixth to tally five times. Konopka walked, took second on Murphy's hit and scored on a single by Kearns, Murphy taking third. Kearns went to second as Calladine rolled out. Murphy reached home and Kearns third on a single by Burton. The latter stole and Kearns beat the throw to the plate. Burton moved up a sack on an infield out and jogged in on Whatley's smash to centre. The latter counted when Cadd doubled to deep right. Scriver rolled out to end the big frame.

The visitors failed to threaten the last three innings but the Petes got one more in the seventh when Murphy singled, took second on a wild heave and crossed the platter on Calladine's safety to left. Aside from the sixth, only 26 men faced Scriver.

WARD HOLDS FREE SWINGING ORIOLES TO GAIN 5 TO 0 WIN

Leafs and Senators Split Double Bill Before 6,000 Shivering Fans — Toronto Drops Opener 2-0 But Wins Nightcap 5-4.

(By Associated Press.)

Dick Ward, who won 13 games and lost four with Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast League last year, may be just what Rochester Redwings need to put them back into the thick of the International League pennant race.

Found to be not ready for the majors, St. Louis Cardinals shipped the 24-year-old right-hander to the Wings. He made his first start yesterday and hurled Rochester into fourth place in the standings, three points above Baltimore Orioles, his victims.

The Orioles, accustomed to hitting home runs almost as frequently as singles, had to be content with three hits, two of which were doubles as Ward blanked them 5-0. He yielded six bases on balls, but struck out four and was effective with men on bases.

Split Double Bill

Toronto Maple Leafs and Albany Senators ended all-square in their double-header, played before 6,000 shivering fans. The Senators took the opening game 2-0 in ten innings behind the three-hit hurling of Jimmy Carruthers, who allowed only one runner to get as far as third base. The Leafs came back to take the seven-inning nightcap 5-4 when Reacock singled, Oliver sacrificed, and Chapman drove out a one-bagger to send the former in with the winning run in the final frame.

In the first game, Earl Cook matched Carruthers' fine pitching for nine innings, but in the tenth Cihocki tripled and stole home and Don Kellett followed with another three-bagger and scored on Pete Susko's single.

After Red Grabowski had pitched scoreless ball for eight innings, Jimmy McCloskey and Clarence Fisher had to be called to the rescue in the ninth before Syracuse Chiefs managed to whip Montreal Royals 3-2. The Royals had the winning run on base when Fraser finally stopped the rally.

OMAHA WINS KENTUCKY DERBY WITH ROMAN SOLDIER SECOND

$39,525 TO WINNER

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

CHURCHILL DOWNS, Louisville, Ky., May 7 (A.P.)—Twin showers of praise rained down Saturday on Omaha, gallant son of a gallant daddy and his firm-fisted jockey, little Willie "Smoky" Saunders, who learned to ride in Calgary, Alta., following their smashing victory in the 61st running of the Kentucky Derby here Saturday.

William Woodward's powerful colt stretched his long legs comfortably Saturday on the cold, rain drenched surface of the historic Downs oval and, while a thoroughly soaked but excited crowd of more than 50,000 spectators roared their acclaim, administered a sound beating to 17 rival three-year-olds, including the filly favorite, Nellie Flag. Thus he duplicated the triumph of his famous sire, Gallant Fox, the winner of the 1930 Derby.

Running with much the same confidence his daddy showed five years ago, Omaha steered clear of the early jam under Saunders' skilful handling, took command on the back stretch and never was seriously menaced in the long stretch drive despite the game finish of Roman Soldier, Texas Derby winner.

A length and a half separated Omaha and Roman Soldier at the finish with an outsider, Whiskolo, hanging on to take third money. Whiskolo was four lengths behind Roman Soldier, but a length and a half in front of Nellie Flag, the capricious filly which was suffered by early interference and barely took fourth money, by a head, from Blackrider.

A total of $1,018,472 was bet on all eight races, an increase of 12 percent over the $906,906 bet on eight races last year.

A total of $480,246 was bet on the Derby, a 13 per cent increase over Derby bets of $353,854 in 1934.

DOWN HE WENT

LONDON. (CP). — Bigger Than Primo Carnera, Constable Bob Hunter of the London police force wasn't good enough to win the British amateur heavyweight boxing title. In the final H. P. Floyd, the defending champion, knocked out the big fellow in one round. He used only three punches. And they say Englishmen can't hit.

Kentucky Champion Arrives At Pimlico

Starts Preparation To-day for Preakness, Scheduled For Saturday.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 7.—(AP) — The arrival at Pimlico yesterday of Omaha, Kentucky Derby champion, gave a mighty impetus to racing interest here, as preparations were speeded for running the Preakness on Saturday.

The strapping 3-year-old son of Gallant Fox made the long trip from Churchill Downs without a scratch. He was hurried to the Maryland Jockey Club's plant, where he is scheduled to begin workouts today.

MOTORS HAVE NO DIFFICULTY IN GAINING SECOND VICTORY FROM TORONTO BY 7-6 COUNT

Cheap Safeties

Five Pitchers Used By Two Teams Dish Up Indifferent Brand of Ball.

FREQUENT BOOTS.

Konopka, Calladine, Lepper Shine Defensively for Petes —Kearns Good With Stick.

In a ragged exhibition game before a good crowd in Riverside Park yesterday afternoon, Johnson Motors nosed out a 7-6 verdict over the Valleyviews of Toronto. Both teams booted the ball around freely and handed the opposition some cheap hits. The winners used three flingers while Toronto tossed in two, none of the moundsmen appearing to great advantage. The chill air and earliness of the season accounted for the indifferent brand of ball dished up.

The count was tied at 3-all in the fourth frame but the locals bunched hits and walks to tally twice each in the seventh and eighth. The visitors came close to tying it up in the ninth. Each squad had five errors as well as some soft hits against them. Lesurf, Kitchen and Lepper worked three innings apiece in that order with Kitchen being hit the hardest. They had no strikeouts. Branton went fair for Toronto with just three hits and five walks but gave way to Mitchell in the eighth, the latter proving no mystery.

Begley, Swan and Hart fielded well for the losers, while Konopka, Calladine and Lepper were good defensively for the locals. Burton shone with a couple of nifty catches in deep left. The two Dowlings, Swan and Branton were the main Toronto stickers with Kearns and Konopka best for the Petes.

An error, out and hit by Begley gave Valleyviews a run in the second. They got one in the second on Jefferies' single and J. Dowling's double. Swan's triple and Murphy's single gave them another in the third. Two walks, two miscues, a wild pitch and a couple of outs sent in two in the eighth. Their last run came in the ninth when J. Dowling singled, went to third on Swan's double and in on a wild pitch. Swan was on third with the tying run when the inning closed.

AN ALLISON DAY

PINEHURST, N.C. (CP). — This was Wilmer Allison's day when he came here for the North and South tennis championships: 18 holes of golf in the morning "just for fun," two scheduled tournament matches in the afternoon, one of them a three-set affair; a dance at night. They say Wilmer sleeps when he hasn't anything more exciting to do.

WOOLLENS TEAM FALLS TO GROVE

WINNERS' POOR START.

Whitaker's travelled to Lakefield on Saturday to play Grove School, and were the losers the final score being, Grove 95, Whitaker's 51. The Grove batted first and though making a bad start, losing two wickets before there was any score, afterwards played sound cricket and by good innings by Hepburn (25), Dunn (22), Strickland (10), and Dench (10), they reached a total of 95. Hepburn hit two 6's, Strickland and Dench, one each. A Hamilton had seven wickets for 50.

On Whitaker's going to bat, Hamilton (10) started soundly, but was well caught by Strickland off Fletcher. Smith batted steadily and well but could get no one to stay with him, and the innings closed for 51, leaving the school the winners by 44 runs. Fletcher had 4 wickets for 8 and Fitzgerald 3 for 8. Next Saturday, May 11, Whitaker's play Oshawa at the Oval.

CLUBMEN FALL TO WHITAKER'S

POOR CRICKET WEATHER.

On Monday, May 6, the two local teams met at the Oval in weather which was not conducive to good cricket, and Whitaker's had the pleasure of giving the older club a very sound beating. Colbran batted well for 27 and being joined by J. Wild (10) they put on 24 for the fourth wicket, but the last four wickets fell at the same total, 52. Dyer had 5 wickets for 21.

On Peterborough going to bat they gave a miserable exhibition. The first wicket fell at 7 and then six more wickets went at a total of 8, and the final score was just 13. Hamilton and Wild bowled extremely well, the former having six wickets for four runs, and Wild three for 8; he did the hat trick and only a missed catch prevented him from getting four wickets with successive balls.

Next Saturday, Peterborough plays Grove School at Lakefield, and on Wednesday all players are requested to attend practice at the Oval.

Lindsay Celebrates With Sports Events

LINDSAY May 7. — The King's Silver Jubilee was marked by a big day of sports in Lindsay under the auspices of the Lindsay Kiwanis Club.

In the morning a parade, comprising the Canadian Legion, Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Lindsay Collegiate Cadets and school children, led by the Band of the Victoria and Haliburton Regiment, marched to the Cenotaph where a service was held under the chairmanship of Lieut.-Col. R. I. Moore. Medals were presented and a short address given by C. E. Weeks.

Port Perry won the girl's softball tournament, defeating Omemee 46 to 13. In the first game, Omemee defeated Peterborough 16 to 16. In the afternoon an exhibition lacrosse game was played between Peterborough and Millbrook, Peterborough winning by 12 to 8. Peterborough defeated Lindsay in an exhibition men's softball game by 3 to 2.

The climax was reached with a three-bout wrestling card in the Arena at night.

SOFTBALL PRACTISE.

R. Brady's All Star girls softball team will practise at six in Armour Field Thursday evening. More outfielders are needed.

MINOR LEAGUE SUPPORT ASKED BY E. A. ELLIOTT

Same Umpire System as in Vogue Last Year Adopted by C.O.B.L.

BELLEVILLE MEETING.

Petes Will Play First Game Here on May 24th With Oshawa as Visitors.

The C.O.B.L. schedule this year will open on May 22nd with Belleville playing in Kingston. Oshawa opens in Peterborough May 24th, with Kingston in Belleville the same day. On May 25th (Saturday), Peterborough goes to Oshawa. This was the decision of the delegates at an executive meeting in Belleville Saturday. The secretary—Newt Thompson of Belleville—will draw up and mail the complete schedule to the various clubs within a week. It will be a quadruple schedule the same as last year.

President Max Swanston of Peterborough was in the chair, while members of the local club present included Hugh Campbell, Vic Hamilton, Bill Kay, W. M. Lang and Vern Dawson. Secretary Thompson read the minutes and gave an account of the O.B.A.A. convention in Kitchener last month.

The question of umpires came up early. Following some discussion, it was agreed by all present to adopt the same system as in vogue last year, that is to have the visiting club bring the umpire-in-chief with the home club supplying the base umpire, the president appointing the officials and the same rate of pay to prevail. Cobourg was granted a year's release from the league to play intermediate ball. Clubs may use either a Reach or a Spalding ball this year. Clubs were warned to obtain proper permission for exhibition games from the O.B.A.A. and the C.O.B.L. New constitution books will be printed this summer.

Support Minor Ball.

R. A. Elliott of Deloro, past president of the O.B.A.A. and of the C.O.B.L.—the latter of which he is a life member—advised the clubs to hurry up their schedule somewhat, if necessary, in order to have their playoff series over in time to go into Ontario playdowns. He also told the members of the league that they should do more toward fostering minor baseball for the sake of the youngsters and also to have material for future senior teams.

Regarding the schedule, all were agreeable to have a quadruple schedule, each team playing each of the others four times at home and four times away. It was decided to have two playoff series, the second and third teams meeting in the league semi-finals in two out of three games, and the winner of this series then meeting the first-place team in three out of five games for the league title. The ultimate winner would go into the O.B.A.A. playdowns.

Kingston requested the opening game of the schedule at home this year. After some argument, Belleville agreed to open May 22nd in Kingston with the Ponies opening then in Belleville May 24th. Oshawa was agreeable to opening in Peterborough May 24th, with the Petes going back to open in Oshawa the next day. Kingston wanted Wednesday twilight games at home, Belleville requested twilight games on Tuesday and Fridays for their home games, while Oshawa and Peterborough both wanted Saturday home games.

Kingston Agreement.

There was some controversy between the Kingston and Oshawa delegates over games between these clubs, owing to the distance involved and the trouble getting Oshawa players off work. The Motor City men wanted to play two doubleheaders, instead of four single games, in Kingston, but the Limestone City delegates rejected this, claiming they lost money on doubleheaders. They finally got together and agreed to have Oshawa play one doubleheader and two single games in Kingston, with Kingston playing a doubleheader and two single contests in Oshawa.

Entry fees were paid and certificates given out. These must be made out in full, and returned to the secretary who—with the president—will then pass upon them before the schedule opens. Mr. Swanston thanked the league, and the whole eastern district, for its work in having him elected to the O.B.A.A. executive. Following some further discussion on minor points, the meeting adjourned.

CHESTER VASE WINNER.

CHESTER, England, May 7.—(CP Cable).—Sir Abe Bailey's four-year-old colt Valerius won the Chester vase over the mile and a half course to-day, with Mrs Corlette Glorney's Assignation second and Anthony de Rothschild's Lord Paramount third.

The race is worth approximately $10,000.

WHERE ARE THEY?

NEW YORK, (CP)—Among all the boys singles champions of the United States since the event was inaugurated in 1916, only two have fulfilled their early promise. These are Vincent Richards, who won the boys title in 1922 and 1923 and Frank X. Shields, winner in 1929. What happened to the others is a mystery.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two.

(By C. J. P.)

Too bad those weren't league games. We mean those two tilts ala exhibish in Riverside Park yesterday between Toronto Valleyviews and our Johnson Motors. The locals took the a.m. fixture by a 7-3 breeze and the afternoon tussle by a 7-6 verdict. A small crowd at the morning game but a pretty fair turnout after lunch. So what? So the morning contest was a lulu while the afternoon fray was a bit sour. It never fails! First game saw swell hurling, snappy fielding and some mean bingling. The other one was featured by errors, ineffective flinging and some dime-a-dozen hits—the very cheap kind such as fielders misjudging flies or holding a ball too long.

• • • • • • •

Of course, these were only practise games and it's nearly three weeks before the schedule opens. The ground is rough yet and the day was chilly. So between everything, you couldn't expect A-1 ball. Still, we got it in the first fixture. The reason probably is that Spook Scriver was in midseason form and chucked a beautiful game. When the hurler is in top form, his teammates generally go like a million bucks, too. The lank and hungry-looking Spook used his speed mostly, with the odd unexpected hook. He held Toronto to three hits—none before the sixth—fanned ten and walked just two. He also had six assists. A big day for him and he is starting off as if a big season were ahead of him.

• • • • • • •

With the Spook handcuffing them throughout, Mush Brooks' Valleyviews looked very ordinary. They had fair flinging, too, especially by McConnell, but Knotty Lee's boys showed their batting punch in the sixth to put the clutch on this game. They also did some nice hitting in the second affair and we figure the Petes will prove tough onions to C.O.B.L. pitchers all summer. Lesurf and Lepper—though the latter was a bit wild with that fireball of his—showed signs of what they can do later on in their short stay on the hilltop, while Russ Kitchen ran into tough luck from the start. These pitchers will all show plenty when the sun gets warmer.

• • • • • • •

Burton went good both games in the outfield. Kearns and Whitehouse both misjudged flies but that's natural this early. Cadd just about earned himself a regular berth with some swell hitting and fielding. Foley was out of town for the day but will be out to practise again. The infielders all looked good in spots and not so hot in others, but give 'em a little time. Murphy, who is really a swell shortstop, looked bad on a few. Both Calladine and Ash were okay in spite of the odd boot. Konopka fitted in fine at second. Whatley did some nice hitting the first game. Young Eddie Starr caught part of the second and made a first-rate job of it. If Art Lepper controls that fast ball of his, we see a lot of tough luck ahead for Oshawa, Kingston and Belleville stickers ere autumn leaves are falling. Well, both games proved fine practise for the lads anyway and the Petes should be just as tough as any in the loop this season, we figure.

• • • • • • •

At the C.O.B.L. meeting in Belleville Saturday, the same system of umpiring as in vogue last season was adopted for '35. Schedule opens with Belleville in Kingston May 22nd and the Ponies back in Belleville the 24th. We open at home the 24th as usual with Oshawa here, while the Petes then play next day (Saturday) in Oshawa. It will be a quadruple schedule with semi-final and final loop playoffs. Dope appears elsewhere today. The schedule will be drawn up this week and mailed to the clubs by Secretary Thompson.

• • • • • • •

Drawing up of the schedule in the Lakeshore Intermediate Ball League has been postponed till the end of this week in order to give local teams time to decide whether or not they'll enter. Meantime, we hear the Trent Valley League—of intermediate "B" calibre—will be reorganized shortly with Peterborough Raybestos, Havelock, Coe Hill and Deloro entering. Bill Kay admitted Saturday he was thinking of putting his Raybestos squad in this circuit. Well, we don't care what loop a local team enters just so long as they enter one—thereby giving intermediate players here a chance to get into the game. What about Fosters and C.G.E.?

• • • • • • •

Edwin Allan said Monday in his Mail and Empire column: "One of the best organized lacrosse leagues in the province is the Tri-County with teams from Lindsay, Norwood, Port Hope, Millbrook and two from Peterborough. The league is not affiliated with the O.A.L.A., although the latter body has made repeated attempts to have them join the parent association. Today, Millbrook is playing in Lindsay as part of the Jubilee celebration, but the league schedule doesn't open until May 24th." This is a mighty good circuit and it is doing more good for lacrosse in the east than the O.A.L.A. ever did. We think the success of the loop depends upon its ability to duck up an alley when an O.A.L.A. promoter is spotted approaching.

• • • • • • •

Southend Softball League is slated to open this eve—weather permitting, doggone it!—with Orioles playing Nationals at six in the Exhibition Grounds. Fans can look for a lively scrap when these rivals of other years clash. Wednesday at six p.m. sees All Stars and Maple Leafs battling it out down there. The schedule and league rules are published in today's paper. Four teams make up this circuit and they dish up some pretty fair softball generally, and take care of quite a few southend players.

PACKERS LOSE SOCCER MATCH TO BRINTON 'A'

BRINTON 2, PACKERS 1.

S. Clark Scores For Winners While N. Downer Tallies For Meatmen.

A large crowd attended the opening league game of the local soccer season yesterday afternoon when the BrintonAthletic gained the decision over Canada Packers by the score of 2 to 1 on the Brinton Ground. V. Dawson, manager of the Brinton Company, opened the official proceedings and kicked off, in ideal weather.

Brintons Open Scoring.

From the kick-off, Brinton carried the attack into the Packers' vicinity to be repulsed by their fullbacks. Midfield tactics prevailed, until Jones intercepted a Packers' raid to accept a pass from Green, who sent it up the right wing to Adams. He evaded the opposition to make a deadly centre to Brinton centre-forward S. Clark, who manoeuvered his position and drove hard past Chamberlain after five minutes of play. The Packers endeavored to get the equalizer by peppering Brinton goal from all angles. G. Downer compelling Curtis to save his charge at close range. It was evident, after fifteen minutes of play, that lack of practice slowed up the pace, although Green and Mitchell were playing in midseason form. D. Green came out of a melee with an injured knee, but resumed playing a little later. The ball was in midfield when the interval arrived. Brinton Athletic 1, Canada Packers 0.

Gain Equalizer.

On resuming, the Packers opened up their style of play that caused the winners' half-backs many anxious moments, as their combination clicked to perfection, within shooting range. Curtis, Brinton goalie, saved time and again, while G. Downer deserved to score when he hit the upright. Mitchell relieved the pressure on Adkinson, on the left wing, as he tore along the line to bring the Packer custodian to his knees, conceding a fruitless flag kick. A few minutes later, Packers bombarded the Brinton goal until they gained the equalizer through Newt and George Downer. Just before the final whistle, Jones accepted an opening when he slipped the ball right up the centre field to S. Clark, who raced through to score for the Brinton. Brinton 2, Packers 1.

Goal scorers—S. Clark, Brinton; N. Downer, Packers.

The teams:

Brinton Athletic — W. Curtis, goal; J. Mitchell and D. Green, full backs; W. Robb, E. Jones, and T. McPhate, halves; J. Adams, J. Quinn, S. Clark, T. Westwood, and E. Adkinson, forwards.

TRINITY COLLEGE TEAM TAKES CRICKET VICTORY ON SATURDAY

Peterborough Club Drops 104 For 7 Wickets to 82 Match at Port Hope.

OPENING OF SEASON.

This, the opening match of the season for both clubs, was played at Port Hope on Saturday, May 4 and resulted in a win for the school, the score being, at the close of time, Peterborough 82, T.C.S. 104 for 7 wickets.

Peterborough batted first and soon lost 3 wickets for 10, but Dyer and Worrall carried the score to 40 and on Gore joining Worrall 24 runs were added, after which the innings quickly closed for 82.

T.C.S. opened with C. Seagram and R. Keefer and the score was quickly taken to 31 when the former was bowled by Lawrence; he is a very promising young batsman. Keefer, Magee and Truase played well and the score was tied with 7 men out, and at the call of time, the total stood at 107 for 7 wickets.

Lawrence bowled well, getting 4 of the best batsmen for 29 runs. Caird, a newcomer, had 2 wickets and Williams 1.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

By McDONALD FEADER

CHAPTER 19

Doug waited until the backgammon game was over, then casually said, "Say, Stewart, I've been thinking and I've come to the conclusion from observation in the past that you are quite a heart-breaker. In view of that fact, may I ask why you didn't bring the gypsy along with you when you are usually such an easy foil for good-looking women who plead with tears in their voices?"

"Of course you haven't a serious thought in your head — never did have and never will —"

"Now that's positively unkind. I've been concerned with serious thoughts all afternoon. You could at least have given the gypsy your address or paid her fare or done something—"

"You know as well as I do why I didn't bring her along. I'll admit she's about the prettiest thing I ever saw—but after all I didn't have time to give her gypsy father three horses and two colts and my gold watch and—"

"A small check of several thousand dollars would have expedited matters considerably. Money, in my opinion, is faster than a horse or a watch and I would say that—"

"And have a dagger through me for my pains." Stewart interrupted what threatened to be a long speech on the subject.

"Still be interested if suddenly the girl turned up in New York?"

Stewart lighted a cigaret before he answered.

"That would be different." He seemed to play with the idea. Then he shook his head. "Like all the rest of the women, she'd want me to put her on Broadway. Leave it to you to tell them all about me. Next time you do—"

"—out I go into the cold cruel world, eh?"

"Yes. You know, I often wonder if there's a woman in this world who is satisfied."

"I'll admit you haven't met quite all of them. Now about this gypsy, what if you did put her on Broadway? She can dance like a whizz!"

"I suppose you think she and Louise would get along together?"

"Are you going to marry Louise or something?"

"No She is a lovely thing—the gypsy, I mean, but then it's best to leave her back in the gypsy camp and let her marry her gypsy man. Take her to New York and you'd spoil her. Why she'd want everything she saw."

"Yes, I imagine she usually gets what she wants, too," Doug said meaningly. "In fact, Don Juan, just a minute ago she said to tell you that gypsies always get what they want!"

Telling fortunes.

Laughing.

People about her, interested. Rumble of the train, wheels intoning, to the east, to the east. New York. Lights on Broadway. The high hill at last. What did these gorgios who listened to their fortunes and pressed money into her hands know about this song in her heart and what could they know about this other thing in her heart that was weeping bitter tears and asking over and over, revenge is sweet? Revenge is sweet, is it, gypsy?

"White man, you will find your heart's desire in New York. Go on—" Happy fortune.

Revenge is sweet, is it? Is it? Tonight her wedding night. It was already dark. The fires would be lighted. The music started. Gypsies singing, laughing, drinking, eating. Petru and his flute. Marcu, tall, straight, eyes shining, heart beating fast, going to the van to part the curtains and call his bride, or had one of the women gone in and found her not there?

"Cross my palm with silver, white lady. I can tell you all you want to know, your past, your future—"

Can you yet tell if revenge is sweet?

Fear came over her. What was this thing she had done? Marcu standing at the van—light gone from his eyes—where is she, where is my loved one? Gone! Wheels rumbling. New York where the marble palace beckoned. . . . I cannot take you with me, gypsy girl. . . . I tell you it ain't wort' nottin'—it ain't real—it's a hunk of las s!

"Watch, white man, that you do not go on the water, for the ship will sink and you will surely die!"

Where is she? Where is she? Tell me, you skunks, what have you done with her? This is my wedding night. If in jest you have hidden my bride, I will kill the one who has dared this thing!

"Cross my palm with silver and I—"

Kiss me before I go. Kiss me, my big dumb one, and forgive me. Silent lips could not say, Marcu she has gone for always. You have lost her. This is her revenge. My dumb one, it is good now you are dumb and cannot say these words. I have called you my friend and now I want your arms about me that I may pour my tears against your heart. I am alone and afraid. I am wicked, bad! Oh Girtza, Girtza, where is your whip that I may feel its forgiving stings against my body! Marcu—Marcu—

"I cannot tell more fortunes. I am tired! I am sick—"

The gypsy staggered to her feet and pushed her way through the crowd of people and ran down the aisle of the train. Revenge? She was filled with fear, with sickness. There was only one idea now in her brain. She must get back! She could not take this revenge. She must go to him! She was his, had been his, always would be his! Ah, let him beat her, let him beat her now!

She ran blindly and almost fell into the arms of a man in the shadows at the end of the day coach.

"Gypsy girl!"

Through wet eyes she stared up at him wildly. The gray-haired man. She had been angry with him. He had dared refuse her. Now she forgot that. He was a friend and she clung to him and buried her face against his coat.

Where is this girl, my daughter? Where is this bad one to have done a thing like that to me, her father?

"Why, gypsy girl, what's the matter?" Blackmire was glad of the darkness of the vestibule.

"I must go back! Will this train never stop?" she sobbed.

"It's your first time on a train, isn't it? You poor kid. Come on back with us for a while. Have you had your supper?"

"I—I didn't see any food." Food—who could eat with such a sickness inside of her? There would be a banquet, a wedding banquet with no bride. Empty arms!

She hardly knew that she was walking along beside him but soon she was back in the private car and Doug and Bill were there. They were talking to her—joking. She heard the gray-haired man telling a darky to bring spaghetti—heard him say, what does a gypsy eat anyway. What does a gypsy eat? What can a gypsy eat when her heart is breaking? Heart breaking, little fool? Why, Marcu, ah, you hate him! Was he not the one who tricked you?

"You'll feel better just as soon as you've eaten, gypsy girl."

Was he not the one who gave you this "hunk of glass" on your finger? Was he not the coward who did not dare to take you in his arms afterward—until too late? Think of the great fellow, the look of anger on his face when he finds you gone. Ah, now you've gotten the better of him! Revenge is sweet, isn't it?

"Gee, kid if you've never seen New York you've got a thrill coming and papa Doug is just the man to give you that thrill—with reservations, of course."

DR. DYSON HAGUE PASSES IN GALT

Well Known as Preacher, Church Historian and Writer.

WYCLIFFE PROFESSOR.

TORONTO, May 7 (C.P.).—The body of Rev. Canon Dyson Hague, rector emeritus of the Church of the Epiphany, lay in state to-day at Wycliffe College, where he was lecturer in liturgics. Funeral services for Dr. Hague, who died at Galt yesterday, will be held from the Church of the Epiphany to-morrow to St. James' Cemetery. Members of Wycliffe and two of his former curates will be pall-bearers.

In his 79th year, death halted a life full of activity and diversified interests. He had preached his last sermon in the Church of the Epiphany on Easter Sunday. A striking Easter message written by him, was published in The Mail and Empire on Good Friday. On Sunday he was to have attended the 50th anniversary of St. Paul's Church, Brockville, which he had founded.

Last Public Appearance.

Dr Hague made his last appearance in public on April 24 when he took part in the presentation of degrees at the Wycliffe College convocation. The following day he left for Preston to take a few days' rest. On Friday he was stricken suddenly and rushed to Galt Hospital, where for the past ten days he had been waging a losing fight for life.

An ardent theologian and scholar, Dr. Hague had won a name for himself both as a preacher and a writer. He was a familiar figure at Diocesan and General Synods where his stand on church issues had carried weight for many years.

He was one of the leading outhorities on the Church of England prayer book and had written a number of recognised works on the subject, among them, "The Protectantism of the Prayer Book," which ran into six editions. He was a member of the compilation committee of the Canadian Church hymn book which concluded its work in 1908 and of the Canadian Prayer Book committee in 1911.

A son of the late George Hague, general manager of the old Merchants' Bank, Dr. Hague was born in Toronto in April, 1857. He was a graduate of Upper Canada College going on to University College and taking his degree in theology and later his Doctor of Divinity degree from Wycliffe College. He was ordained in 1882 by Most Rev. Arthur Sweetman, then archbishop of Toronto. His first appointment was that of curate at St. James' Cathedral under the late Canon Dumoulin.

Two years later he was appointed first rector of St. Paul's Church, Brockville, where he served for five years before accepting a call to St. Paul's, Halifax, the largest Protestant church in the Maritimes. After some years there he moved to St. George's Church, Montreal, and from there to the Cronyn Memorial Church, London, Ont. During his London rectorship he was made a canon of St. Paul's Cathedral.

In 1912 he returned to Toronto as vicar of the Church of the Epiphany. As vicar and rector he had been at this church for 25 years and though he retired two years ago from active work retained his connection as rector emeritus.

From the time of his graduation, Dr. Hague had always kept a keen interest in Wycliffe College, where for some years he had been professor of liturgics. He was also an active worker on the graduates' body and served on a number of committees.

LOVES TO EAT THIS CEREAL, IT CHECKED HER CONSTIPATION*

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Helped Miss Kesterke

We quote from her letter: "Three years ago, I became constipated.* I tried many laxatives. But as soon as I got used to each kind, I began to get the same trouble.

"Last summer I was on my vacation. They served Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. I just loved it. I eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN every morning, and ever since I have not had to take any more laxatives."—Miss Margaret Kesterke. Address on request.

*Due to insufficient "bulk" in meals.

Tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN is also rich in vitamin B and iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle. It resists digestion better than the fiber in fruits and vegetables, so it is often more effective.

Isn't this food safer than risking patent medicines? Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. If seriously constipated, use with each meal. See your doctor, if you do not get relief.

Use as a cereal, or in cooking. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

PRESENTATION TO NEWLYWED COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Hooton Honored by Friends at Social Gathering.

FOWLER'S CORNERS, May 7 (Examiner Correspondence)—About sixteen ladies, members of the Ladies' Aid Society of Lakevale Presbyterian Church, and their friends were entertained on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. W. Rutherford, convenor of the April group, when the afternoon was pleasantly spent in quilting and social intercourse. Tea was served by the hostess and her assistants.

Ladies present included Mesdames H. Fowler, Sr., S. Fry, F. Fowler, M. Moncrief, W. Howden, J. Tully, Sid Tully, Roy Tully, D. M. Adam, G. Tully, Stanley Tully, G. Wilson, A. Adam, and the Misses Fern Tully, Lena Tully, Irene Weatherilt and I. Moncrief.

Presentation Made

About one hundred friends gathered at Bingo Hall on Thursday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hooton, whose marriage took place recently. Dancing was enjoyed with excellent music being provided by Messrs. R. Aichison and C. Emmerson with Mrs. Herb Reynolds at the piano. Lawrence McConnell acted as floor manager. During the supper hour, Mr. and Mrs. Hooton were asked to take chairs on the platform when an appropriate address was read by Miss Annie Graham, and the presentation of a handsome cabinet of silver was made by Harry Tully and Clifford Thexton. Mr. Hooton replied in a witty manner, thanking his friends on behalf of his bride and himself, for the gift and inviting everyone to visit them in their new home, followed by the singing of "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows." Supper was served and wedding cake was passed around to the guests; dancing then being resumed for a time.

FROM EVERY CORNER OF THE WORLD

to the daily newspaper come flashing the engrossing incidents that are at this very moment making today's history. The whole atmosphere of the daily newspaper is comprehensive action—dealing with things of the moment that have just happened, or are about to happen.

When white paper leaves the printing presses in the daily newspaper office, it is no longer some inert material, but an active powerful force reaching the thousands who thirst for its contents.

It is an essential part of daily life and without it all would feel a distinct loss—nothing can take its place.

On the newspaper's pages also are advertisements placed there by thoughtful, energetic and far-seeing merchants and producers. The best traders in Canada—the firms which grow in strength and prestige year after year—know that the daily newspaper is as necessary to them as their raw material. When the fight is hardest—they have often proved this—it pays to strengthen their newspaper lists.

Mortgage Takes Aged Farmer's Land

SIGNED PAPERS THAT ASSUMED DEBT OF $5,000

William Trelevan Pleaded That He Didn't Understand Documents.

LIFE'S LABOR LOST.

Temporary Partner Borrowed Money From Agricultural Development Board.

By An Examiner Reporter

COBOURG, May 8. — A work-worn and weary old man with senses blurred by his more than eighty years and, to him, the unaccustomed and confusing process of a court of law saw the collapse of a lifetime's labor in the loss of his farm, encumbered by a mortgage, by a judgment given in favor of the Agricultural Development Board here yesterday afternoon by Mr. Justice McFarland in the non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

He had signed the mortgage deed apparently without comprehending the liability which finally overtook him, stripping him of the land which he believed he held securely by a life interest obtained from a former owner.

William Trelevan of Hamilton township, feebly and helplessly admitted his signature on several documents, but in a final, unavailing plea he told the court he did not know the nature of their contents. He identified the mortgage simply by the three red seals on one corner of it.

"The farm is mine. I bought and paid for it, and lived there thirty-one years," the old man told Mr. Justice McFarland.

The official papers told another and unimpeachable story. One of them showed that he had released his life interest in the property in

TOLEDO STRIKE TIES UP 33,000

Wait Result of Balloting to Settled Difference With Management.

HALF DOZEN STATES HIT.

TOLEDO, O., May 8 (AP) — Thirty-three thousand auto workers, idle in a half dozen states because of a strike at the Chevrolet plant here, wailed to-day to see whether employees at the plant would compose their difference with the management at the ballot box.

Some 2,300 employees who were working at the Toledo plant the day before the strike was called two weeks ago are eligible to vote for or against accepting peace proposals of the company to-day.

Francis J. Dillon, organizer of the American Federation of Labor in the automobile industry, urged union workers at a meeting last night to vote against the proposals. Dillon said: "The A.F. of L. is here with all its power and prestige depending on you."

At another meeting, members of the Independent Workers' Society, predicted a plurality for acceptance of the company's plan.

Rock Ledge At Falls Will Be Blasted Off

TORONTO, May 8 (C.P.).—Niagara Falls, scene of many falls of rock in recent years, will have another "slide," but this time it will be a man-made avalanche when rock overhanging the Gorge near Table Rock House at the Canadian Falls is blasted away.

The Niagara Parks Commission at a meeting here to-day, decided to blast the ledge which has been fenced off from pedestrians from fear it would cave in. Black powder will be used to dislodge the 3,500 tons of rock at an estimated cost of $14,500.

Efforts will be made to prevent further erosion of the rock face after the ledge has been blasted.

They corralled three voters on the streets and led them to the Polls. So the count gave Bell, Griffith and Barber three votes apiece.

HELD MANY POSTS.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(CP)—Norman Armour, veteran of 20 years in the United States diplomatic service who once described the art of diplomacy as "always applying the golden rule," was authoritatively reported today as the probable choice as American minister to Canada.

The post at Ottawa was left vacant by the recent death through pneumonia of Warren Delano Robbins.

Mr. Armour, 67 years of age, has served in various diplomatic posts in Europe, Asia and the Americas. He was the last United States minister to Haiti. He was born in Brighton, Eng., of American parents.

While attached to the American embassy at Petrograd, Mr. Armour married the Russian Princess Myra Koudacheff in 1919. They have one son, Norman.

Lakefield Inn Proprietor Resident of Village for Twenty-five Years.

FORMER COUNCILLOR.

LAKEFIELD, May 8 (Examiner Correspondence).—Arthur G. Lawless died very suddenly on Tuesday afternoon at the Lakefield Inn. His sudden demise shocked the whole community where he was well known and highly respected. While Mr. Lawless was not in good health for some time, he was going about, and his serious condition was not realized by his fellow-citizens. Mr. Lawless has been a resident of the village for more than 25 years and his generosity, public spiritedness and community service won him an enviable place in the hearts of the Lakefield people.

Mr. Lawless was president of the Rink Company, a member of the Curling Club, and also of the High School Board. He was one of the leading Liberals of the community and an earnest and devout member of St. Paul's Church. He was an ex-Councillor of the village and connected in many ways with the social and community life. He is survived by his wife; two daughters, Margaret of Montreal and Kathleen of Lakefield, and three sons, Langley of Camp Borden, Lionel of Toronto, and Pat at home. His mother, who resides in Toronto, also survives.

The funeral will be held at nine o'clock Thursday morning in St. Paul's Church, Lakefield, with interment in Young's Point Cemetery.

FUEL DEALERS SEEK CHANGE IN CITY BY-LAW

Request is Sent on City Council to Its Legal Committee.

RETAIN STREET NAME.

City's Relief Bill For April Totalled $13,450.34 Metheral Reports.

Several proposed amendments to the fuel by-law, suggested by local dealers, were referred last night by the council to its Legal Committee. The changes were drafted by Alex L. Elliott who accompanied Harold Scott and Reg. H. Turner in a brief presentation of their request.

Mr. Scott said that the producing coal companies were undertaking a new policy of dumping coal at Oshawa where nearly 7,000 tons have been piled in the open all winter. Early this season advertisements offered this coal here at 50 cents under the price usually charged by local dealers, but this difference in price did not compensate for deterioration caused by the effect of the elements.

Coal may be unloaded at the Port Hope dock this year, Mr. Scott said, and anybody could truck it to Peterborough in competition with citizens whose investment was in this city and their wages paid here.

"We suggest that fuel dealers be required to have scales with a capacity for gross loads, and that a fee of $100 be charged for three years as a check on those people

CALLANDER, Ont., May 8 (C.P.). —A request they be allowed to adopt their own quintuplet daughters during the 'adopt-a-child week' has been sent by Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne to Hon. D. A. Croll, Ontario Minister of Public Welfare. The letter was despatched Monday.

Mr. Croll announced last week in honor of the first birthday of the Dionne quintuplets, the week of May 26 was designated as "adopt-a-child week." The five baby sisters now are special wards of the King under legislation passed by the Ontario Legislature.

In their letter to Mr. Croll, the parents cite their qualifications and quote the Minister's words as an argument in their favor.

The Dionne parents have previously expressed resentment at control of their children being regulated under the legislation. Three guardians were appointed by the

SCHOOL BOARD MEETS

Extra Teacher at King George School be Required in September.

An application by the Chamber of Commerce for the use of the Collegiate Auditorium for a non-political meeting to be addressed here on Saturday evening next by the Hon. H. H. Stevens, was last evening granted by Peterborough Board of Education at a nominal rental of ten dollars. The request was granted on motion of H. G. Walker and W. A. Richardson.

The request resulted in some discussion, Dr. G. R. Scott being of opinion that the Board ran into the danger of establishing a precedent in allowing the auditorium to be let for such a purpose at a nominal figure, when other organizations had been "turned down."

Dr. J. J. Craig inclined to the same opinion did not see how it was possible for Mr. Stevens to address a meeting without exhibiting some political bias.

"I can't see how you can attribute any political motive to the Chamber of Commerce," John R. Marshall remarked.

There were murmurs of "No! No!" in agreement, and the motion was put to the vote by Dr. A. Moir as chairman, and was carried.

LAST MINUTE NEWS FLASHES

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., May 28.—(AP)—The chain letter craze mushroomed into a city-wide lottery here today with hundreds of frenzied fans exchanging $2, $3 and $5 letters. Crowds filled the street all last night and business had virtually come to a standstill. Many persons were in on several chains at the same time and receipts up to $500 since Saturday were reported not uncommon.

Youths He Helped Educate Ready to Defend Him in Murder Mysteries.

THREE WOMEN SLAIN.

ENID, Okla, May 8. (AP).—A chain of letters and messages in a volume to bring envy to "send-a-dime" participants, continued to pour into the county jail here to-day for Dr. Guy E. Brewer, eccentric physician charged with the murder of three women.

Instead of dimes, the letters contained proffers to aid and pledges of money by young men who received their educations through the doctor's financial help.

The latest charge against the bald, middle-aged country physician, filed yesterday, accused Dr. Brewer in the death of Ruby Ford of Ponca City, who died 11 days after an alleged illegal operation March 20, 1934.

Two Other Charges

Prior charges accused him of murdering Hermoine Fowler, Oklahoma A. and M. co-ed, and Mrs. Doris Jones, 20-year-old mother of two children.

Friends of the physician in Graber, Okla, where he is known as the "sweet grouch" assert he was maintaining more than two score of students in three houses at Stillwater, site of Oklahoma A. & M. College.

He is more upset over their plight without him, declare the friends, than he is over his own predicament. They said he sent his last $200, a fund he had been saving for graduating necessities, to the boys when he was arrested April 30.

Meanwhile County Attorney Roy Holbird announced investigation of "a number of new deaths" was nearing completion.

"The more we delve into this case, the more amazing it becomes," Holbird declared.

COLORFUL LEVEE IS HIGHLIGHT OF THE JUBILEE

British Monarch Issues Fervant Prayer for Peace Before World Diplomats.

10,000 CHEER AT GATES.

Universal Messages of Congratulations Are Read—His Majesty Responds.

LONDON, May 8.—(CP) —A fervent prayer for peace, coupled with his own and the queen's thanks to the empire and the world for their silver jubilee felicitations, was voiced by the king today at a great reception at St. James palace to representatives of the empire and of foreign countries.

The colorful palace levee was attended by the empire prime ministers, including Premier R. B. Bennett, and other representatives of the empire overseas, and by diplomatic representatives of virtually all the world's powers who brought messages of congratulations and good wishes to the monarch.

Responding to the expressions of love and loyalty, conveyed by the empire representatives from their respective parliaments, his majesty said:

A Strong Bond

"The numberless invisible ties of sentiment and tradition which bind us together are indeed delicate; but many strands make a cable, strong to bind in times of adversity.

"It is my prayer no less than my firm belief, that this bond of spirit may also prove a bond of peace."

The brilliant gathering of the diplomatic corps and empire statesmen was the high spot of today's celebration of the king's silver jubilee.

World Congratulations

"The representatives of foreign countries," he said, "desire to associate themselves with equal joy and sincerity in those demonstrations which have conveyed to your majesty from the United Kingdom, the whole empire and every part of the world, the heartfelt expression of affectionate respect for the august sovereign whose courage, wisdom and goodness are the admiration of the world, while his personal authority invariably has been exercised for creation of that spirit of good understanding and cooperation which may be counted as one of the fundamental bases of peace.

Following the cool weather of the past two weeks it was encouraging to meet one optimist. "We have sold more paint and executed more interior decoration work during the past six weeks than for the same period of many years back," said a prominent city painter and decorator; "no doubt this increased business has been due to the inclement weather which tended to keep people indoors instead of at work in the gardens." However, ball club owners have cause for complaint; yesterday's eight scheduled games in the International and National leagues were all postponed on account of rain.—A.O.P.

TORONTO, May 8 (C.P.) — Synopsis.—High pressure extends from Hudson Bay southward across the Lake Region and the Eastern States, while a trough of low extends from Saskatchewan eastward to the Rainy River district, thence southward to Texas, and a shallow disturbance centered south of Sable Island is moving rapidly eastward. Showers have also occurred over the Lake Superior region, Southern Quebec and the Maritime Provinces, and temperatures have been below normal throughout the Dominion.

Girl Who Was Dead For Five Minutes Now Recovering

HEART REVIVED BY AN INJECTION OF ADRENALIN

Owen Sound Specialist Takes Quick Action Following Operation.

MASTOID CASE.

Results 'Extraordinary' States Chief Surgeon at Toronto Sick Children's Hospital.

OWEN SOUND, Ont., May 8.—(CP)—The heart of five-year-old Audrey Brown stilled for five minutes yesterday following a mastoid operation, was beating strongly again today.

For Audrey it was a return to life. For Dr. A. F. Laird, Owen Sound specialist who pumped nine drops of adrenalin into her lifeless body it was the "greatest thrill" of his medical career.

Weakened from a recent attack of scarlet fever Audrey was stricken with double mastoid. Yesterday it was found necessary to operate.

Dr. Laird performed the operation which appeared to be successful. A few minutes after he had left the patient a nurse rushed to him with word the child was dead. Examination showed heart action had ceased.

Dr. Laird pronounced the child dead and immediately prepared the adrenalin injection. He administered nine drops.

The tot sighed. Then she gasped. Then breathing became normal.

The doctor estimated the child had been dead five minutes.

At the hospital today it was reported Audrey spent a good night. She had been a little restless at times but was very bright this morning.

"Extraordinary" Result

TORONTO, May 8. —(CP)— An adrenalin injection with which Dr. A. F. Laird, Owen Sound specialist revived five-year-old Audrey Brown after she had been dead five minutes was termed "extraordinary" by Dr. David E. Robertson, chief staff surgeon at the Hospital for Sick Children here.

"Use of adrenalin in such cases is not unusual," he said, "but its successful application on a patient dead for so long as five minutes is very unusual."

SIR ROGER KEYES TO LEAVE FLEET

Famous Admiral Who Bottled German Sub Base at Zeebrugge Will Retire.

CHATFIELD SUCCESSOR.

LONDON, May 8 (C.P.)—Admiral of the Fleet Sir Roger Keyes, who has had a long and distinguished active service career with the Royal Navy, was placed on the retiring list effective to-day. He retains his ranking among the ten Admirals of the Fleet, highest service rank.

Coincidentally the Admiralty announced the promotion of Admiral Sir Ernle Chatfield to rank of Admiral of the Fleet (corresponding to Field Marshal in the army) which means that the number of Admirals of the Fleet on the active list remains at four. Including Sir Roger Keyes, who visited Canada last year, there are now 11 Admirals of the Fleet. Jellicoe and Beatty are among them.

Sir Roger will retire to-day. He is rated as one of the greatest naval commanders of the war, having received honors and £10,000 (about $50,000) from Parliament for bottling up a German submarine base at Zeebrugge on April 23, 1918.

He plans to retire to his estate in Buckinghamshire.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Growing optimism in some grain trade quarters as to 1935 crop prospects accompanied by favorable weather reports resulted in a marked selling movement in all grain futures pits yesterday forcing prices around two cents lower.

Bearish crop news, lower Liverpool wheat prices, persistent pressure in corn, particularly September contracts, and scattered profit-taking and stop loss selling combined to give the market a thoroughly weak tone most of the session. Some selling was credited in pit gossip to an eastern operator, and weakness in stocks was depressing.

Corn at times led the decline, closing ¾ to 2¼ cents below Monday's finish; July 61⅛ to 61⅝c. Wheat was off 1¼ to 1⅝; July, 94⅝c to 96⅛c; and oats lost 1⅛ to 1. Rye, 1⅝ to 2⅛; and barley was 2 cents lower to 1 cent up.

Bears noted advices of scattered rains in parts of the grain belt, although the bulk of moisture was received in sections which have escaped severe drought. Crop reviews were generally more favorable. The Northwest Grain Company said spring wheat prospects are the best in six years. The Kansas weekly report said further improvement in the winter wheat crop condition in the eastern part of the State occurred last week due to beneficial moisture.

After a firm start in sympathy with a strong hog market, lard eased with grains. Provisions trade was light.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 8. — Rains which augured well for Canada's new crop led to a decline in the value of the old crop yesterday.

Wheat prices were weak throughout a slow session of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange and closed ¾ to ⅞ cent lower. Bearish sentiment was heightened by generous rains that fell over the spring wheat areas of the United States and Canada.

Values at the finish were only a shade above their day's lowest levels, May at 86⅝ and July 69¼ cents. Support offered by the sale of 400,000 bushels of wheat for export, however, failed to stem the slow recession which set in at the opening.

Small world shipments of wheat last week, 9,000,000 bushels, and weakness in outside grain markets were further bearish factors. Liverpool, influenced by lack of demand for wheat, closed ¼d to ½d off. Buenos Aires was lower.

POST OFFICES PLAN TO HALT CHAIN LETTERS

Toronto Director Claims Transmission is Prohibited—May be Seized if Detected.

SWEEPING CANADA.

Idea is Theoretically Sound States Professor at University of Toronto.

TORONTO, May 8. — If the law doesn't stop the chain-letter craze in Ontario, the Post Offices will.

That, in a nutshell, sums up the attitude of officialdom in this Province toward the latest fad which is rapidly sweeping the United States and parts of Canada.

Opinions on Epidemic.

Here are the remarks of authorities whose opinions on the chain-letter epidemic were solicited by a Toronto paper last night:

Alexander M. Gibson, district director of postal services: "The Post Office Department believes that the circulation of chain-letters is not in the public interest, and their transmission through His Majesty's mails is prohibited by a specific postal regulation. Wherever the letters are detected in the mails, whether or not they contain money they will be addressed to the Dead Letter Office."

Ira Humphries, K.C., Deputy Attorney-General: "Offhand, I don't know of anything in the Criminal Code or Statutes that prohibits chain-letters. However, there may be a postal regulation in force with that effect."

W. J. Falvey, Chief Clerk at the Toronto Post Office: "When this craze first hit Canada some time ago, P. T. Coolican, Acting Deputy Postmaster-General, gave a statement to the effect that the circulation of the chain-letters was illegal. But I myself cannot quote any law bearing on the point."

Sound in Theory?

Professor Michael Mackenzie, Department of Mathematics, University of Toronto: "Theoretically, the chain-letter idea is sound—but only until they grow to the point where they begin to overlap and repeat.'

Ex-Grecian Ruler Willing To Return

PARIS, May 8 (AP)—Former King George II. of Greece was quoted today in dispatches from London to the newspaper Excelsior as saying he was ready to return to the throne should his people summon him.

Means End of Opposition Minority Groups Composed of Jews, Germans.

VOTE END OF MAY.

WARSAW, May 7. (AP).—Banishment of parliamentary opposition, greatly bolstering the already powerful hand of Marshal Joseph Pidsudski, was seen to-day as the probable result of an electoral law expected to pass the Seym (Chamber of Deputies) at the end of May.

The opposition parties, the Jewish and German minority groups, charge the new system will mean their extermination from political life.

The deputies, under Premier Slewek's scheme, would be nominated by electoral councils in 100 districts. The councils would be composed of members of the community councils, chambers of commerce, chambers of agriculture, and trade unions.

Under the new plan the voters will have nothing directly to say about the naming of the particular individual who will represent them.

Owner, Invalid Wife and Daughter Escape—Community Threatened.

GORMLEY, Ont., May 8 (C.P.) — A spectacular fire which destroyed the general stor eand post office of Sam Doner and caused explosion of a gasoline pump threatening this community 25 miles north-east of Toronto, was brought under control early to-day by brigades from Stouffville, Unionville, Aurora, and Richmond Hill after damage estimated at $10,000 had been done.

Doner, his invalid wife and his daughter were able to leave the building without injury although Mrs. Doner suffered a relapse and a doctor was called. Verna Cherry, a little girl watching the blaze, was hit by an automobile, but only slightly injured.

Early efforts of neighbors who threw buckets of water saved a nearby residence from the flames. The gasoline pump at the store went up in a bright blaze after an explosion, but the safety valves on the storage tank prevented ignition of 600 gallons of gas.

HAVELOCK CITIZENS OUT IN FORCE TO CELEBRATE SILVER JUBILEE

T. P. Lancaster and Rev. P. M. Colquhoun Give Stirring Addresses to Packed Hall.

LIVELY PARADE.

(Examiner Correspondence)

HAVELOCK, May 7. — Citizens from every walk in life paid loyal tribute to their beloved majesties at a fitting celebration of their silver jubilee on Monday morning. A larger and more representative crowd was never seen in the village on any previous occasion.

At eleven o'clock the parade formed in the C.P.R. square and proceeded in a round-about-way to the town hall, where T. P. Lancaster M.P.P. was the principal speaker. Both the kilty and brass bands added much to the color and smartness of the big parade. Miss Isabel McQuigge, represented Miss Canada on a float of bunting and flags.

Rev. S. A. Kemp opened the service at the hall with scriptare reading, and a most appropriate prayer. Reeve. E. J. Leeson acted as chairman and expressed regret that Rev. Father J. J. McCarthy and Rev. Hugh Brown were unavoidably absent. They sent their regrets. On behalf of the lieutenant governor, Dr. Herbert A. Bruce, the reeve presented a silver publiee medal from His Majesty to T. P. Lancaster, as a member of the Legislative Assembly.

The gathering then sang "Onward Christian Soldiers".

"A Wise Ruler"

Rev. P. M. Colquhoun of Knox Presbyterian church in his address said we were most fortunate in having such a wise ruler who has been a model of a man and who was blessed with a loyal queen. He drew special attention to the royal family's great love and respect for The Bock. He spoke of the King as a humole worshipper, and urged more reverence while in the house of God. While he is always spoken of as the Sailor Prince, he is sure to go down in history as the beloved King. "The Maple Leaf Forever" was then sung.

T. P. Lancaster

T. P. Lancaster, M.P.P., the chief speaker expressed his sincere appreciation of the honour conferred by the Lieutent Governor on behalf of His Majesty, but frankly felt the members of the legislature should not have received them. He would have preferred to see all the school children given mementoes of the celebration even if it was only a very cheap medal. Admitting the preparation of a rather elaborate discourse he had been told only the day precious he was alotted only ten minutes and was forced to revamp the whole thing.

Mr. Lancaster touched briefly on the marvelous Queen Mother, Victoria, and her illustrious son King Edward. A life outline of the "Sailor King" was given and the worthiness of the tribute paid was stressed. "During and since the war thrones have toppled and rulers have been driven into exile in most kingdoms of the empires of the world, but disregarding a few ignorant blatant agitators, such as are found in every land, never has our king stood higher in the loyalty and effectionate regard of his people. This is due partly to the sanity and steadfastness of the British character, and to the prevailing confidence the people have in the justice and beneficient institutions and jurisprudence; but chiefly it is due to the exemplary personal character, the regal attributes and exalted ideals of the King himself, and his gracious Queen and royal and estimable sons, chief of whom we hold dear in our hearts, and especially in feminine hearts, the Prince of Wales.

An Understanding Monarch

Probably the principal reason for the universal popularity of the King and the whole royal family, is in the intimate understanding they have of the problems that affect the welfare of their people, and the sufferings and privations that as many of their subjects are enduring, and the kindly sympathetic spirit they display in their untiring efforts to relieve distress.

Another reason for the popularity of the King in his exemplary life and character and the admirable domestic virtues he displays. Despite the pomp and no doubt wearisome ceremonies inseparable from his position, of the unavoidable publicity, to which he is subjected in that fierce light that beats upon a throne, he and his stately queen have ever maintained the virtues of the simple, kindly, home-loving, affectionate, exemplary family life; in the exaltation of which the English transcend every other race, and which is the firm-based foundation of the excelling greatness of this people, and the assurance of its permanence in the years to come.

Following the address the band played "O Canada". A pleasing feature of the program was a song composed by John Kinnaird and sung by his Sunday School class. "Hevelock's Jubilee Song". A silver collection in aid of the cancer fund was taken at the door and a neat sum realised for the splendid work.

HARE SCARED RACEHORSE.

LONDON (C.P.). — A horse, Situs, took fright at a hare on Sandown Park racecourse when on his way to the starting gate. He bolted, jumped a fence, and threw his rider. The horse was caught by a policeman, and remounted, and took part in the race, but at the fifth fence he blundered and threw his jockey again.

After walking 1000 miles to bathe in the holy Kistna River at Bezwada, India, a Hindu entered the water, sank immediately, and drowned.

Flier Had Thirst With Long Flight

CAPE TOWN, May 7 (C.P.)— Alas: "Amelia Earhart pronounces it "tomayto." So she sent the word of disputed accent floating through the air when she spoke to this city from California after her achivement of flying across the Pacific.

"Did you feel hungry?" "No, but I was thirsty mostly, and I drank a lot of juice, tomato juice, tomato juice." (She pronounced it tomayto.)

"Did you have any thought that you might not get across?" "I made my plans to get across," was the firm reply in emphatic tones. "All things involve some risk, but if you want to do a thing very much the best way is to go ahead, make the best preparations possible and then go and do it."

"What would you have done, Miss Earhart, if you had fallen into the sea?" "Well, you see, I had a collapsible rubber boat which I might have been able to use, and I was wearing a special rubber jacket...."

GROUPS PRESENT ONE-ACT PLAYS

All Saints' A.Y.P.A. and Hastings' Society Enter Annual Contest.

FINALS ON THURSDAY.

The annual dramatic contest in one-act plays staged at this season of the year by the Anglican Young People's Associations of the district, had the first session last evening in St. John's parish hall, where contestants were the A.Y.P.A. of All Saints Church, Peterborough and of St. George's Church, Hastings.

As the judges: Adrian Macdonald, E. V. Morphet and Dr. R. Honey, reserve a final decision until all the plays are enacted, there was no judgment delivered last evening. This will take place on Thursday night of this week at All Saints' parish hall, after plays have been presented by further contestants: the A.Y.P.A. of St. John's Church and of St. Luke's church, both of Peterborough.

Cecil Hope, chairman of the Dramatic committee of the A.Y.P.A., announced the plays last night, and music by Reg Dyer's orchestra, which rendered some snappy, tunefun numbers, with Jack Marshall at the piano.

All Saints' play, "Advertising for a Husband", with direction by Miss Gwen Dobbin, had first place. The cast is as follows: Kenyon Choate as Colonel Backup; Joe Cooper as Tom Trask; Allan Worsencroft as Wallie Watkins; Miss Margaret Pitchford as Kitty Back up, and Miss Edith Abraham as Katy Brayton.

This is an entertaining miniature drama in which the action revolves around an advertisement inserted in the matrimonial section of a newspaper. There are many complications which finally straighten themselves out to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Notable in the rounding out of the action are several old stage devices. One is the "play within a play" idea, in which a group of amateur actors are depicted in the act of rehearsing a play. Another is the old "aside", seldom encountered in recent dramatic efforts, but a favored device of older years. And still another unique bit is the tiny "epilogue" which features the finale, when, with all the actors on the stage, one steps out to "point a moral to adorn the tale."

The Hastings' group had second place. They chose "The Cure-All", a one-act play presented some years ago by St. Luke's A.Y.P.A. in a similar contest. The direction was by Miss D. Plant, and the cast included the following members: Harry Tyrell as Augustus Babbitt; Eric Pulfer as Kent Maynard; Nicholas Dainard as Dr. Paul Harper; Miss Bernice Dainard as Amanda Beakly; Miss Mary Pulfer as Doris Prichard; Miss Jessie Kirk as Clara Morgan.

"The Cure-All" is an amusing playlet that has a fairly strong thread of narrative. It has a couple of well-defined character parts in the persons of Augustus Babbitt and Amanda Beakly, who are dyed-in-the-wool patent medicine fiends. The latter's niece and the former's nephew plan a romance which is balked by the ancient feud enjoyed by their respective aunt and uncle. So they set their wits working and devise a wonderful nostrum called Stickem's Stimulant for Stale Stomachs, compounded of vinegar, bromo-seltzer, Epsom salts, coal oil and anything else that is handy. The potion works wonderful results and all ends happily with the sound of wedding bells in the near distance.

MARMORA HOLDS JUBILEE NIGHT

Mrs. T. W. Rhind is Initiated as Legion Member During Interesting Program.

DRAW IS MADE.

MARMORA, May 8.—(Examiner Correspondence.)— Marmora Town Hall was crowded on Monday evening when, under auspices of Marmora branch No. 237 Canadian Legion, a splendid Jubilee concert was held. Comrade W. Mumby, president of the local Legion, acted as chairman.

The program commenced with 'O Canada,' sung by scholars of Marmora Public school selected from the various classes. Then followed the two minutes' silence, after which an orchestra under leadership of T. Llewellyn Jones played various selections.

Harold Auger, the popular local vocalist, gave one of his numbers, after which Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth gave a short talk on King George and the Jubilee. A song and encore from the ever ready Jack Baker of Bonarlaw, next delighted the audience. The Boy Scouts' orchestra of Stirling followed with some enlivening strains and an appropriate song was well rendered by Mrs. Percy Gray. Scout Matheson of Stirling played a violin solo and George Woodhouse followed with a delightful vocal number. Then came a violin solo by Herbert Heumann and a solo, 'The Trumpeter' by L. R. Rundle.

Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell called upon for a speech, directed his remarks to the children, touching upon the golden and diamond Jubilees of Queen Victoria and the present silver Jubilee of King George.

Mrs. Rhind Honored.

Following a well received song by C. Cummings and two violin numbers by T. L. Jones, an interesting ceremony took place. After Comrade Mumby had given a description of the work of Mrs. T. W. Rhind as an ambulance driver for over three years in Scotland, conveying wounded to and from the hospital ships, Past President Percy Gray was called upon to initiate Mrs. Rhind into the membership of Marmora Branch of the Canadian Legion. In this he was ably assisted by Past President Rundle, Comrade Cousins and the executive of Marmora and Stirling branches on a stage laid out in the proper order with the charter, Union Jack and poppies in their right positions.

Draw Result.

The draw for the five silver dollars donated by Mr. T. W. Rhind, manager of the local Dominion bank for juveniles resulted in the following being the lucky recipients: Grace Osborne, Josephine Mumby, Frank Hipson, Jean Neal and Eva Johnston.

Rev. A. S. McConnell of Stirling, having given a much appreciated talk, some community singing was indulged in. A tumbling act was then put on by Scoutmaster T. Ward and James Ward of Stirling. Scout Sprentall followed with a pianoforte solo and Harold Auger gave another song. Concluding numbers were cowboy songs by Ralph Sharp and selections by the Marmora orchestra. The accompanists were Mrs. W. H. Litt, Mrs. L. R. Rundle and Miss G. Taft.

C. W. Bryan Elected Mayor Of Lincoln

LINCOLN, Neb., May 8 (C.P.).— Charles W. Bryan, thrice Governor of Nebraska and veteran of many United States political campaigns, was back into the political spotlight to-day, following his election as Mayor of Lincoln, after a brief retirement from public office.

Twenty years ago, Bryan, known to his friends as "Brother Charlie," because of his work as secretary for many years for his elder brother, William Jennings Bryan, first won a major public office, Mayor of Lincoln, and in yesterday's non-partisan municipal election he again was sent to the same chair by the voters.

Bryan was the Democratic nominee for vice-president in 1904.

SEEK CAT TORTURE FIEND

KITCHENER, Ont., May 7 (CP)— A crazed vivesectionist whose special prey is a prowling cat, is being sought by police to-day. One cat was fung upon its owner's porch minus its legs and its tail. The severed members lay beside the quivering carcass.

Another cat had both eyes burned out with acid, while a third had one eye gouged out with a knife. A fine Persian cat came home minus its tail.

Brighten up with ALL-BRAN!

You've had days when you've felt discouraged and low. Nothing seemed to go right. Frequently these dreary days can be traced to common constipation, due to lack of "bulk" in your meals.

This ailment may cause headaches and loss of energy. Correct it by eating a delicious cereal.

Laboratory research shows Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and food-iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN resists digestion better than the fiber in fruits and vegetables. It is gentle—and often more effective. Isn't this natural food better than taking patent medicines—often harmful?

Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal, in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Brighten days with ALL-BRAN! Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 8, 1935

A DESERVED TRIBUTE.

The Canadian Radio Commission, often the target for criticism, surely earned itself a word of commendation on Monday for the part it played in the broadcasting features that made the celebration of the King's silver jubilee especially notable.

The technical staff of the commission scored a triumph, not only for the smoothness with which Canada's share of the round-the-Empire broadcast was executed, but for the perfect manner in which the special Canadian programs were handled.

The artists who took part in these Dominion programs share, of course, in the credit that should be freely forthcoming for a series of the most successful and impressive all-Canadian broadcasts in history.

Outstanding, of course, was the triumph of timing by which bands in the principal centres from Halifax to Vancouver, playing in succession a few bars each of a patriotic air, succeeded in giving the effect of a single band playing the selection from beginning to end; only a "stunt," of course, but one that indicated that the radio engineers and technicians of the Canadian Radio Commission know their work and are capable of entering pioneer fields.

The commission did itself proud in its jubilee broadcasts, and it is only simple justice that it should get an approving pat on the back from a people who have not been sparing of criticism, much of it, of course, unwarranted and uttered with little knowledge of what the commission staff has had to contend with.

OUR TEA DRINKING RECORD.

Figures recently published show that while Canadians are easily the champion tea drinkers of the North American Continent, they fall far behind the record in this respect established by their fellow-Britishers in the United Kingdom and the Antipodes.

Of course, Old Country people lead the world in the matter of tea consumption, the statistics indicating that they get rid of an average of ten pounds per capita every year.

200 cups can be brewed from a pound of tea; in other words, the folks in the United Kingdom drink on an average of 2,000 cups a year, or about 5½ cups every day.

Our Australian cousins do almost as well; their per capita quota of the beverage that cheers but does not inebriate is eight pounds a year, or 1,600 cups a day. Incidentally, we are told the Australian bushmen drink vast quantities of the strongest kind of tea and they prefer it without milk.

In New Zealand, it is estimated that about 80 per cent. of the population drink tea about seven times a day.

Canada's tea drinking record, although far ahead of that of the United States, is well in the rear of the showing of other parts of the British Empire. In this country the annual consumption of tea amounts to four pounds per head, which figures out at the rate of a little over two cups a day per person.

The campaign under way at present in Canada to increase the consumption of tea in the Dominion has therefore some chance of success, in view of these figures.

THE GREATEST THRILL.

In his regular broadcast on Monday night, Lowell Thomas, veteran United States journalist and radio commentator, declared that he had experienced his greatest broadcasting thrill earlier in the day as he listened to the roll call of British dominions that prefaced the impressive message from His Majesty the King.

While this round-the-Empire broadcast was not so novel an event to Britishers as it apparently was to Mr. Thomas—it has been done at Christmas time for several years—most people will agree with the American commentator that it was a remarkably effective radio performance, one that revealed the vast extent of the British Empire, brought a thrill of pride to every citizen of that far-flung Commonwealth and demonstrated, too, the expert technical skill of the radio engineers of the Empire.

"London calling the British Empire," came the electrifying announcement from the British Broadcasting station. Immediately afterward was heard, "London calling Southern Rhodesia," and that country's reply. Then in rapid succession the Union of South Africa, India, New Zealand, Australia, the Dominion of Canada, the oldest British colony, Newfoundland, and finally, Bermuda was heard in eloquent expressions of loyalty and affection for the Empire's King. Followed by Premier Ramsay Macdonald's moving speech, and then the simple, heart-felt, soul-stirring address of King George to his subjects the world over, a message voiced in simple language but straight from the heart of a ruler overwhelmed with emotion at the warmth of his people's greetings.

Mr. Thomas was right; radio has brought no greater thrill since broadcasting began.

RECIPROCITY NOT AN EASY MATTER.

Recent developments across the border show clearly the difficulties that lie in the way of the United States and Canadian Governments in their efforts to negotiate a trade pact between the two countries.

Theoretically everybody on both sides of the line is in favor of reciprocity—until it happens to involve some commodity in which they are interested.

Thus we find the Maine potato producers protesting so vigorously against any suggestion that it should be made easier for Canadian potatoes to enter the United States that the White House has definitely announced that the present United States tariff on potatoes will not be changed in any trade agreement that may be entered into between the Republic and ourselves.

And again, eleven Democratic and five Republican senators the other day waited upon Secretary Cordell Hull to urge that there should be no reduction in the tariff on Canadian cattle going into the United States, and this request will be difficult for the United States Government to refuse.

Here are two commodities which Canada is most anxious to sell to Uncle Sam, for the Maritime Provinces have large surpluses of potatoes for which the eastern states would seem to be the logical market, while an opportunity to sell its cattle across the border would mean much to Western Canada.

In any reciprocal arrangement that is being planned this country would most certainly want both potatoes and cattle included, and yet opposition in the United States has apparently made that concession impossible, just as industrial interests in Canada oppose any proposal to open the doors to the entrance of United States manufactured articles into the Dominion.

PROVINCIAL RIGHTS FETISH.

Sir John A. Macdonald's clear-sightedness in advocating a legislative union at the time of Confederation is made more evident this year than ever before. He foresaw the whole line of political and legal controversies which have actually occurred, and he only agreed on the British North America Act as actually adopted because he found it to be at the moment the only political compromise which would make Confederation possible.

As a result of that compromise, however, provincial rights have been elevated into a fetish. It has legal sanction, but not entire sanction in common sense. Is it not the height of absurdity that the Attorney-General of Ontario should claim with some show of legal right that a contract between two Canadian bodies was illegal because it provided for power being delivered across or at the border line of two provinces?

It is a grave constitutional defect of the Canadian system that such an argument can be raised at all. Yet often in the past the question of provincial rights has been raised to block attempts at legislative reform. One could have inferentially a large majority of the Canadian people ardently desiring some reform and a minority could hold it up on this provincial rights issue. Atention of the voters has to be diverted in such crises from the desirability of the thing proposed to the question of, "Can it be done under our system?"

The Citizen of Quebec, Ontario or any other province has a right above provincial rights, a right to a constitution which will allow for orderly consideration and enactment of evident reforms in the interests of the people as a whole. Provincial rights become otherwise a public and private wrong, interfering with the actual welfare and desires of the people. Constitutional reform is long and gravely overdue.—Financial Post.

WORTH THINKING ABOUT.

The City Council of St. Catharines had settled down to the serious business of striking the tax rate for the year, and while this was taking place there was a gathering of unemployed men outside the building and they booed vigorously. We read the reason was they had been asking the Council to increase their relief vouchers 25 per cent. The tax rate was struck at 41 mills, and it was decided to issue debentures for $87,500 for direct relief this year. Last year debentures were used to secure $70,000 for this purpose, so in the two years there is $157,500 of added indebtedness on account of relief.

It is possible that unemployed people who are receiving relief and who have been receiving relief for several years do not stop to think the matter over carefully. In previous years when conditions were what we refer to as normal the city of St. Catharines, like the city of Stratford or any other of the smaller cities of the province, would not be a large employer of labor. There would be school teachers, firemen, policemen, employees of the board of works and so on. But the number would never be very great. The city as such had only a limited number of things which required doing, and those employed would be carrying on only the services which the city was placing at the disposal of the ratepayers.

When we ceased to live in that period of normalcy factories and offices and other concerns started letting their employees go. They said there was not sufficient business to warrant keeping them all employed; there had been a sharp falling off in revenue, and in order to save the firm the men had to go. They were leaving employment in such numbers that it was not possible to find other employers to absorb them. Then it was that they started coming to the city asking that they be given work. The city was asked to become an employer in a large way during a period when other employers were operating in a smaller way.

The city has no money except as it takes it from the ratepayers, and the ratepayers can only pay in money as they earn or receive it. When the earning ability of the ratepayers became lowered by reason of their non-employment, then their ability as taxpayers became lowered. So it was that cities all over the country were asked during a time of low-paying ability to operate on a greater scale than ever before as employers.

It is perhaps well to mention that a city is not merely a city hall and a set of offices. As far as the actual raising and spending of money is concerned it is a collection of people. In St. Catharines the people who own property (mortgaged or free) have actually pledged themselves to become responsible in the two-year period for $157,500 to assist those who have turned for help to the city after losing employment elsewhere. And that amount is pledged in addition to the payment of the 41-mill rate. It actually means that the people who are working are taking on this extra load, and we have no doubt many of them are working to-day for less money than they were in normal times.

It is not much encouragement to have people booing outside a public building while a further load is being shouldered on behalf of those who were doing the booing.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Monday's demonstration in the United Kingdom and throughout the Empire must have been disheartening to Communist leaders. It showed beyond the shadow of a doubt that the Red movement has failed completely in British countries.

Three more alphabetical combinations have been added to the list of Uncle Sam's Government relief agencies. It will soon take a puzzle expert to keep track of them all.

"London calling the British Empire," was one of the highlights of the jubilee celebration, both from an Empire and from a radio viewpoint.

Up to the present May has not earned many laurels in the matter of weather; let us hope the balance of the month will succeed in doing something to restore the month's reputation.

FLYING THE UNION JACK

Editor of The Examiner,

Sir,—In the great display of flag flying throughout the city in honor of our Majesty the King and Queen's Jubilee there were evidence of people being unaware that there is a right and wrong way to attach the Union Jack to the pole. This should be done by fixing it with the broad white line on top leading from the flag staff.

CHARLES HOLLAND REPLIES

To the Editor of The Examiner,

Sir,—Through the medium of the Voice of the People column may I have the privilege of replying to Messrs. John Bower of Lakefield and James Belles of this city whom, judging by the tenor of their correspondence seem to be interested not only in the suggested revival of a Holland and Childs leadership for the benefit of the local unemployed, but also in other matters relative to my own domestic and private affairs. However, seeing, they were courageous enough to avoid sheltering themselves behind a nom de plume, I consider they are justly entitled to the information which they seek. Although the points they have raised involve many issues which cannot be discussed in the public correspondence column as space would not permit, at least not to any great extent, therefore, with your permission, Mr. Editor, I propose to submit for publication, within a very short space of time, additional letters, the nature of which may enlighten the local unemployed to an alarming extent or as an alternative those of the local unemployed who are interested may make arrangements to accept the challenge of William Childs, which was published in The Examiner a short time ago to the effect that he would meet any members of the U.W.F. in open debate for the purpose of discussing the elements of local relief and other matters pertaining to Communism. Meantime, Messrs. John Bower and James Belles should again read The Examiner of April 2nd last. Thereafter, no doubt they will readily agree that The Examiner carries no record of my having informed the city council that I was satisfied with conditions of relief—My actual statement when addressing the council on April 1st were, "I have no complaint to make about the relief I have received," which was an expression in referring to my own schedule of relief and the treatment received. The fact of the matter is I possess many grounds of complaint, yet at the same time I have no genuine reason for harboring the said complaints due to the fact, that like many other receipients of relief I am receiving something for nothing as the saying goes."

Owing to physical disabilities preventing me from earning that which I receive, such conditions, could be abolished by appointing physical defectives who are in receipt of relief, to some form of suitable employment within the jurisdiction of the City Council. Such as clerkship, janitorship, messenger, chauffeur etc., such a policy would be beneficial to the taxpayer and at the same time, place the physical defective in the position of self-dependence and the restoration of his birth right.

Yours respectfully,
Charles Wm. Holland.

A Thought

A GARDEN

Friend, have you ever tried to plant
A garden in your mind?
A spot for lovely seeds of thought,
The noble, pure and kind.

It is surprising how it grows,
And blossoms into light;
But we must weed it every day,
If we would keep it bright.

It would be great if we could all
Have thoughts that bloom like flowers,
We might give seed to help some one
Replant in shady bowers.

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

Now we are able to examine alcohol with less prejudice than we did during the prohibition era.

Whether one uses it or not there is very little to be said in favor of it. We heard a great deal during the prohibition era of the outrageousness of allowing congress to dictate to medical men the drugs they should not use, but so far as alcohol was concerned, this was admittedly more a sentimental than an actual grievance.

In looking over the references to alcohol in standard medical books, it is found that in one text-book on medicine, alcohol is mentioned as the cause of disease in the discussion of 50 different diseases. This includes case of epilepsy, where alcohol in the parents is supposed to be a cause of the development of the disease in the offspring.

Alcohol Prohibited

In this same text, alcoholic beverages are prohibited in the treatment of 15 diseases. These include ulcer of the stomach, cirrhosis of the liver, Bright's disease and epilepsy. In recommending alcohol for treatment, only six diseases rate such a discussion. In pneumonia, it is said that it still has its advocates as a stimulant, but should be administered only to patients who are chronic alcoholic addicts. In cancer of the stomach, alcoholic beverages may be the only things that are tolerated. In heart weakness, it is stated that alcohol has been recommended, but that there is no certain evidence of its real value. In angina pectoris, it is said that alcohol improves the patients. In hardening of the arteries, it is also recommended to have light wines or moderately strong alcoholic drinks.

In a standard text-book on dietetics, the author discusses the various uses and values of alcoholic beverages, and admits that they may have some place in the diet, but concludes, "Upon the other hand, the enormous poverty, misery and unhappiness which comes to the race from the unrestricted use of alcohol greatly outweighs the benefit which is judicious use may bring to a few persons.

The question of whether alcohol should be classed among the foods is also debatable. Undoubterly it produces a certain number of calories, and in that sense it is a food, but it is neither an inexpensive nor an efficient food, and one of its main dangers is that the addict may use so much of it that he does not eat an adequate or balanced diet otherwise.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

M. J.: "(1) Is there a cure for pernicious anemia? (2) Is the eating of liver helpful, and what is the best way to prepare it."

Answer: (1) There is a treatment for pernicious anemia which amounts to cure. In other words, so long as the patient continues to eat liver or liver extract there will be no anemia. (2) The eating of liver is as valuable a way as any to take this treatment. There is no special way of preparing liver that is any better than any other, but the patient should eat half a pound a day.

A reader would like to have me list the institutions where medical treatment can be obtained by the part-pay method. Inasmuch as this column is printed all over the country, it is impossible to comply with this request for all my readers. Anyone who is interested can obtain the information either from the secretary of the local county medical society or from the secretary of the state medical society.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: 'Indigestion and Constipation', 'Reducing and Gaining', 'Infant Feeding', 'Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes', 'Feminine Hygiene' and 'The Care of the Hair and Skin.'

Public Schools Share In Novel Experiment

Lessons by air, bid fair to outrival correspondence courses!

Peterborough public schools are sharing with other schools in the province, in a series of radio broadcast lesson periods, which are being conducted experimentally by the Ontario Department of Education, Inspector A. Mowat told the Board of Education last night. Five of the six public schools in the city have been provided with radios, through the courtesy of local radio dealers, during the term of the experiment and two half-hour lesson periods are being broadcast by the Department from Toronto each week.

Mr. Mowat told The Examiner, teachers will be required to submit reports to the Department bearing upon the series of experimental broadcast lessons. He thought it probable the experiment would continue for the balance of the month.

Particularly good results were being obtained so far as music lessons are concerned, the Inspector believed.

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

THE FIRST QUAKERS IN CANADA

On this date (May 8th, 1792), two months before he took office officially at Kingston as lieutenant governor of Upper Canada, Colonel Simcoe wrote from Quebec to Phinea Bond of Philadelphia extending an invitation to Quakers to settle in Upper Canada. In that letter he forecast the legislation which made Upper Canada the first government in the world to prohibit slavery. He assured Bond: "If the Society of Friends should prefer the government of Upper Canada they will have a just right to such exemptions from bearing arms as they have hitherto met with under the ancient government of the British states....Should any society wish to emigrate I should be happy to give my best assistance to promote their views and establishment."

As a consequence quite a number of Quakers settled around York (Toronto) and in 1806 an address was presented to Sir Francis Gore, then lieutenant-governor, from the Quakers residing on Yonge street, "in which they voiced their loyalty to the King. This was signed by Timothy Rogers, the founder of a noted mercantile family. He had been one of a deputation which waited on Peter Hunter in 1799 to complain that the promises made by Simcoe had not been carried out, whereupon Hunter summoned the officials at fault and told them that if the land patents were not ready in three hours there would be vacancies in the civil service. The patents were produced forthwith.

The first Quaker settlement in Canada was at Beaver Harbor in New Brunswick, where Joshua Knight and his followers laid out a settlement which they named Pennfield in honor of the great William Penn whom, however much they revered, they could not follow into revolution. The settlement was not a success, but the Quaker loyalists carried on in the face of many difficulties until in 1790 a forest fire swept the district, leaving only one dwelling standing. A few of the settlers rebuilt, including the family of the founder, Joshua Knight, but Pennfield was no longer a Quaker colony. The members just drifted away.

Apparently the Society of Friends is dwindling in Canada. At the census of 1871 there were 7,345 registered which figure has steadily fallen until in 1931 there were only 2,424, or .02 of the population.

Thoughts that go through the Browser's mind as he reads a great book, Emil Ludwig's "Hindenburg": How easy it is for men to befuddle themselves with legends....How simple it is for a writer to tell the truth about a man if he lifts his eyes and looks straight at his subject....How little we knew about conditions in Germany during the war....How lucky we are to have a man like Emil Ludwig write biographies today....Emil Ludwig is a Jew, a volunteer exile from Germany, and because of this there will be some who will discount his book about Hindenburg. But the man has made an impassioned drive toward the truth, and therefore his "Hindenburg" rings with honesty on every page....He admits in his foreword that few private documents and official papers were available to him, and that he cannot reveal the names of Hindenburg's collaborators and adversaries who gave him information, but he says that if he waited until all sources were unsealed, "no one will any longer want to read a book on Hindenburg"....So he writes his book now, while it is important to know how a man of essentially fine character came to so tragic an end....

Hindenburg was a simple man, of simple tastes. He did not want wars, he never dreamed of ruling Germany, he hoped when the war was ended to buy himself a cotton umbrella, take a cab to the station and go home to his dear wife. But the war ended in defeat, not victory, so Hindenburg—in defense of his class—was forced into the Great Lie, that Germany's army would have won the war if it had not been stabbed in the back by non-combatants!....This lie horrifies Emil Ludwig, and to refute it he has written this most necessary book.

Other books, not so necessary, are more cheerful reading....Novels like Rachel Field's "Time Out of Mind." A long book and a lovely one—about Kate Fernald, as sturdy as an apple tree in the autumn, born to sacrifice herself out of goodness, for love. She thought she never had been free in all her life, but a man said to her that she was like a rooted tree, striking deep, living strongly. One of the best of the Maine novels.

And for all who live in California or would be going there, Basil Woon's "San Francisco and the Golden Empire" is a fine book to have. Woon told the Browser that his book has some mistakes in it which he hopes to correct, but there's nothing faulty in Woon's love of his subject or in his skill at putting a book together.

America lost a poet when Edward Arlington Robinson died. Once he said to a friend that time alone could tell whether he was a great poet or not. This can be said of him: He wouldn't have read his poems in public for a million dollars....

Anna Katherine Green who died the other day wrote more than 25 mystery stories but always wanted to be a poet. Ralph Waldo Emerson had encouraged her. She would have been 89 this year....There's no more space for

EX-BELLEVILLE PRINTER W. WHITE DIES IN N. YORK

NEW YORK, May 8 (C.P.)—William H. White, who first smelled printer's ink in Belleville, Ont., and was a peer among "copy handlers" in the New York Times composing room for close on 50 years, is dead following a stroke. He was 69.

When he was 14 "Harry" White went to work for the Daily Ontario at Belleville. After his apprenticeship he went to the Journal Intelligencer, of the same city, before spending a few years with upstate New York papers. Then he came to The Times.

His reputation for accuracy won him the assignment of guiding visiting personages through the blue lights and clinking machines of The Times composing room. In 1924 he performed this office for the Prince of Wales.

DISTILLERIES CLOSE UPSIDE

Metal, Steel, Bank and Utilities Also Show Gains in Heavy Trading.

OILS FEATURE.

TORONTO, May 8 (C.P.) — The industrial section of the Toronto Exchange had its best market in many weeks to-day, volume expanding on a rising price level. Oils provided the feature, particularly Imperial and International Petroleum, both selling at top prices for years. Distillery, metal, steel, bank and utilities closed behind plus signs.

The turnover swelled to better than 40,000 shares for the first time since January. Imperial Oil accounted for about 15,000 shares and it advanced to 18, up ⅝, the best price in four years. International Pete, closing around 34¼, had a gain of a small fraction.

Industrial Alcohol "A" was the only soft spot in the liquor group, selling down ⅜, while Walkers Common and Distillers Seagrams registered narrow gains. Gains shaped for Canadian Car and Foundry stocks, Steel of Canada, Dominion Bridge and Page Hersey, and in the utilities higher prices ruled for Shawinigan, Beauharnois and Union Gas.

DIONNES WOULD ADOPT QUINTS

Government, Oliva Dionne, the father; Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, the babies' physician since birth, and Judge J. A. Valin of North Bay.

Mr. Croll's plea that married couples in Ontario make special efforts to adopt children in the week set apart and his recital of benefits of a home life rather than an institutional upbringing, were used by Oliva Dionne in his letter as reasons why the babies should be returned to his wife and himself.

Oliva's Appeal.

The father's letter said:

"Hon. D. Croll, Toronto.

"Dear Sir,—I see by the press of May 3 that you plan an 'adopt-a-child week.'

"May we be permitted to beg to be allowed to adopt our own quintuplets?"

"You said, 'Make them not wards, but sons and daughters.' We are qualified to take care of them. We have experience. In our marriage we received the necessary graces to bring them up in the fear and love of God. Therefore we are the only ones who can give them the necessary love, sympathy and understanding that they need more than everything else in the world.'

"Please grant us that 'deep joy which a child brings.'

"Very respectfully yours,

"Oliva Dionne."

Hamilton Steel Men Organize To Strike

HAMILTON, May 8. (CP).—Employees of all departments in the Hamilton plant of the Steel Company of Canada were called upon to-day by the Steel and Metal Workers' Industrial Union to organize in preparation to "strike against the whole steel company" in support of 300 sheet mill workers who walked out Monday. Demands are for improved working conditions and an upward adjustment of the wage scale.

Ross H. McMaster, president of the company, came here from Montreal to attend a conference with officials of the plant. The conference was in session all morning but no statement was forthcoming at adjournment at lunch time.

Meanwhile the striking employees were maintaining a passive but firm front in the headquarters they established yesterday morning in a vacant house immediately opposite the company's east gate and overlooking the sheet mill plant in which the company was erecting its eighth rolling mill.

Earhart Off On Hop Mexico To New York

MEXICO, D.F., May 8 (A.P.).—Amelia Earhart took off at 6 a.m. local time (7 a.m., E.S.T.) to-day on an attempted non-stop flight to New York.

As soon as it was light enough for her to see down the three-mile-long runway, the famed woman flier donned her parachute and climbed into her big red monoplane, which had been loaded with 472 gallons of gasoline and 20 gallons of oil.

She carried one sandwich, one boiled egg, a bottle of water a bar of chocolate and a container of grapefruit juice for nourishment on the flight, which she estimated would take between 14 and 16 hours.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, May 8 (A.P.).—The stock market maintained its early firm tone during late trading today, with no important changes shown by leaders.

U.S. Smelting extended its early advance to 3 points and gainers of 1 to 2 included Chrysler, Westinghouse, American Can, J. I. Case, Union Carbide, Corn Products, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, Cerro de Pasco, Dupont and Cuban American Preferred.

SIGNED PAPERS

an agreement with Thomas Sleeman.

In another document he had agreed to assume the mortgage which had been taken by Sleeman for a loan of $5,000 from the Development Board, and a payment of $293 on the mortgage had been made by the defendant.

The time and other circumstances of his signing the mortgage seemed to be mysteries to the aged farmer. He either forgot them entirely, or wholly misunderstood their import; but several times he repeated yesterday afternoon: "I never intended to mortgage the place."

"When I got the farm back from Sleeman I did not agree to pay off the mortgage which they had placed on it, and I did not mean to sign any paper to that effect," Trelevan said.

"But," suggested His Lordship, "the $200 which you paid on the mortgage?"

"That $200 was to pay the taxes, I thought," replied Trelevan.

Shared With Sleeman

Patiently the court tried to learn the old farmer's conception of the transactions. Trelevan explained that he had originally owned the farm. Several years ago, growing old and with a large acreage to look after, he agreed to allow Thomas Sleeman to work the farm and in return, $200 a year and his board and lodging with the use of a horse and buggy, was what Trelevan was content to receive.

Sleeman was to have whatever he could make out of the farm. Failure of Sleeman to live up to the agreement resulted in litigation. Treleven got the farm back, but in the meantime a mortgage had been plastered on it with the Development Board. Trelevan signed off his life interest and assumed the mortgage but according to T. P. Hall, K.C., of Cobourg, who had acted on his behalf at the time, and who gave evidence yesterday for the plaintiff, Treleven adhered to the idea that he still retained the life interest in the farm and that the Development Board could not evict him.

Did Not Understand It

Mr. Hall had obtained Trelevan's signature to the document whereby he had agreed to assume the mortgage but the old man stoutly insisted yesterday that he did not know what he was signing.

"I read it over to him before he signed it," recalled Mr. Hall when questioned by A. R. Willmott, solicitor for the plaintiff.

The firm conviction on the part of Mr. Treleven that he had a right to stay on the land in defiance of the foreclosure by the board was borne out by the evidence of Colonel Lorne McLaughlin who had called on behalf of the board.

"He told me that he would not give up possession and that he hoped it would not be necessary to have to stand there with a gun," recalled Colonel McLaughlin.

What William Treleven thought he was doing when he signed one paper after another did not effect the decision of the court, which based itself on the solid evidence of fact, and so a tired old man will gather his few belongings and quite the farm which has been his home for many years and go—where?

You will find many things in the Classified Ads of The Examiner.

MINING LIST CLOSES STRONG

Senior Golds Take More Active Part Than Usual in Day's Trade.

HIGHER LONDON PRICE.

TORONTO, May 8 (C.P.). — Inflation sentiment and a higher gold price in London were more than a match for the bears and a lower silver price in the mining section of the Toronto Exchange to-day. After a morning dip for golds and silvers the whole list moved forward to a strong close, leaving the board well spotted with gains. Senior golds took a more active part than usual in the day's trade.

Trade expanded in the Base Metals with Noranda in the lead and higher by about 50 cents. Hudson Bay, Base Metals Corporation, Pend Oreille, and Falconbridge were all firm.

Dome gold had a gain of about 1.50, while McIntyre picked up nearly as much and Pioneer and Hollinger chalked up small gains. Eldorado silver gradually pressed upward till it touched 2.34. Castle added about 5 cents and Bear the same amount, while Nipissing closed better than 10 cents higher.

Pickle Crow, McWatters, and Little Long Lac led the medium-priced golds by gaining 4 to 15 cents each. Sylvanite dropped a couple of points. San Antonio dropped 20 to 3.10 and fully recovered and the other issues of the group were unchanged.

346 GRADUATE AT QUEEN'S "U"

Honorary Degrees Are Presented to Four Outstanding Citizens.

KINGSTON, Ont., May 8 (C.P.). — Three hundred and forty-six graduates of Faculties of Arts and Applied Science, including three graduates of Queen's Theological College, to-day received their diplomas, prizes and medals at the annual spring Convocation of Queen's University. The number of graduates for 1935 is approximately the same as for 1934.

Honorary degrees of Doctor of Laws were given to the following: Arthur Gibson, Dominion Entomologist and head of the Entomological Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture; Duncan McArthur, Ontario Deputy Minister of Education; Wilfred Clifford Clark, Deputy Minister of Finance.

Rev. John Robert Paterson Sclater, Old St. Andrew's Church, Toronto, was the recipient of an honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity.

A feature of the program was the presentation of the Humane Society medal to Dr. Charles Frederick Galway, graduate of the Faculty of Medicine of Queen's University, 1933, for his efforts to save the life of a man whose canoe had upset in Camsell River. The presentation was made by Dr. W. E. McNeill, vice-principal and treasurer of Queen's.

Firemen Search In Vain For Woman Ill In Bed

BRANTFORD, Ont., May 8 (CP).—In thick smoke and intense heat, firemen worked frantically last night to find Mrs Roland Potter, reported to be ill in bed at her home when fire broke out in the building.

Bystanders told firemen "there's a woman in there," and without even the aid of smoke masks, firemen risked suffocation by heat and smoke to crawl through the windows and into every room in the house.

They were unable to find Mrs Potter, and it was later learned she had been removed a few days ago to the home of her son, George Finch. The flames caused heavy damage.

LONDON, May 8 (CP Cable). — The inspiration furnished by the King, "of wise and tactful leadership" and of "unswerving devotion to duty" was praised by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett of Canada today as no small factor in the success of the Empire in withstanding the period of stress after the war.

Presents Gold Casket

At the reception in St. James' Palace to Empire leaders and foreign diplomats, Prime Minister Bennett presented to His Majesty the gift gold casket containing the humble address of loyalty passed by the Canadian Senate and House of Commons. Making the presentation, Premier Bennett said:

"I have the high privilege and the great honor to humbly offer Your Majesty on behalf of the people and government of Canada this message of loyal devotion and of respectful congratulation.

"We render praise and thanksgiving to the Almighty that our King, whose counsels have ever been directed to the Glory of God and the welfare of His people, has been spared to reach the 25th year of his reign.

"During this period events of a magnitude and consequence never before recorded in the history of the world have occurred. The clash of armored strife has been followed by turmoil of economic and political adjustments. There has been no calm after the storm; no peace after the conflict.

Time of Stress

"It has been a time that has tested as never before the qualities alike of nations and of individuals. That the British Empire has successfully withstood this test has been due in no small measure to the fact that you, sir, have given us the inspiration of wise and tactful leadership, no selfish favoritism and unswerving devotion to duty.

"Under your sovereignty the Empire has witnessed far-reaching changes through constitutional evolution. These changes, however, have served but to strengthen our loyalty to the throne and to deepen our sentiments of affection and devotion towards Your Majesty. To-day, sir, through you, the people of your vast Empire are united in one family of nations.

Queen Shares Regards.

"May I add, sir, that your gracious consort, her Majesty the Queen, shares in our hearts the place held by your Majesty. We remember at this time your words on ascending the Throne, 'I am encouraged by the knowledge that I have in my dear wife one who will be my constant helpmate in every endeavor for our people's good.' No Queen has associated herself more sympathetically or effectively with a reigning sovereign in supporting the Throne.

"I hope, sir, it is not unfitting for me to state that our King and Queen in their life and work together have given the peoples of the Empire an example which has strengthened and ennobled the conception of family life which is the true basis of all human happiness and national greatness.

"I speak for every citizen of your Majesty's Dominion of Canada, wherever he may dwell, when I pledge anew our allegiance and vouchsafe the earnest hope that your Majesty may long continue under Providence to lead your people along the paths of peace, prosperity and honor."

U.S. Plans To Probe Chain Letter Game

WASHINGTON, May 8. (AP)—Expressing the belief the chain letter scheme would collapse soon under its own weight, United States postal authorities to-day nevertheless sought to combat the latest get-rich-quick plan.

In Colorado, Post Office Inspector Roy E. Neilson is preparing his case against three Denver businessmen who pleaded not guilty late yesterday to his charges of using the mails to defraud. The three, Nelson contends, were involved in a dollar chain letter game.

At Washington, Chief Post Office Inspector J. P. Aldrich was said to be planning details of a nation-wide investigation of the scheme. Already postmasters throughout the country have been informed of Solicitor General Crowley's ruling "A dime chain mail" is illegal because it violates lottery and fraud laws.

REV. R. J. CRAIG WINS ELECTION FOR MODERATOR

Veteran Kingston Preacher, 71 Years in Ministry, Carries Second Ballot.

WAITED 59 YEARS.

TORONTO, May 8.—Rev. R. J. Craig, M.A., after waiting 59 years for a nomination was overwhelmingly elected moderator of the Synod of Toronto and Kingston of the Presbyterian Church in Canada last night at the opening meeting of the synod in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

The little white-haired, white-moustached minister from Kingston, who was nominated by the Presbytery of Lindsay, is believed to be the oldest moderator in the Dominion, and it is unlikely that any other minister can compete with him from standpoint of years in active service. Mr. Craig, who was approached last night regarding the matter of age, merely answered: "I'm the youngest man here."

Mr. Craig admits to 71 years in the ministry of his church, but last night refused with determination to reveal his age.

He became moderator after the synod refused to accede to his request that he be allowed to withdraw.

"I have been waiting 59 years to get a nomination in the Toronto and Kingston Synod," he commented jovially when his name had been placed before the synod by Rev. Dr. W. G. Smith and his protests cried down.

Mr. Craig's name was placed before the synod with the names of Rev. C. E. Kidd, nominated by the presbyteries of Kingston and Orangeville; Rev. Samuel Lawrence, nominated by the presbytery of Saugeen, and Rev. W. H. V. Walker, nominated by the presbytery of Peterborough. Mr. Craig secured by far the largest vote in the first poll and Mr. Walker dropped out. In a second vote Mr. Craig had a clear majority and the meeting thereupon made the vote unanimous.

Last night Mr. Craig was in charge of the memorial service, held for those ministers and eldest who had passed away since the last meeting. Later he told the press he hoped he had not made it too long—he had a "horror" of long sermons, he said.

Preaching at Three.

He began preaching at the age of three or four, he said. Born in Kingston he graduated from Queen's University in 1871 in arts and in 1874 in theology. He later took post graduate work at Edinburgh. His first ordained charge was at Deseronto where he spent 18 years. From 1894-9 he lived in the southern part of Germany. The following 12 years he spent in Kingston as treasurer of the presbytery of the Presbyterian Church and doing supply work.

In 1909 he went to Northern Ontario to engage in missionary work with headquarters at Parry Sound, and during this time was clerk of North Bay presbytery. Four years later he went to minister to Knox congregation in Prince Edward County. In 1924 he retired from congregational work but remained clerk of the Kingston presbytery, an appointment which he received in 1909 and in which he continues at the present time.

Dr. Smith, in placing Mr. Craig's name before the court, stated Mr. Craig had been a commissioner to the General Assembly of the Church in 1875, when its different branches had united to make the Presbyterian Church in Canada. "He is a modest man whose name for 60 years has been on the roll of our presbyteries," said Dr. Smith.

Rev. N. R. D. Sinclair, retiring moderator, conducted the service of worship preceding the business meeting, and warned both the ministers and the elders against intellectual idleness. The duty of the church was not only to evangelize, but also to teach, so that each generation would possess greater strength of character than the last.

This morning the sederunts of the synod began with reports from committees and overtures from various presbyteries. During the afternoon sederunt the work and claims of Knox College will be presented and an address given by Rev. Dr. Jonathan Goforth.

28 CHILDREN ARE CONFIRMED

His Excellency, Bishop O'Connor of Peterborough Administers Sacrament.

IN CAMPBELLFORD CHURCH

CAMPBELLFORD, May 8 (Examiner Correspondence). — Most Rev. Denis O'Connor, D.D., Bishop of Peterborough, said the first Mass at St. Mary's Church, Campbellford, on Jubilee Sunday, May 5th, and after the High Mass administered the Sacrament of Confirmation to 28 children of the parish. His Excellency spoke at both Masses in connection with the Jubilee of King George, saying, "We are celebrating to-day the 25th anniversary of the accession to the Throne of His Gracious Majesty King George V. It also coincides with my coming to administer the Sacrament of Confirmation to your children, who will have reason to remember the day of their confirmation, as it is also the day of the King's Jubilee."

Referring to the King's clemency in releasing the inmates from the penitentiary, the Bishop said that he could do not better than to imitate the King's example by omitting the usual examinations on this particular occasion. He then went on to speak of the seven sacraments and their place in the life of man, and spoke of confirmation in particular, alluding to the seven gifts of the Holy Ghost which are received through that sacrament and pointed out the necessity of co-operation with the help received in that sacrament.

Turning again to the subject of the King's Jubilee Bishop O'Connor said that he was here also to celebrate with the people of Campbellford this twenty-fifth anniversary, and pointed out the reason why people should take part in such a celebration, because loyalty to authority is inherent and well grounded in every Christian heart. Saint Paul points out, "Let every soul be subject to authority," said the Bishop and also urged the people to pray for all who are in high station, that we may lead a quiet and peaceful life.

He also spoke of the National Anthem, stating that it had its title directly from the Bible, as we read in the 9th verse of the 19th Psalm, "God save he King," and his same verse "Salvum Fac Regem," has been incorporated in the official prayers of the church.

"Thus we base our loyalty in a deep faith in the teaching of Christianity and strive to obey the teaching of Saint Paul, "Fear God and honor the King." Therefore to-day we rejoice and congratulate the King—His Majesty and his gracious consort. Our King is a King above reproach, both in public and private life, and in thanksgiving to God for the blessings of his glorious reign we join with all the people of the other parishes of the diocese singing the Hymn of Thanksgiving, "Holy God We Praise Thy Name." Subsequently the Bishop journeyed to Grafton, Warkworth and Wooler to administer Confirmation.

COLORFUL LEVEE IS HIGHLIGHT glory and achievement, stands in the record of our age as among the worthiest in the history of this great and friendly Empire which is itself one of the foundations of our common civilization."

The message closed with heartfelt congratulations to the monarch over his 25th accession anniversary and with the trust "that Divine Providence may grant Your Majesty the Queen, the Prince of Wales and the Royal Family long years of happiness and prosperity."

King is Deeply Touched

The Monarch replied:

"The warmth and sincerity of the congratulations and good wishes you have just addressed to me in the name of the diplomatic body accredited to my court have deeply touched the Queen and myself."

Declaring a "happy augury for the future" the fact that "envoys from every quarter of the globe are assembled here in amity and good will," the King continued:

"Your excellency, once more I thank you and your colleagues on my own behalf and in the name of the Queen and of my family for your kind expressions of good will.

"I deeply appreciate and heartily reciprocate them, and I pray to God that the unity of purpose which has brought you here together may be a symbol of enduring peace in the world at large."

Crowd Lines Streets.

A crowd of over 10,000 persons gathered outside Buckingham Palace to see the King and Queen depart in a closed automobile for St. James' Palace where the reception was held in the white and gold throne room.

The cheers of the crowd in front of the palace and down the Mall toward St. James' drowned out the notes of the National Anthem played by a military band.

Dominion Sentiments

The four Empire premiers, expressed the sentiments of their dominions as they handed to the King the addresses passed by the dominion parliaments. Prime Minister Bennett spoke for Canada; Prime Minister J. B. Hertzog for South Africa, Prime Minister J. A. Lyons for Australia and Prime Minister G. W. Forbes for New Zealand.

The King's reply to the Empire presentations follows:

"There is a word which saddens me more especially when I hear it used by my friends from overseas—many of whom say when they visit this country, they are 'coming home.' It is in this spirit that the Queen and I meet you to-day, you who represent the vast territories of the dominion, colonies, protectorates, my peoples of India and the dwellers in countless Isles of the sea from the Pacific to home waters.

"We greet the prime ministers of the dominions now equal partners in the Empire, and I thank them for the addresses of their parliaments, which they have handed to me. We welcome one and all to our home.

Proud of "His Family"

"Eventful your visit cannot fail to be; I trust it will be happy also. When the time comes for your return, I would ask you each to take back to his own people a message of affection to every member of this great family, of which I am so proud and thankful to be the head; and a message of deep gratitude for the loyal and kind words which you have spoken on their behalf.

"All you who are here to-day, and who hold responsible positions, will best know what inspiration and encouragement your words are to me to continue the task which 25 years ago I set myself to do. Before I succeeded my father the Queen and I had the privilege of studying at first hand the dominions overseas and India. We were fellow travellers then as now, comparing notes and sharing impressions. We treasure these memories and keep them alive. Moreover, what we forget, our four sons are able to recall.

One Spirit

"Many years before our happy partnership began I had as a midshipman sailed the seven seas. I early realized that the Empire has many climes but one spirit.

"I regard this as a unique gathering where we can tell one another our successes and also our failures and mistakes. But there will be no sharp criticism nor vain regrets, for we are in sympathy with one another, conscious that we acted according to our lights for the good name and ordered prosperity of the family.

"We are sometimes told we are lacking in logic, our political institutions are loose and ill-defined, but I look back on the trying and testing time through which we have passed and wonder whether a less flexible system would have stood the strains to which we have been subjected.

Heritage of Liberty.

"With commonsense and goodwill as our shield and buckler we have kept, in spite of all difficulties, our heritage of liberty alike for the individual and for our many constituent races. The numberless invisible ties of sentiment and tradition which bind us together are indeed delicate, but many strands make a cable strong to bind in times of adversity.

"It is my prayer no less than my firm belief that this bond of the spirit may also prove a bond of peace.

"Some of you are, with a few happy exceptions, about my own age. I pray for continuance of God's blessing on your labors. With His help I will work on with you in the years that remain for that object which ever has been next to my heart: the welfare of the Mother Country and of the dominions overseas and of India, their happiness and their good repute."

COAL FIRM MAY ABANDON CORBIN

Mine Strike Since January is Likely to Leave Centre "Ghost Town."

OPERATING 27 YEARS.

CORBIN, B.C., May 8 (C.P.)—Corbin to-day faced the prospect of becoming a "ghost town."

Torn by a strike of 300 coal miners since January 20, and faced with business troubles, the management of the Corbin Collieries, Ltd., last night announced it would abandon its properties and close all mines.

Corbin, a company town, lacking civic officials saw prospects of a wholesale exodus of its 620 residents.

Sherwood Lett of Vancouver, director of the company, said he understood the company was withdrawing from the Corbin field permanently.

The mines, in operation 27 years, and other property holdings of the company, represented an investment of $4,500,000.

CANADIAN SEEKS TABOR ESTATE

Worth $3,000,000 is Belief of South African and Great War Veteran.

RECALLS "BABY DOE."

EDMONTON, May 8 (C.P.). — Down on his luck and in doubt where his next meal is coming from, a South African and Great War veteran here is a claimant to the famous Tabor estate in Leadville, Col., which he believes is worth about $3,000,000. He is C. W. Tabor, 52, until recently a resident of Red Pass Junction, 44 miles west of Jasper.

Recently Elizabeth McCourt 'Baby Doe' Tabor, 73-year-old actress-wife of the late H. A. W. Tabor, mining prince of the roaring eighties, died in her lonely cabin near the famous Matchless mine which netted its owner $11,000,000 in silver and gold in the early days. She left no will and unless an heir can prove his claim to the estate it all goes to the State.

Mr. Tabor, who knew "Baby Doe" years ago, has started legal proceedings to claim the estate on the ground he is the closest living relative of the late Mr. Tabor. "My grandfather was the youngest brother of H. A. W. Tabor's father," he explained.

Born in Warminster, England, Mr. Tabor joined the Natal Mounted Police, and 35 years ago, when the South African War broke out, joined up as a trooper. Recently in Vancouver he received the Queen's South African medal for his services as he had left South Africa before obtaining the award he had won.

He believes he is the only survivor of the funeral bodyguard of Cecil Rhodes when the famous explorer was buried in the Mattopos Hills in Rhodesia.

Mr. Tabor served with the Royal Engineers' 33rd Field Company throughout the World War. He came to Canada 28 years ago.

POST OFFICES

Finally, they reach saturation point and everybody "breaks even."

Professor A. T. DeLury, Professor Emeritus of Mathematics, University of Toronto: "I've just come back to the city, and don't know much about chain-letters. But from the way you describe the system to me, I'd say it would work all right for a certain time, and that the originator—the man who started each letter—would certainly make some money. But, carried to its logical conclusion, the thing is absurd, for it is ridiculous to assume that each person in Canada and the United States could pay out one ten-cent piece and make $1,500 or some other large sum. I'd like to get hold of a sample letter and do some figuring."

Final "Catch."

And here is the final "catch" in the idea, in the words of an unnamed postal official interviewed: "We might have our troubles intercepting some of the letters that have no money in them. But, as a man's name reaches the top of the list, just suppose that 15,000 people send him 10 cents each. Why, the postman on his route would be swamped, and we would know what was up. We would step in, seize all his incoming letters, and he would be out his own original 10 cents, his postage, and a lot of trouble."

Here is a typical chain letter received by a well-known Toronto man, and bearing at its top six names and addresses:

"Prosperity Club.

"This charm was started in the hope of bringing prosperity to you.

"Within the next three days make five copies of this letter, leaving off the top name, address, and adding your name and address at the bottom of the list, and hand five of your friends copies to whom you wish prosperity to come.

"In omitting the top name, send that person 10 cents wrapped in paper as a charity donation.

"All five copies are to be duplicates and the top name and address to be omitted is the same on each copy.

"You will send only one 10-cent piece to that person and not one for each copy."

REWARD POSTED FOR LOST MAN

Hamiltonian Offers $15 For Clue to Whereabouts of Harold Heaven.

IN HALIBURTON?

LINDSAY, May 8.—The brick residence of Thomas Karrys on Russell Street, was badly damaged by fire yesterday afternoon, caused, it is believed, by defective wiring. The blaze broke out over the kitchen, and the firemen had a fight on their hands for over an hour. The contents were practically ruined by smoke and water and the loss will be heavy. A small insurance was carried.

Cecil Heaven, of Hamilton, has offered a reward of $100 for the solution of the mystery involved in the mysterious disappearance of his son, Harold, aged 25 years, in Haliburton County last fall. The young man occupied a cottage at Horseshoe Falls during the summer and fall and disappeared from view in October. A settler found the lamp in his cottage burned dry, and as there was no sign of life about the place, the authorities were at once notified. A persistent search was kept up through the wilds of the north country until snow fell.

HOW'S YOUR STOMACH?

YOU lose vital nerve force if you allow your stomach to distress you. Acid stomach, indigestion, gas or biliousness and "costiveness" cause the blood to be poisoned and will eventually destroy health and nerve force. This is what Francis Henry Cook of 467 Elizabeth St., London, Ont., said: "I had indigestion and my stomach was so sore I could not bear to touch it. I got where I did not have any health at all, was not able to follow my usual line of work. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery relieved me of the indigestion and weak stomach and built me up in health. I can highly recommend it." New size, tablets 50 cts., liquid $1.00.

INCREASE NOTED IN CITY'S SHARE JUSTICE COSTS

City Council Orders Delivery to 1933 Tax Roll to the Collector.

REFUND LICENSES.

Peddlers' Licenses Are Increased From $75 to $200 By Council.

If the municipal mill grinds slowly and quietly, it also grinds inevitably and ceaselessly, turning out its annual grist of tax bills.

An innocent, routine resolution by Alderman Macdonald, seconded by Alderman Ellis, at last night's meeting of the council instructed City Clerk Armstrong to deliver the 1935 assessment roll to Tax Collector Curtis, foreshadowing the eventual issue of tax bills for payment on the prescribed dates.

And that's not going to add any merriment to the community. At various times last year William J. Henry, city assessor, and his assistant or confederate, Arthur Ringer, walked their well-worn beat, casting appraising eyes over the rateable property, and generally preparing the assessment roll for 1935. The clerical staff in City Clerk Armstrong's office then took over the rolls, probably after the turn of the year, and began calculating the amounts of taxes to be paid by ratepayers on what are listed as fixed charges. Then when the council fixed the tax rate for 1935 early in March, the embryonic tax bills were embellished considerably,—not the actual bills, but the amounts to be charged against each taxpayer as listed in the assessor's tomes.

That preliminary work has been completed behind the scenes, and the rolls are passed along to Mr. Curtis who sets about translating the grief from the pages of the assessor's books, to the standard and familiar sheets which one of these days will confront the owners of property and those who pay business and income taxes.

Further along the horizon of taxes last night the council hung up one little glowing spot of comfort, implementing the Hepburn Government's amendment to the Assessment Act of 1935 which reduces the penalty on taxes in arrears from 5 to 4 per cent.

Administration of Justice

One of several by-laws adopted last night embodied a new five-year agreement to pay the county $11,-814.89 annually as the city's share of the cost of the administration of justice. Alderman McIntyre remarked that this bill was about $1,800 higher than the requisition from the city for the five year term that has now expired.

Administration of justice embraces the cost of the various courts presiding at the Court House, jail maintenance, and other considerable incidentals which are included under the general heading. The county council pays the bills, and levies against the city on a prorated basis which is revised every five years.

For the period from 1926 to 1930, inclusive, the revision has been scaled upward.

A Refund of $361.50

Two minor items for the records last night related to the recent flurry along the green grocers' front stirred up by the house to house emporium on wheels which Mrs. Mollie Brown of Toronto sent down to Peterborough in a big way.

The truck was manned by a crew of five, the truck driver and four leg men. Peddlers' licenses for the doorbell ringers were provided by Mrs. Brown at $75 each, a total of $300. Local opposition and perhaps realization that the invasion of Peterborough wasn't likely to turn out so profitable as was expected persuaded Mrs. Brown to call in the truck. She asked for a refund of the license money, and the council returned it all except $12.50. The cheque on the city's treasury in Mrs. Brown's name will be for $287.50.

And just to encourage that kind of competition not only in fruits and vegetables but in other commodities covered by the city's by-law, the council boosted the license fee for non-resident peddlers from $75 to $200, a tilt of $125. This by-law, however, does not apply in any way to producers of fruit and vegetables and such goods who sell from house to house.

$300 to Cancer Fund

Peterborough's contribution to the King's cancer fund for Canada is $300. The motion by Alderman Cotton, seconded by Alderman Tuggey, was carried unanimously. The community subscription was adopted by the council instead of authorizing a tag day appeal, and represents the public's response to the suggestion of King George V that his jubilee be signalized by the establishment of a fund to be spent in combatting this disease here in Canada.

Grateful to Committee

The council's appreciation of the successful efforts of the citizens who comprised the general committee in charge of the celebration in Peterborough of the King's jubilee was expressed in a formal resolution by Alderman Fitzpatrick, seconded by Alderman Cotton.

James Griffin's request for permission to operate a retail woodyard on his premises at 475 Rubidge street was not granted in accordance with a recommendation by City Engineer Parsons.

Mr. Parsons said that the lot seemed too small for a business of that kind, and it is located on the west side of Rubidge and south of Murray street, near the end of the street where it descends to the C.N.R.

Daylight Saving Resolution

Recent rumours that a daylight saving petition was on the way to the council were not even mentioned last night. The subject did crop up in a resolution from the council of Bowmanville proposing that the federal government pass a uniform daylight saving law for Canada as a whole.

The resolution was referred to the Legal Committee.

THREATENING WEATHER DELAYS BLUENOSE SAIL

HALIFAX, May 8 (C.P.).—Captain Angus Walters scanned threatening skies from the deck of the Bluenose to-day, and it looked as though his champion racing schooner were to spend one more day in Canadian waters before sailing away for England.

When Bluenose finally slips out of Halifax harbor, she will be started on her first trans-Atlantic voyage.

The veteran skipper is taking her over to Great Britain to give the Englishmen an idea of just what a real racing fisherman looks like. They'll be seeing her until November, when she ups anchor and heads back to America for a possible series with challenger Gertrude L. Thebaud for the trophy.

Thebaud was going to race her over and back, but the plans fell through.

Y.W. PAGEANT FRIDAY NIGHT

"Romance of Toy Shop" Only Portion of Good Programme.

Something For Everyone.

Streamlines are the latest word in modern inventions and appliances. We have streamline cars and aeroplanes and furniture, to say nothing of clothes.

Now comes a streamline doll, to make its stage appearance at the Grand Opera House on Friday evening of this week, at the big gymnasium Pageant of the Young Women's Christian Association, which is looked forward to so eagerly from year to year by every member of the association. From the tiniest tot in the Baby class to the Senior members, anticipation is keen as the time rolls around for the production of the big show. Hundreds of busy fingers have been plying needles for weeks and weeks in the lower rooms at the 'Y', as the many colorful and gorgeous costumes are evolved.

But the "Romance of the Toy Shop," which represents the theme of this year's extravaganza, is only a portion of the big event.

Those who enjoy seeing physical perfection and skill, as exemplified yearly in the drills and routines of the physical classes at the 'Y', will be glad to know that there will be the usual round of snappy exercises: German gymnastics, pyramids, intricate club and dumbell drills, wand and reed movements and the adorable Babies' Class in "setting up" exercises.

"Something for everyone" might well be the motto of these annual Pageants, which provide physical demonstrations, dances, tiny tots' entertaining antics, and plenty of color and music, for the patrons.

It might be interesting to know just who will have some of the principal roles in the "Romance of the Toy Shop" which forms a colorful portion of the Pageant. Miss Jessie Pattison is the Shop Keeper; the assistants are Miss Dolly Boyle and Miss Gladys Watson; the Mother is Mrs. J. Forbes; the Child is Miss Marion Sutherland; the Jumping Jack is Miss Alicia Langley; the Ball is Miss Irish Forbes; the Prince is Miss Mary McPherson; the Princess is Miss Loone Comstock; the Maids of Honour are the Misses Florence Trebilcock and Dolly Boyle.

FUEL DEALERS SEEK CHANGE

who start up in business and stay in it only a short time with little or no investment at stake. In the wood business we ask only that the council define what a "load" is. There are four advertisements in to-night's paper for wood at two or three dollars or more a load. The local dealers sell wood according to the cord measurement, and we think the council should say what a load is."

Mr. Turner added that the wood dealers had been paying taxes here for years, and were asking for nothing more than the council had accorded the green grocers and fruit dealers.

Month's Expenditure

Board of Works expenditure for April amounted to $2,449.26 of which $1713.69 was for wages, $462.-76 for material and $267.49 for salaries.

April Relief Bill

The city's relief bill for April totalled $12,650.34, as follows:—provisions $7,182.39; milk $1,169.90; fuel $1,822.93; clothing $949.16; medicine $6.50; rent $2,102.86; doctors $620.

2,532 On Relief

A. G. Metheral's April report included the following details:—heads of families 593; dependents of heads of families 1,864; single men 36; single women 39; total number of individuals on relief 2,532.

Orders for provisions 1694; fuel orders 630; milk orders 457; clothing orders 394; dentist orders 40; orders for medicine 16; orders for doctors 251; orders for rent 344; garden seed orders 151; ambulance 2; funerals 2; orders for indigents 39; indigents refused 3; inspections and investigations 380.

Plumbing Inspections.

Last month Mr. Metheral made 26 inspections and issued 16 permits for the installation of sanitary conveniences.

Fire Loss $215.83

Chief Gimblett's report for April tabulated a total loss of $215.83 of which $183 was for buildings and $32.83 contents. The department responded to 55 alarms. Inspections totalled 221 of which 53 were made by the Chief.

Sixty-eight building permits issued by City Engineer Parsons represented a total value of $12,090. One was for a dwelling, one service station, seven garages and 59 were grouped as miscellaneous.

Retain Street Name

A proposal to change the name of Ware street to King Edward street was unanimously defeated on Alderman Tuggey's resolution seconded by Alderman Macdonald.

King Edward street extends from George street to Lock street on the north side of the Children's Shelter. There are no houses on it.

The proposal somehow found its way into the report of the Board of Works, but when the report was read no one was actually in favor of the change.

Mayor Denne said that Ware street had been named after an old family that once lived in the Winch house on Crescent street. There are quite a number of houses on it, the street has long been known by that name, and if the name was changed it might lead to more or less confusion in the delivery of goods.

The council decided that the simplest course was to delete the clause and thereby retain the name Ware in memory of a family that is entirely unknown to the present generation.

North Monaghan's notice of assessment of $900 on the old powder magazine on the bank of the river west of the foot of Park street was referred to the City Trust Commission.

Buy Street Oil

Adopting the report of the Board of Works, the council accepted the Imperial Oil Company's tender of 11¾ cents a gallon for this summer's supply of medium liquid asphalt in car lots f.o.b. Peterborough to be used in oiling the streets. The price includes sales tax. The city will require 25,000 gallons.

Three local companies put in bids for the city's cement contract for the year. The Peterborough Hardware Company's price was accepted, —f.o.b. cars on siding $2.10 plus 20c for sacks; the sacks are returnable subject to mill inspection. The nearest bid was $2.36 per barrel.

To Lead Survey

Deputy minister of education for Ontario, Duncan McArthur will act as chairman of committee to make survey into Ontario's educational custom.

CHAMBER GIVEN PERMISSION TO USE COLLEGIATE

auditorium on June 5, in connection with the annual graduation exercises of St. Joseph's Hospital nurses, was also granted.

Dr. Craig, referring to an item for Bell Telephone rentals when the accounts were being passed, suggested that the "incoming" telephone service in the schools might be discontinued during the months of July and August of each year at some saving to the Board. He moved that the matter be referred to the Finance Committee, and V. J. McElderry, K. C., in seconding the motion, which carried, said that even if it resulted in the mere saving of a dollar or two the suggestion was worthwhile.

Peterborough Softball Association and the Church Softball League, was granted permission for the use of Central School and Queen Alexandra School playgrounds respectively, on the same conditions as those obtaining in former years, namely that the organizations concerned be responsible for personal and property damage. The matter was brought before the Board by Mrs. W. R. Morris whose motion was seconded by W. A. Richardson.

Extra Teacher Needed

Inspector A. Mowat recommended to the Board the need of an extra teacher at King George School in September next on account of the over-crowding of classes at the school. The matter was referred to the Committee on Appointments.

On motion of H. G. Walker and J. A. Dewart, the Board decided that no delegates would be sent to the forthcoming convention of the Urban Trustees' Association.

A comprehensive report of the Ontario Educational Association Convention which he attended as official delegate was tendered by Dr. A. Moir, chairman of the Board.

John R. Marshall moved and W. A. Richardson seconded, "That the Supervision Committee be authorized to advertise for tenders for text books and supplies and for Collegiate supplies for the ensuing year, with power to award the contract."

Another motion authorizing the Property Committee to advertise for tenders for fuel supplies was moved by Mrs. W. R. Morris and seconded by H. G. Walker. Both motions were carried.

Makes Good Recovery

A letter was received from James Abraham, school attendance officer, conveying to the Board expressions of appreciation; the information that he was making satisfactory progress from his illness; and that he hoped shortly to be back on duty.

On motion of W. J. Hancock, seconded by J. A. Dewart, the secretary of the Board was instructed to send a motion of condolence to J. A. Middleton respecting the recent loss of his son, by death.

The request of Principal H. R. H. Kenner to retain the services of Miss Sawyer (who has been engaged in connection with the evening classes at twelve dollars a week) until the end of June was granted.

The Committee on Appointments was authorized to fill any vacancies that may occur on the staff at the end of the present term.

With a total enrolment of 960 for the month of April, the average daily attendance at the Collegiate Institution and Vocational School was stated to be 923 or 96 per cent.

Attendance in the Public Schools was similarly maintained at a high level.

Suspect Insurance Plot In Car Murder

BOSTON, May 8 (A.P.).—Frank Di Stasio, 50, sought since a battered and burned body was found in his fire-wrecked automobile on a lonely road in Hudson Monday night, was taken into custody today in a Commonwealth Avenue automobile sales room.

Di Stasio, himself believed the victim of foul play until measurements of the body revealed it to be someone else, readily admitted his identity, Patrolman Norman Dooley said, but denied any knowledge of the Hudson tragedy.

Police investigators held to the theory the man found in the Di Stasio automobile had been slain in a plot to collect insurance money and expressed the opinion the victim was known to the Di Stasios.

Investigators said it had been learned life insurance policies aggregating $12,500 were carried on the elder Di Stasio's life.

PRAHA, May 8. (C.P.-Havas)—Czechoslovakia's official inquiry into the alleged kidnapping of Hans Lampersberger to-day established the former German Social Democrat leader was seized on Czechoslovak territory and a Bavarian frontier guard assaulted a Czech border guard who attempted to prevent the kidnapping.

In consequence, Czechoslovakia shortly will make formal protest to the German government, and if Berlin's reply is unsatisfactory will defand international arbitration of the affair, as in the case of Berthold Jacob now being arbitrated between Germany and Switzerland.

IN MEMORIAM

WILSON.—In loving memory of my dear husband, Samuel G. Wilson, who departed this life on May 8, 1934.

Oh, how I miss you, words cannot tell;
Your bright happy face I loved so well.
The sweetest of memories is all that is left
Of a dear, loving husband; one of the best.
I have lost my soul's companion,
A life linked with my own,
And day by day I miss him more
As I walk through life alone.
You have left me, dear Samuel,
Mourning for you I sigh
Sitting in the twilight thinking of days gone by;
Sadly I will ever miss you
And my tears still undried longing, hoping till my turn comes
When they lay me by your side.
—Sadly missed by his wife, Mrs. Mary Wilson.

IN MEMORIAM

WILSON.—In loving memory of my father, Samuel G. Wilson, who passed away May 8, 1934.

When the Lord said, "You have finished,
Come up higher, Father dear,
You have won a crown in heaven by your loving kindness here."
I remember well our sorrow, as we stood beside your bed.
Our deep and heartfelt anguish
When we say that you were dead.
We miss your kind and willing hand,
Your fond and earnest care,
Our home is dark without you, Father,
We miss you everywhere.
—Sadly missed by his son, Theodore S. Wilson.

CHORAL SOCIETY TO GIVE CONCERT

St. Peter's Cathedral Choral Society Plans Concert For May 17.

COLLEGIATE AUDITORIUM.

An event of interest to all music-lovers of the city will be the occasion of the presentation of a choral concert by St. Peter's Cathedral Choral Society in the Collegiate auditorium on Friday, May 17th. With St. Peter's Cathedral choir serving as the nucleus of this musical organization, there has been built around the latter a choir of approximately fifty voices including membership from the choirs of the Sacred Heart Church and the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Peterborough, St. Mary's Church, Lindsay and several members of other church organizations of the city who have kindly associated themselves with this choir. Included in their repertoire are several religious numbers including Caesar Franks' "Panis Angelicus" sung by a mixed quintet. The program is mainly secular however and of a semi-classical nature which should appeal to popular musical tastes. And oh yes! "The Blue Danube" sung in arrangement for mixed voices by this choir of fifty should prove a high-light in an evening of high-class musical entertainment. For those who love the folk-songs of the Celts there is a medley of Irish airs, in which the smile is never far from the tear-sung superbly by these singers.

The organization is under the expert musical directorship of Joseph Minicola who has been associated with the music of St. Peter's Cathedral for over twenty years. The admission charge is in sympathy with the depleted pocket book of to-day—50 cents (including tax) for adults; 25 cents for children.

This choral concert is the first endeavour of the Cathedral choir in the realms of secular music and should prove one of the major musical attractions of the season.

APSLEY.

A shadow box social and dance was held in Apsley School on Thursday evening and was attended by a large crowd, music being supplied by the school orchestra. Baskets fetched as high as $2 75, the camp boys being the chief bidders, with Fred Bullied acting as auctioneer. Proceeds amounted to $49. Many of the visitors left early on account of the rowdy element which predominated the proceedings. Police authority is badly needed in Apsley to cope with present conditions.

The form of thanksgiving service for the King's Silver Jubilee used in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, was used in the Anglican churches in the Apsley Mission, and members of the congregation were presented with a copy of the service by the rector as a souvenir of the occasion.

When Baby's Teething Troubles Worry You

WHEN cutting teeth, it is perfectly natural for gums to be sore, the child to be fretful and to sleep poorly. Also for the digestion to be upset and the body to be hot and feverish. When your baby is in this condition don't make the mistake of giving him a medicine containing opiates or narcotics to deaden pain and drug him to sleep.

It is much wiser to give him a Baby's Own Tablet or two at intervals of an hour apart, for several doses. These sweet-tasting, little tablets are an aid in relieving the inflammation in the gums and in removing congestions in stomach, liver and intestines, that are common at teething time. The effect of Baby's Own Tablets is so soothing and cooling, that the child drops off to sleep naturally and wakes up refreshed and in better spirits.

And yet Baby's Own Tablets accomplish this without the use of any narcotic or opiate. Each package contains a certificate of analysis made by an independent authority. They are safe for even the most delicate child.

If your baby is cutting teeth these harmless, sure-acting tablets will do the same for your baby as for this Toronto child. His mother writes: "When my baby was getting his teeth, he had a cold, sick stomach, was hot and feverish, couldn't eat and couldn't sleep. I was up for about three weeks with him. I tried everything but nothing was any good until I tried Baby's Own Tablets. They made him well. I couldn't get along without them now."

Full directions for giving Baby's Own Tablets from infancy to 12 years of age are given with each package. Besides teething troubles, these tablets are effective for simple fevers, constipation, diarrhoea, upset stomach, colds, croup, sleeplessness. Your druggist has them.

Papers Are Kind To Lloyd George

GLASGOW, May 7 (C.P.) — Lloyd George described journalists as being among his best friends when he made a presentation at a press luncheon at Glasgow to Thomas William Ferguson, chief reporter in Glasgow of the "Scotsman," who has been connected with that paper for 50 years.

"It has been said that I have always shown a friendly disposition towards the press," said Mr. Lloyd George, "but that is only a sense of gratitude for that which I owe them. The press have always shown me, throughout my long public life, an indulgence, a kindliness, and a forbearance which has never failed me. It is not merely that they have reported me fairly, but they know exactly what was best to omit in my speeches. There have been great changes in the newspaper world. I am not going to say a word in criticism of the great syndicated press, but I am very glad there are still a few independent papers left in the country."

Household Hints

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint

Tomato Juice With Pimento Cheese Crackers
Roast Chicken Mashed Potatoes
Creamed Peas and Carrots
Small Pickled Beets
Rolls Jelly
Gelatine With Strawberries and Whipped Cream
Cookies Coffee

This menu was served recently at a farmhouse in southern Ohio. The tomato juice and crackers were served in the living room, the rest of the meal in the dining room, of course. The dining table was covered with a lace cloth, the centerpiece was a low dull green bowl with wax water lilies in it.

Today's Recipes

Pimento Cheese Crackers—Spread your favorite crackers with a thin coating of cream cheese, sprinkle with pimento and lightly brown in broiler or in oven.

Butter Cookies—One cup butter, one cup sugar, two egg yolks, one egg white, two and one-half cups cake flour, one-fourth teaspoon salt, egg white. Cream butter until it is of whipped cream consistency. Add sugar gradually, creaming it in well. Add egg yolks and white beaten together until light and fluffy. Sift flour, measure and sift with salt. Add to first mixture gradually, stirring it in well. No baking powder is needed in this recipe. Chill the dough thoroughly. Then roll out, cut into fancy shapes, brush over the top with slightly beaten egg white diluted with two tablespoons water, sprinkle with chopped nut meats. Place on a greased cookie sheet and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees Fahrenheit, until done to the touch. This recipe makes about 90 cookies. All may be baked at one time, or if you prefer, part of the dough may be baked and the other stored in the refrigerator until needed.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Prune Bread

One-half cup sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, one egg beaten, two tablespoons melted fat, one cup chopped nut meats, one cup drained prunes (cut fine) stewed without sugar, one cup unsifted graham flour, one teaspoon soda, one cup thick sour milk or buttermilk, one-half cup prune juice, one-fourth teaspoon baking powder, one and one-half cups all-purpose flour. Combine sugar, salt and beaten egg and mix well. Add the melted fat, nut meats and prunes. Mix together the soda, sour milk and prune juice. Sift baking powder with white flour. Mix with graham flour. Then add the flour to the egg mixture alternately with sour milk. Beat all together well. Turn into medium sized greased loaf pan and bake in slow oven (325 degrees) for one and one-half to one and three-fourths hours or until done.

RECALL GREETING GIVEN BY PRINCE

Author Tells of Entry of King's Son Into Royal Ceremonies.

LONDON, May 8 (C.P.).—In connection with the King's Silver Jubilee it is recalled in one of the Jubilee books being published that at the Prince of Wales' introduction into ceremonial procedure at the Coronation there was an affectionate greeting between father and son. It was the first big State function in which the Prince had taken part. He appeared in his Garter robes, and was the first to do homage to his father.

Taking off his Prince's crown, he knelt at the feet of the King and took his oath: "I Prince of Wales, do become your liege man of life and limb and of earthly worship; and faith, truth I will bear unto you, to live and to die, against all manner of folks. So help me God."

Be Beautiful

By GLADYS GLAD

In certain tribes in Brazil, I am told, it is a mark of beauty to have no eyelashes at all. In Brazil, the girls yank out their lashes by the roots, and give their boy friends a very naked wink. But in the United States as lovely Tala Birrell can tell you, long, thick lashes are considered a decided asset. Tala never uses artificial lashes, even when she's working in a picture. Her own lashes are so long and luxuriant, that she has no need for such beauty aids. And she claims that it's because she always brushes her lashes with a good lubricant before she retires every night.

Long, shadowy lashes certainly add immeasurably to the loveliness of the eyes. Eyes that are fringed with sup'l lashes seem large, bright and starry, for the lashes give the eyes accent and provide a lovely frame for them, and fortunately, such lashes can be cultivated. Of course, no lass can expect to grow thick, fringing lashes overnight. But in time, if a girl preserves in her treatments, she really can aid the growth of her lashes.

There are a good many effective eyelash growers now on the market, but I've personally found that plain petroleum jelly and odorless castor oil are among the most effective of eyelash growers. These preparations nourish the hair follicles and help to promote the growth of the lashes. Another good eyelash grower can be made of 15 drops of oil of rosemary, 15 drops of oil of lavender, and two ounces of plain petroleum jelly.

If you wish to acquire thick, fringing lashes, get into the habit of using one of the above lubricants on your lashes nightly before retiring. Use a small eyebrow brush, as charming Tala Birell does, and brush the chosen lubricant onto your lashes. Do not allow any of the grease to get into your eyes, however. The above preparations will not really harm your orbs, but as the eyes are sensitive, the preparation chosen might prove temporarily irritating. Try using one of these lubricants nightly, and I'll wager that in time you'll reap a harvest of rich, luxuriant lashes.

Ennismore

Miss Aileen Young, of Young's Point, and student of Peterborough Normal School, spent a week of school teaching experience at S. S. No. 3, Ennismore. The Department of Education's purpose of this is to familiarize the young teachers to the problems of rural schools, which will be of great assistance to them when they assume their duties as a teacher. The following members of the teaching staff of the Peterborough Normal School who visited the school during the week to examine the student on her teaching ability were: Dr. A. J. Madill, Mr. Park, Mr. McIntyre, Mr. MacDonald, and a special visit of Inspector Downey. This is the first arrangement of this kind in the township of Ennismore. S.S. No. 3 being honored by the visits of the Peterborough Normal School staff. John Shannahan, teacher of the school, expressed great confidence in the work. Rev. Father McAuley, parish priest, of St. Martin's Church, Ennismore, visited the school on Thursday and gave the children an interesting talk on the silver jubilee.

The Rev. J. L. and Mrs. Hughes were guests of honor at a banquet held last evening under the combined auspices of the Ladies' Guild and Woman's Auxiliary. The tables, arranged as three sides of a square, were attractively laid, the floral decorations and colored finger napkins providing a bright color tone. Accompanying the rector and Mrs. Hughes at the main table were Mrs. L. Warren and Mrs. W. H. Andrews, presidents of the Guild and W. A. respectively, and two of the senior members of the organizations, Mrs. E. Cooney, and Mrs. E. Rew. The singing of the W. A. hymn, "The Love of Christ Constraineth" opened the proceedings. Following the delicious meal which was thoroughly enjoyed by all, Mrs. W. H. Andrews read a nicely worded address and Mrs. L. Warren made the presentation of a handsome silver flower basket to Rev. and Mrs. Hughes. The address was as follows: "The purpose of this combined meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary and the Ladies' Guild is to bid farewell to our rector and his family and to wish them every success and happiness in their new charge at Creemore, Ontario.

"The Rev. Mr. Hughes has been with us for almost eleven years and has worked hard and faithfully, keeping always before him the one ambition of carrying forward the Lord's work in this parish and the city at large.

"Mrs. Hughes has been an outstanding worker in the parish. She has given her time unstintingly to the various organizations, and her help will be missed. Her outstanding work with the Junior W. A. and the splendid success she has achieved with the young girls of the parish, is a fitting tribute to her untiring energy.

"On behalf of the W.A. and the Guild, we would ask you to accept this small memento, in sincere appreciation of the work you have both carried on in Peterborough, and may we add that you carry away with you the kindest regards of the parish, and their wishes for success in the future."

The rector and Mrs. Hughes both replied in suitable terms, expressing appreciation for the kind words and lovely gift, and wishing both organizations continued success.

The very enjoyable evening closed with the singing of the hymn, "Blest Be the Tie that Binds" and the benediction pronounced by the rector.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Spring is the best season for veal. This is not always so well appreciated as in the case of lamb. The term genuine spring lamb is applied to the latter, while veal seldom has the distinguishing adjective. Spring veal can be as tender as chicken. Older veal is not so tender, nor does is so nearly resemble chicken in taste.

• • • • • • •

The leg of veal is the best for roasting. Cutlets are the best for steaks, with chops for frying. The shank is best for soup, and the knuckle is unexcelled for making genuine aspic for molding purposes. Boil the knuckle down. Let it cool in the liquor. Skim off any fat. Reheat just enough to strain, season and use as if it were prepared unflavored gelatine. It is aspic, which when hardened is a savory jelly.

• • • • • • •

Season the water in which the knuckle is cooked so that it is savory with herbs, parsley, thyme, sage, sweet marjoram, basil, etc., and flavored with salt, pepper, onion, and just a little sweet pepper. It requires but little of any of these ingredients as the flavor should not be strong, but sufficient and well blended. The meat from the knuckle is delicious for salad, and croquettes. Unless the aspic is to have no meat in it, but all vegetables, all fruits, or a mixture of the two, pieces of the veal are generally used in the aspic jellied dishes.

• • • • • • •

Since veal has so bland a flavor and is so free from enriching fat, it is apt to be larded. Bacon is excellent for larding. In Italy herbs are also used for this for they instil a zest rather needed in veal. Chops and cutlets are apt to be breaded and fried, and served with tomato sauce. Cutlets with mushroom sauce is a French dish. Veal salad under the name of chicken is a misnomer, but is good when the veal is young, has crisp celery cut up in it, and is served on delicate native lettuce leaves with a good mayonnaise. A rolled roast of veal is a usual dish.

"Teacher of Teachers"

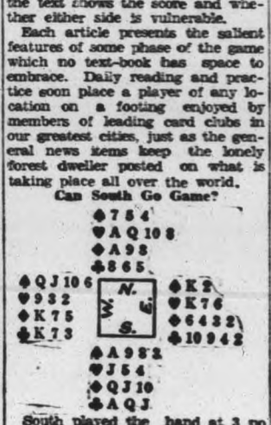
ELEMENTARY FACTS

Elementary facts are required to properly start beginners and new readers. Tweny years' intimate acquaintance and daily play with leading experts shows me how prompt these men are to adopt the latest discovered means of rendering every feature of their game most efficient. Each master expert has something to teach to, and sometimes learn from, each of his peers. Let us say, as each automobile manufacturer has. Authors of bridge books and claimants of special systems of bidding, like automobile salesmen, pick unimportant features as "talking points", to sell their goods, particularly to novices. Wise car owners and bridge players alike disregard professional sales patter, knowing that a master craftsman's product will give them only the best of everything. Drivers and players taking these facts to heart avoid the shackles of system fetishes which hamper progress for most of the narrower minded. Systems are mere crutches to support the halting until they gather courage to act without them.

The greatest educator is the daily paper's bridge article, written by an expert. These articles carry the intelligent reader through every phase of the game, as actually encountered by the writer and his associates. To benefit most by these articles the reader must prepare to understand them, by learning "the alphabet of bridge." Neither the editor nor the bridge writer is supposed to teach the letters of the alphabet to a reader. The alphabet of bridge may be learned from "The Laws of Contract Bridge," while any elementary bridge text-book gives valuation of hands, and outline of sound bidding and the opening leads. Unless otherwise specified in the text relating to bidding, on the diagrams accompanying these articles, South is the dealer, having the first opportunity to bid. If of the least importance to the reader the text shows the score and whether either side is vulnerable.

Each article presents the salient features of some phase of the game which no text-book has space to embrace. Daily reading and practice soon place a player of any location on a footing enjoyed by members of leading card clubs in our greatest cities, just as the general news items keep the lonely forest dweller posted on what is taking place all over the world.

Can South Go Game?



South played the hand at 3 no trump. Before tomorrow think whether or not he can go game against West's correct opening lead.

ROBERTA'S CHAT

A column conducted by a reader of The Examiner for her other reader friends. Address all mail to Roberta in care of The Examiner.

DEAR FRIEND, — Have you a sense of fear all the time? Or just occasionally?

Just as your wishes can draw good things to you, so your fears can also draw the things you dread.

For instance, I had a fear for awhile that I would fall down the cellar stairs, as they were very steep.

Sure enough, I fell down these stairs, and was bruised from head to foot. Of course the logical thing would have been to have them fixed at first, but that wasn't done until afterwards.

So, when you have a fear bring it out into the open, examine it from all angles, and if anything can be done about it, do that.

If nothing can be done, push it out of your mind. Why go around with a lot of fears hanging over you? They can make you sick, wreck your self-confidence, make you sleepless and a coward.

There are so many other pleasant things to think about, and life can be so beautiful, if only we can rid ourselves of our fears.

So let us make a resolve to banish fear, from our lives, and replace it with something nice we have heard, or seen or done.

Have you written me that letter yet, telling me what you would like me to write about? If not, why not?

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Athletic Pitchers Pounded For 12 Hits by Tigers and 5-3 Win.

YANKEES FALL 4-3.

By HERBERT W. BARKER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The extraordinary early-season drive of Chicago White Sox had ceased to be a laughing matter to the rest of the American League today.

Topsy-turvy standings are the rule of major league races every spring but the White Sox evidently aren't fooling. Jimmy Dykes' rebuilt Club, with a crop of rookies who out-shine those of any league rival, threaten to be troublesome, to put it mildly, all year.

The Pale Hose's 4-3 victory over New York Yankees yesterday served not only to bolster Chicago's hold on first place but marked their ninth successive triumph in their own park. Back in the old days of White Sox baseball glory there may have been a precedent for such a string but that's doubtful. Powerful hitting and good pitching, especially from the rookie John Whitehead and the veteran Ted Lyons have carried the Sox to the top of the standings, a game and a half in front of Cleveland Indians and 2½ games in front of the Yankees and Boston Red Sox who are tied for third position.

Sets Yankees Down

Lyons was on the mound yesterday and the old campaigner set the Yankees down with seven hits to outpoint Vernon Gomez, ace southpaw of the invaders. The White Sox slammed Gomez for two runs in each of the first two innings with the rookies, Rip Radcliffe and Vernon Washington, lending a hand. Radcliffe doubled to start the game, went to third on Washington's single. Gomez then walked Appling and Dykes to force in another run. In the second, Radcliff again doubles and successive singles by Hayes, Bonura and Washington produced two more runs. Lyons was in real trouble only in the eighth when Tony Lazzeri clouted a homer with one on to account for the last two Yankee runs. The victory was the Sox 12th in 16 games. A year ago they won five of their first 16 engagements.

Sth Win for Tigers

The champion Detroit Tigers stopped Philadelphia Athletics 5-3, for their fifth victory in a row to remain a game and a half behind the fifth place Washington Senators who dropped St. Louis Browns, 7-3. Tommy Bridges held the A's to five hits, one a fluky home run by Wally Moses with one on in the eighth. The champions nicked Sugar Cain and Johnny Marcum for 13 hits, of which Billy Rogell contributed three.

Washington pounded out 13 hits in giving the Browns their eighth consecutive defeat with Buddy Myer and John Stone each collecting four. Earl Whitehill, meanwhile, held the Brown batsmen well in check.

Rain wiped out the other American League game and the entire National League schedule.

ONTARIO BOYS STAR.

LONDON (C.P.). — The best playmaker in European hockey last season, according to many observers, was "Red" Stapleford, former Windsor, Ont., star, whose home is at Watford, Ont. George Shaw of Stratford, Ont., and Stapleford teamed together for Streatham, European League champions, and scored more than 100 goals between them during the campaign.

RECORD ALREADY TOPPED

BERLIN (CP)—The field of competing nations for the 1936 Olympic Games was brought to 49 when the Spanish cabinet decided it would send a team to the Berlin games. Only 42 nations were represented at the 1932 Olympiad in Los Angeles.

GIRLS LEAGUE DIVIDED INTO TWO SECTIONS

Choate's, Westclox, C. G. E. and C. C. F. in Intermediate Group.

BAILIEBORO IN SENIOR.

An eight-team league, divided into two sections—four senior and four intermediate teams—appeared likely today as the result of last night's meeting of the Girls' Softball League in Duffus'. The four senior squads—affiliated with the P.W.S.U.—would be Bailieboro, a Keene-Sixth Line combine, Westclox and C.G.E.; while the intermediate teams would include Choate's, Westclox, C.G.E. and C.C.F. entry.

Since several of these prospective teams were not definite yet, the closing date for entries was extended a week. President Ev Thomas will check on the intermediate prospects although Westclox C.G.E. and the C.C.F. outfit are practically assured and the Bailieboro and Keene-Sixth Line possibilities will be known via mail within the week.

The Keene delegate pointed out that his team had lost eight players since last year and requested permission to enter only for the second half of the schedule. Sixth Line wanted to drop back to the intermediate class owing to loss of experienced players. The president suggested that the two teams form a combination and play as one senior team and both delegates thought it possible. They will notify the league of their decision, after conferring together, this week. Bailieboro also wanted entry only in the second half as school would interfere with several players the first half, but upon the promise that they would be given every consideration in the drawing-up of the schedule, they agreed to consider entry into the first half and will inform the league this week.

It was decided that the entry fee for new teams be reduced to $2.50 while the league is affiliated with the P.W.S.U. A motion was passed that players in the intermediate section with either Westclox or C.G.E., if advancing into the senior section, must first apply to the club which sponsors the intermediate team from which they propose leaving. It was agreed that the schedule open May 27th and the president and vice-president draw up the schedule.

Scotty Galbraith and Ab Prick were appointed umpires for the season in the senior section, with Pat Calladine and Harry Ranger named umpires for the intermediate division. George Foster was appointed groundskeeper and Pete McGillen official scorer. Westclox were granted a leave of absence for two weeks from the schedule because of their company's two-week vacation period. A protest fee of $2.00 will be charged with the money refunded if the protest is upheld. The executive will deal with all protests. Postponed games will be played within 10 days or at the discretion of the president. Playoffs will be two out of three to declare the winners of each half with the league finals being three out of five. Sectional playoffs must take place after each half. Following some other discussion, with no action, the meeting adjourned.

CRICKETER MARRIES — WITH FLOWERS.

LONDON (C.P.). — When C. P. Brutton, former Hampshire cricketer, and Miss Gladys Gwendoline McAlpine, elder daughter of Sir Alfred McAlpine, were to have been married at Wrexham Parish Church the vicar objected to flowers during Lent and the ceremony was permormed at a tiny church at Denbigh, near the home of the bride.

BIRDS SCORE 139 COUNTERS IN 19 GAMES

Toronto Leafs Rank Second With Average of 5.7 for 18 Contests.

REDWINGS THIRD.

(By the Associated Press).

Although they are no better than fifth in the standing, Baltimore Orioles, packing a powerful home run punch in their home park, far outclass their International League rivals in the matter of getting runs.

The Orioles in 19 games, the majority of them played at home, have crossed the plate 139 times for an average of 7.3 runs per game. The remainder of the teams are closly bunched nearly two runs or more a game back of the Baltimore sluggers. Toronto Maple Leafs, third in the standing, rank second in getting runs with a total of 103 and an average of 5.7 for 18 contests.

Redwings Third.

In third place are the Rochester Redwings with an average of 5.4 for 17 games. Then come Montreal Royals with 5.3 for 19 contests, the Bisons with 5.2 for 14 games, the league leading Newark Bears with 5.1 for 16 games. Albany Senators with a five-run average for 16 contests, and last Syracuse Chiefs, who have scored only an average of 4.88 runs in their 17 games.

Defensively the Royals top the list having held their opponents to 72 runs, while the Bears were yielding 76; the Chiefs, 78; the Bisons, 94; the Redwings 96; the Senators, 101; the Orioles, 114, and the Leafs, 120.

Rain, which forced the postponement of all games yesterday, left the Bears perched at the top of the standing with 11 victories in 16 games for a lead of one and one-half games over the Royals.

GOLF HEADLINERS ENTER U.S. OPEN

Play Starts Monday on 25 Courses—More Than 1,000 Will Compete.

NEW YORK, May 8 (AP)—Entries and pairings for the sectional qualifying rounds of the 1935 United States open golf championship, announced yesterday, find no less than forty amateur and professional headliners facing strong competition for the limited places available.

Over 25 courses throughout the country, 1,087 shot-makers will battle at 36 holes next Monday for 122 places and the right to compete at Pittsburgh, starting June 6, for the crown now worn by Olin Dutra.

The championship field ultimately will comprise 162 players, the other 40 being exempt from qualifying play.

SOCCER PLAYERS ARE REGISTERED

C. G. E. Drops Out of Soccer League—Still Waiting For Deloro.

Only two teams registration forms were handed into the secretary last night at the meetng of the Peterborough and District Football Association. The following names were read before the board: Brinton Athletic: W. M. Robb, A. Burgess, J. Quinn, James Mitchell, Stan Clark, Thomas McPhate, D. Green, H. Adams, E. Jones, Thomas Eastwood, Ed. Adkinson, W. H. Curtis. Canada Packers: Deo. Whatman, T. J. Chamberlain, George Downer, Newt H. Downer, Walter Dinesen, Ed. Rishra, T. W. Todd, A. E. Todd, Art Bromley, H. Keith, Leonard Anderson, Walter Lane, Robert Wagstaff and Arthur Downer.

No. C.G.E. Team

After many unsuccessful attempts to reorganize the Canadian General team that won the league championship last year, the committee of three failed to get any encouragement from the players in the plant. To their surprise no less than nine players connected with the C.G.E. eleven of previous years transferred their allegiance to the Brintons, thereby forcing the C.G.E. organizers to forgo the pleasure of entering a team in the league this year. It is a great pity that so many players in a plant like the C. G. E. cannot take advantage of the excellent advantages through such a well-organized athletic association where equipment is awaiting to be used, at any rate, the official forms were handed back, with the statement, "nothing doing."

Game Saturday

The Brintons will meet the C.C.F. on King Edward Park, on Saturday afternoon in a league engagement. Referee A. Prick. Kick-off at three The official has been notified that play must proceed at the stipulated hour.

On Saturday, May 18th, Canada Packers meet C.C.F. on King Edward Park, with J. Morgan referee.

Lindsay are waiting another three weeks before giving any definite answer in regards to their entry into the league, while Deloro has not notified the association of their intentions.

HATCH UNCERTAIN REGARDING PLATE

Undecided About Starting Chickenpen and Donstick in Famous Guineas.

TORONTO May 8.—The light and dark blue hoops of H. C. Hatch prominent breeder and sportsman, are a "decided uncertainty," in so far as this year's running of the King's Plate is concerned.

Mr. Hatch, in his office yesterday after a trip to Spain, France and the British Isles and through the United States, when asked if his Chickpen and Donstick, now in training at Long Branch Jockey Club's course, would be sent to the post in quest of the King's Plate, admitted that the prospect was decidedly uncertain.

In view of the fact that his 3-year-olds have wintered well have responded to training in a pleasing manner under the guidance of William Bringloe Mr. Hatch's statement was accepted as indicating that his policy this year would not be changed from that of last year.

Mr. Hatch's stable was raced at Long Branch, Dufferin Park, Kenilworth and the Detroit Racing Association meetings, as well as in Massachusetts. During the season he also shipped a portion to Winnipeg, and in doing so was the first breeder of Eastern Canada within recent years to strengthen racing in the West, where purses are smaller than on Ontario courses.

Chickpen and Donstick saw little racing last year. They are both fashionably bred animals, and could be regarded as contenders should they go to the post, the prospects of which now appear to be remote.

LONDON (C.P.). — The British Amateur Swimming Association has put a ban on the "butterfly" method of breast-stroke swimming, although Olympic rules permit the above-water recovery. It is believed unlikely that many English swimmers will concentrate on the breast-stroke for the 1936 Olympics as a result of the new ruling.

The sun is approximately 3,000,000 miles nearer the earth on Jan. 1 than on July 1.

OMAHA HEADS ENTRIES FOR $25,000 RACE

Every Headliner of Year Listed for Washington Park Classic.

THE AMERICAN DERBY

Omaha, seeking the new 3-year-old championship of the American turf, will be in the field which parades to the post for the twenty-seventh running of the historic $25,000 added American Derby at a mile and a quarter at Washington Park on June 22.

When nominations for the stake closed on May 1, the list of seventy-two 3-year-olds named included every thoroughbred that has qualified as a potential champion this season, and nearly every one that gave exceptional promise as a juvenile last season. With so many thoroughbreds apparently on a par, that different ones may win the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont, the American Derby shapes up as the race out of which the 1935 3-year-old champion may emerge.

Among the highly regarded 3-year-olds named for the American Derby are the Belair Stud's Omaha, C. V. Whitney's Today, the Calumet Farm's Nellie Flag, the Greentree Stable's Flat Eye, Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords' Commonwealth, Sachsenmaier and Reuter's Roman Soldier and Col. E. R. Bradley's Boxthorn.

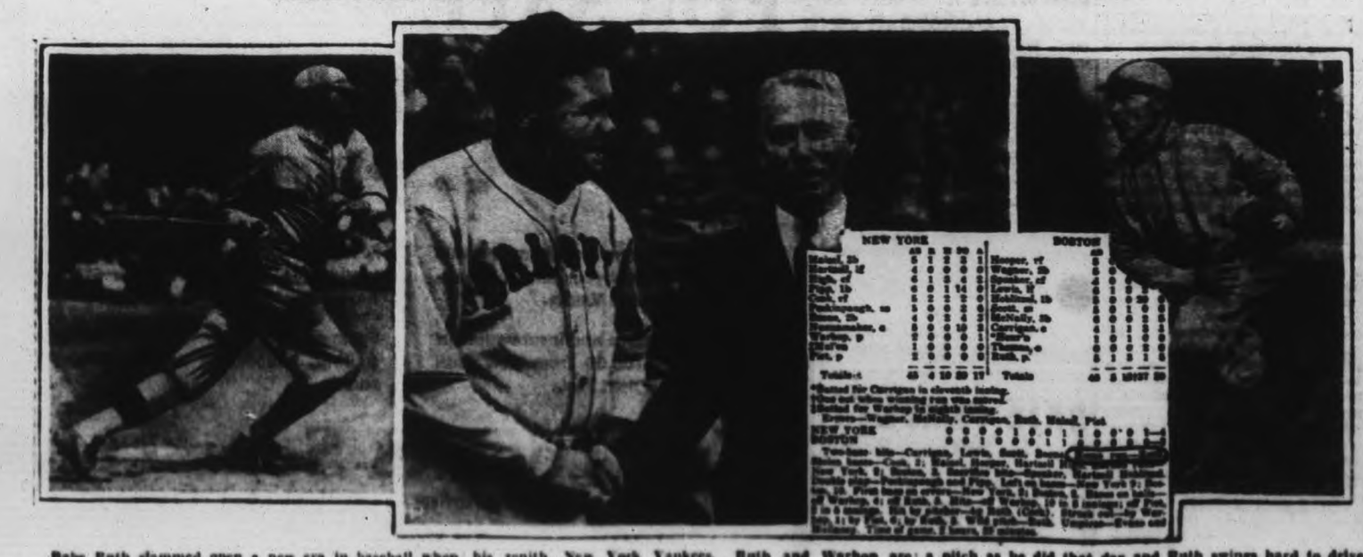
St. Louis Cardinals Buy Pitcher Collins

PHILADELPHIA, May 8 (AP) — The Phillies, believing that to string along with their young hurlers is the club's best chance—for 1936 if not for this season—yesterday cut the first veteran from their mound staff.

In a deal announced as a straight cash transaction—the amount undisclosed—"Fidgety Phil" Collins, once the ace of the local National Leaguers' pitching group was sold to the world's champion St. Louis Cardinals for a sum reported to be between $7,500 and $10,000.

"Manager Jimmy Wilson has decided to string along with the young pitchers," President Gerry Nugent disclosed in announcing the deal.

BABE STILL GOING STRONG 20 YEARS AFTER FIRST FOUR-BAGGER



Babe Ruth slammed open a new era in baseball when he made his first home run, 20 years ago, off Jack Warhop, who pitched for the same team on which Ruth reached his zenith. New York Yankees. Ruth and Warhop are shown as they appear today, and as they appeared at time of Bambino's first four-bagger. Warhop is delivering a pitch as he did that day and Ruth swings hard to drive it out for a home run. Box score of the historic game played May 6, 1915, is reproduced.

PRIMED FOR GOLF ON WINTER TRAIL

Gordon Taylor of Canadian Contenders for British Amateur Was 1932 Champion.

MONTREAL, May 8 (C.P.)—Competitors in the British amateur golf championship at Royal Lytham and St. Anne's course near Liverpool will face an all-round athlete in Gordon Taylor, young Montreal member of the Royal Canadian Golf Association team.

Though he is better known as a golfer, winner of the Canadian amateur title in 1932, Taylor dons skates in the winter time and plays hockey with Montreal Royals, crack amateur team, and spends his winter week-ends in the mountains skiing.

Taylor was born in Montreal 35 years ago and started playing golf when he was 15. He picked up the rudiments of the game on the course of the Hermitage Club on the shores of Lake Memphramagog, Quebec resort. He played as a junior at Summerlea, Montreal, and then moved to Kanawaki, another Montreal club, where he became a polished golfer under the tutelage of C. C. "Happy" Fraser, former Dominion titleholder, and the veteran Bill McLuckie. He won the 1934 club championship with a record-shattering sub-par 65.

His first taste of real tournament golf was in the annual spring tournaments of the Quebec Golf Association, where he gave a good account of himself. He never has won a spring tourney, although he was runner-up several times.

Gordie's big moment came in 1932 at the Lambton course at Toronto when he reached the final of the Canadian amateur and then went on to beat Jack Cameron 5 and 3 to win the title. Last summer he won the Quebec provincial championship.

He tried his luck in the United States amateur tournament last season and qualified for match play, but was beaten in the first round of the tournament proper by the veteran Jesse Guilford of Boston.

Forced out of the strenuous hockey season last winter by minor injuries, Taylor kept himself in good condition by skiing in the Laurentians. He was eager to get at golf again, but a little fearful that the usual late spring in Montreal would give him little chance to get his game primed for the big overseas event—the British amateur.

A slim, dark-haired, clean-cut athlete of average build, Taylor has the steady nerves and calm temperament of a good golfer. His shots off the tee are not overlong but he has good control of the driver. Strongest part of his game is his iron play always steady and often brilliant. His putting is also sure and steady.

Gordie is looking forward to gaining valuable experience in the British amateur and friendly matches in the British Isles.

TONY ENTERS BUSINESS

RED DEER, Alta. (CP)—Red Deer's latest business man is Gordon (Tony) Savage. He operates a grocery store. Tony didn't come here as a scrounger. He had played in golf competitions in the town and anyway all Red Deer knew he was the Tony Savage who played hockey for Montreal Canadiens in the National League.

PROVINCIAL BIGWIGS PROTEST NEW YORK COMMISSION'S EDICT FOR SETTLING "LIGHT" TITLE

Many Heady Contenders For Vacant Throne Scattered Throughout States.

IMPRESSIVE RECORDS.

Ambers Has Worked Way Up From Coton and Furniture Mills Worker.

When Lou Ambers was first named "The Herkimer Hurricane" he was appropriately tagged. The youthful lightweight brings back to the ring the picture of Harry Greb in action—a bundle of fury.

But the New York Boxing Commission has generously designated the winner of the Lou Ambers-Tony Canzoneri bout, May 10, in Madison Square Garden, as world's lightweight champion, there still are a couple of counties to be heard from.

Boxing bigwigs in several states, holding the view that the successor to the title vacated by Barney Ross should win it in an elimination tournament, threaten to disagree with the New York edict. There are too many lightweights as good as Ambers, or better, scattered here and there throughout the provinces.

Weeds Full of 'Em.

California offers Frankie Klick as No. 1 contender, and Young Peter Jackson as Ambers' equal. Eddie Cool of Philadelphia and Tracey Cox of Indianapolis have impressive records to back up claims to a parallel rating with the Herkimer Hurricane.

Davey Day of Chicago has been coming along at a swift pace, winning 11 consecutive fights, and the Illinois commission wants him to be considered. Missouri points out that Joe Ghnouly of St. Louis recently beat Eddie Cool, who has held consistent ranking near the top of the heap of contenders.

Off Gleto Loratelli's recent record, which includes victories over Klick, Benny Bass, Bep Van Klaveren and Cool, Italy should register some kind of claim to recognition. Mussolini may yet say a few words in Loratelli's behalf.

Ambers, only 21 years old, has won 42 of his 43 fights, his only reverse being at the hands of Steve Halaiko, whom he whipped in a return match.

Ambers is from the same racial mould that gave Canzoneri to the ring. Lou's real name is D'Ambrosio; he is the son of Italian immigrants, living in Herkimmer, N.Y., and one of a family of ten. Prohibition wiped out the savings of his father, Tony, which had been invested in saloon properties. Lou had to go to work in a cotton mill, and toiled later in a furniture factory.

He started his fighting career in Utica for a few dollars. When he asked for $10 for a bout, the promoter gave him Frankie Wallace, a tough Clevelander, as an opponent. Lou amazed the promoter, his followers and himself by beating Wallace.

The victory over Wallace sent him to New York. His sister, Philomena, went along as his housekeeper. They live in a Bronx apartment, where Philomena keeps a watchful eye on her brother's buttons and dollars. Many of the dollars go back to Papa D'Ambrosio in Herkimer, and others find their way into a savings account.

New York ring fans accepted Ambers whole-heartedly when he defeated Harry Dublinsky. His chances to win were regarded as slight. He swarmed all over Dublinsky, overpowering the crafty welterweight with speed, throwing punches from every angle. The heavier, more experienced Dublinsky was the acid test which proved Lou had what it takes.

Made Great Comeback

Two years ago Barney Ross won the lightweight championship of the world from Canzoneri. Four months later Barney beat him again. Ross seemed Canzonerri's master then, with that left hand that darted like lightning continually in Tony's face.

Canzoneri was 27 years old. He had been in the ring eight years, had gone to the post for 100 fights. Even his friends thought he was through. He could retire to the precincts of his beloved New Orleans, where the little blind ex-bantam champion, Pete Herman, had blessed him with a pat on the back when Tony started for the ring wars in 1926.

But the echo of Ross' thudding fists on Tony's Italian features hardly had died away when Canzoneri told the world he would keep right on fighting, and asked Jimmy Johnston to bring to the Garden the toughest men he could find. Tony might be through but he would be sure.

CHURCH GAME CALLED OFF

The St. Paul's-Trinity senior Church Softball League game last evening was called off and the All Saints-Knox bantam fixture will be played this evening at Queen Mary, replacing the George Street-St. John's bantam tilt which will be staged Friday. St. John's and Trinity Juniors meet to-night at Queen Mary, while Murray Street Juveniles play Mark Street at the Oval this evening. The Mark Street-Murray Street senior game to-night will be at King Edward Park.

Park St. Bantams Defeat St. James'

Park Street Bantams defeated St. James, 24 to 1, in a slugging Church Softball League game last night. A big sixth inning put the game on ice for the Baptists. Sanderson twirled nice ball except in two frames. Self for St. James was wilder but just as speedy. Leether, Lawson, Drysdale, Anderson and Herb Campbell were the leading stickers. The teams:

ORIOLES TAKE FIRST VICTORY

Birdmen Make Hits Count to Gain 14-12 Victory Over Nationals.

SOUTHEND LEAGUE.

Orioles opened the Southend Softball League schedule last evening with a 14-12 win over Nationals. The Birdmen made their hits count to gain the verdict. It was a snappy fixture, with Red Hunter going well on the winners' mound after a shaky start. He allowed 13 hits, and six walks while fanning four. Wedlock for the losers had a bad third inning, when he was touched for seven runs. He gave 15 hits, walked four and struck out four. Busby and Richardson hit homers for Orioles, while Giardino hit a homer, triple and single in five times, besides going good in the field. The box score:

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two.

(By C. J. P.)

Looks like the Gals' Softball Loop is in for a large-ish season. At their meeting yester gloaming in Duffus'—which is strangely quiet these nights since the bowlers have signed off—four senior and four intermediate teams appeared likely. C.G.E. and Westclox, of course, will be back in the senior section, the one affiliated with the Provincial Union. Bailieboro appeared much interested with a guy and three gals on hand but they feared school exams would hurt 'em the first half and wanted in for the second part of the schedule. However, promised a break in scheduled games, they thought they might come in for the whole season and promised to let the league know within a week. We hope they do climb aboard for the whole journey.

• • • • • • •

Woe has come upon the once mighty Keene squad. Dr. Wright told the gathering that no less than eight of last year's players—most of 'em regulars at that—were lost to the team this season. He sincerely wanted Keene back in the circuit but said they had to have time to get organized again, and asked permission to enter only the second half of the schedule. And Sixth Line, who lost a number also, wanted to drop back into the intermediate division. However, Ev Thomas suggested they combine and stick to the senior section for the whole season and they agreed to talk it over and advise the league within a few days. The Gals' Loop without Keene, and also Sixth Line, wouldn't seem just the same to us.

• • • • • • •

The intermediate division isn't settled yet but C.G.E., Westclox and a C.C.F. entry are pretty sure. If Choate's also come in, they will be okay. This section will be checked upon this week and a future meeting called to draw up rules and a schedule for it. The senior loop will open on May 27th, play two halves with two-out-of-three playoffs for sectional winners and three out of five games in the finals. Umpires for it are Scotty Galbraith and Ab Frick, while Pat Calladine and Harry Ranger have been accepted as arbiters for the intermediate games. Other dope is published elsewhere. We agreed with the Keene delegate that clubs should be careful about taking other clubs' players as it injures the league.

• • • • • • •

Bill Prindible, E.P.I. proxy, has received a letter from Tommy Moffatt of Marmora saying he would like to enter a squad from there in the East Peterborough League. Claims Deloro or Havelock wont have any intermediate teams and he can draw from them and field a strong outfit. So if any local squads are looking for entry and wanting to see an outside team, please take note. Moffatt may be reached for further information by phoning Havelock 29 ring 3-2, all of which sounds pretty complicated but no doubt the gal on the exchange knows what it means.

The Oshawa scribe—and Spook Scriver won't like this—says: "Peterborough Sea Horses played Valleyviews down in the Liftlock City on Monday and beat them in both halves of the doubleheader. Spook Scriver, who always goes hot stuff in the early season but seldom keeps up the pace in the late summer, won the first game, dishing up a three-hit performance on the mound. Knotty Lee tried out some of his junior stars, including Pitcher Lesurf and Catcher Starr. Kitchen and Lepper also saw mound duty while Whatley finished on the receiving end. The Petes won the first game 7-3 and the second one 7-6. They're going to be mighty tough, those Petes. Kingston got beaten in an exhibition game with Smith's Falls."

Fred Waghorne, Sr., past president of the O.A.L.A., was in to see us this a.m. He didn't like some of our recent cracks at the O.A.L.A. and pointed out that the Association was doing all it could to keep the game going in this region. He said he has been down here several times in recent years and was now heading for Belleville to try to organize a district loop down that way, later going to Niagara Falls. He added that he was in favor of the Tri-County League but was not sure whether the local players now playing for Millbrook and Lindsay could play with Peterborough in the O.A.L.A. games this fall. The executive will have to decide it. At anyrate, we shook hands and parted peaceably enough. He's a real lacrosse booster.

• • • • • • •

Lindsay Post throws a rave about the first game of lacrosse played there since Hector was a pup—we mean Hector the elephant. It was run off Monday betwixt Millbrook and a Peterborough-Lindsay combine, the latter knocking off last year's Tri-County champs, 12 to 7. Among the Millbrook stars were Red Creighton, Emmett Creighton and Bus Hutchinson from here who play with the Nattress gang now. Pete King and the local players with the Lindsay crew all shone in the warmish tilt. They dished up a free-for-all to officially open the season in the time-honored manner. In baseball, the opening ceremony consists of throwing the first ball to a batter, but in lacrosse it's socking the first enemy chin you see—and they keep officially opening all through the season.

President Fred Scates of the Men's Softball League saw the Board of Education last p.m. and again obtained permission for use of Central School grounds for games this summer. They will get some dirt put on the diamond, roll it hard and level, and remove any stones. Should be ready shortly. We hear Jake Beckerman has changed his mind and will not manage a team this season but that Hood and Cummings will remain in the loop. Board and Huffman's also are thinking of joining. And folks who saw Pepe's Cleaners practise last eve claim they look smooth and will be nobody's setup.

• • • • • • •

Picking 'em off the grapevine: George Owen of Detroit has been transferred back to his work in the States and will not be playing with our seniors this summer . . . . Red Hollingsworth is working here now and will again apply to the O.B.A.A. for a transfer here . . . . Webb Starr has signed to catch for Lillico Motors . . . . Fashion-Crafts practise at six Thursday in Central . . . . . Westclox gals practise at 4.30 tomorrow eve in the Bowl; all welcome . . . . And Westclox lasses hope to raise coin at a minstrel show put on by St. George's A.Y.P.A. tomorrow night at eight in the East City Community Hall . . . . Annual meeting of the Kawartha Tennis League is Friday at 8.15 p.m. in the Y.M.C.A.

STANBURY WAS "HOT"

GLASGOW (CP)—Con Stanbury, Canada's professional snooker champion who failed to lift the world title in London, has made a great impression on Scottish enthusiasts. In an exhibition match here the Winnipeg player had breaks of 84, 80, 77 and 75. He won easily virtually every match he played.

KING'S PLATERS WORK IN THE MUD

Trainer Johnny Thorpe Denies Gay Sympathy Will be Absentee This Year.

TORONTO, May 8.—Tuesday was the first real workout that Right-foot, the Smaliman candidate, has had since his arrival from London and the son of Single Shot-Milady just revelled in the heavy going. Breaking from the three-quarter pole, the Smaliman color-bearer just bounded over the racing strip in the excellent time of 1.21 2-5.

Another pair of King's Plate candidates that worked, which also stamped them as thoroughbreds that can run on a heavy track was Tax Free and Worthing which will carry the main hopes of W. H. Wright in this year's running of the Guineas. Breaking from the barrier they worked three-quarters in 1.21 2-5, both under a strong pull all the way.

Many flattering remarks are heard about Tax Free, which Mr. Wright has nominated in the Plate and old and experienced horsemen say that this three-year-old son of Worthmore-Jesava is one of the best looking Plate candidates seen in many days. Tax Free is still a maiden. He did not get to the races during his two-year-old year.

Trainer Johnny Thorpe denies that Gay Sympathy might be an absentee in this year's King's Plate. The Seagram entrant, according to Thorpe, has done everything asked of her so far this season and that the next time the daughter of Solace-Gallant Kitty will work in company with other Seagram candidates she will wear blinkers.

The balance of the Seagram stable that campaigned in Maryland is expected at Woodbine Park tomorrow. Included in the shipment will be Stand Pat, recent winner of the Philadelphia Handicap, the closing day feature at Havre de Grace.

Knox Juveniles Cop 16-13 Softball Win

Knox Juveniles took a 16-13 decision over Trinity in their Church League softball game last evening. Knox led all the way with 15 runs in the first two frames by capitalizing on Ward's wildness. Trinity gave them a scare in the sixth. Graham was wild also but had good support. Patterson, Davern, Barnes and Lucas were the big hitters, with Davern and Andrews outstanding in the field. The teams:

Umpires, J. Leith and D. Woods.

CHESTER CUP WINNER

CHESTER, England, May 8 (CP Cable). — Gerald Lambton's four-year-old Damascus to-day won the Chester Cup, historic long-distance race, by a length from Sir Abe Bailey's Cecil, with Lady Nuttall's Jack Tar third only a head behind. Seventeen raced over the cup course of 2 ¼ miles, renewing the famous old fixxture first run in 1824.

ALWAYS THE EAST

CALGARY — (CP) — A fatalist could find some fruit for argument in this year's Allan Cup playdowns. In every interprovincial series, from the time Edmonton Superiors eliminated Kimberley Dynamiters until Halifax Wolverines won the Allan Cup, the team from the easterly province won.

St. Paul's Juveniles Win From St. Luke's

St. Paul's Juveniles defeated St. Luke's, 23-8, in a Church Softball League game last night, the losers being minus several regulars. Moorhead pitched well for the winners, while Northcott was hit hard on the other mound. McMillan, Sedgewick and A. Northcott were the main hitters. The teams:

St. Paul's—Mackness, ss; Easton, cf; Sedgewick, c; McMillan, 1b; Barr, 3b; Rutherford, lf; King, 2b; McCartney, rf; Moorhead, p.

St. Luke's—G. Northcott, p; Partington, c; A. Northcott, 1b; Gandy, 2b; Mason, 3b; C. Easson, ss; Patterson, rf; Storey cf; D. Easson, lf.

Umpires, N. Foster and R. Parnall.

WHAT, NO PENALTIES

EDINBURGH (CP)—The ancestor of field and ice hockey is believed to be shinty. A Scotsman belonging to a Gaelic society looked it up and found that shinty was played in Ireland in 1300 B.C. He found, too, that there were free-for-all battles in those days, but the records didn't say anything about penalties.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

McDONALD FEADER

ACTION

READ THIS FIRST:

Consuelo, a beautiful gypsy girl who longs to dance, is loved by the Dummy, a deaf mute, and Marcu, she despises her mother, Anica, but is fond of her father, Girtza. Marcu temps Consuelo with a huge diamond and she agrees to marry him. But on her wedding day she boards a train for New York on which are riding Stewart Blackmire, theatrical producer; Doug, his secretary, and Bill, a friend. Consuelo had danced for them 10 days previously when their private car had been waiting on a railroad siding in town. Doug takes the gypsy into Stewart's car.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 20

That day when Marcu and the Dummy had wrestled, hadn't she pitted herself against them and gambled all? Had tossed into the ring her dancing against the love of the two who fought for her and hadn't dancing won? Hadn't the gypsies turned and left the fight for her?

"Frightened. First time on a train. She'll be all right in a minute. Leave her alone."

Hadn't their clapping drowned out the noise of the men as they wrestled? Wasn't that alone proof that she was the greatest dancer who ever lived? It was. It was. There are people who are already coming to the high hill because they have learned that you will be in the palace of marble. Is not the need to dance there greater than this thing that is crying out in your soul? It is. It is. Dance to the music that echoes out of soundless space; that falls from the stars and exudes from the earth—dance! Marcu's empty arms? Ha, ha, now you can laugh! Now you can sing! Now you can dance!

She threw back her head and laughed. Then she saw the three men staring at her.

"My friends, if any one ever tells you that love is greater than dancing—do not believe him. He is a liar." She laughed drunkenly. "This is my wedding night. Who will drink to a bride?" She laughed until the tears rolled down her cheeks.

"Here is your supper, gypsy girl, eat it."

"I do not want food!" But the savory odor assailed her nostrils. What were these many dishes? Silver. Steaming coffee. A little pan upside down with a hole in the top of it. "Now whatever is this?" She put her finger down the hole.

"Pick it up and see."

She drank the coffee. She ate the food. She licked her fingers when she had finished. It was good. She looked up at the gray-haired man.

"I am not angry with you any more. Tell me, white man, do you like me just a little bit?"

The next morning Stewart had made his decision. He called Doug to him.

"Take down these wires and send them right away. First to Dalstrom—" He dictated the telegram that instructed Dalstrom, head of the publicity department of Goldberg's Follies, to meet the train, find the gypsy girl and get her in the headlines anyway he could work it. The next was to Goldberg to the effect that he had made a find in a real gypsy dancer, details and arrangements later. The third telegram was short. It was sent to Louise L'Ville, star of Goldberg's Follies. "Do not meet the train. I will hop a cab to the theater and see you there. Love."

"When Louise finds out about this there'll be war," Doug remarked.

"That's what she'll not find out. After the gypsy has been in New York for a while I will be officially introduced to her." He was grinning.

"And how?"

"When you've sent those wires go up and get the girl. Tell her to eat in the dining car first. After all if I'm going to put her in the show I might as well let a few people see her and start their tongues to wagging. If she eats as she did here last night, they'll wag all right."

Consuelo was curled up in the seat asleep when Doug found her. He sat down beside her and delivered the message. She eyed him sleepily, her face flushed and rosy like a child's. She smiled when he said that Stewart said to tell her this.

"He likes me, doesn't he?"

"Who wouldn't? Listen, girlie, you be a good kid and do just what he tells you to do. He can give you that chance to dance that you want and you'd be pretty much lost in New York without someone to look after you. I'm tipping you off and don't you forget—do the thing he wants and don't question why."

"No gypsy woman questions her man," she answered. "If this white man wants I should obey him I will."

"You've got a lot of things to learn, gypsy girl, and one is that men don't want anything they can have too easily. Now don't get mad and snap your eyes at me, baby, I'm only telling you. Now you run along and have breakfast and then follow the train back to our car. The porter'll let you in. Run along, like a good little girl."

When the gypsy went into the dining car with her bangles tingling, her black hair flying, her white teeth flashing, her bare feet moving in rhythmic grace, people turned and stared at her. She smiled at this one and that. After she had been seated, she played with the forks and spoons on the table and picked the ice out of the glass and sucked it. She tossed the offered menu aside. "Eggs I want, bacon, potatoes, bread in slices and coffee—" She picked the bacon up in her fingers and ate it down as if it were asparagus and drank the coffee with little hissing sounds.

When she had finished, she argued that the bill was too big, but then, after all she had money in her pocket, so she flung three silver dollars on the floor at the waiter's feet and marched out. When she got to the end of the car she turned and shouted, "I could steal a dozen eggs and it would not cost me that price!"

She swaggered through the cars. She was delayed. She promised to come back and tell fortunes for this one and that. "Wait till you see me dance," she boasted. "I am going to New York to become the greatest dancer they have there." Where? "New York." What theater? What did it matter? New York, that was all. New York!

The marble palace. The white man had promised. What of Marcu now? Nothing. Less than nothing. Going to New York. Going to dance. The high hill at last.

When she entered the private car she went to the gray-haired man and flung her arms around him.

"Now you are my darling one." She held up her red lips for him to kiss, but he did not. "Now you are the kind I have dreamed of. Now will my name be in lights on that place you call Broadway. I told you that I would dance in a marble palace on top of a high hill. It is true, isn't it, that New York is that high hill?" She whirled on her toes and flirted with him like a mischievous child. "In my marble palace I have always stood alone but now I will let this man, a theater king, stand beside me and all the world will see us and say there is a king and his woman and his woman is the best dancer in the world and she is a gypsy with hot blood in her veins and fire in her heart!"

He fell into her mood.

"The king is generous. He prefers to let the gypsy stand in the marble palace alone. He would be too conspicuous and after all he is a staid old man and cannot dance."

"Old?" She mocked. She caught his hands and whirled him around. And suddenly he was holding her in his arms and kissing her red lips.

NORMAL PUPILS SPEND A WEEK RURAL SCHOOLS

Educational Experiment Tried at Local School Very Successful.

149 STUDENTS OUT.

Students Are Given an Insight Into Work in Rural Schools.

An educational experiment in the training of teachers, has recently been concluded at Peterborough Normal School, with the approval and co-operation of the Department of Education.

Under the unique scheme tried out in nineteen inspectorates throughout Central Ontario, 149 students each spent a week in an approved ungraded school, observing, assisting with supervision, and teaching.

Dr. J. A. Bannister, principal of the Normal School, commenting on the fact that ninety per cent of the students will do their first actual teaching in ungraded schools, said that nevertheless only from ten to twelve per cent of their practice teaching at Normal School is done in this type of school.

He was therefore of the firm opinion that the experiment would be productive of good results as it gave the Normal students practice and insight into rural school conditions, which could not be given to them in a practical way by any other method.

"Inspectors have been most helpful in the selection of schools and in the supervision of the experiment, and teachers in the schools are enthusiastic in their reports of the work done, and of the benefit they themselves have obtained", Dr. Bannister said.

Visited By Masters

Remarking upon the fact that the Normal School masters visited as many of the classes as they could, during the week of April 29 to May 3, that the experiment was conducted, and that he himself went to visit pupil teachers in Prince Edward County, and supervise their work, Dr. Bannister added, "The Normal school masters had a very busy week, but feel well repaid because of the renewed contact with rural school conditions, with teachers and with inspectors".

While he was out on his visit, Dr. Bannister was the guest on Friday evening last of the Teachers' Institute of Prince Edward County, at a banquet in Picton Public School, attended by fifty or more county teachers.

Peterborough is the only Provincial Normal School, with exception of Hamilton to have pioneered in such an experiment, and it is stated, "the attempt warrants the hope that it will be made a regular feature of the Normal School course for succeeding years".

20 PER CENT. CUTS IN LIQUOR PRICES

New Prices Went Into Effect at Local Liquor Control Store on Tuesday.

New Reduced prices on domestic and certain imported ryes, whiskeys and gins went into effect at the Peterborough Liquor Control Board store yesterday. The reductions average about twenty per cent on the various brands, local officials estimate.

The dollar bottles of common domestic brands are now being sold at 80 cents. The brands which were being sold in reputed quart bottles at $2.00 are now available at $1.80. For further illustration, two whiskeys which were selling at $3.85 and $3.50 respectively are now available at $3.10 and $2.75.

Imported Scotch and Irish whiskies have been reduced 65 cents per regular bottle in price. The greatest reduction is in Australian and South African brandies. An Australian brandy at $3.00 a bottle is now down to $2.25. A South African brandy at $2.80 is now $2.00.

The store officials said no difference in the volume of business has been noticeable here since the prices went into effect yesterday morning.

SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK — By R. J. Scott

FIVE ROBBERS BURN VICTIM; STEAL $2,750

Retired Farmer, 87, Reveals Hiding Place of Money Under Torture.

TOLD CHILDREN DEAD

BROOKS, Ind., May 8. — Torture, bodily and mental, were used here by five masked bandits who took life savings of $250 in cash and $2,500 in government bonds from Asbury Strole, 87, retired farmer.

Forcing their way into the house, the robbers first held up the old man's son and daughter, Oscar, 45, and Alice, 35, binding them hand and foot and locking them in a bathroom.

Then their spokesman told the aged Strole, who had been dragged from bed:

"If you want to live, tell us where your money is. We know you've got it here. You can't use it after you're dead, and you will be dead if we don't get it. You need not worry about leaving it to your children either, because we have already killed them. You'll find their bodies in the bathroom—if you live long enough to look."

Welcomes Death

The old man said:

"If you have killed my children, you might as well kill me."

The answer was:

"Don't be in a hurry. We'll kill you, but you'll do some suffering first. First we'll burn your whiskers off. Then we'll see how you like fire on your feet."

Burn Off Beard

They did burn his beard—slowly, igniting it with matches, putting out the flame and starting it again. When his face was scorched the old man could stand no more. He showed them where the money was. It was only $300.

They departed, binding Strole and his wife with tape. The couple later found their children unharmed. Posses under Sheriff Grant Hampton are searching for the robbers.

Is This a Writing Of Jesus?

The Rev. Desmond Morse-Boycott, London clergyman, shown with the tattered document which is now being studied by experts in the hope that it is what the clergyman believe it is, a reproduction of a letter written by Jesus. Although no trace of the writings of Jesus has ever been discovered, theological experts affirm He must have written much. The document gives the text of two letters, one said to be written by Agbarus, prince of Edessa, in Arabia; the other stated to be the reply of Jesus. The Rev. Morse-Boycott said the document in his possession was printed in Britain centuries ago.

AN OPEN LETTER ON OUR RADIO LISTENING HABITS

To whom it may concern:

(Especially radio chains, advertising agencies, etc.)

Gentlemen: Twice in the last couple of weeks, I have been called to the telephone during the evening and asked if I were listening to some radio program or other. I tried to answer courteously and clearly, but something—maybe it was the way one of the inquiriers said "Damn!" and hung up—told me that I was falling somewhat short of actually getting my reply across. It seemed really to confuse rather than enlighten.

This letter is intended to clear up the situation, and I hope that you will find it does so.

The young ladies who telephoned—I assumed they were young; at least, they sounded young, and beautiful—asked first if we had our radio going. I replied, yes, of course. As I told them, our radio is always going. We used to turn it off and on from time to time, but that got to be a nuisance, and now we just leave it on.

The second thing the young ladies wanted to know was whether we were listening at the moment to—I believe; the name did not register strongly—the Peerless Depilatory Hour of Mirth and Melody.

I said I didn't know but that I would ask my wife. You may think it funny that I shouldn't know what program I was listening to, with the radio blaring away only a few feet from my head. Well, it's like this. Time was when I listened to every word that came out of the radio, straining so as not to miss even a syllable. That time was the first week to owned a radio set—about the second or third week in November, 1927. But now I'm afraid I've got so I scarcely hear a word, even with the radio going full blast. Why I can read or play bridge or talk and not mind—I mean not really hear—the radio at all. I explained all this to your young ladies and said I'd ask my wife.

My wife said, "What?" three times when I asked her what program was going on, and then demanded how the such and such I expected her to know. You see, she was working a crossword puzzle one time and was making heavy weather of a job of knitting the other time, and her mind was far away from the radio, even though she sat beside it. Matter of fact, she didn't like being interrupted at all and she so expressed herself, which took time, too.

I reported back to your young ladies, advising them of my nonsuccess, and suggested that if they would care to wait, I would make it a point to listen to the announcement at the end of the program and then come quickly and tell them if it was the right one. But your young ladies seemed to be in some hurry, and they began to shoot questions at me. Was it dance music? Were there two Jewish-talking comedians? Was there a chorus of mixed voices? I said I would listen, and report back.

So I listened for ten minutes or so and returned to the phone. It was dance music, all right. But about those Jewish-talking comedians, I was of two minds. As I told your young ladies, there were two men talking in some sort of dialect that I couldn't understand, so they may have been Jewish-talking, all right. But it didn't sound funny to me, so I wasn't sure if they were comedians or not. As for the reputed chorus, I hadn't heard any. But if they wanted me to, I would go back. . . .

At this point, I believe that the young ladies began to lose the fine edge of their patience. I know I heard one of them mumble something under her breath and it sounded Chaucerian. Be that as it may they then tried to pin me down by asking if I was listening to Station WPDQ. By dint of the utmost concentration I came to the conclusion that the station we were listening to was either WPDQ or WWWW. Which one I joust couldn't decide. After all one station or another—what's the difference?

Well that's what I reported to your young ladies and it was at this juncture that one said "Damn" and hung up, while the other just hung up—perhaps saying "Damn" afterward.

I am awfully sorry it turned out this way both times. We really wouldn't know what to do if we didn't have the radio programs to turn on every day. I remember one time when our radio wouldn't run, and we had a pretty unpleasant evening. My wife complained that the house was so still she couldn't keep her mind on the letters she was writing, and I know that I had a terrible time concentrating on my book.

Keep up the good work; and call on us whenever you think we can help you.

Gratefully yours,
JOHN C. EMERY.

Born—In Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough on Monday, May 6th, to Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bonner, a son.

Seeding is well advanced in this locality. The showery weather delayed the farmers for a few days, but it helped the wheat and clover. The fields of fall wheat are varied. Some fields wintered remarkably well, others are just fair, while a few fields had to be cultivated and resown. There are some very good stands of clover, while other fields were badly winter-killed.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Devitt and son Garnet of Orillia were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Fallis.

Miss Peevor and Mr Meallin of Toronto were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Creighton Carr.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Carr motored to Newtonville on Sunday and visited her brother, Mr. Albert Elliott, who is ill.

Southwest Africa May Go Back to Reich

UNION RUMORED WILLING COLONY CHANGE HANDS

Ex-German Lands in Nazi Control Would Act as Buffer to French Territories.

ADMINISTRATION COSTLY.

Hertzog's Suggestion Independent Liberal be Mandated to Berlin Stirs Surprise.

LONDON, May 9.—(A P) — Authoritative quarters said today the Union of South Africa would be willing to have Southwest Africa, former German colony, returned to the Reich.

Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, has already given the empire statesmen — who met again today—full accounts of his visit to Berlin during which Hitler among other things insisted on recognition of Germany's right to colonies.

Published reports that Prime Minister J. B. Hertzog of South Africa brought to London the suggestion independent Liberia be mandated to Germany caused surprise in South African quarters which pointed out South Africans felt this would be unjust to the Liberians.

Some Reasons Why

Aside from the fact the white population of Southwest Africa remains predominantly German, informed quarters cited several reasons why the Union might favor its return to Germany. Among these are the heavy cost of its administration, fears caused by the French postwar policy of arming African natives for use in Europe and the belief German control, in view of the Nazi's stress on Ayran superiority, would keep southwest Africa a buffer state against French territories to the north.

RELIEF RENTS BE CONSIDERED

Official Notice Has Not Been Received by City Officials.

RELIEF BOARD MEETS.

The Provincial Government's increased allowance for relief rent will be considered locally upon receipt of official notice of the amendment from the Department of public Welfare.

Boards have been permitted to pay to owners of houses tenanted by persons on relief 150 per cent of the taxes, but by the new regulation this schedule has been increased to 200 per cent of the taxes.

At present, and by way of illustration, the landlord of a house which is taxed for $60 may be paid $90 by the Relief Board, but under the Hepburn government's new policy this amount of relief rent for a year becomes $120.

Of the $30 increase the city pays $10 and the province $20. Opinion of members of the council and Central Relief Board regards the amendment as an appreciable benefit to both landlords and un-

By HAROLD P. BRAMAN

LONDON, Eng., May 9. (AP).—King George to-day told members of Parliament come to congratulate him on his silver jubilee that he prayed his country could continue to pursue the cause of freedom and progress.

"In these days when fear and preparation for war are again astir in the world," the Monarch said: "Let us be thankful that quiet, government and peace prevail over so large a part of the earth's surface."

The King also expressed gratitude "that under our flag of freedom so many millions eat their daily bread in far distant lands and climes with none to make them afraid."

Referring to Westminster Hall where he received the lords and the members of the House of Commons as "the very cradle of our envied parliamentary institutions," the King said:

CHAIN LETTER RACKET FOUND IN CITY MAIL

Racket Has Reached Peterborough and Letters Being Sent Out.

PROSPERITY DONATIONS.

Dimes According to Theory Should Soon Start Rolling In.

The prosperity chain letter racket has reached Peterborough!

Several weeks ago first news of the racket came from Denver, Colorado. Despatches said the mails at Denver had been increased threefold when the populace was swept away with visions of huge returns from the investment of a mere dime and a few postage stamps. the craze has since spread like wildfire throughout United States and into Canada. The first letters to reach Peterborough were reported yesterday.

What is it all about?

Content Of Letters

Here is the content of one of the letters received in this city yesterday, typical of the prosperity chain missives:

"In God We Trust.

"Faith—Hope—Charity.

"This chain was started with the hope of bringing prosperity to you. Within three days make five copies of this letter omitting the top name and address, and adding your name and address to the bottom of the list, and give to five of your friends to whom you wish prosperity to come. In omitting the top name and address, send that person a dime (well wrapped in paper) as a prosperity donation. In turn, as your name leaves the top you may receive 15,562 letters with donations amounting to $1,562.50.

"Now is this worth a dime to you?

"Have the faith your friend had and this chain will not be broken."

Name Moves Up

The list referred to in the letter is a list of six names and addresses typed conspicuously on the top of the sheet. The theory, of course, is that after the recipient sends his dime to the top name and produces five copies of the letter minus the top name and plus his own name, his name will move rapidly up from the bottom to the top as the chain progresses. According to the theory, the dimes will begin rolling in within a space of a few days.

While the advance-guard of the chain letters have reached Peterborough, no noticeable increase in the volume of mail passing through the Post Office here has yet re-

KING'S WESTMINSTER HALL VISIT SETS HISTORY FOR OLD ENGLAND

Meets Peers, Commons Assembled Together First Time, in Scene of Quiet Dignity.

NEW RELATIONSHIP.

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, May 9 (C.P. Cable). — The King came to-day to Westminster. In the great hall of William Rufus, George V. and his Queen received addresses of congratulation from the Peers and Commoners in joint session assembled on the Silver Jubilee of his accession to the throne.

It was a scene of quiet dignity rather than of pageantry. There was none of the clatter of armed men. Outriders alone escorted the King and Queen from Buckingham Palace to the Palace of Westminster.

Yet as Their Majesties sat on a raised dias, members of the Royal Family about them, Indian Princes, Dominion Prime Ministers, Judges, Members of the House of Lords and of Commons crowding the vast stone Westminster Hall, one felt a new and closer relationship between Crown and Parliament.

Historic Event

The ceremony had deep historic significance. Never before has a King gone to Westminster Hall to

BRITAIN BANS FOREIGN ORDERS FOR AEROPLANES

Air Ministry Requests Manufacturers to Speed Production of Parts, Engines.

FORCE TO BE EXPANDED.

LONDON, May 9 (A.P.). — The Air Ministry to-day cautioned aircraft and engine manufacturers against accepting foreign orders and requested them to accelerate production in preparation for expansion of the Royal Air Force.

Britain's new action program, fulfilling the Government's declared intention of keeping pace with Germany in the air, will be revealed on May 22.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald set that date for the House of Commons debate on Imperial defence at which time it was indicated the Government hopes to present more up-to-date information concerning Germany's air strength.

The debate has been postponed several times, the last tentative date being May 16, but as Government leaders pointed out, this would follow by only one day the long-awaited pronouncement on foreign policy by Chancellor Adolf Hitler before the Reichstag. The later date will therefore allow the Government a full week after it had

PROTESTS SENT NATIONSSELLING ETHIOPIA ARMS

Friendship of Italy Depends on Attitude Taken States Rome Newspaper.

SPAIN, GERMANY NAMED.

Believe Diplomatic Objection Will be Sufficient Warning Regarding Shipments.

ROME, May 9. (AP).—The authoritative newspaper Gionale D'Italia to-day stated Italy had fyled diplomatic protests with nations furnishing arms to Ethiopia.

Without naming the nations, the newspaper said:

"We do not doubt but that this action will be sufficient. The friendship of Italy depends on the attitude which every country is taking in regard to this furnishing of war materials to Ethiopia."

The semi-official publication Le Forze Armate (armed forces) yesterday said Spanish, Swedish, German and Belgian factories were shipping war materials to Ethiopia.

An official communique two days ago announcing mobilization of approximately 100,000 more troops to join the 100,000 troops already in East Africa cited shipments of arms an ammunition to Ethiopia "by European factories which we have definitely identified" as one of the reasons for the new military measure.

WOULD REPLACE MUNICIPALITIES' PRESENT LEVIES

Payment to Various Centres For Revenue Lost as Consequence, Hinted by Hepburn.

"Present System Unjust."

Succession Duties, Dues From Northern Activities to be Main Revenue Producers.

TORONTO, May 9 (C.P.). —Imposition of a provincial income tax in Ontario to replace similar municipal taxes and payment to municipalities for revenue lost as a consequence was viewed as a strong possibility to-day by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn in an address before the Ontario Division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

"There is no equity or justice in the present system," said the Premier. "Many from Toronto to escape it moved out to Forest Hill Village. I don't see anything wrong in applying one provincial income tax and subsidizing municipalities for money they lost."

More Purchasing Power

Prefacing a discussion of Ontario's financial position with a warning recovery would be impossible without efforts to increase purchasing power and lower the costs of production, Mr. Hepburn reiterated the intention of his Government to balance the Province's budget.

"It will hurt," he said, "but it won't hurt as much now as if we left it for a few years. When we decide on this, we are going to do it without interfering with purchasing power or increasing the costs of production."

Two main sources of revenue would be succession duties and dues from activities in the northland. "We're going to put teeth in the Succession Duties Act," he said.

Mr. Hepburn referred to the Government's reduction of Crown dues

CHICAGO GRAIN

Renewal of inflation talk, coupled with reported moves toward possible overriding of a presidential veto of the Patman Bonus Bill, accompanied higher grain prices yesterday.

It was asserted that submitting the bonus bill to President Roosevelt would be delayed until friends of the measure had mustered full strength in the Senate and would be able perhaps to nullify an expressed intention on his part to exercise veto power. Another bullish factor was evidence of growing belief there would be notable shortage of domestic hard winter wheat production this season.

Wheat closed firm, ¼c to 1c above Tuesday's finish; July 95⅛c to 95¾c; corn, ⅛c off to ⅝c up, July 81¼c to 81½c; oats, ⅛c to ⅝c advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7c.

Broader milling demand for wheat at Kansas City served as a stimulating influence here. Kansas despatches reported urgent need of heavy rains to restore subsoil moisture.

Corn and oats prices averaged higher, responsive to tightening-up of premiums for Chicago May delivery of corn.

Provisions reflected grain rallies, as well as strength shown by the cotton-seed oil market.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, May 9 (C.P.) — Small offerings of killing cattle sold steady on the Toronto Livestock Market this afternoon and only a few lots of plain stockers were unsold. Prices on calves, sheep, hogs and lambs were unchanged.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch, were: Cattle, 160; calves, 30; hogs, 250; sheep and lambs, 30.

Choice weighty steers sold at $7 to $7.50, with one at $8. Butchers ranged from $4.75 to $6.50, while good cows brought $4.25 to $4.75 and plain, $2.75. A few fed calves got $6 to $8 cwt.

The small supply of calves sold steady at $3.50 to $7 cwt., according to quality. A few feed-lot lambs made $6 to $7 and a half-dozen Spring lambs brought $8 each.

Hogs were steady and unchanged $8.60 f.o.b. for bacons, $9 off truck, and $9.35 off car. Packers issued lower bids for week-end deliveries.

Quotations. — Cattle, calf, hog, sheep and lamb quotes were unchanged.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 9. — The elements played touch and go with traders on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday, but the market effect was a stalemate. Wheat prices closed unchanged to ¼ cent higher, May at 86¾c, and July at 88⅝c.

A bountiful supply of moisture for Western Canada's newly seeded crop assured, traders who based their operations on this bearish factor were stayed by the continued dryness in the United States Southwest, decidedly bullish.

As a result, pit trade was small, with buying and selling at a minimum. Some support from the export sale of 250,000 bushels of Canadian wheat enabled values to recover from an opening halfcent setback, and thereafter the session was quiet.

The trend of outside markets had little effect here. Chicago closed with net gains of one cent, after an early-session setback, while Liverpool was weak throughout and closed ¼d-⅜d lower. Buenos Aires was fractionally higher.

Some buying of rye was the only feature to the cash and coarse grain sections.

CUBAN RADICAL LEADER SLAIN

Guiteras Dies Defending Fortress in Three Hours Battle With Gov't Troops.

KIDNAP LOOT FOUND.

MATANZAS, Cuba, May 9 (A.P.).—Army officials scoured this vicinity to-day in search of associates of the Radical leader, Antonio Guiteras, former Secretary of the Interior, War and Navy, whose death from army bullets yesterday was described by an unimpeachable source as thwarting a miniature revolt.

The stormy petrel of Cuban politics was shot down in a three-hour engagement with Government troops who raided El Morrillo fortress in which he and his followers had taken refuge.

Guiteras's aide, Carlos Aponte, perished with him, while the attackers lost four soldiers. Some 20 of the 28-year-old Radical's associates, two of them women, were in the fortress when the troops swooped down on them.

It was learned a considerable number of the ransom money paid in the $300,000 kidnapping of Eutimio Falla Bonet, with which the Government had charged Guiteras, was found near the slain Radical's body.

TRAVEL CLUB'S FIRST PERIOD ENDS SATURDAY

Office Will Remain Open Until 9.30 on Saturday Night.

CANDIDATES ACTIVE.

Saturday night will see the close of the vote period in The Examiner's Travel Club and candidates are busy collecting votes and subscriptions from their friends to get full credit for the higher votes allowed for subscriptions during this first period. This week a one-year subscription gives a candidate 30,000 votes as compared with 26,000 allowed for one-year subscription next week. Subscribers will readily understand why candidates are making a real drive for subscriptions this week.

The Travel Club office will remain open until 9.30 p.m. Saturday night for the convenience of candidates and their friends who wish to call at the office to deposit their votes. Keen interest is evidenced in many sections and supporters as well as candidates are anxiously following every possible opportunity to back their favorites. A common questions these days is, "Who do you think will win the free trips?" The Travel Club Manager answers this as follows: "The ten ladies who secure the greatest amount of votes in their respective districts." But of course we know that what our candidates' supporters are speculating on is, "Who will the ten leading ladies be?" This of course is impossible to answer; the Travel Club is not a week old and many interesting changes can take place between now and the close. Every

COUGHLIN GIVES PARTY PLEDGE CENTRAL BANK

SAYS PRESS SUBSIDIZED.

CLEVELAND, May 9 (AP)—The Rev. Charles W. Coughlin, addressing approximately 26,000 persons at a rally of the National Union for Social Justice, pledged the organization to a militant campaign to replace the Federal Reserve banking system of the United States with a Central Government Bank.

"The National Union," he said, "resting upon its doctrine of solidarity and fortified by the constitution of our nation, which specifically points out that Congress has the right to coin and regulate the value of money, demands the expulsion of this prostitute, this Federal Reserve banking system, from our midst and establishment of a Central Government Bank, owned by the people and controlled by the people directly through the Congress of the United States."

Hits Eccles Bill

The Detroit Catholic priest in his last night's address assailed the Eccles Banking Bill, which he said would make the President the "financial dictator of the United States."

"More than that," he added, "it plans to secure the ownership of the Federal Reserve banking system in the hands of its present owners.

"If you analyze this new bill, now being sponsored by Mr. Roosevelt, you will discover it is nothing more than a marriage license between a prostitute who has wrecking our home and the government who has deserted his wife, the American people."

The speaker emphasized again that the Union is "not a new political party."

"The National Union, while repudiating any effort on its part to establish a third, fourth or fifth

CHAIN LETTERS SWEEP OVER U.S. TO WHITE HOUSE

Roosevelt Gets 200—Authorities Consider Barring Mails to the Writers.

VETERANS GRAB IDEA.

Craze Ties Up Missouri Town's Business as Executives Get "Fever."

DENVER, May 9. —(CP)— That now anonymous fellow who first asked "does this mean a dime to you" really started something. Out of that original chain letter, millions have grown. The fad appeared today to be sweeping the United States—even entering the White House, uninvited—and trickling into Canada.

The General Idea

The idea at the outset was for each person receiving a list of five names to write his own at the bottom, cross out the name at the top, send that person a dime and mail the letter to five others. Then all he had to do was sit back while the chain grew and grew until theoretically speaking, he got back more than $1,000 in dimes for his trouble.

That was the way it started here several weeks ago. Today the mails were clogged with chain letters of not only the dime variety but those for a quarter, a half dollar, $1 and even $10. Many of the more expensive chains were carried on by person-to-person.

The arrival at Washington of more than 200 dime chain letters addressed to President Roosevelt caused post office department officials to consider denying such writers use of the mails. Officials said they could act under the fraud and lottery laws.

The chain idea was taken up by war veterans at Dallas, Tex., in behalf of the soldiers' bonus. They sent 1,000 letters to all parts of the country, hoping each receiver would write five, with the thousands thus

AMELIA EARHART BREAKS RECORD MEXICO - N. YORK

TIME 14 HOURS, 22 MINS.

NEW YORK, May 9 (A.P.). — Amelia Earhart, who stepped lightly from her red monoplane at the Newark (N.J.) airport last night after completing the first non-stop flight from Mexico, had one expressed objective to-day—sleep.

No, that the perilous take-off or the 2,100-mile hop had tired her—she found the addition of another record to her list a "colorless" feat—but it was a "trying" reception by a cheering throng at the airport.

"It was not a particularly interesting flight," she told questioners.

The plane which had carried her across the Atlantic and from Hawaii to California touched its wheels to the brightly lighted field at 9:28.50 p.m., E.S.T., 14 hours, 22 minutes and 50 seconds after the take-off.

Police lines meant nothing to the crowd. The spectators swarmed about the plane, and Miss Earhart had to abandon it to sturdier guardians.

With police cars for opening wedges, the flier slowly made her way to a hangar. Almost there, she met her husband, George Palmer Putnam, who reached her side only after prolonged football tactics by a bluecoat escort.

"Mexico is more civilized than Newark," exclaimed the publisher.

London elementary schools at present give employment to 19,101 persons, including 15,358 teachers.

Keep away from stale, nervously irritating coffee

WHEN coffee grows stale, it develops rancid oil and entirely loses its mellow, cheery flavor. You get no pleasure from drinking stale coffee, and science says it is upsetting to your "nerves." It can make you cross and unreasonable.

TWO TORONTO FLIERS CRASH

John and Fred Jenkins Badly Shaken After Plane Stalls at 2,000 Feet.

COCKPIT SAVES THEM.

TORONTO, May 9 (C.P.).—From adjacent cots in a hospital here, two brothers to-day expressed wonder they were still living, after the biplane in which they were flying at an altitude of 2,000 feet just north of the city stalled and they crashed in a farmer's field.

The pilot, John William Jenkins, 24, suffered face and head lacerations, and to-day was recovering from the shock of the crack-up. Fred, 26, also cut and bruised, suffered a more severe concussion than his brother, but was much improved to-day.

The engine of the plane "cut out," "Bill" Jenkins told Col. Douglas Joy, District Inspector of the Department of Civil Aviation, and he tried to make a safe forced landing.

V. S. Houston, manager of the air service which last evening leased the biplane to the brothers, said Bill had been taught to fly by the company instructor, and had been known as the best student they ever had.

"Had it been any other type of machine, they would have been crushed by the heavy engine," he said. The fact the cockpit was reinforced also helped them.

KING EXPRESSES

comon law was forged to become the joint inheritance of the United States of America and of our own community of peoples."

The King, looking back over his 25 eventful years of reign, said the thankfulness he felt was "chiefly for escape from a danger greater than ever before threatened our land"—the Great War—in which "strength upheld the free."

At the doors of Westminster Hall, the King and Queen were greeted by the First Commissioner of Works, William Ormsby-Gore, custodian of the building.

Members of the Lords and Commons were already in the Hall when the King and Queen arrived. They had been called to order an hour before, and then the members of Commons, preceded by their Mace and the Speaker, walked from the Chamber through the lobbies and into the Hall through the great north door. The Peers, headed by their Mace and the Lord Chancellor, entered the Hall from St Stephen's Hall.

Precautions Taken.

To safeguard the King's health, all doors were closed and heavily curtained for the Hall is known as the coldest building in London.

Huge throngs of cheering subjects lined the streets as Their Majesties drove to the Hall and returned.

Viscount Sankey, Lord Chancellor, reading the lord's address of welcome, praised the monarch as one whose "personality made the throne not merely a symbol but a loved and living reality."

"Your majesty has called forth loyalty and love which has given a new meaning to the name of king," the lord chancellor said.

After sketching briefly the history of the last quarter century, he continued:

"More truly than any of your illustrious ancestors your majesty rules over a nation of free citizens."

Throne Stands more Firmly

Despite the wide extension of government by the people, Viscount Sankey declared, "the throne stands more firmly than ever before as the centre of national life."

Captain E. A. Fitzroy, speaker of the Commons, clad in full bottom wig and black and gold ceremonial robes of his office, eulogized the king, declaring: "You are more than a sovereign; you are head of the family and of a nation, and of an empire you have made a household."

King George paid special tribute "in this hour of thanksgiving" to those killed and maimed in the war, turning then to the problem of post-war rehabilitation and expressing sympathy for "those who have endured sadness and the burden of unemployment."

His Majesty's Prayer

He concluded with the prayer:

"I give thanks to Almighty God who has thus far sustained me and my people and I pray we may continue to pursue the cause of freedom and progress in the spirit of peace, tolerance and understanding."

Once the King's clear, ringing voice faltered That was when he half turned to speak words of praise of "my dear wife" Queen Mary.

Tears welled up in the eyes of the King and Queen as the legislators, shedding their traditional dignity, gave three cheers for King George and as many for Queen Mary under the leadership of the Lord Chancellor.

The King wore morning clothes with a top hat and black overcoat for the drive to Westminster Hall, while the Queen was attired in a silver brocade cloak with a white fox collar worn over a shimmering gown so faintly tinted with pink it seemed white, with matching toque.

Loyalty Second to None.

The loyalty of Canadians to the British Crown was second to that of no group of British subjects, said Mr. Bennett. It was not based on boastful Imperialism, but on the firm belief that the British Crown stood for the reign of law, order and justice, and a realization that British institutions and traditions had meant much to the development of Canada as a young nation.

With nations everywhere erecting barriers to trade, Mr. Bennett thought the British nations should do all possible to develop inter-Empire trade. The Empire trade and agreements had been of great assistance in tiding Canada over a crisis. They had turned Canadian trade in the direction of the United Kingdom, and imports from the United Kingdom were now increasing. He was grateful for the way in which the British had carried out the agreements, and believed any fair-minded person would say that Canada had also done its part.

The Rev. Fr. Coughlin charged the press generally had been subsidized by financiers.

27 Indictments

Rev. Fr. Coughlin indicted the Federal Reserve Banking system, on 27 points, among them the following:

"They have promoted the growth of giant corporations to the extent that 200 of the 300,000 corporate entities in America possess $61,000,000,000 out of the $165,000,000,000 total corporate assets.

"They have loaned abroad in private loans over $8,000,000,000 of our peoples' money, leaving worthless securities in lieu thereof.

"They drove America into the world war, to secure the credit of the British empire, at the consequent cost of thousands of lives and $40,000,000,000 cost to the taxpayers of the United States.

"They have induced the government of the United States to refuse to issue adequate currency, but rather to issue interest bearing bonds, in exchange for book credits issued by the banks, over-subscribing each issue till now national debt is reaching its all time high of $34,000,000,000 financed largely by banks that never had a full billion of actual currency in their vaults."

SOLDIER HANGS AT ENGLISH JAIL

Murdered Aged Clerk in Robbery—Mrs. Van der Elst Demonstrates.

PROTESTS DEATH PENALTY.

DURHAM, England, May 9. (AP) John Bainbridge, 24-year-old soldier, was hanged to-day for murdering a 75-year-old man, while Mrs. Violet Van Der Elst, militant opponent of the death sentence, staged another of her anti-capital punishment demonstrations outside the prison walls.

Mrs. Van Der Elst, in an attempt to delay the execution sent a telegram to the King and Queen last night requesting them to prevent the hanging taking place during Jubilee week.

When her plea failed, the wealthy widow, as she has done twice before, drove up to the prison gates in her expensive limousine equipped with a loudspeaker whose raucous broadcasting notified the public of what was going on inside.

Bainbridge was convicted of killing Edward F. Herdman, aged solicitor's clerk, last New Year's eve in the course of a robbery. Testimony at his trial disclosed soon after the crime was committed, the youthful soldier attended a holiday party at which he played the part of the "murderer" in a game called "murder."

CHAIN LETTERS SWEEP OVER U.S.

accumulated ultimately reaching the same destination. Those senators who voted against the bonus proposal.

Town Gets the Fever

At Springfield, Mo., the fad gained such a drive overnight that other business slowed up. Mushroomed letter "factories" there did such a business that they had to hire clerks to wait on the "customers."

It started Tuesday night as a joke. By sun-up it was the town's biggest business.

Two, three and five dollar chain letters were sold from person to person and attested before a notary. As little as possible was left to chance in Springfield's big-scale development of the original send-a-dime fad.

A customer who purchased a $5 letter was taken before a notary public. The notary made certain the customer put $5 in the mail addressed to the person whose name topped that particular chain list. Two copies of each letter purchased were resold with the new customer's name at the bottom of the lists. With each resale the cancellation of the top name, the new customer worked up to the "pay-off" position.

Originators of $2 $3 and $5 chains hurriedly rented office space, got stenographers busy typing lists and hired clerks and notaries to convince customers the chains were "cheater-proof."

The "factories" sprang up in drug stores and corridors, anywhere there was space. Other business was halted. Even executives took up the fad.

Guy Barnes, executive secretary of Drury College, which is planning an endowment campaign, said persons have assured him: "All we have to do is start a chain letter and within 10 days we'll have $50,000." He did not indicate the suggestion would be followed.

Investment a Pyramid

Operators of a $5 chain claimed a total investment of $1,060 within 12 hours. Beauty shops sold the letters to their customers while administering facials and permanents.

A taproom operator said he made $875 on a $5 chain, and expected more.

"It's just a sudden release of recklessness by persons who have been under severe restraint," said Harry P. Study, president of the Missouri State Teachers' Association.

The focal point was a chain which began in an hotel lobby and moved to a garage to accommodate the crowds. A 35-foot table, lined on both sides with typists, was the centre of a jostling, yelling crowd of $1,500 persons frantic to get their letters typed and resold.

DAIRY BOARDS

CAMPBELLFORD, May 9 (Examiner Correspondence). — Cheese boards held so far this season show a slight advance over last year.

Victor Scott, of Woodlands, is prepared to give real service to the cheese patrons of his section having installed a new floor in the "make room" and new whey tanks with which he can pasteurize the whey.

George Pollard, Jr., of Frankford, who received his early school training in Seymour East, will be factory inspector for the Madoc district.

There will be three less on the staff of cheese factory inspectors in Eastern Ontario this season. Inspector Howey, of Belleville, has retired, and the factories of that district will be absorbed by the other districts of Central Ontario. Castleton, Cedar Creek and Wooler factories will be included in the Campbellford district, while some of the factories in the west of Northumberland will go into Peterborough district.

HASTINGS SCOUTS PRESENT PROGRAM

C. R. Fowlds Makes Efficient Chairman—Gather Around Camp Fire.

HASTINGS, May 9 (Examiner Correspondence). — The local troop of Boy Scouts put on a very interesting program in honor of the Jubilee in the Town Hall on Monday night. Considering that there was no celebration in the village the attendance was very small. Scoutmaster C. R. Fowlds made a very efficient chairman.

In opening the meeting Mr. Fowlds thanked the council for granting the boys the use of the hall just for the actual expense. The Scouts were not getting the encouragement from the citizens that they deserved. Mr. Fowlds told of numerous good acts the small local troup have accomplished.

The program opened with the National anthem, followed by a demonstration of Scout work which included the taking of the Scout oath by three young boys—Jimmie Mouncey, Sammy Stubbs and Garfield Killingbeck. The boys then sat grouped around a very clever imitation camp fire on the stage while Scouts V. Scriver, J. Puffer and G. Killingbeck put on a very injoyable program of songs and instrumentals.

The toast to the King proposed by the Scouts was very ably responded to by Rev. Hilton Campbell, D.D., of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. He gave a very interesting description of the reign of King George. He also informed the Scouts that he was quite familiar with their work while in Windsor and would do all in his power to help them.

The toast to Lord Baden-Powell, the founder of the Boy Scout movement, was proposed by Scout Leader F. Kennedy and in responding Rev. H. F. Battersby of St. George's Anglican Church delivered a very interesting discourse of the life of the famous Scout founder.

Sensational Effort By Derby Champion

BALTIMORE, Md., May 9.—(AP)—A stern Preakness battle, destined the heavy support for Omaha, was heralded today as candidates Saturday's classic began pour Pimlico's turf in workouts for mile and three-sixteenths test, $ 000 added value.

An overwhelming favorite to the Preakness as he did the K tucky Derby, Omaha was in fettle as he galloped around track. He turned in what was considered a phenomenal workout by breezing a mile in 1.44 1-5 on a heavy track.

THAT'S WHY I ALWAYS BUY HAWES'!

NOW I buy floor wax on the same basis as everything else on my household list. I buy on VALUE and SERVICE—not on price. I've had enough of ordinary waxes—they have proved to be cheap in price only—and really cost more in the long run. When I used ordinary wax I used more wax and could never get my floors to look right. I now buy HAWES', the better quality wax, which keeps my floors well polished and well protected with less work, and at lower cost. MAKE IT A REAL EFFORT.

While there are indications on every hand that many citizens are living up to the spirit of Clean-up Week, in spite of the fact that bad weather has very seriously interfered with operations, much remains to be done, and it is to be hoped that the campaign now under way will be carried through to a successful termination.

From the standpoint of a safer and healthier, as well as a more attractive, city the success of this week's effort is most essential.

Fire hazards, those accumulations of rubbish that are an eyesore in themselves and often a menace to health, should be got rid of; yards, lanes, lawns and gardens spring-cleaned, and, if possible, those repairs that have been so long deferred and that painting that has been put off until it can no longer be postponed should be carried out.

Associated with these clean-up operations there should be many odd jobs available, and a chance for many of our citizens who have long been unemployed to earn a little much-needed money.

The citizens who at this time make a systematic effort to clean-up their homes, stores and factories and at the same time to give work to some of those on the relief lists, will be making a very useful contribution to a cleaner and more prosperous Peterborough.

This Clean-up, Paint-up, Give-a-Man-a-Job Week is not a mere fad; it is an earnest effort to bring about better conditions in this city, and the greater the community co-operation the more beneficial will be the results.

NAPOLEONIC COMPLEXES.

The interesting theory is advanced by Liberty that the power of fifty to seventy horses under the command of automobile drivers has evidently developed too many Napoleonic complexes for the safety of our highways.

According to the magazine, charming Dr. Jekles become barbaric Mr. Hydes the moment they sit back of a steering wheel, and the mild-mannered man, who is the acme of a gentleman in the drawing-room, becomes a savage boor in "beating the red light."

However true that may be, the figures quoted in support of Liberty's convention are most certainly arresting.

They show that in the last seven years in Canada the equivalent of four-fifths of Winnipeg's entire population has been killed or maimed in automobile accidents, while in the same period the property loss arising out of the same cause equalled the value of every Canadian bank note in circulation.

That is an amazing statement, and yet the official statistics confirm it, for they show that in the period 1926-1934 there were 9,382 persons killed and 149,782 injured in Canada in traffic accidents.

In the same period the property losses from such accidents totalled $131,000,000, and thus every man, woman and child has paid out directly or indirectly the sum of twelve dollars as a tribute to the modern Juggernauts of the highways.

More serious still, the accident total is climbing; motor fatalities reached a new all-time high record in February of this year.

THE C.C.F. CONVENTION.

From local C.C.F. headquarters comes the announcement of a delegated convention to be held tomorrow night for the selection of a candidate to represent the organization in the forthcoming federal election, so that the Co-operative Commonwealth hat is to closely follow the advent of the Liberal one into the political ring.

The C.C.F. Club in Peterborough has laid the foundations for its campaign with an unusual amount of platform propaganda, for in the last few months most of the outstanding figures in the movement, including the Dominion leader, J. S. Woodsworth, have given addresses here.

How much impression this barrage of oratory has had upon the electors remains to be seen, and the definite answer will probably not be forthcoming until the ballots are counted.

C.C.F. members claim that their policies have been seeping in among the voters, and that while the converts they have made are not doing much talking about it, they will make their presence felt when the time comes to vote.

On the other hand, there are adherents of the two old parties who declare that the C.C.F. is a spent force, that so far as Peterborough is concerned it has made no progress since last year, and that its candidate, whoever he or she may be, will not make as good a showing as did the Co-operative Commonwealth standard-bearer in the provincial campaign last June.

Much of this talk on both sides is sheer speculation; the only real test comes in the polling booths and much can happen before the ballots are handed out.

AN AMERICAN TRIBUTE.

The enthusiasm with which the British Empire has been celebrating the silver jubilee of His Majesty the King has made a deep impression upon the people of the United States, and papers in that country have not only published many columns of news stories in regard to the jubilee, but practically all of them have on their editorial pages paid tribute to the qualities of King George.

There are many nice things being said, too, about the British Empire and its place in the world, and the sincerity of these references in American papers will be appreciated by the people of Canada.

The opinions of such metropolitan journals as the New York Times have already been quoted; it may be of interest to read what a paper in one of the smaller cities across the border has to say on the subject.

Thus we find the Wheeling Daily News, after pointing out that "in times of peace or war the Britisher is the most loyal subject on earth," adds this very fine tribute to the British Empire:

"The silver jubilee is just another event in Britain's long and eventful history, a history that has shaped the whole course of the world. The tight little isle which has borne the white man's burden is a mere speck on the globe, yet it rules over one-fifth of the earth and over one-fifth of the earth's peoples. It is no mere figure of speech to say the sun never sets on British domain. It is gospel truth. Her sons carried freedom beyond the seas to establish a nation that reaches to all corners of the globe."

ALBERTA'S CREDIT MENACED.

The province of Alberta, having secured the services of Major Douglas as economic adviser, appears to have embarked on a program of social credit—whatever that may mean. It is true that the term has been explained, but so far the chain of argument on which the story is based has not been as strong in its various links as to present a front which is very impressive.

William Aberhart, a Calgary teacher, had added his quota to the mass of theory which seems to have confounded some of the political leaders in Alberta, and just where the province is heading now seems to be rather uncertain. In fact, little can be said except that it is on its way.

The province will learn, as have others, that credit is more than a matter of fine theories which may appear very pleasant, but which have not stood the real test of operation and financial stress.

Investors in provincial bonds are rather apprehensive as to just what the result of the prospective experimenting will be. Not that the province can do anything very startling as regards currency or in the way of tariffs, but the apparent willingness to be deceived by fallacious reasoning in matters pertaining to provincial finance does not appeal to the investor, who after all regards the safety of his principle as of some importance.—Monetary Times.

EMPIRE POLICIES: BY U. S. REPORTERS.

Fourteen years ago, when the Irish rebellion was at its height, and when Ireland was over-run with Black and Tans, a member of the Journal's editorial staff spent an afternoon and evening in the offices of the old Freeman's Journal, in Dublin. The managing editor of the Freeman's Journal then was Harry Moore, an adventurous Canadian, and the publisher, a Major Fitzgerald, owner of a large distillery. The significance of the distillery was that in the editorial sanctum of the Freeman's Journal there was a bar, stocked with very old and excellent Irish whiskey. This whiskey, however, wasn't sold, but was dispensed with true Irish hospitality to all and sundry invited to the Freeman's Journal office.

Among those invited regularly, and who never sent regrets, were American correspondents in Dublin. "Covering" the rebellion, they found it most pleasant and convenient to cover it within arm's-length of the Freeman's bar; and Harry Moore used to tell, and gleefully, how as successive evenings wore away, and the cabling "deadline" arrived, they helped themselves copiously to the proofs of the Freeman's Journal. Excellent propaganda for the Freeman's point of view, it wasn't equally excellent for the British. Not in America.

We are reminded of all this by that American Associated Press cable of Wednesday purporting to tell what took place at the "full Cabinet" session between the British Prime Minister and Foreign Secretary and the Prime Ministers of the Dominions in London. According to a Mr. Harold P. Braman, given a by-line as the Associated Press correspondent, Messrs. MacDonald and Simon were told by the Dominion Premiers that "the whole Empire is counting on Britain to keep the peace." More than that, Mr. Braman tells—his information comes from "a well-informed source in close contact with the situation"—how Canada, Australia and South Africa pointed out to MacDonald and Simon that "the Dominions have the right to refrain from committing themselves in any obligations that may be incurred by the Mother Country."

The Journal would gladly bet a good box of golf balls that Mr. Braman's "well-informed" informant doesn't hold out far from the offices of Lord Beaverbrook's Express; or maybe from the offices of the London Daily Herald. We would risk this bet, first because what Mr. Braman cables is the sort of thing that has been appearing in the Express, which wants Britain to "clear out of Europe," and in the Daily Herald, which is fighting the MacDonald Government; and secondly because there isn't one chance in a million that Mr. MacDonald or Sir John Simon or Mr. Bennett, or anybody else at the conference, rushed out of it to talk to American correspondents. The austere and aloof Simon isn't quite like that, and neither, we may add, is Mr. Bennett or Mr. Hertzog of South Africa.

Mr. George Hambleton, the London correspondent of the Canadian Press, is closely in touch with British and Imperial developments. It is significant that he cables none of the things cabled by Mr. Braman. We suggest it is because Mr. Hambleton has a "background" of British and Empire affairs wholly lacking in American correspondents. Canadian newspapermen who encountered some of these otherwise excellent gentlemen when they came to Ottawa to cover the Empire Economic Conference will understand what is meant.

These are days when all of us should scrutinize carefully the news from Europe. And scrutinize carefully war talk. There appears to be a great deal of it, and it may well be that there is too much of it which isn't helpful. In any event, we can hardly afford to take our news of Empire policies and measures from American correspondents whose bewilderment over what the Empire means is equalled only by their imagination and their boldness.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

"Brother, can you spare a dime?" will no doubt be accepted as the official song of the chain-letter gentry.

How rapidly time is passing is illustrated once again by the fact that Sir Roger Keyes, hero of Zeebrugge, has been retired from service with the British fleet.

With Canada's end of the jubilee celebration over, there are signs that the politicians are once more back at their guns and that the ante-election barrage is nicely under way.

Among Peterborough citizens who were honored by receiving one of King George's Jubilee Medals was John Davidson, M.A., L.L.B., retired high school teacher, with fifty years' service in six different schools, not a public school teacher, as previously stated.

Another objection to taking care of unemployed through public works is brought to attention by an American newspaper when it declares that when the $4,880,000,000 work relief program starts functioning the biggest vote-making machine in the world will be under way.

WHY DO WOMEN GROW UP?

Trouble is, women insist on growing up.

Not all of them, to be sure.... But too many of them, for masculine comfort composure and equanimity.

Little girls are older than little boys of the same age. Maidens are older than youths. Women are older than men, wives than husbands, daughters than their fathers. It's most annoying for my sex—and sometimes it is very irritating for the sex that grows older.

Men may LOOK as if they were as old as the women. They pretend that they are. They grow beards and hold down jobs solemnly and talk earnestly about their "work" and their "ambitions" and their "achievements" and without meaning it they say that all their success is the fault of some woman. They run for office and take out insurance policies and "put over deals" and get on their dignity and "safeguard the future" and talk magnificently about posterity and they erect a magnificent facade of maturity and sound judgment.

But it's all a fake. I'm sure of that....Men slip back to childhood at the least excuse. They go crazy about such things as football ....or golf....or bridge....or even business. Even business they treat as if it were a game, not exclusively as a way of earning a living.... They're funny creatures, and they don't grow up. Not all the way. Not through and through.

Even the majority of women do. Even the youngest woman feels immensely older than the oldest man. She may admire his abilities, she may respect his strength, but she is convinced that, after all, he is just a child. She's growing up and he isn't.

It's annoying—to the men. They fool other men and they don't see why they can't fool the women. It's upsetting to a man who has lived along for 40 or 50 years and piled up a considerable reputation for solidity—and then suddenly discovers that the woman who knows him best still considers him a child. And can prove it to him if he wants to argue about it.

It's not right. It's taking an unfair advantage. But the men will never change. Because, in their hearts, they know life is more exciting if a PART of you never grows up. More painful at times, but also more FUN.

What's in the Name of Canadian Cities and Towns?

by FRANK H. WILLIAMS

CAPE BRETON ISLAND, N.S.

The island of Cape Breton historically is one of the outstanding regions of this continent. It is claimed the Norsemen touched these shores a thousand years ago, and that Cabot made his landfall at Scatarie, the eastern extremity of the island. Two great wars centred on the island.

During the period in which Shakespeare was writing his plays, French, British and Spanish fishermen sailed into its harbors. After 1713 Louisbourg, greatest fortress in America, grew up on its shores, and down through the long years privateers and gentlemen-at-arms haunted its coasts and built up a wealth of romantic tradition about its shores.

No information is obtainable concerning the exact method by which the island came by its name, but the assumption that the circumstance connected with the early visits of Breton fishermen had a strong influence.

Your Health

by DR LOGAN CLENDENING

The ancient Romans, dissipated and dissolute as they are popularly pictured to be, had, at any rate, no such variety of drug addictions as we have in our modern civilization. Their one habit along these lines was wine. And it wasn't very strong wine at that. They had no cocaine and very probably no opium, or only a very crude and ineffectual form of it. They certainly had no such problem as our national problem of serious drug addiction with morphine and cocaine.

Nor did they have any of the mild, what I have chosen to call "the domestic addictions" of tobacco, coffee and tea.

Coffee was introduced into Europe by way of Turkey only in the seventeenth century. In England it made an instantaneous success. Possibly its popularity was because the beverage was non-intoxicating, and people were tired of the boisterous assemblies in taverns.

Coffee Houses Described

Macaulay's description of the coffee houses when they were first set up is worth re-reading. It is in the third chapter of his History of England. There were political coffee houses, where crowds gathered to sip the popular drink and discuss the state of the nation. "There were coffee houses where the first medical men might be consulted. Doctor John Radcliffe, who in the year 1685 rose to the largest practice in London, came daily to Garraway's and was to be found surrounded by surgeons and apothecaries, at a particular table."

Coffee, however, has greatly lost its vogue in England. The annual British consumption of coffee is about 7-10 pound per capita. While the consumption in the United States is about 11 pounds per capita.

For tea, the figures are almost reversed—Great Britain consuming 9½ pounds per capita, while the United States uses 8/10 pound per capita.

I am inclined to believe that the principal pleasure of coffee is in the taste the smell and the comfort derived from a hot drink. Its physiological effects are not very marked, or at least they are not such as can be noticed very markedly by the average person.

Coffee Easy to Give Up

Certainly it is an easy habit to give up. There is no strong "craving" for coffee with most people. Everyone must have had the experience of having left his cup of coffee on the table and gone off forgetting to drink it and yet feeling no urge.

There is no doubt that caffeine, the active ingredient, is a mental stimulant. Many experiments prove it. Testing typewriting, small doses increased speed. Doses over three grains (about the amount in a cup of coffee) decreased speed; but even with the larger doses the quality of the work done was better.

It is a valuable stimulant to the heart, particularly that of middle age.

The decaffeinized varieties, as I know from personal experience, are hard to tell from the natural coffee, and certainly tend to overcome insomnia.

'SAFETY SAMMY SAYS' By R Geo Green

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

CLOSURE FIRST APPLIED AT OTTAWA

On this date (May 9th), closure was first applied at Ottawa in the Canadian House of Commons. It was upon the naval bill of the Borden ministry proposing an emergency contribution towards the Royal navy. The debate had been long and bitter. Amendment after amendment had been moved only to be voted down. Every naval commander from Noah to Nelson was (as Dr. Skeleton says) quoted and quoted again. Conservatives ceased to speak; Liberals spoke double. Seeing that progress was impossible, Mr. Borden moved for closure. Sir Wilfred Laurier, stirred into indignation, rose but was prevented by loud cries of shame from moving an amendment and the new rules were jammed through.

Sir Wilfred's speech in protest was one of the most vigorous of his career, he asserting that the remedy needed was not brute force, but an appeal to the people. He pointed out that when the reciprocity agreement was obstructed by the Conservative opposition he dissolved Parliament in order that the people might decide and he challenged Mr. Borden to go to the country on the naval issue. He aroused loud cheers from his supporters by his assertion, "I would rather stand here defeated and in opposition by that appeal to the people, than stand over there in office by the power of the gag."

When the vote came the naval bill was adopted by 101 to 68, but it was defeated in the Senate by 51 to 27. That killed the contribution proposals. The depression set in and made contributions impossible anyway, and so the resort to the closure was practically in vain.

Peterborough's Possibilities

By HOMER MOORE

ARTICLE 27

It has been said: "There is no discovery so limited, as not to illuminate something beyond itself." Such being true, you who read this column perhaps have discovered ere this, that some, or likely all, of the statements so far, have been directing your mind towards what all persons want—success! In other words, this column has been used "to illuminate something beyond itself!" You—your own mind—knows, if it has acted as a beacon light to guide you or show you how to guide you or show you how to progress, in these days! The right kind of a suggestion given in right spirit, starts off mind-action of other people and this creates new thoughts and they divide and create other thoughts until power to act is developed. It is therefore very important that the original thought is big enough to start the others into action. I hope you continue to read this column as facts and suggestions are given for your mental machinery and physical action to enlarge upon and which may be worth thousands of dollars if you act, to yourself and also your county and your city.

I have sometimes been asked: "Why don't you keep this knowledge to yourself," and I reply: "I am not selfish—you can light another man's candle without losing any light yourself."

"Applied thought accomplishes far more than years of labor," so if we have been negligent in the past to labor among those rocks, we will, after much study and research, perhaps be able to "apply" our knowledge and be masters of these complex ores. The greater the difficulty—the greater the glory in overcoming it.

Would it surprise you to know there is coal within the areas we are discussing? At one time, coal was considered only as a black stone. It lay on the ground and under the earth for ages until some one with common sense tried to burn it and ever since it has been used for fuel and out of it also comes the many beautiful aniline colors, paraffine etc.

I have never read in any government report any other printed report any statement referring to coal being even a possibility in these areas but one day the writer was out with a camera and focusing for a picture, looked at an outcrop. Thousands of people had been by that particular spot but had paid no attention to it. They were like the biblical description: "They have eyes to see, but seeing, see not." I took a piece of it to one of the best mineralogists (now deceased) of America, who at the time lived not far from the location—a few miles—and he excitedly said: "Where did you get that?" I answered: "A few miles away." "Is it near any road or could it be transported?" "Yes!" He turned it over and examined it carefully. Could he have it for his own mineral collection, he asked. "Sure, keep it." Then he made this remark to me: "That is coal — anthracite coal — and keep that location to yourself! I felt embarrassed in the presence of this expert because I was then young and inexperienced in such things. But he WAS an expert. He had been awarded the highest honor for his collection of minerals at the then World's Fair, so I took his advice and kept that location to myself. Later—a year or so after, a medical doctor whose patients were among those rocks and who was quite a naturalist even beyond the age of three score years and ten, gave me a "reed" he noticed which he could not identify—neither could I. That was in the year 1910.

In the first part of this article it was stated: "There is no discovery so limited, as not to illuminate something beyond itself." The "reed" found by the aged doctor, and the specimen found by myself—were in the above category. Many years after these incidents happened, the writer secured the knowledge to identify that "reed," which is always found in coal districts — has been found in coal seams — so the two seemed to have a connection.

Those incidents never left my mind. The information which described the "reed" came from the description of coal formation as issued, once, by the British Museum, which I consider was correct. Later, I searched all government reports and books which might throw some light on that district, and the only distant reference I could get from that source was the description of the, at one time, surface area of the district. This co-incided with the way coal is formed, as given by the British Museum, in the book I had the good fortune to secure.

Later, or about two years ago, after inquiry, I was told by a government official, that there was no geological map issued, of the area where that coal came from! So the research on that particular deposit will go on when the geological map is issued! When it is, it will be the means of connecting up some more discoveries having a relation to this occurrence and which will complete the underground picture so we can see just how far that "coal" extends. If the map is never issued, we will find out another way!

The causes of coal formation elsewhere in the world, were operative in that district. If we know the "cause" of anything, we will also know the effect for there is no "effect" without a "cause."

What about "Peterborough's Possibilities" with coal in the district?

I will continue to follow up that trail of the coal, not for selfish reasons, but because I know the district real well, have many friends living in it, who sometimes, as the deceased doctor did, give me specimens of unusual forms of vegetation they have found, and which often supply the missing links in the chain of proofs of various deposits. As I apparently was the first to notice and secure the startling sample and the subsequent bits of other specimens having a connection with it, I will, I hope, find the remaining particulars as nature is read more clearly.

That deposit of coal is not far from a railway. I have seen it on both sides of that railway and the specimens I secured were not found loose. The mass just appeared above the surface of the earth so it could be seen. But how many thousands years had it been washed by the rains and covered with snow before it was seen?

I have read in reports of certain deposits of other minerals in the same area, that they could not be worked owing to the lack of fuel and that the transportation costs on coal was too high to economically operate the mines on the other minerals referred to. If this, said-to-be, deposit of coal right in the district, can be located over a larger area, it would solve the fuel problem which faced the developers of some other mineral deposits in same area.

A highly-paid locator of coal, once told me, he always looked for a certain type of vegetation. Wherever that was, coal was always there too. The deceased doctor had given me that very type of vegetation. So an expert geologist's opinion was correct also.

24 Selects, 18 Bacons In Truck Load of Hogs

Hogs with porcine class written all over them were received this week at the Canada Packers Limited plant from Cavan Township.

William Tinney trucked in 42 of them, and the grader classified 24 as selects and 18 bacons. They were sold by farmers in the township, and comprised the best load so far this week.

Robert McInnis of Millbrook has marketed seventeen hogs in the last three weeks. Fifteen were selects and two were graded as bacon type.

LIQUOR GROUP SHOWS GAINS

Issues Close Strong After Developing Important Action in Afternoon.

LIST DIVIDED EVEN.

TORONTO, May 9 (C.P.).—Holding the ground won in the recent advance and continuing to trade in heavy volume the oils still claimed the main interest on the industrial section of the Toronto Exchange to-day. The liquor group developed action of importance in the afternoon to close firm to strong while over the board gains and losses divided about equally. Volume in the aggregate was off from that of Wednesday.

International Pete touched 34⅛, a new high, and eased down slightly while Imperial finished the day unchanged and British American was off ⅛. Alcohol A firmed a ¼ point and Walkers Common and Distillers Seagrams closed unchanged.

Weston's Common featured the foods with a gain of nearly two points. Western Flour Preferred lost a point and Canada Vinegars a fraction.

Nickel held its position and Smelters chalked up a fractional gain. Higher prices ruled for the utilities and the construction stocks.

WOULD REPLACE PRESENT LEVIES

on pulp and timber and said this would increase employment and also improve revenues. He wondered if it would not be possible to proceed further with exploitation of the province's mineral wealth.

No Physical Difficulties

Canada's difficulties were economic, not physical, said the Premier. Nothing of material wealth had left the country. Fields were just as fertile and industries as efficient. Position of the Dominion however, could not be improved by lowering purchasing power or increasing production costs.

Recently, he went on, he visited home of unemployed in the Toronto district. There was a great potential market among these people, but they lacked purchasing power. Otherwise any one of them could have spent $1,000 on furniture, food, clothing and other necessities.

The Premier condemned what he described as efforts to bolster up a false price for wheat. He referred specifically to storing wheat in Western Canadian elevators and refusing to sell. So long as Canada stayed out of the market the world price was enhanced and this stimulated activity in other wheat-producing countries. When Canada "dumped" wheat on the market the price fell.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, May 9 (AP)—The rails, specialties and scattered industrials pushed ahead briskly in to-day's stock market.

Before resumption of the advance the list absorbed considerable profit taking. Issues up 1 to around 3 points included Santa Fee, Union Pacific, N.Y. Central, Delaware and Hudson, Johns-Manville, International Cement, Bethlehem Steel Common and Preferred, Columbia Pictures, American Telephone and Radio Preferred "B." A gain of 6 points was shown by Cuban-American Sugar Preferred and Inland Steel moved up more than 3.

The oils and motors were fractionally higher, but the metals were hesitant and most of the utilities narrow. The late tone was firm. Transfers approximated 1,700,000 shares.

MONTREAL EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, May 9. (CP).—Irregular movements were shown by listings on Montreal Stock Exchange to-day in fairly heavy trading and gains and losses were about evenly spread over the broad list.

Foundation lost a point at 11⅛. Consolidated Smelters was off ⅛ at 160 and similar losses were shown by Canadian Celanese preferred at 106 and several others. Montreal Power, Shawinigan and others were narrowly lower.

B.C. Power was strong with a gain of ⅞ at 23 while International Nickel was unchanged and Hollinger up 15 cents at 16.75. Imperial Tobacco, National Breweries and others were slightly higher.

A Gypsy Touch

CHICAGO, May 9. (CP).—Dr. H. C. Barth, who treats the eyes, sees clearly how it all happened now.

Two gypsy maids came to his office, one of them complaining of something in her eye.

Dr. Barth turned down the girl's eyelid, removed a speck of dust and asked:

"Do you feel relieved now?"

She said she did, and departed, with her companion, after which the doctor learned he had been "relieved" of $45 he had in his vest pocket.

Danced With Prince

Virginia Briscoe is only 17 and seemingly too young to be impressed by royalty. While in Budapest the daughter of Powell Briscoe, wealthy Oklahoma City oil operator, had the opportunity (most girls deem it an honor) of dancing with the Prince of Wales. Virginia, however, claims that he was "not so hot as a dancer", and that she'd "lots rather dance with the boys back home."

FINANCIAL NEWS BRIEFS

CANADIAN GRAIN STATISTICS

Canadian wheat in store for the week end April 26, 1935, shows a decrease of 5,447,789 bushels as compared with the previous week and an increase of 9,361,197 bushels when compared with the same week in 1934. The visible supply was reported as 216,676,358 bushels as compared with a revised figure of 222,124,147 bushels for the previous week and 207,315,161 bushels for the same week in 1934.

Canadian wheat in the U. S. amounted to 12,235,880 bushels, a decrease of 1,694,974 bushels from the previous week when 13,930,854 bushels were reported. United States wheat in Canada was shown as 1,048,912 bushels as compared with 2,228,460 bushels a year ago.

Wheat marketings in the Prairie Provinces for the week ending April 19, 1935, amounted to 1,591,846 bushels, a decrease of 164,259 bushels from the previous week when 1,756,105 bushels were marketed. During the corresponding period a year ago, the receipts were 1,981,649 bushels. For the 37 weeks ending April 19, 1935, and April 20, 1934, 193,699,870 and 194,371,889 bushels were received from the farms. This is an increase of 5,327,981 bushels over the same period a year ago.

INTERNATIONAL PETROLEUM

The shareholders of the International Petroleum Company received in all last year $2.26 a share in disbursements. The ticker is indicating that the stockholders can look forward to receiving a similar payment in 1935. The half-yearly announcement on the dividend is expected any time, now that the president, Mr. G. Harrison Smith has returned to Toronto.

Timely Letter

Bank managers and employees seldom break into print because of the fact that head office forbids the same; however, W. D. Elliott, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce at Owen Sound, Ont., has done the unusual and has done it well. He has published a signed article in The Owen Sound Sun-Times calling upon the County of Grey to protect its inheritance. The trees of that country are being cut down and the swamps are being drained. If things go on as they are going, several of the streams which irrigate the county will in another 25 years be mere tricklets in summer.

Mr. Elliott states his case well, but one point he does not accentuate. He fails to tell the rest of he province how dire will be he consequences to Ontario if the streams and swamps of Grey dry up. With parts of Kansas, North Dakota, parts of our own Prairie West, losing their surface soil in the winds, and with not only the lands that have been robbed but the lands on which the windblown shower descends being rendered barren it would seem that Ontario should take thought of her present condition and her future as regards water and forest-preservation.

FATHER, SON DENY GUILT IN FLAMING CAR MYSTERY

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 9 (A.P.)—A father and son pleaded not guilty when arraigned in East Cambridge district court to-day on charges of murder in the first degree in the torch slaying of an unidentified man whose partially cremated body was found in a flaming car three days ago near Hudson.

Frank Di Stasio, 51-year-old Revere candy shop proprietor, was handcuffed to his 23-year-old son, Anthony, as the pair were taken into court. Both have admitted participation in a plot, Assistant District Attorney W. G. Andrew said, which was intended to defraud insurance companies of $12,500.

No trial date was set, but the father and son were remanded to jail without bail. Meanwhile city and state authorities sought to establish the identity of the victim of the killing.

CHAIN LETTER RACKET FOUND

sultco. Postmaster Charles Lacheur said to-day. Whether or not an increased burden will eventually result is yet unpredictable. Many post offices in American centres, particularly in the Far West, have found it necessary to double and triple their staffs. The institution of even one chain of letters can, according to the laws of geometrical progression, result in the circulation of hundreds of thousands of letters in the one chain in a few days' time.

Mr. Lacheur stated he would govern his action in accordance with the findings of the Post Office authorities in Toronto and Ottawa in the event that the chain letters became a nuisance here. Toronto postal officials announced yesterday that, while they believed there was nothing illegal about the prosperity chains, all such chain letters would be forwarded to the Dead Letter Office upon detection on the grounds of abuse of His Majesty's mails. Chain letters detected here will be held for the Dead Letter Office, pending a definite ruling from Ottawa, Mr. Lacheur said.

Mr. Lacheur said he knew of no postal regulation specifically forbidding chain letters, but that it was the prerogative of the Post Office officials to act in cases of abuse of the mails.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., was approached for an opinion regarding the legality of the chain letters in Ontario and Canada but said he knew nothing of the letters.

Two of the letters reported to have reached this city originated in the United States. The top name on one is John Spitz, 4322 Quitman Street, Denver, Colorado, while the top name on the other is Gladys Conner, Tulsa, Oklahoma. The money involved is not a dime in all. One letter received here sets the sum at twenty-five cents, naming the expected return to the recipient as $3,906.25.

BRITAIN BANS FOREIGN ORDERS

Double Defence in Two Years

Doubling of the home air defence force within two years was understood to be the government's goal, but this was said to depend on the ability of manufacturers to fill orders.

Authoritative sources said Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, secretary for the Colonies, had been named chairman of the Cabinet sub-committee drawing up plans for air expansion. Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, and William Ormsby-Gore, First Commissioner of Works, are other members.

An official of one aircraft firm said the letter from the Air Ministry contained "a statement to the effect that we are forbidden to execute orders without first consulting the Air Ministry."

Has Chinese Touch

New rolled brim sailor worn by Virginia Reed

By LISBETH

If you are internationally minded you can show it by your hat. For instance, here is the jaunty famous sailor with a rolled brim and a decided Chinese flavor. It is worn by Virginia Reed, screen player. The model is eggshell straw bound with matching crepe, and unadorned except for the cockle loop in the center of the crown. This chapeau reminds us that crowns are a wee bit higher, which will be good news to many women who feel definitely "silly", as they say, in the very shallow brimmed models. You will note that this hat illustrates the trend.

Magistrate's Court

Following preliminary hearing, which concluded before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., late yesterday afternoon, Norman Robinson, 114 Robinson street, was committed for trial on a charge to which he entered a plea of "not guilty" of committing an indecent act. The accused was represented by W. J. Arthur Fair.

William Dunn, alias Samis, today pleade guilty to having forged a cheque for the sum of ten dollars on December 24 last, and upon applicatoin of Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., was remanded for sentence until Wednesday next.

In requesting a remand, the Crown Attorney stated, "I think this is the man's first offence, but we are awaiting the return of his fingerprints from Ottawa."

"It is my first offence. I have never been in a police court before in my life," the accused exclaimed.

Charged with having unlawful possession of three pickerel, on the information of Inspector Fred Marshall, William Lanouette, 266 King street, pleaded guilty. The Magistrate reserved his decision until May 15. Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., appeared for the defendant.

Pleading not guilty to a charge of assault occasioning actual bodily harm, Ray LaPlante, 516 Romaine street, was ordered to pay a fine of $10 and costs upon failing to show justification for having struck George Pogue, 67 year old complainant on Sunday last in a dispute that arose over a dog.

The parties to the action are neighbours and it was related in evidence that defendant's police dog was struck by the complainant after it had trespassed in the latter's yard.

The complainant admitted that he threw a stick of wood at LaPlante's dog. As a result an altercation arose between the parties and complaintant was struck and knocked down.

Under cross-examination, the complaintant admitted having thrown a stick of wood at the dog, but in reply to defence counsel's question as to whether or not he broke the dog's front paw, he said, "I didn't know about that."

When the defendant came over to his house complaintant admitted he placed his hand on defendant's chest and pushed him away and told him to get off the premises. He also laid his hand on defendant's left shoulder, and afterwards "kicked at" the defendant after LaPlante had threatened to strike him over the head with the piece of wood which he had raised over his head in his right hand.

Following the blow the aged complainant stated, his right ear bled and there was considerable swelling and bruises. He had to obtain medical attention.

The Examiner regrets an error that was made in the recent report of a traffic case when it was inadvertently stated that W. Steele of Woodbine avenue, was fined for operating a motorcycle without a license. Mr. Steele's motorcycle is licensed, the conviction being recorded against him for driving without lights.

Mass Naval Flight Off For Midway Isle

HONOLULU, May 9.—(AP)—The United States naval mass ocean flight to Midway Island began today when the first of 48 patrol planes roared away at 7.18 a.m. (1.40 p.m. E.D.T.)

It was expected to take two hours for all the planes to get into the air for the 1,323-mile flight. A cloak of secrecy was thrown about the movement of the planes as they slid down the ramp at Pearl Harbor to take part in most elaborate manoeuvres the United States navy has ever staged in the Pacific.

So great was the secrecy surrounding the flight, observers expected no further word of its movements after the takeoff until the arrival at Midway Island.

Base Metals and Silvers Close on the Upside at Toronto To-day.

GOLDS IRREGULAR.

TORONTO, May 9.—(CP).—The Toronto mining market broadened out to-day to give the groups recently in the background a play, including the oils and the base metals. The oils had their biggest in many months and the whole group closed higher while base metals and silver bucked the drop in metal to close on the up side. Gold stocks were irregularly higher at the close.

Royalite led the oils with a gain of about 1.50 while Home Oil, Ajax, Acme, Dalhousie, Midwal, Okra and Oil Selections had gains of 1 to 10 cents each. Hudson Bay turned at only a small price and slightly higher prices ruled for Pend Oreille, Big Missouri and Sherritt and Mining Corporation pushed up nearly 20 cents.

Morning silver losses were more than made up except Eldorado which closed down. Nipissing advanced about 20 cents.

Strong issues of the Gold group were Bralorne, Pioneer, Teck Hughes, Hollinger and Dome.

ATTACK ON IBN SAOUD MAY MEAN NEW WAR IN ARABIA

Blood Flows in Mecca as King Kills Would-be Assassin.

AN EVIL OMEN.

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

AMMAN, Transjordan, May 9. — Blood has flown at the Kaaba where no blood must ever flow. First the 100,000 pilgrims in Mecca whispered the news. Camel-drivers carried the tidings to Medina and Amman. Jerusalem heard of it. Cair was stirred. Swifter than short-length waves could bring the details, the holy cities of Persia and Irak began to seeth with the rumor. To-day the whole Moslem world from India to Morocco and deep into the heart of Africa is commenting the occurrence: "Blood has flown at the Kaaba. Three murderers attacked His Majesty Abdul Aziz III., better known as Ibn Saoul. The murderers were crushed like snakes in the grass....Allah's hand protected Ibn Saoud....The King lives....Praise to Allah!" From Fez to Teheran jubilant prayers of thanksgiving are arising night and day for the King's deliverance.

Ibn Saoud lives. No murderer's hand can touch him. How many times in his life has the Wahabi king escaped the plots of assassins, daggers, poison, ambush, and black magic? Surely no other man is so favored by Allah. Surely, God is with Ibn Saoud. Can there be doubt any longer that Ibn Saoud is the elect of God, the successor of the Prophet, the man destined to free Islam from foreign domination?

Dressed in a simple white burnous, undistinguishable from the other pilgrims, except his unusual height, Ibn Saoud was making the obligatory rounds of the Kaaba, the holy stone, in the square of Mecca. His son was walking behind him. As they walked they recited the sura of righteousness from Koran.

Attack Is Foiled

Suddenly a man jumped forward with lifted dagger. The knife came within an inch of Ibn Saoud's breast. But the king caught the murderer's arm, twisted it downward and the dagger clattered to the ground. At the same moment, the Emir Abdul, Ibn Saoud's son, stabbed the murder through the heart. But two new attackers rushed out of the crowd. The first of these died by the king's own hand, the second succeeded in stabbing the Emir Abdul, before he, too, was dispatched by infuriated attendants.

Blood has flown at the Kaaba where no blood must ever flow. Mohammed decreed this. Mohammed who slaughtered the idolators of the Koreish tribes round the Kaaba, ordered that no blood shall ever again defile the holiest precincts of Islam in all eternity. When Ibn Saoud conquered Mecca in 1924, he strictly obeyed the Prophet's injunctions. He did not cause his captured enemies to be executed by the sword. That would have meant shedding of Blood. He had them burned alive. No blood must ever flow near the Kaaba.

Attackers From Yemen

"If blood ever flows near the Kaaba," says the Muslim legend, "behold it is a sign, a token from God that the end of days is at hand, when nations will destroy each other and the sun will be darkened with the smoke and dust of battle."

The would-be murderers of Ibn Saoud were Yemenites. Were they emissaries from the Iman of Yemen, who attacked Ibn Saoud with an army last year? Dead men tell no tales. The Emir's dagger was too swift. The three assassins took their secret to a swift grave. Captured under slow torture the men might have confessed who it was that sent them on their evil errand. Now it is too late.

After the unsuccessful attempt on his life, Ibn Saoud took his sword from its scabbard and pronounced the following words: "By the sun, as it stands in the heavens. By the moon, as it fills the night with the glory of Allah. By the stars, the eternal lights, witnesses of Allah's mercy. I vow this sword and my life and the lives of my sons to the service of the One True God, who is compassionate, merciful. I call to my side all believers, the enduring ones, the valiant ones who count their lives as nought for Allah, to free the world from sin and idolatry"....

May Mean War

This means war, they say in Amman. Ibn Saoud never speaks lightly. He will punish Yemen. Which side will England choose? Ibn Saoud is not Britain's friend. He plays a lone hand and has persistently refused to enter any of the intriguing political combines and alliances which make the Near East an extremely hazardous neighborhood. Ibn Saoud refused the 50,000 pounds sterling annual subsidy from Britain which his predecessor, King Hussein, the Sherif of Mecca received from London. He hewed his own trail, went his own path and is the only Arabic king who made the British back down.

The Mufti of Jerusalem, Al Hameen Husseini, who is in the service of the colonial office, has gone to Mecca in an attempt to make peace between Ibn Saoud and the Iman of Yemen. Abdullah, Emir of Transjordan, is flying up and down between Amman and Jerusalem. Twice he has been to London for a consultation this year. Ibn Saoud is planning a surprise. How can he be prevented?

Refused to Pay

Ibn Saoud, the "Cromwell of the Desert," the "Calvin of Islam," the purifyer, who permits no smoking in his realms, and no woman to be outside her house after sunset, has ordered rifles to a value of 317,437 pounds sterling in England. When the guns had been delivered and the bill was presented last February, he refused to pay. "First tell me who financed the Iman of Yemen's attack upon me," he said. "If you can furnish me proof that the Iman of Yemen is not England's creature I will pay double the amount in gold."

No other Arabic king talks in so challenging a tone. And all the world knows that Ibn Saoud is not given to idle chatter. The man, of whom no one had heard before 1924, when he suddenly swept out of the desert, captured Mecca and chased King Hussein into the night of insignificance, the man who subsequently subdued five kingdoms, to whom the whole Arabic world looks up as a liberator and the world's Muslim as a prophet sent from God, has rededicated his blade to Allah's service.

The next few weeks will show against whom the Saoudi whirlwind will throw itself. In the meantime, tanks and aeroplanes are being unloaded at Djedda, the mighty king's port. Blood has flown at the Kaaba. A bad sign, an evil omen!

Witness Aged 110 Never Took Snuff

LURAY, Ky., May 9.—(CP).—Mrs. Mary Ellen McCrea of Highland County, Va., spoken of as a key witness in a lawsuit over the Garrett estate, is 110 years old. When interviewed recently she was wearing a white cap and the long dress of the old-time mountaineer.

There are 6,000 claimants to the huge estate in which a certain Christopher Shaffer's birthplace is concerned. Mrs. McCrea says he was born near her home and it is upon her evidence that the Virginians base their claims. "My, I never thought Chris would cause all this fuss," she declared.

When asked to what she attributed her longevity Mrs. McCrea replied: "I never smoked or sniffed snuff as so many of my neighbors, now dead, had done."

Judgment Is Given Favor Of Plaintiff

COBOURG, May 9.—Judgment by consent in favor of the plaintiff for possession of a farm in Seymour Township was given here yesterday by Mr. Justice McFarland in the action brought by Richard Mahoney of Campbellford against Joseph Hoey and his sisters Mary and Katie Hoey of Seymour. No evidence was presented by either side.

It transpired that according to a will the sisters were owners of the farm and Joseph Hoey occupied it with them as tenant. A mortgage was given by Mr. Hoey to Richard Mahoney for $2600. The sisters sold the farm to Messrs. Dewey and Leffler of Seymour and on the following day they in turn disposed of it to Samuel Diamond for $3600. It was stated that Mr. Hoey refused to give up possession and meanwhile Mr. Mahoney brought action the result of which confirmed Mr. Diamond in possession by consent of counsel for both parties. Mr. Hoey was ordered to surrender possession as tenant. The rights of the defendant sisters, it was reported, to bring action against third party purchasers were not affected as the purchaser was not a party to the action.

D. J. Lynch of Campbellford was counsel for Mr. Mahoney and E. F. Sheehy of Peterborough represented the sisters.

ENGINEERS HEAR ANNUAL REVIEW OF YEAR'S WORK

Annual Meeting of Local Branch is Held at the Kawartha Club.

EXECUTIVE NAMED.

Proposed Consolidation of Engineering Professions is Discussed.

A year satisfactory in many regards was reviewed by members of the local branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada as they held their annual meeting following a supper at the Kawartha Club last night. Discussion of the proposed consolidation of the engineering profession in Canada was a feature of the meeting.

Six members were appointed by the meeting to constitute the branch executive for the coming year. They are V. R. Currie, Trent Canal engineer; E. J. Davies of the Vocational staff at the Collegiate; A. L. Dickieson and W. J. Fanjoy of the Canadian General Electric; A. L. Khilly, superintendent of the Trent Canal; and E. R. Shirley, Peterborough Utilities commissioner and a member of the C.G.E. engineering staff. The six will choose a president, secretary and treasurer from their own number at their first meeting.

Ross L. Dobbin, manager of the Peterborough Utilities, was re-appointed branch councillor. He will represent the branch at the annual Dominion meeting of the Institute. J. W. Pierce, retiring president, who presided over the meeting will act ex-officio on the new executive.

W. T. Fanjoy, retiring treasurer, reported that the branch had enjoyed a satisfactory year financially. A balance of $155 now stands to the credit of the branch, he said. Secretary Sills reported on the membership. Fifty-two members in Peterborough and thirty-seven in nearby municipalities on the branch rolls. The membership showed an increase of a few names during the year, he stated.

Many Activities

Bary Ottewell, as chairman of the committee on meetings and papers, reviewed the club activities during the year. He pointed out that ten meetings, including the annual branch dinner, had been held. The meetings were devoted to a wide variety of engineering interests with a number of reputed engineering authorities as speakers, he said. Average attendance at the meetings, he continued, was about 49. The fact that, on an average, fifteen to twenty visitors from the general public attended the meetings, indicates an increasing tendency on the part of the public to take advantage of the open house maintained by the branch, he pointed out.

William M. Cruthers, chairman of the employment committee, reported. He said he had been able to place in position several members during the year. Employment conditions, particularly those affecting the engineering field, are improving, he reported.

Offering a brief paper, Mr. Sills outlined the controversy regarding the proposed consolidation of the Engineering Institute of Canada with the various provincial engineering associations in the Dominion. He described the various angles to the question and told of the reception the matter received at the annual meeting of the Institute in Montreal last year. At present, no active interest on the part of Institute members seems to prevail but the matter is likely to be forced on their attention with the next couple of years he said. It is important for each individual member to ascertain what he is getting out of the Institute and decide what he wants to get in reaching a decision in the matter, he said.

V. S. Foster

V. S. Foster outlined the history of the matter. He said the present form of the Engineering Institute of Canada is seventeen years old. About the year 1920 provincial organizations, composed largely of professional engineers, began to spring up, apparently with the tacit approval of the Institute. The Institute gave them no legal status as engineers so they wanted definite legal recognition by the provincial governments, he said.

"These hardy offspring, if we may call them that, have become so rugged that they tend to overshadow and disown the Institute. The Institute has suffered a severe decline in memberships in recent years. It is hard to say just how much of this decline is due to depressed industrial conditions and how much to these provincial organizations."

He outlined the proposed form of a consolidating organization as one embracing the memberships of the E.I.C. and the various provincial organizations. Engineers would become members of the provincial organizations and automatically enjoy membership in the Dominion organization. Dues would be paid to the provincial bodies and shared with the Dominion body, he said.

No formal expression of opinion was voiced by the meeting.

Important Tongue

MOSCOW, May 9 (CP)—In recognition of the importance of the English language, the government announced to-day all officers and seamen of its commercial fleet must have a knowledge of that language.

Officers who do not speak it fluently will be transferred to the Russian coastwise grade, and seamen must pass an examination showing a fair knowledge by Nov. 1 or be transferred.

Brown of West Seymour gave a vocal number, "Brighten the Corner Where You Are"; Mr. Bruce Robson, two vocal numbers, "When Song is Sweet," and "O Jesus Thou Art Standing." Mr. Humphrey of Norwood Road, a pleasing vocal number; Mrs. Bert Robson played the accompaniments. Dainty refreshments were served.

employed tenants. It is expected that the owners of houses will be more satisfied to accept the increase relief rent, and that tenants will have more security of occupancy. People on relief should be able to rent houses more readily, and with fewer instances of being asked to vacate premises for which a larger rent has been ordinarily paid in the past.

Alderman Ellis mentioned this subject in council a few nights ago, and it is reported that Alderman Hamilton brought it up again at last night's meeting of the Relief Board, with the reply that no action could be taken until the Board had been officially notified of the Government's amendment.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT SCHOOL CONCERT

Splendid Program Provided By Pupils Under Direction of Teachers.

WARKWORTH, May 9 (Examiner Correspondence).—A very large crowd attended the concert given by the pupils of the public school which was put on in the Town Hall here Monday evening, May 6th. The program was enjoyed by all as the excellent attention and hearty applause given to the various numbers testified to that fact. Just before the close of the program B. Buchanan moved, and Dr. J. R. R. Cooper seconded, a hearty vote of thanks to the teachers, M. E. Smith, Mrs. M. E. Smith and Miss Clara Gregory, for their effort in training the children. The effort put forth by Mrs. J. W. Mowat, pianist, was greatly appreciated also.

M. E. Smith, principal, in a few well-chosen words, replied to the vote of thanks.

The program is as follows:

Opening choruses; soprano solo, "Hide and Seek Hills of Old Northumberland," Isabella Beatty; Junior Red Cross play in three acts, "Pirate Island"; vocal duet, "Lullaby, Rockaby Lullaby," Isabella Beatty and Clara Mallory; play, in three acts, "No Girls Admitted"; song, Three Crows, "There were three crows in the bushes at the bottom of the garden," Stuart Richardson, Donald Beatty, James McClearn; Spring festival, musical drill by 18 girls; play in four acts, "Mother goes on strike"; trio, "The Wind," S. Richardson, I. Beatty and J. McClearn; between acts guitar music was given by Margaret and Freda Taylor, and Isabella Beatty accompanied by Mrs. J. W. Mowat.

The National Anthem closed the entertainment.

"Chain" Telegram Starts In Chicago

CHICAGO, May 9 (A.P.). — Now it is the chain telegram, with the ante in some instances raised to $5.00.

At one telegraph office an attendant pointed to a large stack of telegrams and said they were all of the "chain letter" variety.

The attendant said possibly the senders were fearful of getting into trouble with Uncle Sam for using the mails to defraud, or else were in a hurry to "cash in on their luck."

One Mill In 12 Operates

Only one of Seattle's 12 sawmills remained in operation, while in Tacoma, Aberdeen, and other points in the lumber belt, as well as among longshoremen loading lumber in Gray's Harbor, additional parts of the industry went idle.

The Illinois Power and Light company dismissed last night 18 men guarding non-union workers at its Belleville plant, as a result, union leaders, said, of the "protest holiday" of 3,000 workers. Factory workers joined the protest in sympathy.

For the first time in 65 years a general strike went into effect today when about 1,000 workers left their jobs in mines and plants in the tri-state lead and zinc fields near Joplin, Mo. The region is formed by part of Missouri, Kansas, and Oklahoma.

STORE THEFT CLEARED UP

Two Plead Guilty to Breaking and Entering Ashburnham Store.

SENTENCE NOT PASSED.

With the arrest of a local married man and a 20-year-old girl, City Police have solved the robbery at Fitzpatrick and Geraghty's East City store which took place on Tuesday night.

The couple, who pleaded guilty to a joint charge of "breaking and entering by night" upon their appearance before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to-day were both remanded for sentence until Wednesday next on application of Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

Found loitering late last night and unable to give a satisfactory account of themselves, the pair, account of themselves, David McCullough and a young girl were taken into custody by Constable William Piercy.

While the charges against the two accused relate only to the recent robbery at Fitzpatrick & Geraghty's store, where a quantity of goods and six dollars in cash was stolen when the pair gained entry to the premises through a window at the rear of the store, Chief Constable Samuel Newhall stated that suspicion was directed against the accused pair, who were thought to have complicity in recent service station robberies.

Hamilton Steel Men Continue On Strike

HAMILTON, May 9 (A.P.). — The strike of sheet metal workers at the Steel Company of Canada, involving about 300 men, continued to-day with no prospect of settlement. Both sides broke their silence and issued statements. The company heads warned the men must return to work by a certain date or be struck from the company's service.

"The plans of the company to install the new mills were postponed for almost two years in order to avoid adding to the unemployment which then existed, and only half of the program was proceeded with for the same reason," said a company statement. "Improved business conditions have enabled the company to provide jobs for practically all of the men. It is unfortunate the consideration shown has not been reciprocated by them."

Read What Miss Laura Smart of Cobourg Says About Her Trip

The Sentinel-Star Club was managed by the organization chosen to conduct The Examiner Travel Club.

Gentlemen: I would like to take a little of the space in this week's Sentinel-Star to share with my friends some of the beauty spots which I enjoyed on my recent trip to Bermuda—a trip offered a few months ago by the Cobourg Sentinel-Star, and made possible by the loyal support of friends and subscribers of the Sentinel-Star.

When first I entered the contest I had little hope of winning a trip to Bermuda. It seemed too impossible to me. Numerous people suggested that there would be a catch in it somewhere. However like 26 other candidates, I decided to take a chance on it. I wonder how I would feel now if I had let that chance go by, for the Cobourg Sentinel-Star made good every promise made to the winners of the trip, through the wonderful management of T. L. Wilson, Manager of the paper. From the hour we left Cobourg at 9 o'clock on Saturday morning, July 21st, until we arrived back in Cobourg on Sunday, August 5th, the arrangements for cars, trains and boats were perfect.

A HAPPY SEND-OFF.

No one could wish for a happier send-off than was accorded us at Gananoque, and our hour's trip from Gananoque to Clayton through the Thousand Islands was very pleasing. At Clayton we were met by special motor cars and taken to Albany, a distance of 204 miles. This was a beautiful trip with the Catskill Mountains off in the distance.

Our trip down the historic Hudson River, passing by high mountains covered with woods, and nearing New York, passing several battleships anchored in the river, brought vividly to mind the early history of this part of the country. Our arrival in New York with its crowded streets and skyscrapers, was a sharp contrast to the quiet but magnificent scenery along the banks of the Hudson.

IN NEW YORK.

Our three-day stay in New York was a very busy time. From the time we arrived at the Taft Hotel on Sunday evening, until we stepped on the deck of the "Queen of Bermuda" on Wednesday afternoon we were exploring the wonders of Old Gotham. A special place of interest in Chinatown was our visit to what was formerly a notorious opium den, but which has now been made into a shelter for men who are unemployed. Here they can spend the night and after helping to tidy up the place in the morning, get free breakfast and newspaper. Then they are sent on their way to look for work. Another place of interest was our visit to a Chinese Temple. At the entrance is the smallest post office in the world—the post office of Chinatown, New York. Entering the temple we saw a shrine carved from teak wood. It took three generations to carve this shrine. A light is kept burning there all the time in case Confucius should return in the night. They do not trust electricity, but use peanut oil. The inner shrine is more elaborate and it took seven generations to carve it out of a solid piece of teak wood. On this shrine a cup of tea and a dried cocoanut is kept in case Confucius should be hungry when he arrives.

Our visit to the Savoy Night Club in Harlem was very interesting. This is called the melting pot of New York, where dark and white people mingle together to enjoy an evening of dancing. Here we saw some of the most graceful dancers in the world.

Our trip one evening to the top of Rockefeller Centre and gazing down upon the city a distance of 70 storeys below, was a wonderful experience. It would take too much space to tell of our sight-seeing tours through the business part of the city, down millionaire row, through the Bowery, Wall Street, through the New York Stock Exchange, where fortunes are made and lost in a day, also our trip to Bronx Park and Coney Island. It would take columns to tell of all the interesting things we saw in our three days stay in New York.

OFF FOR BERMUDA.

Wednesday afternoon we stepped on board the Queen of Bermuda, a tired but happy band of travelers. Our two-day trip on the ocean was greatly appreciated by all, for here we got the opportunity to rest before starting to explore the beauties of another country. As we sailed into the bay at Hamilton, Bermuda, on Friday morning, July 27th, I think none of us had ever seen a more beautiful picture. The islands have many hills on them covered with brush. The grass was a beautiful green, the cottages, which are very picturesque and Spanish looking, are mostly white, flowers bloom everywhere. This is truly a land of flowers, and has rightly been called "Bermuda the Beautiful." Belmont Manor, which was our home, during our stay in Bermuda, is a place of beauty. Flowers of every description bloom there in profusion, all around the Manor are palm trees and shrubs. Mr. Thompson, the Manager of the Manor, welcomed us and made us feel at home.

One of the things which impressed us all greatly during our stay in Bermuda was the hospitality and friendliness we met with, everywhere we went. There is no rushing in Bermuda. Here people have time to really enjoy things. Here we enjoyed the swimming in the salt water in the pool at Belmont Manor, bicycling, tours in the carriages drawn by horses, no cars are allowed in Bermuda.

In the evening the grounds were beautifully, lighted by electricity. Dancing in the Cedar Court with music supplied by a Canadian orchestra from Toronto.

GUESTS OF HONOR.

As we entered the dancing-room on the evening of our last day in Bermuda, to the strains of "O Canada," played by the orchestra, and looked at the long table especially decorated in our honor, with a large centre piece of flowers and a miniature fountain in the centre, as we sat down to dinner the guests of honor at Belmont Manor, we felt a wave of loneliness and sadness to think that in the morning we must leave this place, perhaps never to return again.

Our five-day ocean trip on the Lady Rodney was spent in games on deck and in relating to each other and living over again our wonderful trip. The last evening on board a masquerade party was held. This was a jolly affair with the dining-room beautifully decorated. We arrived at Montreal at 12.30 p.m., Sunday, and by special arrangements came to Cobourg on the fast train, arriving at the Cobourg station at 8 p.m.

A HAPPY COMPANY.

No matter how beautiful the land we visit may be, no trip can be thoroughly enjoyed unless we have good company. I for one would like to say, that I do not think a happier and friendlier group of girls could be found anywhere than the group of Canadian girls, winners of the Cobourg Sentinel-Star Campaign. No party could have had such splendid chaperones as we had, and much credit is due Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wilson for the spirit of goodfellowship which prevailed throughout the trip.

To all of us Bermuda, that island in Mid-Atlantic, will be a memory of beauty and hospitality, a memory made possible by the kindness of our friends.

C.G.I.T. of Knox Church Hold Annual Mother and Daughter Banquet.

GAY DECORATIONS.

The annual Mother and Daughter banquet of the Canadian Girls in Training of Knox Church was held on Tuesday, May 7. The long tables were decorated in blue and white, with blue candles and little flags. The Grace was said by Mr. Gillies, and the supper was served by boys and young men from the Trail Ranger group and A.S.K. Classes of the church.

During the meal community singing was led by Mrs. Huffman and Miss K. Benson. The guests were welcomed by the chairman, Miss K. Benson. The girls repeated the C.G.I.T. Purpose, and the Salute to the Flag was followed by the toast to the King. Miss Jessie Tully delighted the audience with two humorous readings. The toast to the Church was proposed by Mrs. Huffman, and was responded to by Mr. McDonald and Mr. Lewis, the superintendent of the Intermediate Department of the Sunday school. A vocal duet was then sung by Wilma and Wanda Lockie. A toast to Our Mothers was then proposed by Audrey Garside, and Mrs. J. Allen responded on behalf of the mothers present. Two little girls, Merle Sproule and Velma Stewart, sang a duet, "On the Good Ship Lollipop." Mrs. Coutts proposed a toast to Our Daughters, and this was responded to by the president of the C.G.I.T. Marjorie Thexton. A two-part song was sung by seven C.G.I.T. girls: Marjorie Lewis, Eleanor Taylor, Grace Stewart, Jean Ralston, Helen Hetherington, Gwen Lockie, and Gertrude Lancashire.

Guest Speaker

The speaker of the evening was Mrs. W. Yale of Lakefield and a former member of Knox Church. Mrs. Yale gave a splendid address to both mothers and daughters, stressing the high ideals and principles which both should strive to possess, and paid a fine tribute to the unselfish, sacrificing love of mothers.

A vote of thanks to Mrs. Yale, Miss Tully, those who served, and to all who helped make the banquet a success was moved by Jessie Scholey and seconded by Helen Ward. Betty Allen presented Mrs. Yale with a bouquet of flowers on behalf of the C.G.I.T.

The prizes for the year were presented by Mrs. Huffman to Marjorie Thexton and Marjorie Lewis. Mrs. Huffman also expressed the appreciation of the girls to their leader, Miss K. Benson, and Helen Hetherington presented her with a gift on behalf of the C.G.I.T.

Mr. Morrison spoke for a few minutes and gave the girls as an example the work of Miss Ella Warren, who began the A.S.K. Class in Knox Church. To celebrate the fifth Mother and Daughter event in Knox Church Mrs. Huffman made a birthday cake, which was cut by Mrs. A. Mackenzie and passed to the guests by three of the presidents during the last five years—Eunice Thexton, Alice Davis, and Marjorie Thexton. The two other presidents, Verna Huffman and Eleanor Dunford were unable to attend. Mr. Gillies thanked the C.G.I.T. on behalf of the men present for the privilege of attending the Mother and Daughter banquet. The program closed with the singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" and "Taps."

KING'S VISIT SETS HISTORY

meet the Peers and Commons assembled together.

Indeed, as he stood there quietly speaking, his audience remaining seated at his request, the King seemed rather the president of a national assembly than a monarch addressing his subjects.

And as the King spoke of "these rafters of mediaeval oak, silent witnesses of historic tragedies and pageants," one's mind turned to other and vastly different days, to long centuries of conflict between the royal prerogative and parliamentary privilege.

For Westminster Hall cradled British Parliamentary institutions. There, nearly seven centuries ago, Simon de Montfort summoned the Knights of Shire and Burgesses to their first Parliament.

There Richard II. was deposed and the hall rang with the challenge of Harry Bolinbroke "To this realm of England." Within a few feet of where His Majesty stood to-day, Charles I heard the sentence of death.

There, in the name of Parliament, Mr. Speaker girt the sword of state about Oliver Cromwell, placed the gold sceptre in his hand and installed him as Lord Protector of the Commonwealth of England.

Lords and Commoners Arrive

The Lords and Commons met in their own chambers an hour before the King arrived and thence, the Peers headed by the Lord Chancellor and the Commoners by the Speaker, proceeded four abreast to the Hall of William Rufus. The King's Judges in their robes were already seated.

A number of the Commoners in accordance with ancient privilege, wore workaday lounge suits. One, apparently forgetting he was not in the House, put on his silk hat as he took his seat. On a smiling hint he removed it a moment later.

Big Ben just boomed out the strokes of high noon as the heralds raised their trumpets and the King and Queen appeared.

On the dias with them sat their four sons, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, the Duke of Gloucester and the Duke of Kent.

A little further to the left and right were the Duke of Connaught, the Duchesses of York and Kent, the Princess Royal and the Earl of Harewood, Princess Alice and the Earl of Athlone.

Still further apart in boxes decorated in royal blue were the Indian Princes, the Dominion Prime Ministers, including Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, and representatives of the Colonies.

AT EVERY INTERSECTION BE CAREFUL!

THERE were over 800 bicycle riders killed or injured in Ontario last year.

Bicyclists, especially children, are often careless. This simply means that drivers of motor vehicles must be twice as careful. Remember that you are in the heavier vehicle.

At stop streets . . . stop! Discipline yourself when you drive. Cut down on speed, especially at night. Make sure that your brakes, tires and lights are effective . . . otherwise, some day, you may find yourself in serious trouble.

IT IS BETTER TO BE SAFE . . . THAN SORRY!

All Berlin Citizens To Have Plane Flight

BERLIN, May 9 (A.P.).—The Air Ministry inaugurated a drive to-day to have every Berlin resident fly over the city at least once as part of its campaign to boost aviation.

Loyal Nazis with increasing frequency in recent months have been informed on certain dates they must buy lottery tickets, purchase a bit of amber, take a trip or read more books "because national unity demands the participation of every German."

The scheme has been used to promote marriages, encourage house repairs, stimulate the sale of Nazi newspapers and boost the sales of the radio, automobile, furniture and textile industries, among numberless others.

ENTRY BY TICKET STEVENS MEETING

"The Changing Economic Life of Canada" to be Subject of Address.

The committee representing the Chamber of Commerce and the county branch of the United Farmers of Ontario, which has charge of the arrangements for the public address to be given in the Collegiate Auditorium, on Saturday evening, May 11, by Hon. H. H. Stevens, received a letter from the Hon. Mr. Stevens this morning in which he stated that he intends to speak on the subject "The Changing Economic Life of Canada." It will be an entirely non-partisan address. Hon. Mr. Stevens will be accompanied by Mrs. Stevens, and will drive to the city from Toronto, reaching Peterborough late on Saturday afternoon.

Hon. Mr. Stevens has expressed a special desire to meet two of his old friends, George Hanbidge and James Thorn, of Otonabee, for whom he expressed the very highest regard, dating back to his early associations with them as a boy years ago when he lived for a while in Otonabee.

As it will be impossible to accommodate all who would like to hear Hon. Mr. Stevens in the auditorium, arrangements have been made to have admission by ticket. Tickets are being distributed as widely as possible through the Chamber of Commerce and other city organizations, through each of which a limited number of tickets are being issued. In the country districts the tickets are being distributed by U.F.O. clubs and shipping centres. Ernest Scott and H. B. Cowan of Peterborough and W. W. Dawson of Stewart's Hall are in charge of the distribution of these tickets. Those holding tickets must be in their seats by 8 o'clock. No seats will be reserved after 8 o'clock.

Bandmaster Smith is coming here as guest cornet soloist, to take part in the special series of band concerts to be presented by the band of the local Salvation Army Corps in connection with the Golden Jubilee celebrations being held by Peterborough Salvationists this year.

He is to be here on Saturday, Sunday, and Monday, May 18, 19, and 20, and will be accompanied by Adjutant H. Martin of Chicago, as special guest speaker.

FUND FOR BLIND TOTALS $575.05

OBJECTIVE WAS $700.

A total of $575.05 was subscribed by Peterborough citizens and institutions toward this district's share in the work of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind in the campaign which was conducted during recent months, officials of the Peterborough Board revealed to-day. While the total has not reached the campaign objective of $700, the Board is grateful for a large increase over contributions last year and confidant that the sum, along with regular grants, will meet the needs of the blind here.

A large group of workers volunteered their services to the Board during the quiet campaign through the winter. A check acknowledging receipt of the campaign check was received by R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, campaign treasurer, from Institute headquarters last week. The sum mentioned in the letter is $552.63, but further contributions have since been received by the treasurer. The letter follows:

"It was a very great pleasure indeed to receive the report on the recent campaign held in Peterborough in support of the work of this Institute, from our representative, Mr. Treneer, on the occasion of his visit to the office on Saturday last. The net proceeds, amounting to $552.63, are very gratifying to us, as I am sure they must be to you and all workers connected with the campaign. I am enclosing herewith our official receipt for the cheque delivered by Mr. Treneer.

"It is difficult in any letter of appreciation to fully express our real feeling of gratitude for the generous interest and practical support of the members of the Peterborough Board to this Institute, the canvassers who gave so freely of their time and energy (as we know this task is not an easy one), the contributors who responded so wholeheartedly to your appeal on our behalf, and the press who so ably assisted with publicity, without which no campaign can be wholly successful. We fully appreciate how greatly all these factors count, and thank you all very sincerely for this welcome assistance in carrying on our work in your community. I am thanking you of course, on behalf of our Council and those whom we serve, particularly in your district.

"May I also extend my personal congratulations on the success of this campaign and sincere thanks, not only for the monetary support accorded our work, but also the confidence and goodwill this support represents."

The communication is signed by E. A. Baker, managing director of the Institute.

Mr. Hicks-Lyne advises that any local contributors to the campaign who wish receipts for their contributions for income tax or other accounting purposes may secure them from him at the Dominion Bank. Due to the large number of donations, receipts have been forwarded only in cases of particularly large amounts, he said.

CANADIANS LEAD TELEPHONE CALLS

214 Telephone Conversations Held in Canada for Every Person.

More telephone calls are made by Canadians than by the people of any other country.

The latest figures, compiled from official sources by the Bell System as of January 1, 1934, show that 214 telephone conversations were held in Canada for every man, woman and child in this Dominion.

This record is approached only by the United States where the comparable figure for the year was 191.4. It is a matter of interest that Denmark with 158.7 and Sweden with 137.4 conversations per capita were next in the line among the largest telephone-using countries of the world.

Canada's outstanding telephone development in the larger centres is a feature of the statistics presented in this world-wide telephone survey. With 19.33 telephones per 100 population in communities of 50,000 and more, Canada ranks second to Sweden which has a comparable development of 22.59 telephones. Denmark is third with 19.24 and is followed, in order, by Norway, 18.88; Switzerland, 18.80 and the United States in sixth position with 18.54 telephones per hundred inhabitants in the larger cities.

Canada ranks high also in telephones in the smaller communities. With 7.43 per 100 population in communities of less than 50,000 population, this Dominion is led by the United States with 9.76 and New Zealand with 9.29 telephones in these less peopled areas.

On the basis of development throughout the whole population, United States is first with 13.29 telephones per hundred people, Canada second with 11.15 followed by New Zealand, 10.01; Denmark, 9.99; Sweden, 9.51 and Switzerland, 8.81. Great Britain comes ninth, with 4.78.

These latest statistics make it clear that Canadians continue as they have done for many years to place a very high value upon their telephones as indicated in the fact of their being the world's leaders in the use of the service.

KUSHOG LAKE LODGE DESTROYED BY FIRE

Believed Defective Wiring Cause of $12,000 Conflagration.

LINDSAY, May 8 (Special to The Examiner).—A disastrous fire occurred at Kushog Lake, Haliburton County, last night, when Deer Park Lodge, well-known resort conducted by F. Thomas was totally destroyed. The lodge was a large frame structure with a 12-foot verandah circling it. Preparations were being made to open the resort for the season and its destruction will prove a serious loss. The lodge was valued at $12,000 and had $7,000 insurance carried on the building and $3000 on contents. The burned building was surrounded by 23 cabins, but these were saved. The cause of the fire has not been ascertained, but it is assumed that during the winter rats gnawed at the insulation on the electric wiring; the building igniting when the power was turned on.

"Too Grouchy to Live With"

Irritable, nervous, impossible

What do they really think of you
When you blow in after the day's work.
Are you greeted with a pleasant welcome
Or is there a deadly silence to meet your entry.
True there are burdens to bear these days
Which sap the vitality of mind and body.
Never was the nervous system so severely tried.
But why take it out of your family?
When your nerves are upset,
There is always effective relief obtainable
In the form of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.
Your wife knows about this treatment
Or if not she is an exception
For everywhere women are talking about it.
It is just as effective for men
For it actually forms rich, red blood
And restores nerve force to the tired body.

JAPANESE TOUR IS SQUELCHED BY DETENTION

Former Los Angeles Police Commissioner is Detained By Japanese Police.

WOMAN ALSO HELD.

TOKYO, May 9.—(AP)—The enthusiasm M. A. Pierce of Los Angeles and Mrs. Gertrude Edward Snyder of Sydney, Australia, had for a Japanese holiday tour was thoroughly squelched today by detention and interrogation by Nipponese spy hunters. Pierce, a former Los Angeles Police Commissioner, said he was arrested by a plainclothes policeman aboard the liner Tatsuta Maru on which he was travelling from Shanghai to Kobe.

His arrest, he said, occurred after he had taken photographs from the liner's deck.

On his arrival at Kobe, the American said, he was permitted to sleep in his hotel but was ordered to report at a police station daily where he was subjected to questioning for 10 hours each day during 11 days.

Pierce said his grilling by the Kobe police was such that it would "make American police handling of Dillinger seem courteous."

Ordered To Pay Fine

He finally was released after paying a fine of 30 yen (about $8.40) for photographing in a fortified zone.

Mrs. Snyder said she had been held overnight in a cell in a police station at Kogoshima and subjected to a strenuous grilling and indignities. She said she also was retained and questioned at Shimonoseki where a British consul obtained her release.

The Australian woman said police were suspicious of her activities because she travelled extensively in the interior where few foreigners are seen.

Five occidentals are now being held under suspicion of espionage in the Japanese island of Formosa. One is a United States citizen, W. S. Gates of Lancaster, Pa., former U. S. navy lieutenant.

Weddings

TAYLOR—PEARSON

The marriage of Julia Catherine Pearson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Pearson, 658 Aylmer street, to Arthur Taylor, son of Mrs. Mabel Taylor and the late William Taylor of 575 Romaine street, took place on Monday morning, May 6th, at 6 o'clock, at St. Peter's Cathedral. Rev. J. C. Maloney performed the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely gown of white satin with matching accessories and carried a bouquet of white carnations and maiden hair fern. She was attended by Miss Frances O'Heron, who was prettily attired in a gown of pink georgette and carried pink carnations and maiden hair fern.

The best man was Mr. Clarence Hickey.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents after which the young couple left for a motor trip to Hamilton and Niagara Falls. Upon their return they will reside in East City.

The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome ebony backed boudoir set; to the bridesmaid, a gold and black compact, and to the best man, a silver engraved cigarette case.

McILMOYLE—BULMER.

The marriage was solemnized at St. Paul's manse by Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, at three o'clock Saturday afternoon of Wilhelmina Elsie Bulmer, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Bulmer of Smith township, to Mr. Herert McIlmoyle, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. McIlmoyle of Selwyn.

The bride wore a lovely frock of attar rose with brown accessories. Her coat was a sand monotone, double-breasted front and 'Clark Gable' pleated back.

The young couple were attended by Miss Vera J. McIlmoyle and Mr Edwin Bulmer.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert McIlmoyle, Jr., will reside on the groom's farm near Young's Point.

Stream-lining of all the railway crossings in the city is requested in the council's letter to the two companies embodying Alderman Sloan's complaint that the bumps be ironed out. The C.N.R. crossing on Charlotte street has been made smooth, but it seems that many others require the same treatment.

Obituary

JACK LAIRD

Jack Laird, formerly of this city, died suddenly after a heart attack at the home of his daughter in Chicago yesterday. Mr. Laird will be remembered by older residents here as a shipper in the Quaker Oats Company twenty years ago. He married Jean Scott of this city.

The funeral is being held in Chicago to-morrow.

MRS. DANIEL DONOGHUE

The death of Mrs. Daniel Donoghue, 298 Simcoe street, occurred this morning after an illness of four months.

A member of one of the pioneer families of Peterborough, Mrs. Donoghue was born here eighty-four years ago, daughter of the late Cornelius McGrath and Catherine Butler. Her granduncle was the first parish priest at St. Peter's in the early days of this community.

Mrs. Donoghue was a life long resident of Peterborough, and had lived at her Simcoe street home for more than fifty years. To the older citizens, among whom she had a host of friends, the death of Mrs. Donoghue will be deeply regretted as a personal loss of a warm and sympathetic heart, an excellent neighbor whose interests and help will be a grateful memory and whose gentle humor was an unfailing inspiration to all those who knew her.

Mrs. Donoghue is survived by her husband, three daughters, Eileen of Rochester, May at home and Mrs. John E. Sullivan of this city; two sons, Ray of Detroit, and Edward of Peterborough; and one sister, Mrs. Margaret LaPlante, Rubidge street. The late T. B. McGrath was a brother of the deceased.

The funeral of Mrs. Donoghue will take place Saturday morning from the family residence to St. Peter's Cathedral where requiem mass will be chanted, and thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

SHORTER HOURS FINDING FAVOR

One of Ways Around Joblessness Believes Hepburn, Mayors Simpson and Houde.

CONFERENCE SUGGESTED.

TORONTO, May 9 (C.P.)—Mayor Camillen Houde's warning to Montrea City Council that unemployment in the Dominion is a permanent problem, with machines steadily replacing men irrevocably, has found support here from Premier M. F. Hepburn of Ontario, Mayor James Simpson, ex-Mayor W. J. Stewart, E. E. Woolon, head of the Toronto District Trades and Labor Council, and Aimee Geoffrion, K.C., Montreal lawyer.

Premier Hepburn favored shorter hours by international agreement and lower taxes for small incomes.

Mayor Simpson urged progressive shortening of hours as new machines are invented and advised substitution of co-operation in industry for unbridled competition.

Also backing shorter hours, ex-Mayor Stewart suggested Government method to boost consumption of manufactured and farm products and immediate establishment of Provin and Federal research committee to analyse unemployment.

Mr Woolon begged the Ontario Government to call a conference and frankly face the issue of shorter hours.

All those interviewed agreed with Mayor Houde no government could afford to carry on a public program sufficient to put all jobless to work and keep them there.

Prairie Seeding Delayed By Rains

WINNIPEG, May 9. — (CP).—Seeding on the prairies has been delayed this year, owing chiefly to late snow and heavy rains, leaving the ground too soggy for farmers to work.

But the weekly market news crop report issued to-day by the Sanford Evans statistical service says the 1935 season "has opened under more favorable circumstances than for several years."

The report says only 31 per cent of the wheat to be sown is seeded, comparing with 72 per cent at the same time last year.

"Seldom has surface soil been in better condition to receive the seed," states the report.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

CAN SOUTH GO GAME?

Since whist days opening leads, both against suit calls and no trumps, have been inefficient to a considerable extent, but until now nobody ever knew how (or was willing to undertake the vast labor) to correct them. No text-book is anyway near correct on the most efficient opening leads. The following hand from a duplicate game illustrates what happened to followers of the old leads, and how only two East and West pairs defeated the contract by leading correctly.

Bidding went: South, 1 no trump (which is preferable to a suit call on a 4-3-3-3 distribution); North, 2 hearts; South, 2 no trumps; North, 3 no trumps.

At six of the eight tables West made an old-fashioned opening lead of his queen of spades. At four tables East overtook with the king and led back the 2. South covered the second lead with the 8 and West won with the 10, giving the declarer an ace-9 tenace against a return lead from the jack-6, and West dared not lead the suit back, as that would have insured game (two spades, three hearts, two clubs and two diamonds, or some other combination of nine certain tricks.) West led a heart, his partner won a trick with his king. East led back a club to dummy's greatest weakness and West won the trick with his king, giving his side its fourth and last defensive trick.

Similar results took place at the two tables where the queen was led and East played his 2. West then led his lowest spade and East was in with his king, but he held no third spade to lead, so he put his partner in by leading a club. West led his jack of spades and declarer's ace won the trick. East won the fourth defensive trick with the king of hearts, after which South proceeded to run off the balance of his nine tricks for game.

The proper opening lead from fewer than six cards, headed by queen-jack-10, is the fourth best lead made. In both instances the king held the trick and the 2 came back. South covered with his 8 in one case and the 10 took the trick. Still holding queen-jack East led his queen and the declarer won the trick, hoping that East held the missing king of clubs. The jack of hearts lost to East's king, giving the defenders their third defensive trick. East led back a club. South could obtain only a single discard on dummy's hearts. He took the finesse and lost to the king, also West won a fifth trick with his good spade. The same defeat of one trick was suffered by the declarer at the eighth table, who won the second lead of spades with his ace.

ROBERTA'S CHAT

A column conducted by a reader of The Examiner for her other reader friends. Address all mail to Roberta in care of The Examiner.

"If instead of a gem, or even a flower, we could cast the gift of a thought into the heart of a friend, that would be giving, as the angels give."—George Macdonald.

DEAR FRIEND,—Sometimes we say a thing to cheer a friend, and years later, we are amazed at the power of the thought we sent out. We had forgotten all about it.

Our friend's need was great as he was sorely distressed, and so we spoke our thought to him, our main desire being to help, and never did we dream of its far-reaching power. By our thought put into words, our friend was enabled to gain a clearer vision, and surmount his difficulties.

He, in turn was an inspiration to some one else, and when our thought returned to us (as they most surely will) we did not recognize it.

Books, are first of all, thoughts, and give pleasure to thousands.

Newspapers are also thoughts put into words, and are of incalculable value in our daily lives. They contain more real drama, tragedy, humor and real information, than any book ever written.

Yet all these items, which comprise the whole newspaper, were first of all a thought in the minds of the various writers. Even although the facts were before them, it took a lot of thought, to present them to the best advantage, so remember that to-night, when you settle down to scan the news.

The thought of a pleasant visit, of places you've seen, of other places you would like to see, these can make the days so pleasant. Whatever may come, no one but Father Time, can rob me of my memories, and I don't expect to live that long anyway.

Sometimes thoughts can sting and burn, when someone has said or done things to hurt us, or the loss of a loved one, and the longing thought of them, which cause our eyes to fill but time, which mellows all, can show some beauty even in sad thoughts. Thoughts of the goodness of God can inspire us and lift us in ecstacy up to the very gates of heaven.

Thoughts of a man for a maid, and a maid for a man, will light the face, as if a lamp had been in behind the countenance.

The look of pride on a father's or mother's face, induced by thoughts of the achievements of their children, is beautiful to see. The look of thought on an old person's face, who is calmly waiting to go on the "great adventure," is something we can seldom forget.

The thoughts which come to us by a beautiful sunrise, a clever picture, a sculptured figure, expand our viewpoint and make us wonder, if we, too, could not do better with the talents given us.

The sight of a beautiful woman or a well groomed man, start thoughts in our mind, with a desire to be like them.

So, if you can start sending out a beautiful thought each day, it will eventually come back to you.

And in conclusion, remember that, "as a man thinketh, so is he," and start sending out your thoughts not forgetting to send one to

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Combinations of foods are very much like apt phrases which are so good that they are overworked. When we find the same phase cropping up again and again in talking or writing, we should take warning and express ourselves with more variety or we shall be uninteresting and boring to our friends. This is true about menus as well. Meals become monotonous if some of our favorite foods are always team-mates, such as lamb and peas, frankfurters and sauerkraut, pear and cream cheese salad, and so on.

• • • • • • •

Of course there are always exceptions to any rule. Certain things go together so well that we think of them almost as one and have no wish to do anything about separating them. For most of us, combinations like biscuits and honey, ham and eggs, liver and bacon, apple pie and cheese, are good even though served very often.

• • • • • • •

Sometimes a variety to keep meals interesting can be secured by changing the recipe for one of the foods in the combination. For instance, you may have a family which expects scalloped tomatoes whenever there is fish for dinner. We all find cooking more interesting if we can vary our recipes occasionally and the following one for Scalloped Tomatoes gives variety with time-saving. The family will like the subtle flavor which the toasted and seasoned corn flakes furnish.

• • • • • • •

SCALLOPED TOMATOES

1½ cups corn flakes; 2 tablespoons butter (melted); 1 No. 2 can tomatoes; 1 small onion (sliced); 1½ teaspoons salt; ⅛ teaspoon pepper; 1 teaspoon sugar.

Put a layer of corn flakes in the bottom of a baking pan. Add one-half the butter. Add tomatoes seasoned with the other ingredients. Cover with corn flakes and add the rest of the butter. Bake in a moderate oven (400 degrees F.) for about 20 minutes. Yield: 6 servings.

• • • • • • •

When a man cooks, if he is unfamiliar with the usual combinations, he often produces something which is as good as it is different. It was a man who decided that frankfurters and baked beans made an appetizing and hearty meal. The woman of the house repeated the combination, but made sure that the meal was balanced by adding bran muffins. Both agreed that a mixed green salad or cole slaw was perfect and that if there was enough of the salad, no other vegetable was necessary.

Fukutaro Nakasugi of Tokyo, Japan, was fond of his pet Japanese chin dog, but when he read how Captain Michael M. Jensen of the American liner President directed the rescue of the Japanese vessel Hokuman Maru near Seattle, he presented the pet to Jensen.

PATRIOTIC PROGRAM AT W.A. GATHERING

Mrs. Bell Speaks on Girl Guide Movement to George St. Members.

The regular May meeting of the Women's Association of George Street United Church was held in the board room yesterday, with Mrs. T. Mark presiding.

The program partook of a patriotic character in honor of King George's Jubilee and opened with the hymn, "God Bless Our Native Land," followed by repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison, with Mrs. W. P. Hetherington in charge of the devotional exercises.

A period of silent prayer was observed in honor of the late Mrs. C. E. Smith, president of the association last year, who recently removed to Western Ontario and passed away in Kitchener Hospital on May 1st. After prayer by Mrs. W. Fisher, the hymn, "O God Our Help in Ages Past," was sung.

The scripture lesson was read in unison. Mrs. Renshaw rendered a pleasing solo accompanied by Miss Dorothy White.

Mrs. Bell, who was the guest speaker of the afternoon spoke on "The Girl Guide Movement," giving a very interesting account of their work and training, and how beneficial it was to the girls' character.

A hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Renshaw and Mrs. Bell was voiced by Mrs. F. Mather and seconded by Mrs. J. E. Middleton.

Mrs. P. Hagerman owing to the absence of Mrs. Armstrong, reported for the Sick and Visiting committee. Sixty-two calls had been made since the previous meeting.

Satisfactory reports were submitted by the secretary, Mrs. C. G. Staples and the treasurer, Mrs. S. Oke, and Miss Mary Elliott, corresponding secretary, read a number of letters of thanks for flowers received and sympathy extended. Announcement was made of the Congregation picnic at the Oval in June, and Mrs. H. Poole and Miss Lillian Morrow appointed as representatives on the committee from the association.

Plans for the laymen's banquet of the Bay of Quinte Conference, which will be held in George Street Sunday school auditorium on the evening of May 30th, were announced. The executive, Mrs. T. Mark, Mrs. Kelley, Mrs. Harris and Miss Mary Elliott are convenors assisted by a capable committee.

The meeting closed by singing the National Anthem followed by prayer by Mrs. J. E. J. Millyard.

WOODEN COW CATCHER

MONTREAL, May 9 (CP)—Believed to be the only one of its kind in Canada, a wooden pilot, or "cow catcher," used on Canadian locomotives of bygone days, was donated to the Canadian Railroad Historical Association. It is expected this relic of pioneer railway days will be prominently displayed at the Canadian Railway Centenary Exposition to be held in July, 1936.

Be Beautiful

By GLADYS GLAD

Myrna Loy of cinema fame is one lass who knows her eye make-up. Not only does she know her powders, rouges and lipsticks, but her eye cosmetics as well. Her orbs are naturally large and lustrous. But through the use of different eye cosmetics, she gves her eyes added brilliance and interest. And eye-shadow is one of her chief aids in accomplishing this.

In selecting a proper shade of eyeshadow for her eyes, the average non-professional lass is apt to become somewhat confused. However, there are several general rules for the selection of eyeshadow cream. For the blue-eyed damsel, the blue, blue-gray and gray shades are best, although some of the more exotic blue-eyed girls can wear green and violet advantageously. These latter shades, however, should be worn only under the artificial lights of evening. The brown-haired, brown-eyed woman can best wear the brown eyeshadow, although the gray may be worn by this type. The green or hazel-eyed girl, for evening, can use the green shadow, and by using the blue, brown or gray creams, she can give her eyes more of a bluish, brownish or grayish caste.

If eyeshadow is to give a suggestion of depth, brilliance and allure to the eyes, however, it must be applied with skill. Eyeshadow should never be applied under the eyes, of course, for this practice will make the eyes appear smaller, and will give the face a haggard and fatigued appearance. Eyeshadow belongs only to the upper eyelids. To apply it properly, put a bit of it on the tip of your fore-finger and spread it over each upper eyelid at the roots of the lashes. The index finger may also be used for this purpose, if preferred. Then blend the shadow evenly over each eyelid to the outer corner of each eye, making the color heavier at the roots of the lashes, and lighter as you blend it over the lids. Use you eyeshadow cream skillfully always, and you'll find that it will help greatly to increase the depth, brilliance and loveliness of your eyes.

CITY OF GOLD AND SILVER GROWING UP FOR JUBILEE

Flood-lit Tulips Like Field of Heraldry—Forests of Flags

18 BOND ST. ARCHES

London, Eng.—Almost overnight the face of London has changed. Not a very obvious change just yet—all the gay schemes and elaborate surprises will be kept as much as possible out of sight until the jubilee is really here—but in all the principal streets now you can see the changes and preparations for change which are going so queerly and beautifully to transfigure London.

The Mall appears already a gleaming vista of white seats and silver masts.

Its broad boulevards are covered from end to end with the shining new wood of the spectators' stands, wanting nothing now but the royal draperies to cover the wood as the wood has covered the steel scaffolding.

Painted Lions

Tall silver masts, scarlet-tipped and complete but for painted lions and crowns to top them and fringed banners to swing from their slender cross-beams, are creeping steadily up from the Admiralty Arch towards the palace.

The bland beauty of Carlton House-terrace, newly cleaned and cream-painted from end to end, makes a princely background to this most princely setting of a royal show.

The Green Park, outwardly calm and unruffled behind the Mall's iron railings, is already full of hidden lighting.

The great flood-lights are painted green and disposed cunningly among the bushes. It takes a sharp eye to see them, but they are already there, miles of electric wires trailing over the grass to turn the park into a piece of extravagant pantomime scenery.

Gorgeous Tulips

All along Birdcage Walk great beds of scarlet tulips are in fat buds, planted months ago, coaxed and nursed by an army of gardeners to bloom at the crucial moment.

Arc lights as big as searchlights are hidden among the bushes to blaze along the grass into these beds of scarlet, making the slopes of the park like a field of heraldry.

Other lights are trained on groups of flowering trees that are now in promising bud; they will be as white as flood-lit fountains during the enchanted London nights of the jubilee.

The lake where those famous greedy pelicans sit preening themselves all day long is encircled with a battery of big lights, preparing a strange day-by-night that will astonish the birds.

Week of Fine Weather

Whitehall is still dis-ent, though the official decoration plans, meticulously drawn and carefully painted out in water colors, look as if it will be gaudy enough when the time comes.

Gauze up towards the roofs of Whitehall's official buildings, though, and it looks as if some giant birds were already laying twigs there for a fantastic nest.

The flag poles bristle out over the street like an eccentric scaffolding, but because they are so high and as yet no great flags swing and blow from them, nobody notices them.

Scarlet and Gold

Bond street, which transformed itself into a tunnel of flower garlands and white bells for the royal wedding last November, so that traffic had to be diverted and the London crowds streamed in their thousands down the narrow street late into the winter evenings, gazing at the transformation, has a very elaborate scheme up its sleeve of which it is betraying nothing yet to the inquisitive onlooker staring up from the pavement.

Every shop that boasts a royal coat of arms (and most of them can show something in the way of lion and unicorn or Prince of Wales's feathers, the insignia of appointment) are having them cleaned and re-gilded, new coats of scarlet paint on the lions' tongues, new glossy white for the unicorn, glistening gold for the crown.

Bond street is fortunate in its narrowness when it comes to decoration; it can build the eighteen great arches it has decided on with the minimum of preparation, and garland them with white and silver flowers and crown them with flood-lit crowns only a few days before May 6.

Even the Strand and the city begin to have an air of preparing for the grandest celebration in their history.

The cross at the top of St. Paul's is thickly covered with twig-like ladders, receiving its jubilee coat of gold; St. Clement Danes and St. Mary-le-Strand, unfamiliar in their shroud of white wooden stands, their painted box-offices set up inside the church railings, shine oddly through the traffic; at Blackfriars, holes are being dug across the road for the building of the great gates that are to shut off the bridge; Ludgate Hill Railway Bridge is nearly ready to receive the huge painted designs the young men are feverishly working on at the Royal College of Art.

As for the washing and painting of private houses, the planting of window-boxes, the stitching of flags and banners, the building of electric illuminations that is going on it would take almost from now to the jubilee to give an account of them.

BANKED $120, DREW $1,100

Providence, R.I.—Clad in union blue, Patrick O'Leary marched away from Providence back in 1861, distinguished himself in action during the civil war, and sent $120 to the Providence Institution of Savings. But he never returned. Seventy-four years later, his daughter, Miss Ellen O'Leary, winning court litigation to prove her claim, withdrew the money from the state treasury which received it from the bank in 1908. With interest, the money totalled $1,100.

HE WAS UP A TREE WEDGED 45 HOURS

Boy Frightened By Sounds From Inside the Trunk

Gloucester.—Imprisoned for 45 hours in the trunk of a hollow tree into which he had fallen when climbing, was the fate of William Bowkett of Overton, near Saul.

He was held fast as in a vise. After suffering agony, he at last made himself heard and was rescued, exhausted and famished, with a set of block-hoisting tackle.

At first no one heard his calls, as the tree is in an isolated part of a meadow, but in the evening of the first day of his imprisonment, a boy, James Tranter, of The Weir, Elmore, who had been picking violets near, reported that he had been scared by noises in the tree. It was thought that the boy had heard an owl.

In the afternoon of the third day Mr. George Webb of Highley [illegible] Minsterworth, heard groans coming from the tree and then a voice say: "I am in the tree and can't get out."

Mr. Webb climbed the tree and saw Bowkett, who was so firmly wedged that nothing could be done to help him.

Mr. Webb got the assistance of two salmon fishermen, Mr. Mark Mayo and Mr. William Parker, who fetched a set of block-hoisting tackle.

This was attached to Bowkett, whose clothes were torn from him as he was hoisted out.

MYSTERIOUS TENANT LEFT HINT OF CRIME

Police Find Trail of Blood in House of Missing Woman

Dagenham.—Police were searching for a clue to the mystery of Mrs. Grace Saunders, who vanished from her home in Surrey Rd., Dagenham.

Detectives found that a pane of glass had been broken near the door lock at the back of the house and a blood-stained towel was lying on the kitchen floor. A trail of blood led from the room along the banisters to a bedroom upstairs.

Since Mrs. Saunders moved in six months ago a man has been employed building a high brick wall round the house, while the doors have been fitted with massive bolts.

Only two rooms were furnished and all the downstairs windows had been covered with whitewash.

Despite the humble furniture Mrs. Saunders is said to have carried wads of currency notes with her and always paid tradesmen's bills with cash.

She bought almost every newspaper published every day.

"On Wednesday night I heard a couple quarrelling near the house," J. Lines, Reed Rd., a watchman, whose hut is only 15 yards from the house, said.

"I heard screams, and a woman shouted, 'Stop, you are hurting me!' I looked out, but could see nothing."

A woman who lives on the opposite side of the road said she heard screams and a loud banging on Wednesday evening.

The police have issued the following description of Mrs. Saunders: About 5 ft. 6 in. high; aged about 35; smartly dressed and dignified in carriage."

TRAINING CHILDREN IN ROAD SENSE

Safety-driving in a practical way is the slogan of Britishers ardently engaged in attempting to reduce slaughter on the highways, especially among children. Here are children of St. Michael's and All Angels' Church of England school, London, "playing an accident." They receive regular lessons keeping them safety conscious, showing them how to obey lights and traffic regulations and how to give the motorist a chance.

TWINS WORLDS APART ENGAGED ON SAME DAY

"Certain Telepathy Between Us," Says Nurse Going to Antipodes

Bristol.—Is the strange telepathy that links so many twins capable even of girdling the world to bind them in affairs of the heart?

The engagements of Miss Dorothy and Miss Helga Pridie, twin daughters of Mrs. Pridie, of Apsley Rd., Clifton, Bristol, have just been announced.

By an extraordinary coincidence, both girls were proposed to on the same day last September—one in England, the other 12,000 miles away in New Zealand.

Helga, who is a nurse on the staff of the Royal Naval hospital at Chatham, is to marry Dr. S. S. Cruden of Alphington, Exeter. Dorothy, also a nurse, will marry Mr. William Buckley, a sheep farmer of Canterbury, New Zealand, whom she met when visiting her brother there last year.

Helga accepted her suitor's proposal on the day it was made, while Dorothy accepted by cable after returning to England.

Miss Dorothy Pridie, who is living at Rudleigh Salterton, Devon, where she is engaged in private nursing, said:

"Helga and I are exactly alike in appearance, and there has always been a certain telepathy between us.

"I shall be a bridesmaid at my sister's wedding at St. Mary Redcliffe, Bristol, on June 15, and four days later I shall sail for New Zealand for my own wedding."

SURRENDER FIREARMS

London.—As a result of the appeal by the commissioner of police in March for the surrender of firearms, over 1,000 have been deposited at police stations in the Metropolitan Police district.

It is desired to reduce the number of unwanted firearms—particularly pistols and revolvers—and the commissioner hopes that everyone who has a firearm for which there is no real use will surrender it at the nearest police station before the end of the month.

COLLEGE FOR NAVIES' COOKS SHOWS WHAT GOBS CAN MAKE

Where Paymasters Learn to Make Charlotte Russe, Ham and Eggs

EXHIBIT WAR FOOD

London.—The college where naval paymasters learn to cook has just started celebrating its diamond jubilee.

This is the National Training College of Domestic Subjects in Buckingham Palace Rd., Westminster, SW., crowded with eager students in mob-caps and aprons showing off their cookery exhibits, and, in one corner, a couple of modest petty officers standing guard over their own naval exhibit of men's nations and sample officers' dinner.

The college was the first school of cookery in the country and it has taught stranger pupils than the usual run of cooks, teachers, and students who hope to make good wives.

Girl Instructors

The navy sends its paymasters to learn from the brisk, spectacled, mob-capped instructresses, believing it necessary for men who control the navy's catering to know how to make a charlotte russe, scramble an egg, and brew good coffee.

The paymasters learn all this in a four-week course; the petty officers take eight weeks and learn a little more.

Their contribution to the college's exhibition is an officer's meal—consomme, filets of sole, lamb cutlets in aspic, charlotte russe—and a naval rating's rations for the day, from 7 a.m. until bed-time.

These comprise fried egg and sausage and tea for his breakfast, rum for his "11 o'clock," midday dinner, tea and supper, the whole including impressive portions of jam roll, mashed potatoes, meat, fruit, and water-cress.

The college does not, however, confine itself to the navy. The first soldier cooks in the army took a course here in the 'eighties, and generations of army cooks have learned how to deal with rations under the eye of the principal, Miss Clarke, since then.

"Substitute" Meals

During the war special classes were run for both soldiers and civilians to teach them how to deal with the small quantities allowed by ration cards, how to cook with the interminable "substitutes" of those days, and how to make meat pies without meat and puddings without sugar.

A table full of war-time food is one of the most interesting points in the exhibition, and one which today's younger generation might do well to study as a reminder of the days when we made most things out of rhubarb, potatoes and less appetising oddments, and most things tasted like rubber.

PREPARE FOR CRIME BY KIDNAPPING DOG

Jewel Thieves Get $50,000 Worth—Knew Layout

London.—Scotland Yard are hunting for an expert gang which they believe to be responsible for a $50,000 theft of jewelry from a house in Bishop's Ave., East Finchley.

It is believed that the burglars carefully went over the grounds of the house in advance and kidnapped a bull terrier guard; reached a billiard room by ladder, smashing the window; forced their way into the next room for the safe containing the gems; and made their escape in a motor-car, in which accomplices were waiting.

The owners of the house, Mr. and Mrs. Lazarus, were out at the time of the raid. The shock of the loss was so great that both were confined to their rooms.

With about two exceptions, every house in the Bishop's Ave. has been ransacked by burglars within the last few years.

Cecil Lazarus, one of the sons, said:

POLICE FOLLOW PIGEON

Catch Extortionist by Tracing Flight of Bird

Paris.—A Belgian who thought he was smarter than the police worked out a new method of extortion. He sent a letter, together with a carrier pigeon, to a prominent business man and demanded a large sum of money. The police were called in, and, when the pigeon flew away with a package, it was followed by police in an aeroplane and the extortioner was arrested.

CRIME COLLEGE URGED FOR JUDGES, LAWYERS

Would Combine Science With Legal Training For Law Officials

London.—Establishment of a central national institute which would combine medical and scientific training with police and detective work was advocated recently by Lord Atkin, lord of appeal, speaking at the opening of the new police laboratory at the Police college, Hendon, N.W.

He urged a government grant and the establishment of a professorship at the university which would organize courses of study as well as research. In the future he hoped that a diploma of the institute would be regarded as an essential qualification of all coroners, magistrates, judges and lawyers engaged in criminal cases.

The purpose of the Police college's new laboratory, which includes all the apparatus of detection familiar to lovers of Sherlock Holmes, is twofold. It will form part of the curriculum of selected police officers who are undergoing training at the college with the object of teaching them what to look for at the scene of a crime.

It will also be a research department, where examination of specimens and problems arising in the detection of actual crime can be scientifically conducted.

ROOSTER IS ON STRIKE INCUBATOR TAKES JOB

Cock Emu at Zoo Supposed to Sit on Eggs, But Refuses

London.—For the first time in "unnatural" history, emus' eggs are being hatched in an incubator at Whipsnade Zoo.

There are 11 of them, and the experts say they should take 42 to 44 days to hatch. But they have already been in the incubator for 52 days.

"There is movement in seven of the eggs," according to W. P. B. Beal, superintendent of the zoo. "Emus' eggs are normally hatched by the cock bird, but this year he refused to do his duty, so we have had to resort to artificial means. As it is a new experiment we don't know exactly how long they will be hatching, but the birds ought to be out now in a few days."

Two ostrich eggs were laid at Whipsnade during the past year. One of them weighed 3 lb. 10 oz.—equivalent to 25 hen's eggs.

"We ate the eggs," said Mr. Beal. "They were given to our catering department and were made into omelettes, scones and cakes.

"The shells have been preserved in the restaurant. It took about half an hour to blow each one—or rather to shake them out. I had some of the egg myself and very good it tasted. Ostrich egg is not strong—more like turkey's egg than duck's egg."

WOMEN ON TOP OF MANHOLES BLOWN INTO AIR BY BLAST

ELECTRICITY BREAK

London.—A fire in a cinema, violent explosions and sheets of flame from electric fuse boxes at street corners, manhole covers blown into the air.

These were features of an extraordinary electrical break-down in the crowded Oxford St. area of the west end recently.

The fire occurred in the Polytechnic cinema, Regent St. The distribution fuse box blew out and the cables were set alight.

Sheets of flame shot out of the box into a laboratory, but the men standing by smothered the fire with sand and a chemical extinguisher.

A. E. Hart, one of the electricians, said: "Flames shot out at various points along the cables. There were three of us fighting them for about 20 minutes, but at no time was the fire out of control.

"There was no panic among the audience, as they knew nothing of the fire. When the arc which throws light on the screen failed people who became tired of the delay wandered out of the cinema in small groups.

"There were about 350 people—mostly women—in the audience at the time."

Cinemas Held Up

The majority of the west end cinemas were outside the affected area, but at some of those on the north side of Oxford St. the performances were held up for a time.

At a cinema in Edgware Rd. it was impossible to show the films for nearly two hours. All the cinemas affected, however, had their full electric service restored.

Twenty Fire Calls

The area affected by the explosions extended from Oxford St. to St. John's Wood. Passers-by ran helter-skelter as large manhole covers were blown two or three feet high. Two women standing on top of a manhole when it blew up were hurled into the air.

Lifts in warehouses and shops were stopped half-way up. There were innumerable traffic jams.

Eighteen fire engines and a special squad of police were called out. The fire brigade answered more than 20 calls.

Many shops were without lights for long periods. Four junction boxes fused in Oxford St. Many side streets were in complete darkness with the failure of street lights.

An explosion in Wells St. sent up flames 20 feet high, and for five minutes the street was black with smoke.

Sixty work-girls dashed from a gown manufacturers' premises in Henrietta St. after an explosion in the basement.

Traffic in Oxford St. was held up from 2.30 p.m., when the trouble started, till 5 o'clock.

ROPES SWANS FOR ZOO

Birds Were Too Elusive for Men in Rowboats

Fort Worth, Tex.—Cowboys are supposed to rope steers and maybe now and then a mountain lion for sport, but Julian Frazier, cowboy who turned zookeeper, claims the world championship swan roping cup.

When the zoo needed some more swans, Superintendent Hamilton Hittson tried to catch some on a nearby lake. They were too elusive for rowboats and hands.

So Frazier got down his rope and went out to the lake. He caught six in a half-day's throwing.

WIFE IMITATES FLEA KILLS HER HUSBAND

Pricks Him With Bread Knife —Bleeds to Death

Accrington.—Imitating the dealers of a flea-circus Mrs. George Dransfield, waved a bread knife, and playfully pricked him producing a wound from which he died shortly afterward.

Accidental death was the verdict of the coroner's jury.

It was stated that Dransfield and his wife visited a local fair ground on Saturday and saw a performance of fleas in which each of them was supposed to be fighting a duel.

Mrs. Dransfield said that on Sunday evening she was preparing tea and took up a knife to cut bread. At that moment her husband mentioned the fleas' performance. She laughing and joking began to demonstrate the thrusts. She made a slight thrust towards her husband and felt the knife pierce his flesh. He bled profusely and did not speak. They had had four years of happy married life.

James Booth said that Mrs. Dransfield came into his room assisting her husband, and when asked what had happened, replied: "I have done it, not him." Mrs. Dransfield was hugging her husband and imploring him to speak to her.

The coroner, F. Rowland said it seemed to him that the tragedy was the result of larking.

PARACHUTE JUMPING RELIEVES MONOTONY

Breaks Ankle Making Descent in High Wind—Was Attempting Record

Reading—A parachutist who made a perilous descent from 1,600 feet in a strong wind over Reading aerodrome recently because he did not want to disappoint a waiting crowd broke his leg above the ankle.

"I have never seen a parachutist carried so fast. We all thought he had been killed when he reached the middle of the aerodrome," said a member of Reading Aero club.

Mr. Gwynne Johns, 25, the parachutist, is an ironmonger's clerk in a store at Aberystwyth.

He had taken a week's holiday to make an attempt on the record drop before the parachute is opened, and was paying for it out of his modest wages. He makes a hobby of parachuting.

Earlier in the day he flew from Reading to Salisbury Plain to attempt to jump from 20,000 feet and to drop 18,000 feet before opening his parachute. Over the Plain, however, it was raining heavily and no jump was possible.

Dragged 200 Yards

Flight-Lieut. R. E. Milne, chief instructor at Reading, Mr. Johns' pilot, said: "When we got back to Reading Gwynne Johns thought he would do a small jump, not an attempt on the record.

"There was a stiff wind and we advised him not to do so. He landed quite well, however, but drifted very fast and was dragged flat on the ground about 200 yards."

"I find jumping a relief from the monotony of my work," Mr. Johns said before his flight. "Falling through the air has always attracted me immensely. I made my first parachute jump about three years ago. I have made 17, my best from a height of 13,000 feet, delaying the opening of the parachute for 45 seconds—a fall of 9,000 feet."

EAT, DRINK AND BE MERRY BED EARLY, OLD AGE RULE

66 Centenarians Eat Anything, Smoke, Drink All They Can Get

HEREDITY A FACTOR

Paris.—Sixty-six people in France to-day possess the secret of long life, and the formula is—eat, drink and be merry!

A census, just completed, has shown that there are 66 centenarians in the country, and they all like four large meals a day.

Fifty-seven of them can eat almost anything that is cooked for them. The others follow special diets.

With the exception of one—Prof. Gueniot, who is 103—they all like as much wine and tobacco as they can get.

Mme. Bourgade, of Brede, 101 and still healthy, drinks a quart of red wine a day. Mme. Perrin, of Loches, 100, Mme. Rochette, 100, and Mme. Bonne Gaithe, 100, all drink wine with their meals.

And these centenarians of the Yonne Valley have a preference for a glass of the local "marc"—brandy distilled from the second pressing of the grape.

This drink strikes a young and healthy Parisian as being compounded chiefly of dynamite!

The centenarians ignore all the aids to longevity invented by doctors. Most of them have followed one rule all their lives—early to bed.

They usually retire at about ten and rise, or did when they were younger, at five.

The survey has shown that heredity is one of the most important factors in longevity. The parents of nearly all the centenarians lived to over eighty and most of them were more than 90 years of age when they died.

Only three of the centenarians ever underwent operations, and these were for broken limbs.

PARALYSIS VICTIM KILLED BY MOTHER

Dunkirk.—Distraught by the continued suffering of her deformed 16-month-old daughter, Mrs. Alice Howland, aged 37, of Dunkirk (Kent), drowned her to spare her further pain.

She then placed the child in a clean nightdress, and, putting out a clean nightdress for herself and her four-year-old daughter, Kathleen, went with Kathleen into the scullery and turned on the gas stove.

At the inquest on the mother and her 16-month-old child at Dunkirk, a verdict was returned that Mrs. Howland murdered the child and then committed suicide.

$250 WEDDING LOANS BRING 143,000 BABIES

Berlin.—Official statisticians report that 366,000 loans of $250 each to couples getting married produced 143,000 children up to the end of 1934. The scheme was introduced the previous year.

Altogether 213,000 more children were born in 1934 than in 1933.

Investigators, taking 50 couples who married on Hitler's loan, report that 38 found happiness, the others disappointment.

Nearly half the pairs produced one baby. Several are on the point of producing the second. The state therefore puts the scheme down as a success.

HUSBAND ON MURDER CHARGE

London—William Thomas Rourke, aged 71, a retired stereotyper of Lyndhurst Rd., Peckham, S.E., was remanded in custody at Lambeth police court on a charge of murdering his wife, Edith, aged about 70, to whom he was stated to have been married for 45 years.

'STEALING IS MY WORK' ROGUE'S DIARY STATES

Long Confession Reveals Criminal Activities All Round the World

Suva, Fiji.—Before being sentenced to four years' imprisonment for cattle-stealing at Lambasa, a sugar town in Fiji, an Indian named Kali Khan made the following remarkable confession:

"Stealing is my work. I have been everywhere, England, Scotland, France, America, Germany, Australia, New Zealand, Greece, Italy, Spain, Malta and other places.

"I came to Fiji in a coolie ship and after working nine months got four years for shooting Mr. Hennings with a rifle. After serving three years I was sent back to India because I would not work in jail.

"I joined the army in the great war and remained in it for three-and-a-half years. Then I went to jail twice in India, both times for stealing. I again came to Fiji by changing my name. I left Calcutta in haste as there was a warrant out for my arrest for breaking and entering.

"I with three other men broke into a store and stole 18,000 rupees and shared up. We took the safe away in a motor car. This was eighteen months before I came to Fiji the second time. I had a friend in India named Moiden, and we stole together. After I left I heard he had murdered a woman for the jewelry she wore.

"When I came to Fiji I brought in 18 lbs. of gunjah (a strongly prohibited drug much prized by Indians). I sold it all in Fiji.

"During the Fiji floods I stole $350 from a deserted house at Nausori. I broke Mr. Casey's leg (the present governor of the jail), and injured Mr. Dalton (the late governor) when I was in jail."

The chief justice, after sentencing Khan, advised his deportation.

SUPERSTITION LEADS TO MASSACRE OF 16

Also 43 Abducted, Fate Unknown As Villagers Attack Railway Workers

Canton, China.—Sixteen railway workers murdered and 43 abducted—that is the latest evidence to show how superstition among country people holds up progress in the interior of China.

The workers were building a section of railway on the Canton-Hankow line.

Word went round among the villagers near Laiyang, in South-western Hunan, that the railwaymen had been killing peaceful inhabitants as "sacrifices to the spirits."

The blood of local people was being shed, the rumors held, to propitiate the spirits so that the line could be completed.

Terrified and enraged villagers attacked a native junk in which 18 men were being transported to jobs on bridges. Two workers only escaped.

The rest were beaten to death or drowned. One man was strangled with wire.

Later, two more boats were attacked and the 43 workers on board were carried off by the villagers. Railway guards have since arrested four alleged ringleaders, but the fate of the 43 abducted men is unknown.

FORBIDDEN TO DIG IN RUINS THAT MAY HIDE CLEOPATRA

Tutankhamen Tomb Discoverer Brought Wealth to Egypt, But Now Balked

86,000 VISITORS

Cairo.—Because the Egyptian government will not allow him to make further excavations, Mr. Howard Carter, who discovered the tomb of Tutankhamen, is unable to pursue his search in the ancient necropolis near Luxor for the burial-places of queens of the 18th dynasty.

Mr. Carter's discovery of Tutankhamen brought world fame to him and to the late Lord Carnarvon. It brought, moreover, huge profits to Egypt.

The treasures found were sent to the Cairo Museum; 86,000 people paid for admission to the tomb in the nine years following its discovery, and it is estimated that the tourist revenue brought into Egypt by visitors to the tomb was, during that period, $1,250,000 per annum.

"As matters stand at present, I can excavate no more," said Howard Carter. "Soon after the Tutankhamen discovery, the Egyptian government passed a law prohibiting private individuals from making excavations. Permission was, henceforth, to be given only to scientific societies.

Illogical

"The law is an illogical one," continued Mr. Carter. "More than a third of the treasures in the Cairo Museum—including those of the Tutankhamen tomb—were discovered by private enterprise. And even before the present law was passed everything found had to be submitted to the government.

"The archaeologist only secured, apart, of course, from the joy of his discovery, what the government allowed him to take away. That was, usually, very little.

"The same rule still applies to scientific societies conducting excavations. The new law cannot, therefore, be inspired by the fear of archaeological finds being taken out of the country.

Mr. Carter has done a great deal of preparatory and theoretical work on the tombs of the Eighteenth dynasty queens of Egypt. There are known to be several queens' tombs in the ancient necropolis near Luxor. The theory has even been advanced—though Mr. Carter describes it as unlikely — that the glamorous Cleopatra lies in that sandy waste.

"But while the present law holds good," he said, "my work in connection with the queens' tombs must remain in the preparatory stage. And my theories must remain—just theories."

YOUTH CONFESSES TO 555 ROBBERIES

Liverpool.—A youth of 21, who kept a detective writing for the best part of a week taking down particulars of cases of housebreaking which he admitted, was sent to Manchester assizes on two charges of housebreaking and one of shopbreaking.

The prosecuting solicitor said the youth, Henry M. Robinson, could be connected with 555 cases of housebreaking and shopbreaking in the past four years in Liverpool and district.

FLOODED WITH GIFTS FOR DOG WITHOUT TAG

$2,000 Sent Woman Who Starved For Her Helper

Blackpool.—Letters and parcels containing money, food, and flowers for Miss Kathleen Hutchinson, of Layton, Blackpool, and her dog Jack—who goes shopping for his invalid mistress — poured into Blackpool from all parts of the country.

This was because she had been summoned for not having a license for Jack.

At least 600 messages, mostly from women and children, were received, some of them from folk in poor circumstances.

The money received is nearly $2,000 and the flow has not ceased.

Examples of the kindly feeling aroused among animal lovers are these facts:

Enough gifts of two dollars for Jack's license have been sent to pay the license for at least 30 years.

A year's supply of dog biscuits was received from a Brighton woman.

The Tail Waggers Club, London, sent two dollars for the license and enrolled Jack as an honorary member. They also offered to pay his license each year as it became due.

MORE SHIPS BUILT

London.—Returns of Lloyd's register of shipping show that on March 31 there were under construction in Great Britain and Ireland 116 merchant vessels, of 555,815 tons gross, including eight steamers, of 23,288 tons, on which work was suspended. The total is less by 41,019 tons than that being built at the end of the previous quarter, but it exceeds the figures for a year ago by 74,375 tons. In connection with the decrease on the quarter, the Register points out that the new shipping completed during the period was greater than usual. About 67,000 tons, representing 12 per cent. of the shipping now being built in this country, are intended for registration abroad or for sale.

Mounting List of Seizures Show Game Wardens Active

FISHING TACKLE AND MANY GUNS NABBED IN MAY

Prosecutions Pend in Peterboro Area for Taking Pickerel Out of Season.

POACHERS BEWARE!

Seven Spears, 6 Flashlights Taken in Raids Along Trent and Moira Rivers.

TORONTO, May 9.—Some people just will take chances. They will shoot and fish out of season; they will trap, spear and net in restricted areas or without licenses, or in illegal hours. Sometimes they get away with it. But sometimes they get caught and repent ruefully.

The Ontario Department of Fish and Game is aggressive, and the incomplete record of apprehensions, seizures and prosecutions since April 30 should serve as a warning to those who may have escaped that the game warden may turn up any minute.

Activity Revealed

J. Farrington, Assistant Deputy Minister, yesterday thumbed his files for the past seven days and disclosed.

Renfrew district—Four rifles seized for illegal shooting.

Sturgeon Falls—Two wild ducks, illegal possession; fine $10 and costs.

Simcoe County—Five flashlights and five spears seized. This party had no fish when apprehended, but obviously their intentions were serious.

Brantford—One muskellunge, out of season.

Waterloo County—Four rods seized and four fined $10 and costs each for fishing in waters that are "closed."

Parry Sound district—Two red fox pelts seized, conviction and $20 fine. Also in same locality five traps and one muskrat pelt seized, and in another instance one beaver seized. Prosecutions pending.

Peterborough district—Ted rods seized, and prosecutions pending for taking pickerel out of season. Here it may be noted that, except in the waters of the Great Lakes, the pickerel season does not open till May 16.

Lake Simcoe—Small seine net seized.

Sudbury—One beaver and three traps seized.

Lake Nipissing—One gillnet and quantity of pickerel seized. Fine, $20 and costs.

Prosecutions Pending.

Sudbury— Twelve spears and one dip net taken from two parties of nine and five persons. As the nine were suffering confiscation of their illegal equipment, the party of five similarly outfitted, hove in sight ready to begin nocturnal operations. Prosecutions are pending

South Hastings — Seven spears and six flashlights seized from parties spearing at night on the Trent and Moira Rivers.

Mr. Farrington explained that each day adds to his records. He had no doubt that numerous other cases still would be reported for the period under review—the first seven days of May.

Beware, Mr. Poacher!

MARBLE BRINGS DEATH

CHICAGO, May 9 (CP) — The marble Stanley Duda swallowed eight years ago when he was 16 years old has caused his death.

He died Tuesday night in a hospital of peritonitis following an operation to relieve a stricture of his oesophagus which had forced him to remain on a liquid diet for eight years.

He swallowed the marble during the excitement of a game of "nibs."

One Killed As R.C.M.P. Chase Rum Ship

Officers contend they were firing at kegs and bullet ricocheted, killing Tanner.

Back on Patrol

NEW YORK, May 8 (C.P.) — The stubby, gray little man carrying on his shoulders twin boards advertising passport photographs at Broad and Wall street yesterday was the "honest sandwich man," Frank Greges, returned to the task he knew best.

Ninety days ago he found $45,000 in negotiable bonds lying in a gutter, returned them to the owners, was swept up in a fanfare of publicity and landed in a straitjacket in Bellevue Hospital—his mind twisted by sudden good fortune.

He was given a job as a Wall Street runner, with a regular salary. It gave him delusions. He said he was god and could kill with a look. A passerby looked at him—and died—of heart failure and other things, doctors said. Aspell in Bellevue and he was released, his shattered nerves repaired.

He tried again to work inside but doctors agreed the 67-year-old should be out in the open air.

CHARGE MOHAWK BANDS DISCONTENT IN CANADA

BUFFALO, N.Y., May 9.—(CP)—Challenging Canadian statements that Six Nations' Indians on the Grand River reservation near Brantford, Ont. were content to remain there, Robert M. Codd, Jr., counsel for the Indians here, said today chiefs from across the border had been consulting him about getting reservation lands in New York state.

He said the Indians, who fled to Canada after the American revolution because they had sided with the British, were "greatly dissatisfied" because Canada had sought "to level off all Indian life, habit and custom."

"They were particularly disturbed," he said, "because Canada insisted on majority election of chiefs, which is against the ancient Indian custom of the clan, and the clan mother, who selected the chiefs. Why, in the election Canada called on the reservation, only some 300 out of a population something under 6,000 voted."

Says Star Gazing Fine Puzzle Game

TORONTO, May 9.—(CP).—Life may well exist on Mars, says Dr. Helen Sawyer Hogg, one of Canada's three women astronomers.

"There is oxygen there, though it is only 1-1000th of the content of our air. In their summer, which is twice as long as ours, the polar ice caps melt," Dr. Hogg stated.

"The only other planet in our solar system on which physical conditions for life existed was Venus, which had so much cloud around it was impossible to pierce it with a telescope." She thought it possible there might be other solar systems like our own.

To Dr. Helen Hogg, who has just come from the Empire's second largest observatory at Victoria, B.C., to the largest Empire telescope, the Dunlap Memorial, at Richmond Hill, Ontario, her work is a "grand puzzle-game" and finding the answers is the big kick she gets out of life, according to an interviewer in The Daily Star.

Dr. Hogg has come here with her husband astronomer, a Toronto graduate whom she met at the Harvard observatory. She is discovering "inconstant" stars in certain beautiful circular masses called "globular clusters," which contain as many as 50,000 stars, all in a group brighter than the sun although invisible to the naked eye.

48 NAVY PLANES TO MAKE MASS PACIFIC FLIGHT

Great U. S. Squadron Will Fly From Hawaii to Midway Islands.

SECRECY OBSERVED.

HONOLULU, May 9 (AP) — The greatest over-water air fleet ever assembled—a squadron of 48 United States naval patrol planes—was "on the line" early to-day for a take-off on an unprecedented flight to Midway Island.

Great Secrecy

The secrecy of war time surrounded Pearl Harbor naval base as the planes were groomed for the 1,223-mile flight which signalized an initial step by United States fighting forces in linking by air remote Pacific territories.

Pearl Harbor guards halted every possible entrant at the gates for close questioning while a navy official explained Hawaii, strategic point in the Pacific naval manoeuvres, must observe secrecy as much as the sea forces.

Preparations for the flight were begun suddenly yesterday as it was unofficially learned the big squadron, comprising about 300 men, would be absent for about a month. Observers took this to mean some of the planes might fly northward from midway to the Aleutian Islands, 1,700 miles away and northern boundary of a 5,000,000 square mile area in which the fleet is manoeuvring.

Midway Last Point West

High naval officials in Washington insisted the flight would not proceed farther west than Midway Island.

Japanese officialdom in Tokyo, meanwhile, maintained tight-lipped silence on news of the scheduled flight. Reports in Washington that some Japanese disquiet existed over the flight, which would follow a leg of the proposed trans-Pacific commercial air service, were denied in official capital quarters.

The 48 planes were gassed and tuned to fine pitch during the night for the flight, estimated to take about 12 hours.

It seemed likely that naval surface craft would be stationed along the route of the flight, to lend any assistance needed.

Among the occupations followed by railway employes recently listed in England are golf-course attendant, rat catcher, canal-lock keeper, photographer, wireless operator and basket maker.

FENELLA, May 9 (Examiner Correspondence).—The special Easter thankoffering service of the Fenella Women's Missionary Society was held in the United Church on Sunday evening, May 5, when Miss Isobel Elliott, a missionary on furlough from Japan, gave a splendid address on missionary work done in the Island of Formosa.

Miss Gertrude Knox, the president, was in charge of the service and the scripture lesson was read by Mrs. L. W. Scott. Special music was rendered by the choir which consisted of the Sunday school children. The anthem, "Oh, How We Pity Them," was sung; Miss Bernice McNaught taking the solo part. The offering was taken up by Mesdames James Knox and rank George.

Stranded Freighter Will Be Abandoned

GABARUS, N.S., May 9 (CP) — Further efforts to float the stranded British freighter Langleeridge from Bull Rock failed to-day and preparations were made to abandon the coal-laden ship. Her bottom ripped and leaking in two holds, the 2,341-ton collier continued to grind badly in a heavy swell. Little hope of salvage was held.

The Canadian Government icebreaker N. B. McLean, standing by, was ready to take aboard Captain J. R. Davies and his crew of 26.

Forced aground after she left Louisburg with 6,200 tons of coal for Montreal, the Langleeridge has been stranded since yesterday noon. She is owned in England and under charter to the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation.

Hail destroyed huts, killing five people at Moulay-Idriss, Morocco, recently.

Chance Sun Headache To Owner

WIDENER DISGUSTED.

Hialeah Sportsman Finds Heartaches and Headaches in Racing Game.

By DAMON RUNYON

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 9.—Horse racing is a game that carries as many heartaches and headaches as love.

Well, perhaps not quite as many. Make it half as many.

The writer vaguely recalls a bit of verse that ran something to the effect in this life a man can hope to have just one good woman and just one good horse.

He believes this is slightly exaggerated. He knows several men who have been fortunate enough to have two good women. At different times, of course.

Consider the feelings of a horse owner who has convinced himself he at last owns a great horse, only to discover, when he runs the horse in a stake like the Kentucky Derby all he has is a species of dachshund.

He has spent a lot of money buying and developing the horse. He has lost sleep thinking about it. He has been snapped by mosquitoes while hanging out around the barn keeping the horse company. He has annoyed his friends talking about the horse. Then he finds he owns an equine bum. It really is most distressing.

Heartache Part

An equine bum is a headache.

The heartache to the horse owner is in a horse that arrives at the scene of a stake race apparently in good condition, apparently fit to run for a king's ransom, although that is not much money nowadays, and the horse goes wrong and can not start.

The stately Joseph E. Widener, hidalgo of Hialeah, had this experience with Chance Sun, favorite in the Winter book for the Derby this year.

You may be surprised to learn a man as rich as Mr. Widener can have heartaches, or headaches either, but such is the case. Chance Sun, in a couple of trial races, ran like a porcupine, was withdrawn from the Derby, and found to be suffering from some ailment that had not been apparent during the winter.

Joseph E. Widener owns many race horses, and even a race track, but to save his neck he can not scrape up a Derby winner, the one stake the owners love to win, no matter what the trainers say about the dubious value of the Derby for breeding purposes.

Young Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Whitney's father, the late Harry Payne Whitney, won the Derby with the filly Regret and Whiskery.

Never Got to Post

A couple of years ago young Mr. Vanderbilt's champion 2-year-old filly, Top Flight, was favorite in the future betting on the Derby and never got to the post, while this year his Today went right up to the morning line as one of the choices, only to run a miserable race.

Warren Wright of the baking powder millions is not an old hand in the running game, but he has a big stable and would dearly love to win the Derby. His filly, Nellie Flag, was the favorite at post time Saturday and many regarded her as a mortal luck, yet the best she could do was fourth.

Even Colonel Bradley, who has won the Derby four times, looked around for the pyramiding on this year after Boxthorn quit. The colonel had high hopes for Boxthorn, and bet a gob on his horse. The state of Kentucky sank with the colonel.

A big racing stable like the Bradleys, the Brookmeades, the Belairs, the Greentrees and the Whitneys, may cost as high as $500 per day, perhaps in some cases even more.

This makes it a mighty expensive amusement, and the rich owners like to win the big stakes for the glory more than anything else. They can not hope to stand off the overhead unless they win very large sums and the racing money is not what it used to be.

800 WANT WORK.

Giants Increase Lead In National League

TORONTO GAINS SECOND PLACE BY SUBDUING ALBANY SENATORS BISONS AND BEARS SPLIT TWIN

Junie Barnes and Peaches Davis Are Winning Pitchers in Leafs' Triumphs.

OLIVER GETS HOMER.

Syracuse Chiefs Beat Royals 4-1 to Capture Montreal Series.

(By Associated Press.)

With the exception of Newark Bears maintaining their hold on first place, the upper half of the International League standing was sharply revised to-day.

A double-header triumph pulled off by Toronto Leafs at the expense of the low'y Albany Senators landed the Canadians in second place, Rochester defeated Baltimore to take third place, while Syracuse Chiefs took a fall out of Montreal Royals and dropped the Quebecers from second to the bottom of the First Division.

The Leafs won the first game 6-1, putting it on ice with a five-run rally in the fourth inning, aided and abetted no little by Tom Oliver's homer with the bases loaded. Junie Barnes limited the Senators to five hits, while the Leafs topped the offerings of Ray Prim for seven safeties.

3-2 Nightcap Score.

Pinch-hitter Peacock accounted for the second game. He singled after Shevlin had doubled and Handley walked in the sixth inning, giving the nightcap to the Leafs by a score of three to two.

Roy Davis, recently optioned to Toronto by Cincinnati Reds, received credit for the victory although "Steamer" Lucas pitched the final frame after Davis had been removed for a pinch-hitter.

The Bears shared a twin-bill program with Buffalo Bisons, losing the first game 6-2 and taking the second 3-0. A seven-hit pitching performance by Bill Harris and Carnegie's triple with two on in the seventh gave Buffalo the first game, while young Cecil Whittler limited them to six hits in the nightcap to register a shutout for the Bears.

Syracuse Chiefs' 4-1 triumph over Montreal Royals was a heart-breaker for big Chad Kimsey. He limited the Chiefs to five hits in losing his first game after three victories this season. Bobby Coombs, on the mound for Syracuse, allowed seven blows, but had perfect control. He did not issue a single pass.

Buster Mills' single in the eighth scored Jake Flowers to give Rochester a 4-3 victory over Baltimore Orioles.

National planning of labor in Germany is believed to be an early possibility.

Human-Equine Hurdlers Stage Novel Duel

Photographers got busy as a novel athletic contest pitting man against a horse was staged in Los Angeles and here is the result. Bob Parr, Loyola university timber-topper, and Ralet, full-blooded Arabian jumper, were the contestants in a hurdling exhibition. Both took the jumps perfectly, as shown, but the horse stepped out ahead in the straightaway to win the race.

JUBILEE RACE WOODBINE PARK

Officials Sponsoring Event to Bring Together Ted Clark and Stand Pat.

SCHEDULED FOR MAY 22.

TORONTO, May 9 (C.P.) — A special race will be run at Woodbine at the spring meet for the purpose of bringing together Dr. C. N. Mooney's Ted Clark and E. P. Seagram's Stand Pat, Palmer Wright, secretary of the Ontario Jockey Club announced yesterday.

The race will be run either Wednesday, May 22, or Saturday, May 25.

If run on the first date, it will be known as the Jubilee running of the King Edward Gold Cup (handicap), with $3,000 added to the $1,200 purse and at one mile and one-sixteenth, entries to close May 20.

If neither horse is nominated for that distance, the Toronto Cup (handicap), down for decision on the Saturday, will be increased from a $2,000 purse to $5,000 and named the Jubilee Running of the Toronto Cup at one mile and one-eighth, entries to close May 23.

Two other thoroughbreds under different interests must start besides Ted Clark and Stand Pat. If neither horse is entered in one of the races, the added money will be cancelled and the events run as originally scheduled.

Phil Farley and Jack Nash Are Among Canada's Overseas Golfers.

TORONTO, May 9 (C.P.)—Ontario's two most promising young golfers, Phil Farley of Toronto and Jack Nash of London, may be the ones to really stir things up when the Royal Canadian Golf Association's nine-man team invades the British amateur this month. They're young and experienced.

Only at the last minute, a few hours before the team sailed, was Nash added to the team. That made four players from Ontario, Sandy Somerville of London and Fred Hoblitzel of Toronto being the others, but Nash's record was so nearly as good as that of Farley that the golfing fraternity cheered his selection.

Nash has been to England before. He accompanied Somerville, then United States amateur champion, in 1933 and he went just as far in the British event as Sandy did. Both won their first four matches and then went out. It was rare experience for young Jack.

In addition he captured the prized St. George's Vase at Sandwich during the trip defeating some of the best amateurs in England as warm-up for the main event. A former Ontario amateur title-holder, Nash is regarded as one of the most consistent shotmakers in the country.

The 23-year-old Farley, who opened his competitive career 'only six years ago, has an even better record in home tournaments. He learned to play golf under Tommy Cairns, professional at Cedarbrook club here. When he started to shoot with the leading players he immediately became a sensation.

He won the Ontario junior championship in 1930 and the following year captured the Ontario amajeur for the first time. He repeated in 1934. He turned in the low score among all amateurs in the 1931 Canadian open and repeated this performance last summer.

Farley has made only one attempt at the United States amateur crown and failed to get far in match play. But in the regional qualifying tests last year he scored 140 for the 36-hole medal test—the lowest turned in by any qualifier in Canada or the United States.

NATIONAL CLUBS "RIDING" BALL

Home Runs Skyrocketing in Record Numbers Over Major League Fence.

CIRCUITS FOLLOW RUTH.

CHICAGO, May 9. (AP).—Babe Ruth, mighty man who started the home run craze in baseball, seems to carry the fever with him wherever he lights.

The Babe's in the National League now and home runs are skyrocketing in record numbers over te National League fences.

Led by New York Giants, who to-day held a record of one or more home runs in 14 consecutive games, the National League clubs are riding the ball so hard and far they are 2 games and two home runs ahead of their home run production at this time a year ago. More than that, they are ahead of their American League circuit clout producers, who beat them, 688 to 656, in the same art lase year.

A year ago to-day the National Leaguers had competed in a grand total of 150 games. And had 93 home runs to their credit as against 80 for the American Leaguers in 136 contests. To-day, the senior circuit teams, playing in only 132 games, have smashed out 95 homers as compared with 78 in 128 American League games. Ruth hasn't helped much to swell the National League total, contributing but two in 12 games.

The Giants, leading both leagues with 19 homers—eight of them by Mel Ott—shattered their own record for hitting four base blows in successive games. Their former mark was 11, established three years ago. The two Philadelphia clubs and the Chicago White Sox, a team suddenly gone loco, are next in line with 16 homers each.

President Ford Frick of the National League and President Will Harridge of the American insists there has been no change toward a livelier ball, the same sphere being used in both leagues. So, a romantic hunch would be that homers follow the Babe like money follows money.

PARMELEE AND CASTLEMAN HURL NEW YORKERS TO WIN TRIUMPH OVER THIRD PLACE CHICAGO CUBS

Joe Moore's Fifth Homer and Mel Ott's Eighth Are Deciding Blows.

DODGERS BEAT CARDS.

Yankees Unable to Stop White Sox Who Cop 7 to 4 American Loop Victory.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

One of the few surprises connected with the Giants' early rise to the top of the National League standing is that apparently no one expected them to do anything else but climb. Admitted on all sides to be the best balanced club in the senior circuit and to have the best four-man pitching staff, the Giants have begun to look tougher than ever now that their second string moundsmen have begun to come through.

Tackling the first doubleheader of the 1935 season yesterday, the Giants not only got some great pitching from Roy Parmelee, who hasn't lost to Chicago in two years, but the "Sophomore" right hander, Clydell Castleman, who spent most of last season with Montreal, did almost as well. As a result the Giants won two games, 3-1 and 6-2, shoved the Cubs down into third place and held a two-game margin over Brooklyn Dodgers.

Grants Three Hits

Parmelee granted only three hits, lost a shutout through Kiki Cuyler's homer and handed Lon Warneke his first defeat of the season as Joe Moore provided the winning margin in the third with his fifth homer of the season. Castleman came through with a five-hit game and Mel Ott belted his eighth circuit blow of the year with two aboard to start the Giants off in front.

The Dodgers were practically shoved into second place when they took a 12-inning 3-2 decision from the Cardinals after two runs had been forced in. Paul Dean staged a big "blow-up" after walking Danny Taylor in the third and blew himself out of the game at the behest of Umpire Dolly Stark. Ed Heusser forced in another and finally Dan Taylor and Joe Stripp nicked Bill Hallahan for a pair of doubles and the odd run. Van Mungo went the full route, giving nine hits and fanning 11.

Down in the second division the Reds and Phillies divided a double slugfest, Cincinnati took the opener 15-4 as Ernie Lombardi equalled a major league record by hitting four doubles. He got them off four different pitchers on successive times at bat.

The Phils rallied to take the afternoone 5-4. The Braves broke a hitting drought by belting out a 12-3 decision over Pittsburgh.

10th Straight Triumph

Maintaining their unbeaten record in the home park, the White Sox came from behind to beat the Yankees 7-4 after Sad Sam Jones had spotted the enemy three early homers by Selkirk, Lazzeri and Dickey. It was Chicago's 10th straight triumph at home and the Hose record of not allowing a rival pitcher to finish a game on their grounds continued as Johnny Broaca went out in the fourth.

Monte Pearson pitched the second-place Indians to a 2-0 victory over the Red Sox and Lefty Grove, granting only four hits. The champion Tigers pushed the Athletics hard before a ninth inning rally gave Philadelphia a 7-6 decision. Washington and St. Louis slugged it out all the way, the Senators finally winning 10-9 when bunched hits proved more effective than Sam West's two circuit swats.

Relief Hurling By McGregor Gives Anglicans Close Victory.

In a heavy hitting Southend Softball League game last night, All Saints defeated Maple Leafs, 19 to 17. Nice relief hurling by McGregor gave All Saints the close win. Both sides kicked in with costly misplays but smacked four pitchers around. G. Seabrooke started for All Saints' but retired before a barrage of hits and 11 runs in the third in favor of McGregor, who held the powerful Leafs to eight hits and as many runs the rest of the way. Wembly Approved For Titular Bout

LONDON, May 9 (AP)—The Wembley Board of Control last night approved the use of the giant Wembley Stadium for the proposed heavyweight boxing championship bout between Max Baer and Max Schmeling, Aug. 7. The Stadium, scene of the recent English Cup Tie, has a capacity of 100,000.

It is understood in local sporting circles that Walter Rothenburg, the German promoter, has completed arrangements for the bout, and has guaranteed Baer, the current world champion, $300,000.

All Saints' Bantams Gain 20-10 Victory

All Saints' Bantams had too much punch for a young Knox crew and hammered two pitchers, Smythe and Crowe, hard to gain a 20-10 victory in a Church Softball eLague game last evening. Ackford kept Knox batters in check. Crowe, Gibbons, Ackford, B. Lacey and Doughty good defenhit effectively with Tillcock, A. Lackey, Roberts and Milburn all sively, Knox pulled a triple-play in the fourth when, with three men on base—seemingly rooted to their positions—the batter grounded out to the pitcher with outs then being made at home and second. All the margins were close, however and the Canadians, who have been on this side only a few days and lack practice, showed good form. In the first play on Saturday they lost to a Royal St. George's Club team by a 5-3 with two halved.

Name is Little, but Game is Great American Star Seeks British Golf Laurels.

By BILL BRAUCHER
(Central Press Canadian Sports Writer).

It is impossible to play in the British and United States open championships this year. Dates prevent. Otherwise Lawson Little, stawart son of Stanford university, would have had the best chance of repeating Bobby Jones' clean sweep of four titles since Jones himself accomplished the feat in 1932 and retired.

As it is, the big San Franciscan must be regarded as a possible winner of three great titles, the British and United States amateur championships and the British open.

How He Has Grown!

Without America fully realizing it, Little has become one of the greatest golfers in the world. Not too much stress was placed on the fact that he won the two big amateur titles last year, at Prestwick and Brookline. It was written down for the most part as the feat of a lucky youngster who suddenly became very warm.

But after a quiet winter at Stanford, Little has emerged with a game sounder than his 1934 brand. He is in England now, practising for the first big test, the amateur, May 20, over the Royal Lytham St. Anne's course in Lancashire.

Before the recent masters' tournament at Augusta, Little handed his game to Tommy Armour, shotmaker he most admires, and asked him to find the flaw in it. Armour, who can be very critical of faults, played with the young man over the Jones' course, and after two practice rounds, told him not to alter his style in a single particular. The game Little has been playing this spring is just about perfect, which is a whole lot to say about a human being occupied in so fitful a contest as golf.

The Stanford slasher didn't come close to winning at Augusta, of course, but he did shoot 288 for the 72 holes, even par, which needs no crier to be known as marvellous medal play golf. He was low amateur in the event, and Armour doesn't hesitate to call him the best amateur in the world.

Before leaving for England, Little shot a few rounds at Arcois, New York, a course where stars have stumbled frequently. He turned in a series of glowing 35's, one under par.

It Sounds Easy

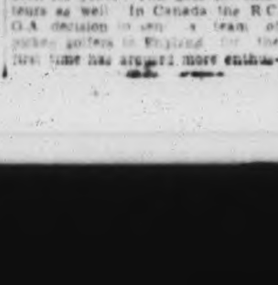
What is his game like? Breaking it down, just this: He is longer than most golfers off the tee, when he picks up irons he shows the style of Armour from whom he learned much last year, and he has steady skill and touch on or near the greens.

He has lost much of the carelessness that colored his play a few years ago, when as a boy he made his bow in national golf. He was something of a Babe Ruth in those days, pausing between morning and afternoon rounds for a bevy of beefsteaks and going out on the course and translating those steaks into terrific drives.

Now he has steadied. When he takes aim across the Lancashire meadows and later at Muirfield, in the British open, all Albion is going to feel the assault of the new siege gun of golf.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!

By ALEX. J. MORRISON



Number 605

Looking over the plans throughout the continent for the golf season now getting under way, I find a most encouraging outlook for a summer of fine golf. Checking in at the office of the American golfer recently, I found Editors Grantland Rice and Innis Brown in a heated discussion of players who participated in the Masters' tournament at Atlanta this year.

They were talking about Sarazen's remarkable performance and Bobby Jones' let-down. Bob has allowed himself to become too soft for tournament play. Sarazen trains all the time like a prize fighter with road work and all the exercises.

The condition of the men who get out in front has to be good at all times, something worth remembering now that the army of club-swingers again taking to the links is increasing each day. All in all, the interest among players is especially high. More so than it has been for years. This goes for amateurs as well. In Canada the R.C.G.A. decision to send a team of golfers to England for the first time has aroused more enthusiasm than anything of recent years. The fillip that golfing will get this year promises one of the best seasons the game has ever known.

Lancashire's Hopes Are Rudely Shattered

LONDON, May 9 (C.P. Cable).—Lancashire's hopes of winning the county cricket championship for the second year in succession were given an early setback to-day when the team was defeated by Middlesex by five wickets.

Playing at Lord's the champion county was dismissed for 163 and 78 the home side replying with 215 and 61 for five wickets. Robins captured five Lancashire wickets for only 16 runs in to-day's play while in the Middlesex second innings Peebles obtained 5 for 31.

A big swimming meet is planned for the "Y" pool by the Y.M.C.A. here Saturday evening, May 18th. Among the competing aquatic teams will be Kingston, Belleville, Orillia, Oshawa and Peterborough. It promises to be quite a splash with girls, boys and men taking part in the various swimming and diving events. Some of our "Y" watermen went down to Belleville last month and did okay in a meet there, but this will be on a larger scale. Rules governing it are published in today's paper.

Kawartha Tennis League holds its annual meeting in the Y.M.C.A. at eight bells tomorrow (Friday) eve. It's open to any one interested. This is a mighty successfull tennis circuit, getting bigger and better each year. It embraces the city and district with two sections operating. The Peterborough Tennis Club has reorganized for the season and expects to enter two or three teams in the league again, strong entries at that. The Kawartha Club and the Quaker Oats Club will be back along with the several out-of-town ones most likely. Entry of teams, plans for the season and election of officers are the main matters for the Friday session.

An O.A.S.A. bulletin yesterday said: "Steps to further the proposal submitted to the recent annual meeting of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association in connection with establishing of a registration bureau for all softball players in the province have been taken by President E. B. Smith of Hamilton with appointment of a committee to give the matter full consideration. The suggestion brought before the annual gathering in Peterborough was to have the association derive revenue from registration fees charged players instead of sharing th softball playoff games and the matter was left to the 1935 executive for action. Secretary Verne McIlwraith today announced the committee appointed by the president as follows: W. L. Alguire, St. Catharines, chairman; P. H. Randall, Toronto; V. Collett, Toronto H. H. Bowman, Owen Sound; and W. J. Innes, Paris. The committee will go into the proposal immediately and will submit suggestions to the sub-committee of the provincial body."

Bud Murray, last year's second-sacker for the Petes, was in town Monday. Advising one of the Petes' newcomers, the talkative Bud said: 'All you've got to do in baseball to be a success in Peterborough is keep your mouth shut!" It often helps, at that.

We have been informed on fairly reliable authority that Ken Colling of Belleville will not be umpiring in the C.O.B.L. this summer. The fairly reliable authority is Mister Colling himself. Although he has been doing his guessing in senior ball for quite a few years, Colling is not as old as he looks and his eyesight and judgement should not be impaired too much. Furthermore, he was a guy who always called 'em as he saw 'em—and generally saw 'em right—and made his decisions stick. Although, this hurts us more than it does you, we must admit he was a pretty good umpire, and one with some color—which is equally important. Aside from Kingston, he was generally liked as an umps and we hope he changes his mind. We find in this life you can get used to anything, even an umpire. And it is sort of upsetting when an old landmark disappears.

Knotty Lee put his seniors through another stiff workout in Riverside Park last eve before quite a few railbirds. Knotty seems to have his battery problem pretty well under control and should have no trouble with his outfield. The infield isn't definite yet but he hopes to have it lined up okay by the first of next week. No more exhibition games are likely as the team will be pointing for the opener here May 24th against Oshawa. Meantime, the Brewers of Oshawa, Radiomen of Belleville and Ponies of Kingston are cashing in on the belated mild weather and working out hard these nights. Since their twin victory over Toronto Valleyviews here on the holiday, the Johnson Motors have the other squads worried.

Church Softball League is going to town these twilights and running off a batch of games in their heavy schedule. Four were played last eve. Mark St. Seniors took a 12-7 nod over Murray St.; St. John's cuffed Trinity Juniors around to the tune of 33 to 12; it was 5-2 for Mark St. Juveniles over Murray St.; and Knox Bantams bowed to All Saints, 20 to 10. Lots of hits, runs and errors. Games tonight are: Knox Seniors vs. George St. in the Oval; All Saints Juniors vs. St. James at King Edward; St. James Juveniles vs. Knox at Queen Mary; and Park St. vs. Knox Bantams at Queen Mary.

Some of our lacrossers resent the implied threat—as they see it—of the O.A.L.A. that, since the Tri-County League won't affiliate this year with the Ontario Association, local players playing now for Lindsay or Millbrook won't be permitted to go with Peterborough into O.A.L.A. playdowns this fall. They figure the O.A.L.A. is waving a club over their noggins. Of course, this matter won't be known until the Ontario executive gives its decision. If the decision is against local players, they figure they might as well ask for their affiliation fee back and forget the O.A.L.A. After all, we have a good loop up this way, so why worry about the playdowns? Meantime, efforts are being made to have a district loop formed down around Belleville to absorb the Pyjama Club there and stop 'em hollering.

EXTRA PUNCH WINS MARK ST. SENIORS

Murray Protests Game Claiming Winners Ineligible Players.

In a classy senior Church Softball League game last night, Mark Street pulled out a 12-7 verdict over Murray Street, having a little more punch with men on bases. Palmer made a good mound debut with Mel Hunter, Delahaye and Curry doing most damage to his deliveries, Hunter was holding down his rivals with Watkins and A. Mann being the Baptist hitters. Murray protested the game, claiming Mark Street used Curry and Delahaye, last year's City League players. The teams:

Murray Street—Watkins, c; Palmer, p; Clarke, 1b; Baptie, 2b; A. Mann, ss; Wills, 3b; J. Mann, lf; Young, cf; Foster, rf.

Umpires: G. Broadley and W. Masters.

Form Ball League For Workless Men

MANCHESTER, England, May 9.—(CP)—Baseball for the unemployed is at present engaging the attention of the Manchester and Salford people and 12 teams of baseball players from the unemployed of these two centres is being organized preparatory to the season's play.

The National Baseball Council is sending a dozen baseball outfits to the Lord Mayor and has promised to provide instructors who will teach the men how to play the game according to the American code. A successful league for baseball played by unemployed was run in Liverpool last year. It is proposed to raise 10 teams in Manchester and two in Salford.

Mark St. Juveniles Win Pitching Duel

Mark Street Juveniles took a 5-2 win over Murray Street last night in the smartest Church League softball game so far. It was a hurling duel between Hopcroft and McGregor 'till the last inning when the latter weakened. In the last of the seventh with the bases loaded, Hopcroft won his own game with a triple. The Baptists claimed the liner down third was foul but the umpire ruled it fair. Hopcroft fanned eight with Robson the only one to get on base twice for Murray Street. Easson hit well for the winners. The teams:

Murray Street — Mortimer, 1b; Gillespie, cf; McGregor, p; Robson, c; Scott, ss; Pammett, 3b; Campbell, 2b; Duncan, lf; Crary, rf.

NEUGASS PEACOCK

RACE TRACKS LEVY WILL NOT INCREASE

Per Diem Tax to Stay at Old Level This Year, Hepburn Says.

TORONTO, May 9.—Despite its need for additional revenue, the Hepburn Government will not immediately increase its present per diem tax on race tracks operations.

The tax, Premier Hepburn stated last night, is to remain at the nominal figure of $1 per day for the Spring meets. It may however, be added, be increased to revenue-producing proportions for the Fall meets if in the opinion of the Government, the tracks have by that time improved their financial positions sufficiently to warrant the increase.

The whole question of this per diem tax has been under consideration by Chester S. Walters, controller of finances, and the treasury, for several weeks. At yesterday's cabinet council it was definitely decided it is understood, to withhold action toward a tax jump.

"We want all the tracks to have a chance to operate," said Mr. Hepburn afterwards. "That is the reason we are not increasing the per diem levy. The more they operate the more chance we have to make money through our amusement tax and our levy on wagering."

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

By McDONALD FEADER

PICTURE

(Rec from Yesterday)

CHAPTER 21

The girl was the first to move. Doug coughed.

"Sorry to interrupt this passionate love scene, Don Juan, but here's the reply from Dalstrom." He handed the wire to Stewart. As he turned he caught the girl under the chin. "You little passion flower, didn't I tell you to stop loving in public? Don't you realize I'm still a day and a night from home?"

"Listen, gypsy," Blackmire was all business now, "there will be a man to meet you in the station. He will ask you what you came to New York for and you are to tell him. He's planted a fellow there acting as a newsboy who will start to play the harmonica for you and you will dance there in the station. Dalstrom will take care of the rest. It's a peach of a gag. If you see me or Bill or Doug you are not to speak. Pretend not to know us, understand? It would not do to let on that we are arranging this, see? Under no circumstances are you to mention my name or recognize me if you see me. Dalstrom will take care of you. Do everything that he says. I'm depending on you, gypsy girl, to carry this out with us. Remember that I'm giving you this chance to dance—"

"It is a serious business, this dancing?"

"Yes."

"I have not found it so. It is like the wind in the mountains that blows and the leaves on the trees dance and no one asks why. It is like the music that plays in the brooks—" Her voice grew wistful. "I used to dance for him beside the brook. It always seemed that he understood my dream."

"The man you were going to marry?"

"No, this other one. I wonder if he will keep on painting me. I wonder if he will miss me—" The Dummy—kiss and forgive.

"You're in love with this man!"

"No—"

"Listen, gypsy, I'm not doing all this just to have you get the idea one of these bright days that you'll pull out and go back to the gypsy camp. You know you can't do that, don't you?"

"Yes. I could not go back. My papa would beat me. Marcu would put his strong fingers about my throat and kill me—I think." She looked full at him. "I tell you this, white man, I shall not turn back until the dream within me has given me all that I ask of it. I shall be the greatest dancer New York has ever known and all the people of all the lands shall come and see me and bring gifts in their arms. Do you believe me?"

"I'd believe anything you told me," Stewart said after a moment of silence. "But, gypsy girl, you must promise me one thing. Promise me that if you are too lonesome for the trees and the brooks and for your gypsy man that you will come to me and not go running off."

"I am lonesome already—" she said.

For a while they looked at each other, then she began to sing. The words were in Romany and he did not understand that it was an old gypsy love song she sang to him. As she sang her eyes left his and she gazed out the window and the song died in her throat. The window pane, like a mirror, pictured a dancing girl. She watched this girl and a smile played on her lips. Now slowly she began to sing again and it was no longer a love song but a gypsy song of conquest and her voice was full and strong. The words were in Romany and it was good he could not understand.

New York.

Noise. . . . Confusion. . . . Hurry. . . . Crowding.

The first few days had passed like a strange nightmare to the girl, yet through the bewildering newness of it all she had kept her gypsy arrogance, her swagger that said, what is this to me? Only for a moment in the station had her confidence left her when she stood alone and saw Stewart leave and the publicity man had not yet come. Suspicion swept over her that this was his way of getting rid of her, that she would never see him again, that no other man would come. It was then that a cab driver made his offer of "Taxi?" and not understanding, she nodded. The driver reached out to take her bundle of high heeled slippers wrapped in the shawl. The gypsy thought she was being robbed and began to scream at the top of her voice. In the midst of the crowd that gathered from the uproar, Dalstrom found her. At first she didn't catch on to his questions, then she understood.

She danced in the station and pedestrian traffic was blocked. The dance was abruptly ended when a policeman made an appearance and told her to move on. Consuelo had no love for any man in uniform, and especially not a policeman and told him so in most uncomplimentary terms.

From then on things began to happen. Whether or not it had been part of Dalstrom's plan is doubtful, but it reached the front pages all right. At any rate he made no move to pay her fine for disturbing the peace, blocking traffic, kicking, scratching and otherwise abusing an officer of the law. And Consuelo spent the night behind the bars—a mad gypsy, if ever there was one.

Dalstrom in a fever of haste got Goldberg and Blackmire together and they cooked up another gag. It was arranged that the gypsy was to dance for Goldberg and if her dancing was good enough he would not only pay her fine, but give her a job and be responsible for her.

Front page again. Pictures of the fascinating looking gypsy girl. Pictures of Goldberg handing her a contract. Interviews of where the girl had come from, her life and the life of the camp. Poses of her looking up at the tall buildings. Stories of what she thought of the big hotel where Goldberg had domiciled her. All in all a million dollars' worth of publicity, due to the clever brains of Dalstrom or to the way the thing had broken.

Now came the announcement that she would appear in the Follies. Tickets went like wildfire. The gypsy had stirred the imagination of blase New York and it was ready to receive her with open arms if she lived up to the things which were said about her in the papers.

Consuelo was breathless with all this. If she so much as left the suite of rooms people crowded after her. Like a shadow at her elbow Dalstrom followed her. He kept her from dancing in the hotel lobby or on the streets and refused to let her tell fortunes. He procured a Swedish woman as a maid. The Swedish woman had been a masseuse. She stood almost six feet in her stockings. She towered like a mountain over the gypsy. She had shoulders like a man. She found the girl dangling her feet in the bath tub and splashing water.

She explained in hers slow way that a bath tub was for other purposes. Consuelo didn't understand. She had never seen one before. A few minutes later she was stripped of her clothing and Ann was scrubbing her as she had never been scrubbed before, and Consuelo was sitting like a lamb and letting big Ann scrub her.

When Ann had finished she washed the long raven hair and the water was black with dirt and Consuelo was screaming with rage because the water would spoil her hair. But when it was dried and brushed she stood before the mirror admiring herself and saw that Ann was right. Her hair shone like rippling black satin, no longer dusty velvet.

Gypsy clothes were sent up to her. Skirts of lovelier silk than she had ever dreamed of, blouses and scarves, lingerie and pajamas and negligees and it was like fairyland to the girl. Dalstrom let her go to some of the shops with him and pictures were taken of her buying perfumes and jewelry and the papers printed all they could get about her.

Now almost for the first time the girl was alone. She was standing at the window looking down 30 stories onto the street that was a black line below her. As she watched, lights began to turn on and here and there the tiny glows competed against the waning light of day.

Away down the street she could just make out the lights that Dalstrom had told her was the theater where she would dance. She knew that there were pictures of her in front. As yet she had not been allowed to stop and look and the only glimpses she had had were when the taxi slowed down in traffic. Several mornings she had been taken up the alley into the back of the theater.

Edmonton Jobless Picket City Cafes

EDMONTON, May 8— (CP)— Relief strikers, members of the single unemployed protective association, to-day were directing their attention toward cafes and restaurants where it was alleged female employees were not being paid minimum wages.

Three cafes closed last night and two others were without customers several hours because of picketing by relief recipients who went on strike a week ago demanding increased allowances from the city.

Fifteen cafe owners were reported to have signed agreements with employees to pay minimum wages as a result of the picketing activities.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, May 10

The planetary configurations for this day indicate much liveliness and adventure in the promoting of what may be considered "big business" through the co-operation and friendly aid of those in place of power and prestige. All may not be plain sailing and also there is some hint to resort to law unless precaution is taken in perplexing places.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of much liveliness and possible anxieties in connection with important projects of others, or in the promotion of cherished personal ambitions. There may be some difficulties in employment or in the raising of sufficient funds, but in the long run those in power and standing may give friendly ear to ambitious and meritorious projects.

A child born on this day will be talented, ambitious and determined to make a place for itself "in the sun" against some difficulties.

Because the steel workers of Corby, England, are too busy to ring the church bells, a team of Girl Guides are being trained by the Rev. A. Brooke Westcott to do so.

YOUNG PEOPLE HEAR ADDRESS

"To Bagdad With the British" Subject of Rv. J. R. Trumpour's Talk.

AT MILLBROOK.

MILLBROOK, May 9 (Examiner Correspondence).—"To Bagdad With the British" was the theme of a fascinating story unfolded by Rev. J. R. Trumpour of Cavan, at the closing meeting of the Young People's Society of Grace Presbyterian Church on Friday evening, the speaker narrating his personal experiences when he enlisted, as one of seven young, unmarried men from Victoria University, Toronto, in the Army Y.M.C.A. for service in Mesopotamia, India, and British East Africa.

Owing to the submarine scare in 1917 their passage was booked across Canada to Vancouver, where they boarded the Empress of Asia, sailing by the northerly Pacific route to Japan, landing at Yokohoma, and spending from ten to twelve p.m. riding about the city in jinrikshas. A number of articles were shown, such as boxes of lovely lacquer work, with cleverly concealed locks, a parasol that shielded the owner from the hot sun while shopping, and pictures of the various "ports of call" in the Island Empire, which Mr. Trumpour had brought home with him for souvenirs, making the story more vivid to the listeners.

At Shanghai the largest Y.M.C.A. in the world was visited, and also the native section with its narrow streets, and rows of beggars with gaping sores, and their continual cry of "Sahib, baksheesh" (Master, give us a gift). Here passage was taken on a French mail ship, which had on board a son of Count Tolstoi, a fine educated gentleman with whom the speaker had enjoyed many pleasant conversations and who was engaged in writing a treatise on "Peace." There were also 1,600 Chinese coolies on this vessel, packed in like sardines, exuding the offensive body odor always evident when a crowd of Easterners of that class are herded together, and affording much interest in watching them at their twice-a-day meal of pans of rice."

At Singapore the water-buffalo used in planting the rice fields were an object of special interest, and here Mr. Trumpour had an unexpected bath, slipping in from the narrow walk along which he had gone to take a snap of a boy riding on the back of the buffalo; the picture was taken all right and the "camera man" had turned to retrace his steps when the lad called; the sudden right-about to see what was matter ending in the plunge into the water. And after all it was only the usual cry ::Sahib, baksheesh" that the boy was making. "I could not help noticing the difference between the Chinese of Singapore and of French Indo-China; the former have a happier bearing and evidence a spirit of freedom, and not one of surveillance; the result of Britain's policy of teaching the people over which she has a mandate to govern themselves, and not trying to keep them wholly repressed."

Peculiar interest was attached to the speaker's visit to the ruins of the Towel of Babel, the base of which is still to be seen, "and is square instead of round, as I had always thought of it." Apparently it was to have been five tiers high, each square a little smaller than the preceding one, and of brick put together with a kind of hard pitch instead of mortar. The lower steps of the walk which was to have ascended by degrees to the top of the tower—600 feet—are still there, and the original design made this walk so broad horses and chariots might pass each other and turn round upon it. Another point visited was the "Mound of Babel" underneath which the burning fiery furnace into which the three Hebrew children were cast is said to have been; it was a fortress and possessed a look-out, and from this is to be seen a pit in the sandy deposit where once Babylon flourished, and deep in its centre is a green carpet, tradition asserting that this was the den where the royal lions were kept, among which Daniel was thrown.

In Bagdad the speaker made a stay of considerable length: "It rains from Christmas to Easter, and in the dry season it is so hot the inhabitants sleep on the roofs of the houses, and in the early morning if your eyesight is as all good, you may see two hundred thousand people dressing." The way home through Mesopotamia, Suez, the Mediterranean, landing at Marseilles, visiting Paris, London, and finally sailing from Liverpool, and being held up for four days by dense fog and icebergs on the Grand Banks of New Foundland, until after three months final arrival was at Belleville, Ont.

The meeting was the closing one of the Y.P.S. of Grace Church for the season; the president, F. J. Depell, giving a talk on "Mother's Day," and Dick Williams reading, "Life's Tapestry." Rev. Mr. Trumpour was accorded warm applause for his interesting travelogue.

6675—Histories

WASHINGTON, May 8 (C.P.)—Lured by the hope of a job somewhere in the top organizations that will run the United States four billion dollar works program, 6,675 persons had filled out a blue "personal history statement" yesterday.

Most of the applicants were "white collar" workers. They jammed a store room rented for the purpose of receiving applications after a horde of job hunters paralyzed activity in offices of the National Emergency Council. About one third of the job hunters have a letter from a Congressman or "the Democratic chairman back home."

When Drum Fell It Was Tragedy

LONDON, May 9.—(CP).—The hoary story about the soldier who dropped his rifle had its counterpart in fact when the First Battalion of the Grenadiers set out for Windsor Castle the other day for the changing of the Guard.

The drummer dropped his drum. The strap supporting the drum had broken, letting it fall into the road. He quickly retrieved the drum, but he could not run back to recover the strap. A spectator saw his predicament, ran into the road, picked up the strap and buckle, and returned it to the embarrassed but thankful drummer.

"Such accidents rank, of course, among the major human catastrophes," declares the News-Chronicle. "The Guardsman who dropped his rifle, the best man who forgot his ring, and the caddie who sneezed as the champion putted: all these are situations of equal poignancy and equally irrecoverable. To surpass them Shakespeare would have had to make the King of Denmark's ghost drop his hemet while addressing Hamlet; and even then it is doubtful whether the ghost would have felt his position as keenly as the tragic drummer who dropped his drum."

No More Piles

Doctor's Prescription Does the Work.

Few Pile sufferers know that the cause of Piles is internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

This is the scientific truth about Piles—the real reason why salves and suppositories so often may not give lasting relief and why cutting sometimes removes the pile tumor but leaves its exciting cause which may create a recurrence.

Your itching, bleeding or protruding Piles will only go when you actually remove the cause. For this an internal medicine should be used. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, sold by good druggists everywhere, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, and acts to relieve congestion.

So isn't it better, when salves fail and before considering operation, to try this internal remedy when Mc-Dermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Store invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with money-back if not joyfully satisfied with the help one bottle gives.

Have You, The "Can't Afford It" Habit?

THE use of that phrase does not suggest the inability to buy so much as the desire to practice rigid economy - - - to save - - - to deny yourself needed and necessary commodities.

But Man, oh Man, and you, too, Madam, how better and more effectively can you practice economy and thrift than to buy when prices are at their lowest ebb in years? How more certainly can you insure economy than to replace worn or out-of-date furniture than when new is selling for one-third of what it sold for 15 years ago? Or to stock up on food products when they are 40% less than at any time since the war? Or clothing when $53 to-day will buy you what you paid $100 for in 1912?

What you really cannot afford to do is not buy because you cannot afford to miss to-day's low levels....prices that are an actual boon to reduced incomes....to the practice of sensible, far-sighted economy.

Alywnne Thompson Committed for Trial

CHARGE TORONTO MAN MURDERED HIS WIFE VIOLA

No Date For Hearing Set as Accused Appears in Queen City Court.

CRIME LAST JULY.

Crown Claims Evidence Will Show Accused Out With Spouse Fatal Night.

TORONTO, May 10 (C. P.). — Alwynne Edward Thompson to-day was committed for trial by Magistrate William Keith on a charge of murdering his wife, Viola, last July. Evidence presented at the preliminary hearing to-day was substantially the same as brought forward at the inquest. No date was set for the trial.

Thompson was sentenced to six months' imprisonment on a charge of perjury arising from his efforts to obtain a marriage license the day after his wife's body was found in a clump of bushes on the outskirts of the city and was released a week ago where he was re-arrested on a charge of murder.

Crown Attorney C. Frank Moore said evidence will show Thompson and his wife went out the night of July 16 last after an argument between them, and that later that night after Thompson came home his sister saw him in his bedroom, lying fully clothed on his bed. Next morning Thompson woke his sister at 10 a.m. and said his wife had not returned, the Crown added.

That day, the Crown said, evidence will show Thompson went to the City Hall and met a woman called Carrie. Application was made for a marriage license between Alwynene Edward Thompson and Alice H. Carrie. "That night he spent with Miss Carrie, evidence will show," the Crown said.

Finally, Mr. Moore said evidence indicated Thompson pawned a wedding ring alleged to belong to the deceased woman.

Denies Intent to Defraud—Offers Redemption—Lineage Runs Back to Conquests.

LONDON, May 10. —(AP)— The Duke of Manchester today was found guilty in the Old Bailey of obtaining money under false pretences and sentenced to nine months imprisonment.

The 39-year-old peer, who earlier testified his financial road had been rocky during recent years, showed no emotion as sentence was pronounced.

His attorney indicated an appeal would be fyled immediately. The specific charge was that the duke, whose lineage goes back to the conquests, received loans totalling approximately $3,250 on jewelry belonging to the estate of his late mother but allowed him for use by his wife. He had represented the jewelry to be his own property, the prosecution charged.

PLOT IS BARED TO SECURE CASH FORGED CHEQUE

Threat of Force to Compel E. A. Peck, K.C., M.P., to O.K. Cheque Alleged.

BUCK WINCH IN COURT.

Is Charged With Unlawfully Possessing an Automatic Pistol.

An alleged plot to pass a $5,000.00 forged cheque bearing the signature of Edward A. Peck, K. C., Member of the House of Commons, and to use force, if necessary, to compel Mr. Peck to approve the cheque at the bank, was related in Magistrate's Court here yesterday afternoon.

Ozias de Laplante, barrister, testifying at the preliminary hearing of a charge against Reginald "Buck" Winch of unlawfully possessing an automatic pistol, told the court of the idea the accused had outlined to him last March.

After Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., ruled that the witness must proceed with his testimony, notwithstanding the fact that the accused had come to Mr. Laplante for advice, the lawyer told of the conversation between himself and Winch one night in March.

Hearing Postponed

Completion of the preliminary hearing was deferred until Tuesday next, when the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K. C., counsel for the accused demanded production of a note mentioned in the course of Mr. Laplante's evidence and now stated by the Crown to be in possession of Toronto City Police.

In opening his examination of the witness de Laplante, who was called to the witness box under subpoena, the Crown Attorney asked: "Did the accused say anything to you that would constitute a breach of the peace?"

"No. He said he wanted to get some money or raise some money from Mr. Peck."

"Did he tell you how the money was to be raised?"

"It is a question of privilege", witness appealed. He came to me asking for advice".

The magistrate ruled that witness must proceed with his testimony, and Mr. de Laplante related that the accused had come to his house on Crescent street one night late in March. He said he had just come

OTTAWA FROWNS ON YOUTH LABOR CAMP PROPOSAL

Defense Officials Claim Simpson President's Idea Would Cause Furore.

WANT NO MILITARY TINGE.

OTTAWA, May 10.—(CP).—Government officials, labor and national defence fowned to-day on a suggestion for establishment in Canada of a youth re-establishment corps for unemployed between 17 and 20 years, organized along military lines and divided into companies and brigades, proposed by C. L. Burton, president of the Robert Simpson Company, in a speech yesterday in Regina. Members of the corps would wear uniforms and be fed and housed in camps.

"We have sedulously avoided putting relief camps under military discipline, and if we wer to engage in any such military control as proposed it would cause a furore," Labor and Defnece Department officials concurred.

While there were a few people who held the view relief camps lacked the discipline which would be afforded by military control, the great block of public opinion was opposed to setting up a regime of military discipline in these camps, it was stated.

Because of the fact relief camps had been placed under the operation of the Department of National Defence, an erroneous impression had arisen in some quarters they were in the same class as military camps. Relief camps were operated on a civilian basis.

The second proposal of Mr. Burton for establishment of a trans-Canada air service brought from air

FOUND ON POULTRY FARM.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., May 10. — (AP)— Federal authorities announced today the seizure of 2,500 cases of illicit alcohol on a poultry farm in adjacent Fairhaven and expressed belief the haul was part of the cargo which they said was landed last week by the seized British Motorship Accuracy out of Yarmouth, N. CROWLANDERS RESUME PICKET LINES QUIETLY

Thirty Police Go on Duty But Leave As No Sign of Trouble Develops.

Strike Breaker Sent Home.

Walkout Follows Refusal of Hepburn's Offer of 10 p.c. Increase in Food.

WELLAND, Ont., May 10 (CP)—One man, Nick Donofrio, Italian, refused to resume the strike of Crowland relief workers to-day and was put to work under a heavy guard of provincial police, headed by Inspector C. F. Airey.

The 30 police took up positions at the Beatrice street sewer job and Inspector Airey told the picket line he would not stand for intimidation of any persons who desired to remain at work.

Reserves on Hand

"I will bring in another 50 officers, if necessary, to maintain law and order," the Inspector said.

Another man was seen advancing to take a shovel and resume work but he was prevailed upon by picketers to stick with the strikers.

Tom Martin, leader of the committee that conferred with Premier Hepburn yesterday, when Mr. Hepburn offered an increase in the food voucher of 10 percent, was not in the picket line this morning. Frank Haslam and William Douglas, two men alleged by the Crowland welfare board to be agitators, were in charge of the 30 pickets.

After the unemployed had turned down Hepburn offer last night, Martin said his part was completed when he reported back to the relief recipients as to the attitude of Premier Hepburn. Martin starts work Monday at a non-relief project.

There was no sign of any disorder, the pickets conducting their work quietly.

After working for an hour the lone strike breaker was sent home and the police with the exception of two officers who were left to patrol the area were withdrawn.

Ten days ago the men went back to work on the relief job after the Premier and two of his Cabinet Ministers had conferred with their representatives. The Government was understood to be considering their requests.

Prior to that the unemployed had been embroiled in a four-weeks' strike with authorities, during which there were riots, police made recourse to tear gas bombs and

CHAIN LETTER FAD FLOURISHES

Few Report Having Received Small Sums Through Mail Already.

"TOO MANY WISE GUYS."

Yesterday the story of the prosperity chain letter craze striking Peterborough was published. To-day the story develops—reports of money returns are already coming in.

One local girl relates that she received and passed on five copies of a 10-cent chain letter early this week and got her first dimes in return in the mail this morning. Just three dimes, but she has hopes that the mails in the next two weeks will bring her many more. The dimes came from persons in Kingston and Hamilton of whom she had never heard before.

Other reports tell of the receipt already of sums totalling five to ten dollars locally. These reports have not been verified, but can not be ignored in the light of authenticated despatches telling of the receipt of sums in the hundreds of

A Possibility

LONDON, Ont., May 10.—(CP)—Dr. H. R. Kingston, professor of mathematics at the University of Western Ontario here has calculated if the chain letter craze is carried to its ultimate possibility in a few weeks all the money in the world could be tied up in 10-cent pieces on their way through the mails to pay off chain letter obligations. That is, if all the money was turned into dimes.

ITALY PREPARED TO USE FORCE WITH ETHIOPIA

Claim African Attacks on Caravans Cause of Rome Preparing for War.

THREAT TO OTHERS.

ROME, May 10 (AP)—Italy's determination to use force in solving her difficulties with Ethiopia if "precautionary" measures prove ineffective was reaffirmed to-day in the report to the Chamber of Deputies on the budget for the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Deputy Biagio Pace said Italy's troop concentration was prompted by the failure of every effort to promote peaceful and economic collaboration with Ethiopia.

Senator Schanzer, delivering the Senate report on the Ministry of Colonies budget, said Ethiopia's attacks on caravans coupled with the warlike tenor of Emperor Haile Selassie's recent address in the Ethiopian Parliament not only justified Italy's preparations, but gave cause for concern to other European Colonies bordering on Ethiopia.

Fears to Mobilize Too Soon

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, May 10 (AP) — A government spokesman said to-day Emperor Haile Selassie will mobilize his troops when and if Italy's East African forces advance and not before.

The mentality of the Ethiopian soldier is such, the official source said, if mobilized he would not remain inactive but insist upon fighting. Therefore, it was said, a call to arms now without an overt act on the part of the Italians would make war inevitable.

CHAIRS SEIZED FOR JUDGMENT TOTALLING $110

Bailiff Acts Under Instructions of G. N. Gordon, K.C.

DAMAGE ACTION.

Insurance Company Notified and Cheque in the Mails.

Peterborough's municipal sanctum, the City Hall, was invaded by the bailiff, Sam R. Pearson, this morning, and the mayor's red upholstered chair and the ten aldermanic chairs were placed under seizure pending payment of a recent Division Court judgment against the city for $75 and costs, amounting in all to $110.

Acting For Mr. Gordon

Mr. Pearson said he was acting under instructions from G. N. Gordon, K.C., solicitor for Mrs. Jean Cowan of the Grand Central Apartments, plaintiff in the Division Court action to recover damages for injuries suffered in a fall on the sidewalk in front of the Montgomery House, Simcoe street, last December.

"We got judgment six weeks ago," Mr. Gordon told The Examiner, "and I notified Mr. Corkery, City Solicitor, three or four times that we wanted the money. This morning was the dead line of delay, and when the money wasn't forthcoming we put the bailiff in possession of the city hall to seize chattels sufficient to cover the $110."

The other side of the case was explained by Mr. Corkery.

"There was no necessity for Mr. Gordon going to that extreme," the City Solicitor stated. "Judgment was given three weeks ago, and I wrote the insurance company with whom the city is protected in claims of this kind. I gave them all the facts, and then I informed Mr. Gordon that I expected the cheque would be received here in a few days."

Cheque Mailed Yesterday

"I wrote the company in the early part of this week, and when there was no response to that letter Mr. Gordon threatened yesterday to take proceedings for the execution

HEPBURN PLANS ON INCOME TAX STIR COMMENTS

Hamilton Mayor in Favor—Municipalities Must be Subsidized as Result.

BUSINESS MEN IN LINE.

Toronto Controller Claims City Would Stand to Lose $1,700,000 Yearly.

TORONTO, May 10 (C.P.)—The proposal of Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn to abolish the existing income tax levying power of municipalities to make way for imposition of a provincial income tax, met with varied response in different sections of Ontario.

At Hamilton, Mayor Herbert Wilton said he was entirely in accord with the idea of collecting a provincial income tax and subsidizing the municipalities.

Long Advocated It

"It is exactly what I have advocated for some time and only recently wrote to have the matter included i nthe agenda for a mayor's conference," he said.

Alderman Norman Eansor, only member of Windsor City Council who could be reached for comment last night, questioned the possibility that the Ontario Government could impose an income tax to replace the present municipal one. Income tax, he believed, was a matter that rested between Federal and municipal authorities.

F. D. Tolchard, secretary of the Toronto Board of Trade, declared he had heard a great deal of favorable comment from business men on the proposals. Speaking personally, he said, he favored the Premier's suggestion, provided proper provision was made for municipalities now collecting income tax. ....

Controller Ralph Day of Toronto made it plain that he was thoroughly in favor of any action by the government whereby recipients

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 10. — Indications of scarcity of hard wheat both at Kansas City and Minneapolis did much yesterday to bring about higher prices in the wheat market here.

Another bullish influence was the fact that selling pressure in the Chicago wheat market appeared to be under considerable restraint of the United States Government crop report ex-

PICK CANADIANS FOR POLAR TRIP

Wilkins-Ellsworth Expedition Will Take Two Northern Fliers.

EXPERIENCED WITH SNOW.

NEW YORK, May 10 (C.P.). — Plucked from among Canada's Arctic airmen, Herbert Hollick-Kenyon of Winnipeg and J. H. Lymburner of Montreal are going "down under" as pilots with the projected Antarctic expedition of Lincoln Ellsworth and Sir Hubert Wilkins, it was learned to-day.

Hollick-Kenyon veteran of the Canadian North-West air trails, and Lymburner, 28-year-old crack pilot of Northern Quebec regions, were both in New York to-day for the business of signing contracts with the exploration party. Neither has done any flying in the vicinity of the South Pole.

Sometime in November the Ellsworth-Wilkins party will establish a base on the little-known Antarctic continent, seeking to unravel some of the geographical mysteries of the country which Ellsworth has visited twice before.

During a hurried trip into Canada a few days ago Sir Hubert selected Hollick-Kenyon and Lymburner as airmen least likely to be worried by stormy, bitter-o'd Antarctic weather. Both have had long years of experience in the North when temperatures were low and storms were blowing.

SECRECY VEILS GREAT US NAVAL PACIFIC FLIGHT

46 Seaplanes Disappear Over Ocean on Way to Midway Island.

FLEET MANOUEVRES.

HONOLULU, May 10.—(AP)—Official secrecy veiled in silence today the whereabouts of 46 United States navy seaplanes on a trail-blazing mass flight to Midway Island, 1,323 miles away.

As the hours passed with no information made public by navy officials, speculation grew that the huge air fleet—greatest flying group ever assembled for such a flight—possibly stopped at French frigate shoals, 509 miles distant, or at Pearl Harbor and Hermes Reef, 180 miles from Midway.

Rain was falling and a 24-mile wind was blowing at Midway when the airmen began taking off from Pearl Harbor at 7:18 a.m., (12:48 p.m., E. S. T.) Thursday, lending credence to the belief the planes might have stopped at some intermediate point.

Ten to 12 hours had been estimated as the time necessary for the flight to Midway Island. The changing positions of the 46 ships, as they sped over the trackless Pacific where no other plane ever had ventured, was believed known to forces of the United States Navy, now manoeuvring in a 5,000,000 square mile triangle of the North Pacific in their 1935 war games.

Somewhere in the triangle bounded by Hawaii, the mainland and the Aleutian Islands, the 153 ships of the fleet are carrying out training problems.

It was learned the planes will be away from here about one month, giving rise to the belief some of them may continue northward from Midway to the Aleutian Islands, about 1,700 miles farther.

SOUTH HASTINGS M. P. NOMINATED

Six Others Withdraw to Make W. E. Tummon Unanimous Choice.

HANSON IS SPEAKER.

BELLEVILLE, May 10 (C.P.). — Hon. R. B. Hanson, Minister of Trade and Commerce, speaking yesterday at a Conservative meeting that nominated W. E. Tummon, M.P., for the next Federal election in South Hastings said amalgamation of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National railroads was out of the question but there should be co-operation and co-ordination between the systems.

Mr. Tummon was the unanimous choice of the convention. Others who were proposed but withdrew were George A. Reid, Richard D. Arnott, Charles A. Payne, K.C., Belleville; Howard D. Graham, Trenton; Dr. R. E. Welch, Roslin, and George H. Stokes, Hungerford.

Defends C.P.R. Loan.

In his address Mr. Hanson defended the loan by the Government to the C.P.R. declaring the integrity of the Canadian people was at stake. He explained workings of the Marketing Act and said $130,000,000 more had been paid to producers for bacon hogs under the Act than would have been paid were it not in operation.

The Minister said unemployment insurance was not a relief measure but a means of helping those now employed against the next cycle of depression should it ever come.

Discussing trade agreements, Mr. Hanson said England was the logical country with which to trade and declared that interests in former years had come to reasonable agreement but were turned down because England had not been won over from a free trade policy.

RAY HAMILTON ROBBER - KILLER DIES IN CHAIR

Follows Partner Joe Palmer to Death Chamber for Guards Murder.

ONCE TERRIFIED WEST.

HUNTSVILLE, Tex., May 10 (AP)—Raymond Hamilton, exhibiting even in his last minutes a shell of the vicious conceit that helped make him ranking United States public enemy, died meekly to-day in the electric chair.

He followed Joe Palmer, his partner, in the slaying of Major Crowson, prison guard, to the execution chamber.

The electrocution of the 22-year-old punt gunman closed a crime career that began with sneak-thief operations in his teens and developed swiftly to bank robbery, kidnapping, prison breaks and murder.

Hamilton's death was in marked contrast to his talk. He bragged he never would be taken alive, but he surrendered meekly when Bill Decker, Dallas deputy sheriff, shoved a pistol in to his ribs in a Fort Worth railroad yard a few weeks ago. One of his last acts was to send a word of thanks to Decker for not shooting him that night.

Nervous At Last.

So nervous did Hamilton become late yesterday as his hopes of escaping death faded one by one, prison officials had feared he would be unable to go unaided through the ordeal.

He managed to do that, but his face was ashen and his attempt to smile little more than a brief grimace as he entered the execution chamber.

"Well, goodbye all of you," were his last words as the death mask was adjusted after electrodes had been applied and he had been strapped in the chair.

Just before, he had made a brief statement in which he denied he was connected with the murder of a Hillsboro, Tex., filling station operator.

A particular point of pride with the 22-year-old bandit in life had been his natty dress.

"It looks bad for me to go over with a pair of ragged pants," he complained in semi-jocular vein as he noticed a torn place in the garment.

Not Influenced By Women.

Several hours before the execution last night, newspapermen asked Hamilton if he wanted to say anything about the influence of women on his life.

"None of them has any influence on me," he replied. "None except Katie—I love Katie."

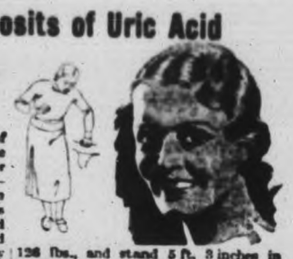
"How about giving some advice on crime, Ray," some one prompted.

"Oh, it's no use saying anything like that," he answered. "Crime doesn't pay, you can't win in the long run, but no one pays any attention to such a statement."

KNOTS CAME IN HER FINGERS

A Result of Deposits of Uric Acid

CLEARED HER SYSTEN WITH KRUSCHEN



A striking example of the efficacy of Kruschen Salts in the removal of uric acid deposits has just come to our notice. A woman writes as follows:—

"Small knots began to form between my fingers and on the small bones of my feet, both causing discomfort and uneasiness. Later drowsiness and sickness followed, and it appeared my circulation was bad, as my bones were showing signs of some deposit. Seeking a medical man's advice, I was advised to rest and diet a while, and to assist me quickly he recommended me Kruschen Salts, to be taken as directed, to remove the uric acid deposits in my system.

"This was eighteen months ago—when I was at a breakdown stage. I began instantly doing as he advised. I started my daily dose of Kruschen right then, and believe me, I am now a new woman. I still take my little measure of Kruschen daily. I weigh 126 lbs., and stand 5 ft. 3 inches in height. No surplus condition, not miserable in appearance, fit to fight for a kingdom, and be sure I tell my friends the secret of my present health."—(Mrs.) W. R. M.

Rheumatic conditions are the result of an excess of uric acid in the body. Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts have the power of dissolving uric acid crystals. Other ingredients of these salts assist Nature to expel these dissolved crystals through the natural channel.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 45c. and 75c. per bottle.

Something New?

GRIMSBY, Ont., May 10 (CP)—A catch too nasty to take off the hook is reported by Clarence McNinch, who went to Welland Port on a fishing trip. The creature has a head like a catfish, but lacks horns; a tail like a beaver, four feet and two fancy ears at the back of its head; it is slate gray in color and has no scales. Apparently it cannot swim, but in the water it gets along on its feet with the aid of its tail. On land it waddles along on its feet.

ONTARIO'S CROP ACREAGE HIGHER THAN LAST YEAR

Fruit Prospects Above Normal —More Wheat, Mixed Grains Planted.

POTATOES DOWN 10 P.C.

TORONTO, May 10 (C.P.)—Increased acreage this season for most Ontario crops was forecast yesterday in the first monthly report of the 1935 crop season, released by the Provincial Department of Agriculture. Fall wheat, hay and clover, flax and mixed grains are expected to show an acreage increase but the potato acreage is expected to show a 10 per cent decrease from last year. The report reviews conditions as of May 1st.

In the fruit belt blossom prospects are slightly above normal and materially above last year. While condition of live stock was reported as poorer than a year ago, the feature of the industry during the past few months has been the resumption of cattle exports to the United States.

19 P.C. Winter Wheat Kill

Winter killing of fall wheat, although above the average, was considerably less than a year ago. Nineteen per cent of the 663,000 acres sown to wheat last fall was killed, compared with 39 per cent in 1934 and an average winter killing of about 12 per cent. Counties of Essex, Kent, Elgin, Lambton, Middlesex, Huron, Perth and Bruce suffered only to a small extent. In Norfolk, Oxford, Haldimand, Wentworth, Lincoln, Halton, Peel and Simcoe losses ranging from 20 to 50 per cent were reported.

Condition of fall wheat at the end of April was placed at 85 per cent of normal compared with 65 per cent in 1934. Acreage to be harvested this year is estimated at 537,000, compared with 425,600 a year ago. Loss suffered by hay and clover during the winter was 13 per cent compared with 29 per cent a year ago.

Greatest crop increase this year is expected in barley where the intended acreage has been placed at 581,900 compared with 484,000 a year ago. Intended acreage of spring wheat is 96,500, compared with 96,400 last year.

The acreage of oats is expected to be 2,486,400. Last year's acreage was 2,390,800.

1,100 Acres More Flax

Increase of 1,000 acres in the flax acreage in the counties of Huron, Perth, Oxford, Bruce and Middlesex is expected, bringing the total acreage for the province to 6,800, compared with 5,700 last year.

Slight increase of acreage of mixed grains from 941,400 last year to 993,220 this season is expected. Last year potato acreage was 164,300 but this year it will be only 147,900. Up to May 2 of this year 55,837 head of Canadian cattle have been shipped to the United States. This is greater than in any year since 1930.

The crop of apples, peaches, pears, plums will be better than last year, it is expected. Except in the western section of the Niagara district the crop of sweet cherries will be above last year. Prospects for sour cherries point to a crop slightly better than last season. Strawberry and raspberry prospects also are good. With satisfactory outlook on domestic and export markets for burley and flue-cured tobacco, the crop prospects are good and acreage has been increased. Intended acreage of the flue-cured variety will be 29,000, an increase of about 7,000 acres over the amount harvested last year. The burley acreage will be 12,000, also above last season.

Japan will issue special coins this year in commemoration of the thirtieth anniversary of the Russo-Japanese war and 600th anniversary of Dai Nanko.

All In Day's Work

LEE GEHLBACH

Two miles in the air above a farm near Edinburgh, O., Lee Gehlbach started a power dive in the new experimental type naval torpedo aeroplane he was testing. At 8,000 feet, when he started to "straighten her out," his head hit the windshield, and he lost consciousness. Recovering his senses, he saw that both wings had been torn from the craft. He leaped just in time for his parachute to open before landing in a tree. The last chapter of Pilot Gehlbach's day's work finds him telephoning a Cleveland factor to report—"flight unsuccessful—ship not so good."

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Jackson and son, Billie, of Peterborough, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Mann, of Smith.

On Sunday, May 5, very interesting services were held both morning and evening in Gilmour Church when Major Shook, of Toronto, was the guest speaker.

The regular meeting of the Mission Circle of Gilmour Church was held at the home of Mrs. A. I. Edmison on Tuesday, May 7. The president, Mrs. Mann, occupied the chair. The Scripture reading was taken by Mrs. E. Archer. Mrs. J. R. Mann and Mrs. J. Young sang a duet. The subject for the meeting was "Grande Leign," and a very interesting paper was given by Mrs. A. I. Edmison. Rev. R. D. Wright gave a very interesting talk on the same subject. It was resolved at the meeting that all the ladies would write Mrs. S. Blewett, who is seriously ill in Nicholls Hospital, and wish her speedy recovery. At the close lunch was served by the ladies in charge, Mrs. E. Archer, Mrs. A. I. Edmison and Mrs. R. S. McMullen.

Miss Mildred Mann, of Toronto, spent the week-end with her father, Mr. G. W. Mann, of Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones and baby, of Marmora, visited at the latter's sister, Mrs. Stanley Mahood, last week.

CATTLE SHIPPING TRIAL IS BEGUN

Richilieu Sub-Agent States Company Hoped to Raise $8,000 of $40,000 Owing.

MEET BALANCE LATER

LONDON, Ont., May 10 (C.P.)—Frank Thompson, Huron sub-agent for the Richilieu Corporation cattle exporting Company, testified yesterday at the trial of Samuel Richardson, former president, and James MacDonnell, former vice-president of the firm. The Montreal men are charged with conspiracy to defraud.

Under cross-examination Thompson said he did not think he was mistaken when he said company officials told him they had a third interest in the Tilbury (Ont.) docks. He did not think they said one-quarter interest in making an inventory of the corporation's assets.

Thompson said about $40,000 was owing shippers and he expected about $8,000 would be raised by the company to pay off 20 per cent of these claims, while the balance would be met later.

Tried Government's Aid.

After he returned from Montreal in March, 1934, and was unsuccessful in obtaining the shippers' money, Thompson said, he was a member of a deputation to Ottawa "to see if the government could not get out money for us." He said he had not considered whether Richilieu did "a national service" in "opening the London market" for Canadian cattle.

"You knew the Canadian government had subsidized the corporation?" asked Judge Joseph Wearing.

"Yes sir," replied Thompson. "We thought if the government subsidized the company, it should subsidize the shippers."

"You mean indemnify the shippers," the Judge suggested.

"Yes, sir."

Paid $25 a Week

A. Lebel, MacDonnell's counsel, said he hoped to show "that MacDonnel had no actual interest in the direction of this company; that he was given the title of vice-president but only received $25 a week for his work."

Thompson said it was MacDonnell who suggested an inventory of the company's assets be made.

Answering Judge Wearing, Thompson said up to the time they failed to receive their money, the shippers were satisfied with the dealings of Richilieu.

Archie Bateman, Caradoc farmer, testified he made 15 separate shipments of cattle to the Old Country through Richilieu and lost approximately $1,300 on the last lot.

FRIDAY, MAY 10, 1935

NOT SO SATISFACTORY.

Canadian railways are not the only rail transportation system to have their troubles.

As a matter of fact, figures recently released show that the railway situation in the United States is worse than on this side of the international line, for while Canadian roads have been reporting a gain in their operating income, the reverse is the case with American roads.

For the first quarter of the present year there has been a decline of 24 per cent. in the operating income of United States railways.

The net in the first three months of 1935, the Association of American Railroads announced on Monday, amounted to $84,773,560, as compared with $112,206,133 in the corresponding period of last year.

March's net operating income was $37,850,565, while in the same month last year the total was $52,217,083.

These figures, while they show Canadian conditions to be better in comparison with the American showing, nevertheless should cause some concern, for they indicate that business over the border is far from satisfactory, and that is a development that cannot have some effect at least upon the people of this country, inasmuch as American conditions are usually reflected in Canada.

PROVINCIAL INCOME TAX COMING.

The intimation given by Premier Hepburn in an address yesterday that a provincial income tax may soon be expected, is not so alarming as it might seem at first blush.

The Premier announces that the provincial levy is not to be a third tax upon incomes, but is to be substituted for the present municipal income tax, and the municipalities are to be recompensed for the loss of revenue they sustain by virtue of the change.

There is this difference, however, that the provincial income tax will be collected in all parts of the province, whereas, as everybody knows, the municipal tax was ignored by many municipalities, and the result was that while citizens in some sections have been called upon to pay others have gone Scot-free so far as the municipal income levy was concerned.

Mr. Hepburn is quite right in his statement that there is no equity or justice about the present system: that has long been the contention of The Examiner as a result of the checkerboard method of collecting or not collecting this tax, and a uniform provincial tax, requiring everybody who is liable to meet their obligations is to be preferred to the present haphazard system.

When the Premier says, however, that his Government intends to balance the budget without interfering with purchasing power or increasing the costs of production, we are not able to follow him so easily.

If there is to be a balanced budget, it is inevitable that more taxation will have to e imposed, and how more taxes can be collected without affecting the purchasing power of the people is certainly not very apparent.

MORE RELIEF RENT.

While there are complaints in regard to the increase in relief rents announced by the Provincial Government on the ground that it entails additional expenditure on the part of municipalities, and that this expenditure has not been provided for in this year's estimates, it is to be imagined that the benefits to be derived from the change will more than offset this disadvantage.

Under the present system owners of houses occupied by tenants who are on relief are paid one and a half times the amount of the taxes on the property in lieu of rent, and the new plan calls for this rental to be increased to twice the amount of the taxes.

Obviously such a change will be of material benefit to the landlords, and at the same time will make conditions much easier for those who are on relief inasmuch as many of them have had difficulty in persuading owners of rentable houses to accept relief rent.

There are two angles to this question that deserve consideration in view of the fact that this larger allowance is to be paid.

The first concerns the landlords, some of whom have not been playing the game in that they have endeavored to secure payments from their relief tenants in addition to the amount provided under the relief scheme. Now that they are to be paid 200 per cent. of their taxes up to a maximum of $20 a month, they will have little excuse for trying to squeeze a few extra dollars out of those who are forced to accept relief.

Secondly, there is an obligation upon relief tenants to also play the game. Some at least have been treating the houses they have een occupying under the relief scheme in scandalous fashion, and their carelessness and neglect have caused serious property damage.

When the province and municipalities are making a reasonable allowance for rent it should be the duty of both property-owners and relief tenants to deal squarely with each other; the landlords on their side being satisfied with the allowances provided, and the tenants in turn treating the houses they are provided with in a decent manner.

BRITISH COLUMBIA'S HEALTH INSURANCE.

The Examiner is in receipt of a copy of the draft bill on health insurance which is being handed to members of the British Columbia Legislative Assembly for consideration during the interval between sessions.

It is pointed out that this bill is by no means a finished article, but that it is considered to be sufficiently complete and clear for all purposes of comment and criticism.

The intention of the legislation is to provide protection against the hazards of illness for that large and growing section of the population which is unable to budget individually for adequate health services, or to bear the loss of income caused by illness.

Under the proposed British Columbia plan the persons to be insured are as follows:

1.—Employees earning $200 a month or less and their dependents.

2.—Other persons earning $200 a month or less and their dependents, who join the scheme voluntarily.

3.—Farmers and their families, who may be insured through arrangements made with rural municipalities which join the scheme voluntarily.

4.—Indigent persons (those drawing unemployment relief, etc.) and their dependents.

It is proposed that the scheme be financed, for employees and their dependents, by contributions made weekly or monthly by employers and employees. In the case of employees, the contributions are not to exceed 3 per cent. of wages, and in the case of employers, the contributions are not to exceed 2 per cent. of pay-rolls for insured persons. Voluntary contributors are to pay weekly or monthly sufficient contributions to cover the total costs of medical benefits granted to themselves and their dependents. Rural insured persons are to make contributions through their municipalities, and the municipalities are empowered to raise funds by taxation for the purpose. In addition, it is provided that the province shall make contributions to cover the cost of providing medical benefits for indigent insured persons and to cover half the costs of administering the plan.

It is provided further that the provincial contribution in any one year shall not exceed $1,200,000.

Here are the medical benefits that may be granted under the act:

1.—General medical practitioner service, including maternity care.

2.—Hospital service, including twenty-one days' free public ward care and 75 per cent. of the cost of care for an additional period, not to exceed ten weeks, to be fixed by regulation.

3.—The services of medical specialists as may be required.

4.—Drugs, medical, surgical and optical supplies; provided that insured persons may be required to pay not more than one-quarter of the cost of such supplies and services.

5.—Laboratory services as may be required.

6.—Limited home nursing services.

7.—Limited dental services, primarily of a preventive nature.

8.—Special additional services, mainly of a preventive nature, as may be decided upon by the commission.

WHAT IS SOCIAL CREDIT?

When Major C. H. Douglas appeared before the Parliamentary Committee on the Central Bank question to explain his social credit plan, he spoke for several hours, and at the end indicated that if he were to go into the matter fully he would require several days. However, the committee appeared to have heard enough in one day, enough at any rate to leave them in a fog as to what it was all about. The London Spectator the other day, an exceedingly able and well-informed political, economic and financial critic, confessed it was unable to make head or tail of social credit. Having read articles upon it from time to time ourselves, we have to admit too that we are still as foggy about it as we are about the Einstein theory of relativity.

Major Douglas seeks to correct mal-adjustments of social affairs, such as the destruction of coffee, the burning of wheat for fuel, the plowing up of crops and the killing of livestock when there are millions of people on short rations. For the benefit of an American inquirer, he summarizes the kernel of his scheme thus:

"The principle of the remedies proposed can be, perhaps, best understood by imagining the public debt of the United States to be a correct accounting representation of the total assets of the United States which at its present rate of increase will soon be the case, and to suppose that this public or national debt be issued without charge to all United States citizens in the form of interest-bearing bonds. By applying a portion of the possible interest of these bonds to the reduction of prices, it is quite possible to avoid a rise of the price of consumable products, or even to cause a fall in such prices, just as we apply a subsidy to cause a fall in the price charged for transportation. In this case, however, we do not provide the required amount by taxation.

"If, at first sight, such a proposal may seem revolutionary, there is an adequate answer. At the present time, when a central bank, and, to a less extent, any normal type of bank, acquires securities, it acquires them by exchanging a draft upon its own credit for the securities, thus increasing the money in the hands of the public by the amount paid, and increasing its own assets by the securities acquired. It is quite fair to say that a financial institution in such a case acquires securities for nothing, and I am not aware of any special reason why a financial institution should alone be thus privileged. The extension of the principle involved would result, amongst many other desirable achievements, in the reduction and ultimate abolition of taxation."

Make what you can out of that.

Then there is the so-called social credit plan of the former Seaforth boy, William Aberhart, now of Calgary, a school principal, which is spoken of as likely to be a leading issue of the next provincial election in Alberta. His plan appears to be simply a variation of the Townsend plan in the United States. Dr. Townsend would give everybody in the United States over 60 years of age $200 a month of government funds and order them to spend it before the next month comes around. Mr. Aberhart's plan is to give everybody over 21 a monthly payment of $25, whether they are working or not.

A fairly large family would be able to live without working at all, and many others would manage to get by with just casual work. These "doles" appear to encourage the idle and thriftless. The people of Alberta will live by taking in each other's washing.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Premier Bennett sails for home to-day, and Canadian politicians are very much in the air as to what will happen when he gets back.

Mr. Hepburn paid his third visit to Crowland Township yesterday, which is three times more than he has called upon Government House.

The Union of South Africa is said to be favorable to the return of one of Germany's African colonies to Germany. That attitude should make it difficult for any of the other overseas dominions to oppose the idea.

Parliament reassembles the week after next, and the legislation implementing the recommendations of the Royal Commission on Price Spreads and Mass Buying is being eagerly awaited, not only for its effect upon business, but for the political reactions it may set up.

A MAN BUILDS HIMELF

Whatever you do becomes a part of you. Whatever you think, whatever you feel, these become you forever....You win a victory and the way you take that victory becomes a part of your character. You lose, and your loss is for all future time a shred of yourself....You stand on the sidelines and see another's victory or defeat and this, too, in a lesser way, grows into your own experience; you are strengthened for achievement, you are heartened, you are warned, you are made different.

A man is born to be a certain person, and he can never get far from himself. But life is not only "being"; it is also "doing"; it's seeing and feeling and sharing, and everything he touches while he is alive shares with him a little. It makes him different or it confirms his natural slant.

A youngster gets into trouble and his father asks him about it. And though he pales and his lips tremble, he stands up and tells the truth and takes it....Will he ever forget that?

You see a woman waiting for a surgical operation that may mean her death....You see her smile and comfort her family as she is taken to the operating room....Or you knew a strong man who knows that death is waiting for him at every corner, but he did not tremble. Nor did he whimper....Do not their courage become a part of you?

You were in a black pit of unhappiness, and you never hoped for peace and courage again....But they returned! Suddenly some inner strength came out from within you and you were joyful and strong again....Can you dismiss that experience from your life?

You saw a broken man refusing pity. You met a prisoner of war who would not cringe. You were there when a doctor and a nurse worked swiftly and surely to bring a new life into the world. You met some stern test and found yourself equal to it. You encountered ugliness in human beings and went out of doors and found the fair earth as lovely, as comforting as ever....Are not these experiences forever a part of your equipment?

A man can tear himself down, but a man can build himself up again.

What's in the Name of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

UXBRIDGE, ONTARIO

One hundred and twenty-five years ago settlement of this place was effected by a Doctor Beswick, but it was not until 1872 that incorporation as a village was accomplished. Joseph Gould was the real founder of the village and became its first reeve. His son, I. J. Gould, was elected seven times reeve of the village.

The name Uxbridge is derived, some say, from the legend that one of the early settlers was driving a team of oxen over a bridge one day when they fell through and were drowned. From then on, it is reported, the place was known as "Oxbridge", which was changed to its present form with the passage of years.

Present-day officials of the town, however, incline to the more reasonable belief that the founder was an Englishman, who came from the district of Uxbridge in England and hence named the place for it.

A Thought

Patience often brings to disappointment and sorrow, surprise and joy.—M. M.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

"I did send for a cup of tea, a China drink, of which I never had drunk before," records Pepys in his diary on September 25, 1666.

This dates for us the general time of the introduction of tea into England; it followed coffee and supplanted it.

Yet the active ingredient of both beverages is the same—caffeine. Tea contains 1 to 3 per cent of caffeine, and roasted coffee ¼ to 2 per cent.

The action of caffeine we described briefly yesterday. It increases the amount of blood which goes through the organs of the body, especially the kidneys, heart and brain. This action is probably basically responsible for its stimulating effect on those organs.

The amount of mental work that can be done under its influence is greatly increased. We mentioned experiments on typewriters yesterday. Another along the same line was the observation of Hollingsworth, who gave twenty-two intelligent men capsules of caffeine or capsules of milk sugar for a period of forty days. None of them knew which he was receiving. Some days a man would get caffeine, other days sugar of milk. Setting them definite tasks, it was possible to observe the difference in the reactions of the entire caffeine group to the entire lactose group. And it was further possible to observe the reactions of the same man with caffeine one day and with sugar of milk the next.

Speed, Accuracy Increased

The result showed that with average doses of caffeine (¼ grains) there was undoubted increase in speed and accuracy of movement and efficiency of work, beginning in about one hour and lasting four hours.

The action on muscle is particularly noticeable. The strength and irritability of the muscle is increased and fatigability is reduced. Muscular movements are far more accurate under caffeine.

Naturally, therefore, tea and coffee habits are common among brain workers, and those who must be awake and alert at night.

The afternoon cup of tea is a true fatigue preventer.

The stimulation of tea and coffee, is carried to excess, is certainly of the sort which draws on Nature's reserves, however, and I echo the words of a famous physician who writes, 'I should like to say to every student that if he gets into a state in which night after night he cannot work without coffee, he is drawing on his reserves, so that when he needs to make a spurt, he will be unable to do so."

Tea is a valuable domestic drug for other things. On account of its content of tannic acid it is valuable in the treatment of burns, and tea leaves are, therefore, valuable as a part of the domestic medicine chest.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

G. M. GRANT, GREAT CANADIAN

On this date (May 10, 1903) there passed one of the great Canadians whose lifework is unknown to too many of the present generation—Rev. George Munro Grant. Born at Albion Mines, Nova Scotia, in 1835, he was educated in Scotland and then came back to his native province as a Presbyterian minister. Ere long he became an outstanding figure and he was called to the pastorate of St. Matthew's Church. There soon after his induction he delivered a lecture upon "The Reformers of the Nineteenth Century" and he caused a perturbation in his wealthy congregation by his out-spokenness. Hon. Benjamin Russell, in his autobiography tells that Mr. Grant shocked a certain section of Halifax "society" (especially the Presbyterians, some of whom were not as broad minded as their grandchildren are now) by his willingness to co-operate with any man of repute in any good work no matter what his church. They were staggered when they read that at a dinner of the Charitable Irish Society (which from its foundation has comprised both Protestants and Catholics) Dr. Grant greeted the Roman Catholic Archbishop, Mgr. Connolly, with "Hail! Brother Celt!" That was the beginning of an era of good-will which lasted until the archbishop's death and it is worth noting that the Presbyterian pastor sat up all night in the archbishop's palace when the prelate was dying and was one of the mourners at his funeral.

George M. Grant was a great Canadian and a great imperialist; but he should live in the memory of Canadians as the first to tell the truth about the Canadian west. He went across the continent with Sandford Fleming, who was surveying for the proposed C.P.R. and on his return published "From Ocean to Ocean" which, more than any other volume, convinced eastern Canadians and the world at large that the west was not the "great lone land" but that the plains and the mountains and the sea coast were an undeveloped empire awaiting Canada's development.

Dr Grant was a great admirer of Sir John A. Macdonald and generally supported him, but there were times when he differed and he did not hesitate to say so. Since at a convocation at Queen's University (of which he was principal for many years) he told the prime minister that he always supported him when he was right, whereupon John A. is said to have replied: "But what I need is men who will support me when I am wrong." But there was no doubt as to Grant's opposition to unrestricted reciprocity or commercial union. He favored a fair reciprocity but was dead against any proposals which would render Canada liable to freak legislation at Washington. If one wants to realize the full growth of Canada he should read: "From Ocean to Ocean" and then compare the Canada of today with the British America of 1872. The contrast is amazing.

MOUNT JULIAN ENTERTAINMENT PLEASES GOOD SIZED AUDIENCE

Splendid Program Presented in Aid of the United Church.

DISTRICT NEWS

MOUNT JULIAN, May 10 (Examiner Correspondence) — The entertainment put on, in aid of the United Church here, on Friday evening last, was attended by a good sized crowd in spite of the unpleasant weather conditions.

Following the opening address by the chairman, Rev. G. Porter, a darky Minstrel Show was given by the Mount Julian people, featuring Wilbert Lean, Walter Bolton, George Ross and Gilbert Northey as darkies who delighted the audience with their witty remarks, snatches of song, and sweet and harmonious instrumental music. They were further assisted by a large number of other entertainers.

Miss Ruby Tedford excited a great deal of mirth when she entered the stage with "Nightmares" her "Educated Hoss," who could do all sorts of stunts from arithmetic problems to waltzing. The audience was kept in the jolly mood by several humorous numbers given by Mrs. Charles Lauder, also by Theodore Wilson personating a clown in tight-rope walking feats. "Papa Dionne" was a timely recitation by Walter Bolton. Walter Lean rendered a very entertaining motion song, assisted by James Reid and Alvin Booth. The darkies were very much interested in gaining knowledge on courtship from a humorous scene on the stage by Raymond Lean and June Thompson. Carol Thompson and Katherine Reid, as two little house maids, kept their dusters going to the tune of their merry little songs.

One Act Plays

Next on the program was two one-act plays given by the Apsley people. These showed a great deal of talent and good training, all parts being so well acted. The first play, a farce, "Pros Preferred," portrayed the calamity it would be if every one were to talk in rhyme. The cast was taken by the following: Messrs. Jim McGregor, Elgin Peters and John Wallbridge, Misses Lola Nesbitt, Hazel and Evelyn Young and Mrs. Don Newberry.

The next play, a tragedy, "Pierre's Home Coming," had rather a sad ending. Those taking part in this were Rev. G. Porter, Misses Dorothy Bell and Doris Whitmore, Mrs. (Dr.) Manning and Mrs. Jim McGregor.

Between acts Mrs. Percy Thompson and Mrs. William Church favored the audience with a very lovely duet.

At the close of the entertainment those who had taken part in providing the program were invited to Mr. and Mrs. William Church's home for lunch.

Holy Trinity Anglican Church was very beautifully decorated with daffodils donated by Major Oxley from his Stoney Lake garden, and flags for the Silver Jubilee service on Sunday afternoon. The choir was particularly lovely in their patriotism, each carrying a Union Jack.

Special prayers were offered and the rector, Rev. E. C. Moore, delivered a very inspiring and helpful address stressing our reason for thankfulness as subjects under such wise and peaceful sovereigns.

Major Oxley and son of Toronto visited his summer home on Stoney Lake last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sholar, also Mr. William Langford of Peterborough spent the holiday with friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Crocker and sons Allen and Douglas also Mr. Samuel Crocker, all of Peterborough spent the holiday visiting relatives in this vicinity.

STRICKLAND CASE HAS BEEN SETTLED

Parties Reach Settlement in Suit Over Wantasa Inn.

Settlement of the suit by C. E. Strickland of Toronto against Carl A. Case and Cozia Case of Texarkana, Texas, for recovery of the title of the Wantasa Inn property at McCracken's Landing, was announced to-day. The case was adjourned last week before the taking of evidence before Mr. Justic J. A. McEvoy had been completed.

According to evidence presented before the adjournment, Mr. Case gained ownership of the property by foreclosing a mortgage which he had against it in 1932. The plaintiff claimed that he had an agreement with the defendant by which Mr. Case would hold the property in trust for him but that Mr. Case had refused to turn over the property on demand. He asked the court to vest ownership of the property in him and demanded $10,000 damages.

It is understood the settlement provides for Mr. Case's equity in the property in a manner satisfactory to him and makes way for an arrangement by which John C. Strickland will operate the hotel property as the new proprietor.

Keene United Church W.M.S Holds Meeting

KEENE, May 10.—The W.M.S. of Keene United Church met in the club room on Wednesday with a fair attendance.

Mrs. Jas. McFarlane, treasurer gave the financial report for the first quarter which was encouraging. The average attendance this quarter is considerably increased.

Mrs. J. Campbell sang "A Song of Peace" and appropriate hymns were used in the program in keeping with the "Silver Jubilee."

The ladies will have the usual tea, cent tea and quilting on June 12th, and the various circles are to be reminded of their contribution of quilt blocks.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

STEADY TONE MINE SECTION

Oils, Silvers and Few of Golds Lead Activity on Market.

NO SPECTACULAR GAINS.

TORONTO, May 10 (C.P.).— The Mining Board of the Toronto Exchange failed to pace along with the industrial markets to-day, being content to remain generally steady. Volume was heavy in some issues, particularly the oils and silvers and also in a few of the golds, but the few gains in the oils were not spectacular and these as well as small gains in the silvers, were pared down in the last hour, the board showing a preponderance of unimportant losses at the close.

The boost for the price of bar, silver was sufficient to lift silver shares. Eldorado touched 2.35, but backed up before the close to cut the gain to a few cents. Bear drooped its gain, as did Castle and Nipissing.

The day's top prices were shaded and the close was off for Ajax, and oil selections, while Sarnia, Oils, Acme, Midwal and Home oil closed slightly higher. Royalite touched 25.25 and closed around $25 for a small gain.

In the senior golds Braylorne, Dome, McIntyre and Wright-Hargreaves closed on the up side.

Sherritt responded to the improved export copper price but Noranda and Nudaon Bay remained steady.

OILS RETAIN LIST SPOTLIGHT

Gains Up to Two Points Registered in Heavy Trading at Toronto.

TORONTO, May 10.—(CP).—Oils continued to hold the spotlight on the Toronto industrial market, trading in volume unequalled in more than six months and gains up to two points were registered and held. Fords, Utilities, Banks and Beverages had some soft spots while Steel and Construction shares were inclined to follow the Oils. The day's turnover of close to 80,000 shares was the second largest of the year.

International Petroleum closed at 36 to show a gain of 2¼, and Imperial added about 1¾, while fractions up to ½ were added by Supertest Ordinary, McColl Common and Canadian Oil Common. Thayers was up more than a point and British American ¼.

In the metals prices firm to strong and the beverages received only moderate attention. Industrial Alcohol 'A' and Walkers Common had gains of small fractions, and Distillers Seagrams finished slightly lower.

Losses of ¾ or more showed for Weston, Canada Packers and Canners. Bell Telephone dropped more than a point and United Fuel Pfd. a point.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, May 10. (AP). — The strength of Utilities aided the stock market to overcome considerable realizing in to-day's session. Although the list, as a whole, backed away from its extreme gains in late dealings, the power company issues held around their best.

Advances of 1 to 2 or more points were registered by American Telephone, Peoples Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, Pullman, American Can, Union Carbide, Corn products and United Fruit. Fractional Improvement was shown by U.S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler Standard Oils of New Jersey and California, Santa Fe, Union Pacific and Douglas Aircraft. The late tone was firm. Transfers approximated 1,500,000 shares.

MONTREAL EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, May 10. —(C P)— Changes were generally confined to narrow limits on Montreal Stock Exchange today and the market closed irregular.

Canadian foreign investments firmed ½ at 28 and McColl Frontenac rose ½ at 14½. Southern Canada Power rose ¾ at 19¾ and international Nickel ¼ at 28 while small gains were shown by Canadian Celanese Preferred Rights, Famous Players, National Breweries and others. Ogilvie jumped 5 to 155.

The Duke, seriously ill last month, said he was feeling much better and declined the court's offer to let him sit down while testifying.

He denied any intent to defraud when he pawned the jewelry belonging to the estate of his late mother. He declared he had paid interest on the pledged gems and kept insurance in force with the purpose of redeeming the articles adding he had the money in his pocket to do so."

The Duke's attorney explained the court the Duke received £5,583 (about $27,000) during the year ended in June, 1933, from trustees in America of the estate of his mother, the former Consuelo Del Valle, of the United States.

W. L. Abbott said that delegates were coming from Keene, Indian River, Burleigh and virtually all parts of the riding to choose the C.C.F. candidate for the Dominion elections. This meeting begins at 7 p.m., and will be followed by an open meeting beginning about 8.30, at which the principal address will be given by E. J. Garland, M.P.

Chain Mail Enriches Dead Letter Office

OTTAWA, May 9 (C.P.).—If this chain letter business keeps up, the dead letter office of the Post Office Department stands to be enriched by many dimes.

This morning close on 600 letters of this nature, seized in Hamilton, Ont., and a few from Toronto, arrived at the dead letter office.

Return addresses are on some, the majority are blank.

Those with return addresses will be re-mailed to the senders, while those without will suffer the customary fate of all dead letters — storage for a certain length of time, and then destruction. Of course, anything of value in them becomes the property of the dead letter office, which is just too bad for the get-rich-quick aspirants.

CHARGE OF MANSLAUGHER FACES CAPT. J. C. KELLY

LUNENBURG, N.S., May 10 (CP) —A charge of manslaughter against Captain J. C. Kelly, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police cutter Acadian, was laid here to-day before Magistrate G. E. About 140 kegs of rum were subsequently unloaded from the seized craft.

A WORTHY RECORD.

Richard Lees, lately retired after twenty-five years' service as Public School Inspector, was among those who received the King's Silver Jubilee Medal award. He was formally presented with his award by Mayor Roland Denne at the civic celebrations here on Jubilee Day.

Before his appointment as Inspector, Mr. Lees had nearly thirty years' teaching experience, mainly in High Schools, and he was at one time principal of the Model School at Lindsay.

EXPERIENCE GOOD TEACHER.

Jack Duggan, 16-year-old cyclist, who resides with his parents on London street, was forcibly impressed last evening with the danger of riding with a passenger on the cross-bar of his machine. He was cycling on McDonnel street, with his 10-year-old sister on the cross-bar, when he was involved in collision with a motor car driven north on Aylmer street by a Mr. Sharpe of Warsaw. The children escaped injury but the front wheel of the cycle was smashed.

ROYALTY TAKES SURPRISE DRIVE THROUGH LONDON

Densely Populated Areas Cheer Frantically as King and Queen Appear.

VIEW DECORATIONS.

Lack of Tipsy Revelry Marks Enthusiasm of Metropolis' Greatest Celebration.

By Thomas T. Champion
(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

LONDON, May 10 (C.P. Cable).— Their Majesties sprang a surprise to-day when, to the delight of the multitude gathered around Buckingham Palace to witness the changing of the guard they drove out to see the decorations in some quarters of London.

The tour was absolutely unscheduled and a complete surprise.

The inhabitants of the densely-populated areas visited to-day, with women clustered around street hucksters' stalls in many places, were first surprised to see the trim equipage and then dumfounded when they recognized the occupants.

Shopping baskets were waved frantically by women on the sidewalks while tenants from the upper stories waved dusters or anything they could lay their hands on. The great news spread rapidly ahead, and people rushed from side courts and alleys into the main streets with a great tumult of welcome.

During to-morrow's state drive seventy thousand scholars will have seats in stands in the Mall, Constitution Hill and Piccadilly. Their Majesties begin the drive at 3.15 in the afternoon, and after reaching Marble Arch by a roundabout route will cover a good slice of Marylebone.

Mayors' Reception.

The Mayors of North London's boroughs will tender a reception on the Marylebone Town Hall, after which the drive will be concluded through Oxford Street, Regent Street, and Pall Mall.

While Their Majesties are thus occupied, their sons will appear on their behalf at celebrations in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland, thus fulfilling the King's desire that the commemorations be held "as near as possible to the homes of the people."

The Prince of Wales goes to Cardiff to-night, returning Saturday night. The Duke and Duchess of York travel to Edinburgh, and the Duke of Gloucester will go aboard a destroyer, the Achilles, to Belfast.

It is no more than the sober truth that never within living memory has London presented such spectacles as have been seen this week. Loyal enthusiasm has been equalled by orderliness and good temper throughout the day, and far into the night. Not a sign of tipsy revelling has been reported in any part of the Metropolis.

Hyde Park has been kept open all night, by the King's orders, to enable stranded ones to rest on the grass or the benches. The head keeper reports hardly an instance of even slight damage to its valuable flower-beds and plantations.

Eight Cafe Pickets Jailed In Edmonton

EDMONTON May 10 (CP)—Police to-day had scored their first victory in their efforts to break-up picketing of city cafes where waitresses are on strike against low wages and working conditions.

Police yesterday arrested eight leaders among single unemployed strikers on charges of vagrancy and "impeding foot traffic" in front of a downtown restaurant.

As officers removed the arrested men to jail a mob of 400 followed and gathered around the courthouse where they shouted and booed between demands the men be released.

Officers with riot clubs were sent out from the building where every city constable and 42 Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers were stationed in case of emergency and were able to disperse the crowd with little difficulty.

All Whites Stricken By Flu, Alaskan Town

SEATTLE, Wash., May 10 (AP)— All white residents of Wainwright, Alaska, were reported ill with influenza to-day, with no one able to care for the sick.

The situation was disclosed in a terse message from Sgt. Stanley Morgan, Army Signal Corps, at Point Barrow, Alaska, to Col. George E. Kumpe here.

The epidemic was reported under control at Point Barrow, where 13 persons have died. The last report direct from Wainwright said 200 persons were sick and one death had occurred.

Woman Given Fair Limbs To Attract Man, Says Vicar, But Bans Bare Legs In Church

DUDLEY, Worcestershire, England, May 10 (A.P.)—Girls with bare legs and painted lips were banned from the parish church at Sedgley near here to-day by order of the Vicar, the Rev. Harold Marley.

The pastor warned his feminine parishioners he would not only eject from the church all girls who neglected to don their hosiery but he would also refuse to administer the Sacrament to women with carmined lips.

"I consider the girl who thrusts her unclothed flesh before the attention—frequently the close attention because of the nearness in the pew—of the male sex is doing a cattish trick.

"The male mind, being what it is, is bound to be diverted. If it be said, 'Wel, I don't think much of the male mind,' my answer would be 'It is as it was made.'

"Woman was given those fair limbs to attract man, but only so that she might help him through life and not hinder him."

Spain Seals Gold In Unique Vaults

MADRID, May 10—Drill-proof, blast-proof and revolt-proof, are the claims for the massive new subterranean vaults of the Bank of Spain, where the nation's gold reserve will be stored.

In addition to the three-billion-peseta reserve, the vaults will hold more than eleven billions of pesetas (about $1,430,000,000) in silver and negotiable securities.

The vaults lay seven stories beneath the surface of the street. Their depth, together with the fact that the walls are seven feet thick and made of armor steel so hard that it turns the edge of a chisel, makes direct attack by tunneling virtually impossible.

Through a passageway around the vaults guards will patrol constantly. Passages are guarded by strategically placed machine gun slots.

The larger well for the passage of the money trucks has another protection system. Its bottom is a deep water-filled moat. The entrance facing the elevator can be reached only by a drawbridge with a runway is equipped with grooves for the money truck wheels.

COST OF UNEMPLOYMENT THREE MILLS IN CITY

City Treasurer Adams told The Examiner this afternoon that any effective plan that would relieve the municipality of the cost of unemployment relief would be a saving to the ratepayers of slightly more than three mills.

The council estimated its relief bill for this year at $85,000, which does not include the cost of hospitalization.

A letter from the Provincial Government to the council recently intimated that the province was willing to share relief costs with the Federal Government, thereby removing the burden of relief directly from the property owners in Ontario.

C.C.F. Opposes Plan.

TORONTO, May 10.—(CP).— A special exective meeting of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, Ontario section, to-day recorded its opposition to a plan of C. L. Burton, Toronto merchandising executive, for a "youths' re-establishment corps," organized along military lines for those from 17 to 22 years old.

The C.C.F. "unaimously resolved to organize province-wide protests against the outrageous proposal," which it described as "a further step towards Fascism in Canada".

"The Canadain people will not tolerate any further encroachments upon their Democratic privileges," said the C.C.F. statement. "It is evil enough to have national defence camps wherein the men there resident are subject to military discipline and deprived for all practical purposes of their franchise and right of political action, but it would be a further disastrous blow to the principles of British liberty to confine youth in concentration camps."

The statement said Mr. Burton, who announced his plan in Regina last night, "apparently believes that the paternal solicitude of sergeant-majors would be an improvement upon the loving care of Canadian fathers and mothers."

PREPARATIONS ARE OUTLINED UNITED CHURCH ANNIVERSARY

Large Gathering of Delegates at Bay of Quinte Conference, Belleville.

MEMORIAL SERVICE.

BELLEVILLE, May 10.—Continuing the second day of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the W.M.S. of the United Church in Bridge street Church Wednesday afternoon, Lindsay Presbyterial conducted the opening session. Mrs. J. R. McCrimmon, of Beaverton, was in charge of the service of worship.

Mrs. J. Calder, of Beaverton, and Mrs. M. McKenzie, of Uptergrove, assisted in the worship service. Mrs. A. N. Burns, of Toronto, followed with an address on "Our Tenth Anniversary." She outlined the preparations being made for the anniversary in June, stated that a huge pageant would be staged in October in Toronto as a part of the celebration. The pageant will depict the history of the three churches, Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational, prior to their union as the United Church of Canada.

Brief outlines of the Presbyterial plans for the anniversary were given by the Presbyterial presidents, Mrs. William Haggerty, Cherry Valley; Mrs. S. L. Terril, Wooler; Mrs. R. M. Seymour, Cataraqui; Mrs. J. R. McCrimmon, Beaverton; Mrs. Norman White, Myrtle Station; Mrs. C. M. Scott, Peterborough, and Mrs. J. L. Callan, Smith's Falls. Special reference was made to the school of leaders, which is held by the Presbyterials each summer at Whitby. During the afternoon Miss Sylvia Tett rendered a vocal solo.

An open forum discussion during which reports of the findings for the various departments were given as follows: Mrs. H. T. Thompson, Whitby, for the Christian Stewardship and Finance; Mrs. B. L. Barnes, Peterborough, recording secretary; Mrs. J. G. Sills, Foxboro; Mrs. J. E. Mabee, Odessa; Mrs. D. R. Clare, Brechin; Mrs. W. J. Garland, Cobourg, and Mrs. S. E. Revelle, Kingston.

An impressive memorial service for those who had passed on during the past year was conducted by Miss L. Gandier of Napanee. Seven beautiful roses were placed in a basket, representing the Presbyterials in the conference. A fitting selection was sung by Mrs. C. Ellis as a part of the ceremony. The afternoon session was closed with the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, which was conducted by Rev. James Semple, Belleville, and Rev. E. W. Rowland, of Stirling. During the banquet in the evening, Dr. Ian E. Revelle, of Luchow, China, gave an interesting talk with motion pictures, illustrating the work in China.

Rev. James Semple acted as chairman of the evening session, the worship service being in charge of Oshawa Presbyterial. Mrs. C. R. Carscallen of Whitby and Mrs. P. L. Jull of Brooklin took part in the service. A mission band playlet by members of the Holloway Church Mission Band of this city was next presented. Greetings from the Conference were extended by Rev. L. S. Wight of Kingston, after which vocal solos by Mrs. Bradley and Miss Leona Riggs were enjoyed.

Mrs. H. G. Brown of Chengtu, China, gave the address of the evening, speaking on the subject, "Our Work in West China." She explained exactly what the missionary work in China meant to the Chinese race, and outlined the tremendous change in mode of living during the past twenty years. She declared that the missionary work was the greatest revolutionary force in China to-day. Mrs. H. Morrison of Lindsay gave the dedicatory prayer following the address, after which the session was closed with a prayer by Rev. I. B. Naylor.

Thursday morning's session was in charge of Peterborough Presbyterial, with Mrs. A. I. Brown and Mrs. H. P. L. Seymour of Peterborough, conducting the service. Reports were received from Mrs. W. J. MacPherson of Woodville, Mrs. D. A. Scott, Claremont, Mrs R. L. Thornbury, Perth, Mrs. V. B. Spargo, Bowmanville, Miss E. Denoon, Lindsay, Mrs. N. S. Robertson, Arnprior, and Mrs. J. G. Bews of Brockville led the study of the World Problems, after which Mrs C. M. Scott of Peterborough conducted a half-hour period on the missionary work of India.

HEPBURN PLANS ON INCOME TAX

of taxable income, now exempt by virtue of place of residence, might be taxed for relief purposes.

"If, however," he said, "the province takes over the question of income tax levy, there certainly should be some arrangement whereby a city such as Toronto would not lose that source of revenue."

Must Be Reimbursment

Alderman Nathan Phillips of Toronto, said that if Premier Hepburn follows his proposal up with legislation "it will be tantamount to highway robbery, unless the province reimburses the municipalities which now levy this tax with a sum equal to the amount taken away, or relieve such municipalities of some of their obligations."

Loss of revenue to Toronto if municipal income tax were abolished would be about $1,700,000, based on last year's assessments. The sum would have been higher in previous years.

Members of Forest Hill village council objected to the idea on the ground that their relief problem was negligible, and they would benefit little if the government assumed a greater portion of relief costs.

The Markets

pected after to-day's dealings are at an end.

Wheat closed firm, ¼c to ⅝c above Wednesday's finish, July 96c to 96⅝c, corn ¼c to ⅜c up, July 82⅛c to 82⅛c, oats ⅛c to ⅜c advanced, and provisions varying from 2c decline to a rise of 17c.

Preceding the advance of Chicago wheat values, the market here displayed a sagging tendency, influenced by rains in Western Canada, the North-western United States, Nebraska, and soft-wheat States. The downturns of prices were also accompanied by some let-up of inflation talk, a circumstance ascribed to fresh predictions Congress would sustain a veto of the Patman Bonus Bill. In addition, notice was taken of estimated big Argentine wheat shipments this week, 5,695,000 bushels against 2,815,000 bushels last week and 1,941,000 a year ago.

Corn and oats rallied with wheat. Provisions averaged higher, helped by suggestions of better export demand.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 10. — Despite impending heavy wheat shipments from the Argentine and small Canadian exports this week, traders showed little eagerness to sell on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday.

Firmness at Chicago and Liverpool exerted some influence on the trade and wheat prices closed a dull session ¼c to ⅜c higher, May at 87c and July at 88½c, after holding steady throughout.

Scarcity of offerings was matched by an equal slim flow of buying orders, and pit operations dwindled to a minimum. Export sales of Canadan wheat were small, and traders anticipated the week's clearances would again be light.

Argentina, it was forecast, would clear 5,500,000 bushels of wheat this week, the heaviest week's exports since January. The estimate had little effect marketwise either here or at Liverpool, where prices closed ⅝d higher. Chicago was up ⅜c.

Cash and coarse grains trading was slow.

Weddings

PARKS—GRAY

(Examiner Correspondence)

TWEED, May 10.—St. Paul's Anglican Rectory, Roslin, was the scene of an interesting wedding on Wednesday when Mary Ethel Patricia, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Gray of Latta, became the brideof Joseph Orlean Parks, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Blake Parks of Latta.

COLONY RETURN NOT DESIRABLE

African Diamond Magnate Claims Move Only Increase German Ambitions.

MEAN END OF PEACE.

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, May 10 (CP Cable). — Cold water was thrown to-day on unofficial suggestions South Africa might be willing to consent to return of Southwest Africa, former German colony, to the Reich in possible future negotiations with Germany. Southwest Africa is now administered under mandate as an integral part of the Union of South Africa.

Sir Abe Bailey, South African diamond magnate, in a letter to The Daily Telegraph, strenuously objected to any suggestions concerning the return of Southwest Africa and editorially the newspaper declared: "The recent history of his mandated territory suggests its return to German control does not come within the range of possibilities."

High Endanger Rand

"Southwest Africa once again in German hands," wrote Sir Abe, "would provide a jumping - off ground for more ambitious projects. The Rand is the real gold reserve of the British Empire. There are other rich prizes on the African continent and in these days, when development of air power makes possible realization of dreams of conquest which would have been dismissed as fantastic a few years ago, it behooves the powers responsible for the settlement of Africa after the war to watch most jealously any attempts to change the status quo.

"There would be no peace for Africa, and therefore for the world, if the power which has transformed Europe into an armed camp were given a foothold on the continent from which it was driven by the sacrifice of the soldiers of Britain and of the Union of South Africa."

truncheons, and four of the workers were arrested.

Following the Premier's first visit, the men returned to work while the Government considered their demands for a 25 per cent. increase in food allowance; open voucher for clothing; relief for single unemployed over 18; withdrawal of rioting charges against the four arrested; $1 a week for rent, and a $2.80 voucher for clothing. An open voucher is one negotiable at any store in the municipality, rather than a special store with which the council has an agreement. Some unemployed had complained that they have to walk miles to cash their vouchers.

The Premier came back to Welland last night and rejected all demands except the one for "open voucher," and compromised with a 10 per cent. increase in food allowance, which he said was 15 per cent. more than the relief distributed in his "home-town," St. Thomas.

The unemployed held a meeting and decided to go on strike again.

Premier Hepburn told them that if they chose to listen to outside agitators, who were behind the strike, he had no sympathy for them. If they refused his terms and went back on strike, he said last night, it would be war to the "bitter end."

Informed of the decision of the men, Mr Hepburn said the 20 extra police at Welland would maintain law and order.

ARTHUR G. LAWLESS.

LAKEFIELD, May 10 (Examiner Correspondence). — Requiem High Mass was sung by Rev. J. G. Garvey in St. Paul's Church on Thursday morning for Arthur G. Lawless. The church was filled to capacity with friends who paid a tribute of respect to one of Lakefield's outstanding citizens.

Rev. J. J. Garvey spoke from the text, "Ye know not the day," speaking of the passing of this devoted churchman at the Easter season when from the dark glow of Good Friday the world rejoices in the happy Easter. The rejected, humiliated Christ died on the first Good Friday on the Cross and rose to glorious life on Easter morn. Death is dreaded and feared by mortals; there is no need for fear if we are prepared. The man who travels the path of duty has one eye on heaven and will welcome death if he knows and keeps the commandments of God, and will be prepared for a rich reward of God in heaven. It is only the sinner who has need of worry over death. Death to the Christian is but a portal which ushers us into a state of happiness. Let us pray that when the summons comes we will find our house swept and garnished, prepared to hear God's call. He, the deceased heard the call with a cheery smile; his soul was at peace with God, and he feared not death; and he knew better than anyone how near he was to death. Let us continue our prayers for him who was always ready to lend a helping hand to us. He was a member of the Communion of Saints, and his soul will never die.

The pall-bearers were: G. A. Charlton, W. J. Charlton, G. J. Elmsley, Dr. J. R. Fraser, Captain J. A. Johnston, W. W. Leonard, J. A. Johnston, W. W. Leonard, Captain Frank Morin, W. G. Morrison. Interment was made in St. Mary's Cemetery, Young's Point.

Arthur G. Lawless was born in Eastern Ontario, north of Ottawa, and has been a resident of Lakefield for about twenty-five years, where he was widely known as the proprietor of the Lakefield Inn. He was president of the Lakefield Rink Company, a member of the High School Board, a Councillor for 1934, and a man who had the interests of the community at heart, and his citizenship was always expressed in service and loyalty, and many men and women found in him a good friend, always ready to aid, and never asking for reward.

Lakefield has lost a good citizen, one of the best, and he leaves behind a place hard to fill. A committee for public celebration always included Mr. Lawless, and he was a member o fthe village Diamond Jubilee Committee. He was one of the leading Liberals and a devout member of St. Paul's Church, active in all its undertakings and loyal in its support.

He is survived by his wife, three sons, Langley of Camp Borden, Lionel of Toronto, and Pat at home, two daughters, Margaret of Montreal and Kathleen at home. His mother resides in Toronto, also one sister, Miss Rose Lawless, and a sister, Mrs. Robert Richardson, in Sudbury, and a brother Alexander in Miami, Florida.

PLOT IS BARED TO SECURE CASH

from Montreal where he had been living for the past seven years, and he wished to discuss with witness some matters relative to the estate of his mother the late Mrs. Harry Winch.

Outlines Plot

Mr. Laplante said Winch had produced a $5,000.00 cheque bearing the name of E. A. Peck, which had been forged. The idea Winch told him was to present the cheque at the branch of the Bank of Commerce here for payment. Winch said he would have his "confederate," at Mr. Peck's home, in the event that the cheque was questioned by the bank.

"Would it be correct to say that these confederates would be on Mr. Peck's house to force him to tell the bank to ish the forged cheque?" asked the Crown Attorney.

"Yes", replied witness.

"Were these confederates associated with Winch ?"

"I imagine they would be; but I don't know them".

"This was a forged cheque for $5,000.00 payable to whom?"

"I forget. I believe it was payable to Reginald Winch", witness answered.

"Where is the cheque?"

"I have not got it. It was burned up".

Identifies Pistol

Mr. Laplante identified a Luger automatic pistol and cartridge clip as those he had taken from the accused on the night of the visit. The pistol was wrapped in a paper parcel.

"You had better let me have this Winch", Mr. Laplante testified he had said. "I'll put it out of the way".

Witness said he had often tried to keep Winch out of trouble on previous occasions and he had taken charge of the pistol to be sure it was not used to any evil purpose.

During his identification of the pistol, Mr. Laplante with a nonchalant flourish of the weapon remarked, "Winch showed me an instrument something like this."

The Magistrate seated in close proximity to the witness and to the business end of the automatic, warned: "Don't point that thing at me."

"What di dyou do with the pistol," the Crown asked.

"I said you had better leave that with me. I'll put it out of the way. Winch said all right. I brought it to my office on the Monday morning, and Detective-Sergeant Meagher came up and asked me for it a few days later. he officer said "You have a shooting iron or a snatch iron belonging to Winch."

"Get Snatch Iron"

"I replied I am not acknowleging I have it here and Meagher said to me we have a paper of Buck's with a message on it saying: 'Dutch, get snatch iron from Osias'."

The Crown suggested that in gangster parlance 'snatch iron' meant a gun to be used in a kidnapping.

Winch was in custody at the time on a vagrancy charge, and Mr. Laplante refused to hand over the gun until he had consulted with Winch. When witness spoke to Winch in the cells the accused remarked "You have no gun of mine." He afterwards admitted it, witness stated and requested Mr. Llaplante, "All right, give it to them."

With reference to Winch's alleged confederates in the plot, Mr. McElderry said: "Tell us about these other men that were to be here."

"I have never seen any of them," the witness replied.

"Who was the man that was to have interviewed Mr. Peck?"

Confederates Unknown

"I don't know. Winch just told me they were to be here. They were to go to Mr. Peck's house on Monday and stay there overnight and the cheque was to have been presented at the bank on Tuesday morning for the purpose of cashing the cheque."

"What were you told these men were to do?"

"Force Mr. Peck to tell the bank the cheque was all right if a call came from the bank" was the reply.

"I told Winch: 'I don't think Mr. Peck will do that', and Winch said: 'Oh he'll do it if he has a pencil shoved in his ear'," witness added.

"What did he mean by the term 'pencil' Mr. McElderry questioned.

"I don't know."

Cross-examined by Mr Gordon the witness stated that Mr. Peck was one of the executors of the estate of the late Mrs. Harry Winch. Other executors were Arthur A. H. Robinson and Edmund Rye. Accused had told witness there was delay in the settling of the estate and that it might take years before matters were finally cleared up.

"What had the gun to do with Mr. Peck?" counsel for the defence queried.

"There was not a word connecting Mr. Peck with the gun" witness admitted.

Reason He Took Gun

Mr. Laplante stated he had been a friend of Winch's for years and had often tried to keep Winch out of trouble. That was the reason he took the gun from Winch, he stated.

Detective Sergeant William Meagher testified that on the Monday following March 24 last he went to the office of Orias de Laplante and secured a pistol. He described the pistol as a German Luger automatic in "first rate condition." The magazine contained nine live cartridges of a size between .32 and .38 calibre.

Mr. Gordon—"Just big enough to make a hole in a man." (Laughter).

The detective interpreted the gangster word "snatch" as meaning kidnapping. A "snatch iron" was a gun to be used in a kidnapping; while the term to "put a pencil in his ear" mean to hold a gun to a man's head, witness testified.

Questioned regarding the note referred to in Mr. Laplante's evidence in which Winch was stated to have referred to a "snatch iron," the witness said, he had not seen the document but had been told about it by Chief Constable Newhall.

Mr. Gordon Objects.

When the Crown Attorney announced that Detective Meagher's evidence closed the case, Mr. Gordon objected strenuously and demanded that the Crown produce the note alleged to have been written by Winch.

Informed that the document was in the hands of Toronto city police, who were said by Chief Newhall to be investigating Winch's alleged complicity in "white slave trafficking," Mr. Gordon insisted that it be produced by the Crown. "We maintain," he said, "that there is absolutely no connection between the stories produced in evidence and the charge against the accused."

DRAMATIC CLUB OF ST. LUKE'S IS AWARDED PRIZE

St. John's Club is Close Second in A.Y.P.A. Dramatic Contest.

FOUR CLUBS ENTERED.

Concluding a competitive series of amateur thratricals, the Dramatic Club of St. Luke's Church was awarded the silver cup of the Anglican Young People's Association of the Peterborough District on the merit sof their presentation of "The Trunk from India" at All Saints' Church last night.

The other contestants were the A.Y.P.A. entries from St. John's Church, All Saints' Church and St. George's Church of Hastings, and the judges were Adrian Macdonald, Dr. Ralph C. Honey, and E. V. Morphet.

All Saints' young people in "Advertising for a Husband" and the Hastings group in "The Cure-All" had previously made their bids for championship honors, and St. John's A.Y.P.A. in "Freezing a Mother-in-Law" and St. Luke's played to an appreciative audience in the Parish Hall of All Saints last night.

Comparing notes and compiling points the judges declared St. Luke's the winner of the district trophy with a score of 89; St. John's was close behind with 85; St. George's of Hastings were credited with 80 points, and All Saints' 76.

"St. John's had an excellent cast," Vernon Morphet said in making the announcement for the judges, but St. Luke's reflected the smoothness of better training."

The members of the cup winners for St. Luke's were Agnes Moore, Edith Wells, Roma Reid, Bernard Pammett, Norman Heath, William Davies, and W. Moulle. Their lines were well delivered, the action was convincing, and their stage presence was pleasing, and altogether their light comedy production moved along with promptness. The cast was nicely balanced, with special competence shown by the young ladies. Mr. Pammett gave an agreeable account of the leading role for the men, and although Norman Heath had a secondary part, he handled it with distinction.

St. John's players were: Frank Pammett, George Francis, Griffin Young, Miss Ena Young, and Miss Hilda Phillips.

The competition was conducted by the dramatics group of the District A.Y.P.A., with Cecil Hope as chairman assisted by Cameron Vance and William Carter.

Reg. Dyer's orchestra played a delightful program during the intermissions.

Japs Apply Trade Law Against Canada

TOKYO, May 10.—(C.P. Cable)—Although date of application and products to be affected have not been decided, the Japanese government will apply her trade protection law against Canada, it was announced today by a government spokesman. It was learned 100 per cent surtax would also be imposed against Canadian imports.

Authoritative sources indicated the step was being taken in an endeavor to speed up negotiations between Canada and Japan for a trade agreement.

It is understood Hon. Herbert Marler, Canadian minister, has explained press of other matters at Ottawa has delayed Canadian action on the negotiations.

CHAIRS SEIZED FOR JUDGMENT

of the judgment. I telephoned the Company this morning, and they told me the cheque had been mailed yesterday, and should have arrived in the morning mail.

"This matter has not been neglected by the city in any way, and the Company told me there had been some slip up at their end which had caused the delay in forwarding their cheque."

Meanwhile the city's officials, including several of the aldermen who were among the first to hear of the unusual, precipitate and wholly unexpected action of putting the bailiff in possession of long hallowed chattels of the municipality, the stately chair of the Chief Magistrate and the aldermanic furniture which was vaguely regarded as being inviolable.

An incipient case of the jitters was the first reaction by the several aldermen to the presence of the bailiff in the council chamber, but after they had heard an explanation of the circumstances their official anxiety turned to several colors of resentment slightly modified by the humor of the situation of the bailiff occupying the mayor's chair until the judgment for $110 has been paid.

Mayor Denne Comments

"Mr. Gordon must have had his eye a long time on that old antique chair the mayors occupy," Mayor Denne commented to The Examiner this afternoon. "Seeing he couldn't get it one way, he wanted it any other way, so he hires the bailiff to get it for him.

"I think it is in fairly good condition. At least he can't say I have worn it out with long sessions. Probably we will have to look around the second-hand shops to get anything like that chair. Anyway, the citizens will appreciate a big joke like that. It helps to relieve the last of the depression."

Meeting Monday Night

"What are you going to do about next Monday night's adjourned meeting of the council," The Examiner enquired.

"I don't know whether Mr. Gordon will let us into the council chamber or not. You will have to ask him about that. We might sit in the police court. I don't know whether the council will be in a hurry to pay the account now, even if the cheque is in the noon mail. Anybody who's in as big a hurry as all that needs to be shown how ridiculous his action appears to the ratepayers.

If we don't get the chairs back, probably Pearson will sell them at auction before Monday, we can bring in some benches from the police court room, and somehow we will manage to get the city's business done in spite of Mr. Gordon's attempt to block it."

Cheque Here at Noon.

The insurance company's cheque was received by City Solicitor Corkery in the early afternoon mail to-day.

"It seems that there must have been some misunderstanding or accidental delay by the company," Mr. Corkery stated.

City Hall information this afternoony was to the effect that the City Solicitor needn't be in any hurry about paying Mr. Gordon.

Home and School Association News

QUEEN ALEXANDRA

The regular meeting of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association was held in the Kindergarten room on Tuesday evening.

A short program followed consisting of piano solos by Joan Paterson, readings by June Wall, and piano solos by Burton McBride.

The feature of the evening was a debate by the Sr. IV. Class, as to whether radio advertising was better than newspaper advertising. This debate was entirely the work of the pupils, who had their own judges, chairman and time keeper, and it was well carried out.

Those on the affirmative side were Margaret Westbye (captain), Bill McEwen, Audrey Rose, John Elliott. On the negative side were Alvin King (captain), Ken Brown, Shirley Richardson, Jessie Reynolds.

Helen Hornick was chairman and the judges were Gwen Davies, Muriel Theobald, Earl Armstrong, Harold Morrow. Timekeeper, Arthur Winslow.

While the judges were making their decision, the audience was favored with a guitar selection by Ford Jarvis and Donald Carter, and piano solo by Billy Henry. The negative side won the debate.

Reports were then given from the following delegates to the convention: Mrs. Henry, Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Telford, Mrs. Tremaine, Mrs. Graham, and Mrs. Touchbourn.

The convenors of the various committees then gave their reports for the month; after which the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

CHAIN LETTER FAD FLOURISHES

dollars by persons elsewhere in the Province.

Stenogs Work Overtime.

At any rate, typewriters, pens and pencils are being givn a good workout in the city to-day. The fad has taken the city in a full sweep. Stenographers in dozens of offices are working overtime on their own chain letters and those of their friends. Boys and girls at the Collegiate are working at top speed despite the handicap of their watchful teachers' supervision.

Although the amounts involved in the chains in progress elsewhere in America range as high as five and ten dollars, 10 and 25 cent chains seem to be the limit around here. Nor have local addicts been seriously enough bitten by the racket to follow American examples in having affidavits of their "prosperity contributions" sworn.

"The trouble with this racket is that there are too many wise guys," one chain letter sender complained to-day. "A lot of people are sending the letters on in the hopes of reaping a fortune but omitting to contribute their dimes. None of us will get rich that way."

One canny individual states he has been willing to risk 15 cents worth of stamps in the racket, but that he is not going to forward his dime prosperity contribution until he gets his own first dime.

Checking Babies For Varied Type

NEW YORK, May 10. (CP).—One of the first adoption agencies to use psychological tests on babies was the Child Placing Adoption Committee of the State Charities Aid Association, which began, three years ago, to test each baby to find out the probable development so that the children might have a chance to get the type of home to which their mentality suited them.

This agency, one of the first to use mental tests, has given 335 psychological examinations to babies, testing them with blocks and bells and moving things. Many of these babies have been given two or three tests to find out the rate of progress they made under good conditions of care. In some cases it has been found that the retardation in children, as shown by the tests, was the result of inadequate care, and when the difficulties under which the child was growing were corrected, the mental rating was increased.

Although the psychologist at all times is in general control of the situation, the mental tests consist largely in letting the child under examination do what he wants to do.

JEWS REBUILD PALESTINE; NEW NATION SPRINGING UP

Tel Aviv Becomes Great City in a Few Short Years—Is Ultra Modern.

IS SOCIALISTIC.

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
Central Press Canadian Writer

JERUSALEM, May 10.—Over the whole of the Transjordanian emirate lies the anguished stillness which accompanies poverty, hunger and human misery. The contrast between this purely Arabic country and the new Palestine, just across the Jordan river, is something so startling that on first sight it almost takes your breath away. On the one side of the biblical river with its innumerable sacred reminiscenses, you traverse fertile fields and green meadows, which are inhabited by a handful of primitive nomads of incredible backwardness, on the other shore in the Land of Israel, you enter the stony barren hills of Judea and the godforsaken wilderness of the Dead Sea district.

Nature has favored Transjordan, but Jewish initiative has turned the wilderness of Palestine into a garden. The first impression of Palestine, even after a short absence, is bewildering. The outward manifestations of life bring to mind the seething turmoil of the Soviet Union, on a smaller scale of course. The new Palestinian life is characterised by the same feverish activity, the same idealistic motive power and the same heroic pioneering spirit as the great human and social experiment in Russia. You cannot escape the feeling in Palestine that something very worthwhile is in the course of gestation.

Building New Commonwealth

This is my seventh visit to the Holy Land since the close of the war, but it was the first time that I approached Palestine from the direction in which the ancient Hebrews came after their forty-year sojourn in the desert. I passed Sinai, the mountain where the law was given, I saw the oases in the desert where the Jews lingered and where they ate the manna which fell from heaven. My feet went in the age-old paths that were trodden by Moses and Joshua. In this strange and mysterious land, where every stone speaks to you, if your spirit is attuned to the grandeur of the past, you still feel after all these years the lingering presence of Amos and Isaiah and Jesus. But the new Palestine is not a land of interest because of pious memories alone. A new life of great beauty is unfolding here. The sentiment of religious reverence is heightened by the spectacle of a new Hebraic commonwealth being built on the very principles of social justice enunciated by those Hebrew prophets of old.

It is not a mere freak of history that the guiding principle of the new Palestine is socialism. Socialism, you see it here before your eyes with an inescapable inference, is the successor, the modern adaptation of the ancient Hebraic view of life. The corporate Jewish life which was interrupted by the destruction of the second temple in the year 70, is resumed today after nearly 2,000 years, with the fundamental principles of the Hebrew prophets restated in a modern scientific terminology.

Hold Huge Celebrations

There are two hundred and fifty thousand visitors in Palestine this spring. The great sporting festival at Tel Aviv, known as the Maccabad, the Jewish Olympic games, drew fifty thousand sportsmen from all over the world. The Purim and Passover celebrations brought in tens of thousands more. In spite of the fact that scores of hotels have gone up in the various Palestinian cities in the last few years, a visitor has great difficulty in finding a room there. The streets are crowded, the new theatres are jammed, the boulevard cafes with their gay and fashionably dressed crowds in Tel Aviv offer a spectacle which makes you think of Deauville or St. Juan-les-Pins or some other resort city on the Cote L'Azure of France.

There is prosperity in Palestine. Prosperity is so rare these days that the first question that enters your mind is whether the present feverish tempo in Palestine is something permanent, whether it will last. Whether it last or not, (I hope to speak of this again in a subsequent article) this much is certain; it is a pleasant experience to be for once in a land where a buoyant undertone of optimism drowns out the note of insecurity and uncertainty which is uppermost in so many other countries in the world today. Palestine is a refreshing experience after the gloom which hangs like of death over crisis-ridden Europe.

Sprang From the Sand

A picture of Palestine? Tel Aviv has grown to metropolitan dimensions. A barren heap of sand fifteen years ago, it is today the Paris of the near East. The population of forty-five thousand which the all-Jewish city had on the occasion of my last visit has jumped to 160,000. Ben Yehuda street, Rothschild boulevard, Allenby road, struggling village streets a few years ago, now run along for miles, completely built up with two parallel rows of modern villas of cumistic style. There is an opera, there is a Russian theatre, there are new movie palaces as fine and spacious as New York houses. There are bars de luxe and ice cream parlors.

Near the casino at the waterfront, a brilliantly illumined stretch of shore boulevard makes you think of Atlantic City. There were five art exhibitions going on in Tel Aviv in the week I spent there. Among them was one by the Parisian master, Max Band, the painter of Rembrandtesque clair-obscures; one by Rubin and one by Chana Orloff, the sculptress. When you hear that Orlova sold sixteen pieces of soudpture at an average of 6,000 pounds, you gain an idea of the affluence, the wealth now concentrating in Palestine. Art objects are not sold much these days in other countries. Artists are starving as a matter of fact in Paris, but not in Palestine. This does not mean that a new Palestinian art is in process of creation. For that it is too early. No distinctive indigenous art has appeared in America yet and America is 300 years old. The New Palestine is but ten years old.

Increasing Rapidly.

Twenty-six newspapers and periodicals have made their appearance in the various cities, one of them in the English language, two or three in German, two in French and the rest in Hebrew. Libraries are jumping out of the ground like mushrooms after a rainstorm.

But the main thing for the time being is construction of houses and factories. Every ship discharges a load of immigrants. Forty-seven thousand newcomers entered the land last year. Twenty whole streets are going up in Tel Aviv alone, twenty streets with modern apartment-houses. Tiny suburbs have grown into flourishing towns. And not only in the neighborhood of Tel Aviv. The same fantastic spectacle, fantastic is not exaggeration, may be seen near Jerusalem, Haifa, Tiberias, Safed and other spots. Palestine has prosperity. Palestine is on the upgrade with a bang.

China is to have seven new short-wave radio stations.

Holy Land Becoming An Industrial State

Instead of the agricultural development they hoped for, those behind the re-establishment of the Jewish race in Palestine are seeing an industrial nation coming into being. Not all, however have left the land, as the youthful German Jew laboring with the hoe (ABOVE) indicates. At the LEFT, Jews, many of them university graduates, are quarrying and crushing limestone to build stone roads in the Holy Land. Lower inset show excavation for the first power house on the River Jordan in progress. With good roads and electrical power, industrial progress of the nation is hastened.

TEST CO-OPERATION OF BRITISH FORCES

Plans Laid for Manoeuvres on Land and in Air in September.

LONDON, May 10 (C.P.)—Important manoeuvres of land and air forces will be undertaken in connection with this year's military demonstrations.

Seven or eight Royal Air Force squadrons will be engaged during the period Sept. 17-20 under the direction of the Chief of Staff, General Sir Archibald Montgomery-Massingberd, over the counties of Sussex, Hampshire and Wiltshire. The air forces will be made up of four army- co-operation squadrons, two fighter squadrons and one or two day bomber units.

Elaborate plans in course of preparation are designed to test thoroughly the rightful place of the airplane in army liaison. All of the aircraft will be restricted to their assigned duties.

LARGE AUDIENCE GREETS STEPHENS

Bethany Tabernacle is Filled to Capacity to Hear Evangelist.

An interested and representative crowd gathered at the Bethany Tabernacle last night to welcome back for the evening Rev. H. L. Stephens who conducted a successful campaign in the city some weeks ago. Mr. Stephens spoke at a united meeting of the churches in Lindsay on Wednesday night, and is stopping over for a couple of nights in Peterborough before going on to another series of meetings in Western Ontario. Mr. Stephens has just closed a successful campaign in the High Park Baptist Church in Toronto where hundreds from all parts of the city attended, and there were wonderful results because of his ministry.

Mr. Stephens spoke from the text Exodus 10. 26: "There shall not an hoof be left behind." He said in part: God was about to deliver Israel from old Pharoah and the land of Egypt. One plague after another had been sent and at last Pharoah gave them permission to go. He offered, however, four compromises to Moses in which he might trap them and thus make their journey a failure. From the days of Satan's attack in the garden and his suggestive lies to Eve, he has been on the alert to deceive and hinder God's people from obeying God. His first compromise was, "Go sacrifice to your God in the land," Exodus 8, 25. In other words, Worship God but stay in Egypt. With this Satan has deceived many people who have thought they could serve God, but remain in the world, have no change of heart, make no public confession of Christ, live a self-righteous life and ignore the atoning work of Jesus Christ on the cross. The next compromise was, "Don't go very far away." This is a very subtle one. Many accept Christ, but many still hold on to the things of the world, godless pleasures and habits. Many times they are snared by old Pharoah again and go back to the beggarly things of this life and its alluring powers. The third and fourth compromises are "Go ye that are men" and "Leave your flocks and herds." Moses said, "There shall not an hoof be left behind."

To-night Mr. Stephens is giving a stirring address in the Park Street Baptist Church, and a large crowd is expected to attend.

MARRIAGES DROP 17%

TORONTO, May 9 (C.P.) — A serious decline in marriages in Toronto as a result of economic conditions was reported to the Local Conference on Social Welfare today by Miss Dora Wile Sky, General Secretary for Jewish Family Welfare.

There was a decrease of 17.6 per cent in marriage rates last year, she said.

MEDAL AWARDS BRING PROTESTS

Ottawa Swamped With Letters From Those Left Off Jubilee List.

PREPARED BY KING.

OTTAWA, May 10. — Letters of protest have been swamping the Government for the last two or three days from Canadians left off the list of 10,000 medals distributed at the Silver Jubilee of the King. Each expressed indignation that he or she did not receive a medal while somebody else did.

"You can never convince me this country does not want titles," one of the Cabinet Ministers said, pointing to the protests he had received. At the same time he made it clear that no member of the Government nor any Conservative member had made any recommendations.

The basis of the list was established by the King himself, and the Government merely acted in a clerk's role. The King listed about seventy-five categories which he wanted represented on the list. He said, for instance, he wanted to give so many medals to ex-soldiers who had rehabilitated themselves successfully in civil life, and the Canadian Legion supplied the names. The Medical Association selected other names, and nurses' and teachers' organizations. The list was representative, not personal.

A very beautiful patriotic service was held in St. Aidan's Church on Sunday evening in honor of His Majesty, King George's Silver Jubilee. Rev. E. C. Moore spoke in a very fitting manner, and addressed his thoughts especially to the younger generation. The altar looked beautiful as Mrs. Wm. Thompson of Mount Julian very kindly gave the flowers to be placed there.

Miss Margaret Wilson of Hall's Bridge spent Tuesday at the home of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Wilson.

PASTOR ATTACKS LIQUOR TRAFFIC

Toronto Minister Tells of Daughter Being Molested by Two Drunken Men.

AT PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD

TORONTO, May 10 (C.P.)—In an attack against the liquor traffic before the Toronto-Kingston Synod of the Presbyterian Church in St. Paul's Church yesterday, Rev. J. B. Thomson declared on his return home from Wednesday night's session he found his daughter had been publicly molested by two drunken men.

"The two men got into the street car near a beverage room and got off at my daughter's stop," he told the Synod. "They followed her and molested her so she had to run for dear life to get out of their hands. I ran out, but they had gone, else I might not be here to-day."

Pleading for definite action, Mr. Thomson decared the Presbyterian church "had built a wall around itself" and would not co-operate with other bodies. To loud protests from the floor, Mr. Thomson replied, "Well I think I could prove it. At any rate, we are not doing all we might."

Reporting to the Synod a special committee on social service voiced condemnation of unethical business practices "Whereby many profits supersede human values."

In some cases low wages have been paid by employers who realize employees might go on public relief, Rev. Ross Cameron charged, in presenting the report.

Sterilization for the welfare of humanity was urged for those mentally and physically unfit. The increasing number of divorces was deplored as detrimental to the welfare of children and society generally.

GOOD FINANCIAL REPORT IS READ

Officers Elected at Annual Meeting of Hastings Women's Institute.

PATRIOTIC PROGRAM.

HASTINGS, May 10 (Examiner Correspondence) — The Hastings branch of the Women's Institute held their annual business meeting on Tuesday afternoon, May 7th in the Town Hall. The president, Mrs. W. M. Fowlds was in charge of proceedings with Mrs. J. A. Brown as secretary.

Mrs. Sidney Spooner presented the treasurer's report which showed a total raised of $640.99 with expenditures of $624.57 leaving a balance on hand of $16.42 in the bank. The auditor Mr. G. Kerr reported the books examined and found correct.

Mrs. McDonald, district representative read a letter from Mrs. M. Black, district secretary, announcing a district executive meeting to be held in Codrington on Friday, May 17th to discuss and make arrangements for the district annual.

Mrs. W. Fowlds, president of the branch since its organization, in a short address thanked the members for their co-operation, especially the officers who had given her their loyal support. She was pleased they could close their year on a sound financial basis. She valued the friendship of new members and although she could not stand for re-election through illness in the family, expressed the wish that her new successor would have the same loyal support she had received.

The election resulted in the following slate of officers for 1935-36: Hon. President, Mrs. W. Fowlds; president, Mrs. Grant Sine; three vice-presidents, Mrs. Scott Fife of Asphodel, Mrs. Roy King of Percy and Mrs. G. Kerr of Hastings; secretary, Mrs. J. A. Brown; treasurer, Mrs. O. Phillips; pianist, Mrs. Gordon Faux; district representative, Mrs. J. A. MacDonald.

It was moved by Mrs. G. Sine and seconded by Mrs. Gowans that the committee as suggested a few months ago, be a standing committee for relief for the new year, carried.

Mrs. J. A. Walsh voiced the sentiments of all present when she moved a hearty vote of appreciation to Mrs. Fowlds, the retiring president for her faithful services since its organization, in which she capably filled the office—seconded by Miss K. German. Mrs. H. F. Battersby moved a vote of thanks to the officers who worked so successfully during the past year, seconded by Mrs. MacDonald.

The president urged every member to bring a new member or visitor to the June meeting when plans will be discussed towards making the Old Boys Reunion a success. Mrs. Bice of Kearney a member of the W.I. Provincial Board, who will visit her sister, Mrs. D. E. Scriver during the celebration will be asked to give an address at the July meeting.

A donation of thirty packages of flower seeds "Snow on the mountain" from Mrs. D. E. Scriver to sell at 5c each was greatly appreciated.

Patriotic Program

The program of a patriotic nature was in keeping with the commemoration of the Silver Jubilee of the King and Queen. In response to the roll call "Remembrances of 25 years ago," twelve members responded.

Miss Mary MacDonald of the Separate School sang very sweetly "God Bless our Sovereign Lords," with accompaniment by Mrs. Gordon Faux.

Three girls of the Public School, dressed in appropriate costumes of red, white and blue displayed the Union Jack, each one taking a special part. Miss Betty Spooner in story form told the origin of the Union Jack, telling how the red was the emblem of courage, the white the emblem of purity and the blue, the emblem of truth. Miss Mary Scriver then contributed a recitation entitled "The Union Jack" which was followed by a well rendered recitation "The Flag" by Miss Eileda Buck. Before leaving the stage the three girls made their salute to the flag. The meeting closed by singing "God Save the King."

ROBERTA'S CHAT

A column conducted by a reader of The Examiner for her other reader friends. Address all mail to Roberta in care of The Examiner.

"Not enjoyment, and not sorrow,
Is our destined end or way,
But to act, that each to-morrow
Finds us further than to-day."
—Longfellow.

Dear Friend:

Do you feel that you are going ahead, keeping step with the times, or are you living in the past?

We cannot stand still. We either go forward, or backward.

So, in this game called life we can take an active part, or we can get into a backwater, and become stagnant.

It used to be the custom to talk of the "good old days," but reading back into history, will soon dispel the idea of much good, compared with modern times.

Which of us, given our choice, would care to do without our conveniences, such as newspapers, telephones, radios and all the other comforts, too numerous to mention, and which we take as a matter of course.

Yet the world would not have advanced so rapidly, if the majority had not kept in step with each other.

Then, too, if we feel that we are not accomplishing much, we have a feeling of futility, and that is fatal.

Life does not always stay at the peak of anything, for long.

If the agony of grief stayed with us, life would be insupportable.

If the ecstasy of joy stayed at its height, we should soon think of ourselves as gods.

Haven't you ever felt the deep soul-satisfaction, of a good day's work, well done? Is there anything to compare with it. The feeling of accomplishment, of being part of God's great plan for the universe. It's wonderful.

Sometimes, when we lie down on the job, He takes us by the scruff of the neck, and we have to do our part, if we want to survive.

Women sometimes feel, that their work is so unimportant. Yet when we are taking care of the small things, plays a very large part, in the advancement of the world.

A man who is suffering from indigestion due to the bad cooking of his wife, or housekeeper, will not be able to go out into the world, and do his best work.

So, when you are cooking dinner, and keeping house, do not let yourself think that your work is of little account, and that if you were in an office, or behind a counter, you would be more valuable.

You are in reality, stoking the furnace of the world, without which the wheels could not go 'round.

Have you not felt at times, a sort of emptiness, or boredom, when life was going too smoothly?

We need the hard knocks of life, as well as the soft part, to bring out the best in us.

Each of us have a feeling of respect for the person, be it man or woman, who is doing great things. No one has any use for slackers.

Sometimes we think we are getting far too much of the stress and toil, yet it is inevitably building up strength and character within us.

Again at times, it seems as if "the cards were stacked against us," but hang on to yourself, and in a little while, you will receive the compensations, which go with every trial we are called on to suffer.

Men don't leave comfortable homes to go adventuring, without a strong desire to meet and conquer hardship.

Yet many men sitting in an office, day after day, are greater heroes than they, because they have conquered desire, for the sake of their loved ones, to man the ship of home.

Your friend,
Roberta.

MARMORA, May 10 (Examiner Correspondence). — The marriage took place at St. Paul's Rectory, Marmora, on Monday of Ruth Grace Speck, daughter of Mrs. Annie Speck of Southwood, Ont., and Charles Raymond Brown, son of Mrs. Martha Brown of Marmora. Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell was the officiating clergyman.

McMASTERS—VINCENT.

HASTINGS, May 10 (Examiner Correspondence). — A quiet wedding of interest to many residents of Hastings vicinity, took place on Monday, May 6, when Edith Mildred, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Vincent of Brighton, became the bride of Garnet Henry McMasters, younger son of the late William A. McMasters and Mrs. W. E. Stinson of Brighton.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. A. McLeod, of the Brighton Presbyterian Church. The bride wore a becoming three-piece ensemble with matching accessories. Following the ceremony the happy couple left on their honeymoon to Eastern points.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. Shepard
"Teacher of Teachers"

A POOR NO-TRUMP

Only North and South were vulnerable. Three and one-half quick tricks obligated an opening bid of some sort. Two 4-card suits, one of them biddable, offered a better diamond bid than 1 no trump. Two-suiters and semi-two-suiters, such as West held, usually do not afford good defence against no trumps, and he felt obliged to overcall the opening bid. Of course, the remaining two players were justified in strongly bidding.

	♠ J ♥ Q 6 4 ♦ 8 6 5 4 3 2 ♣ 8 7 4
♠ A 9 7 5 4 ♥ A J 8 2 ♦ J ♣ 10 5 2	W. E. N. S.	♠ 10 8 6 3 2 ♥ 10 9 3 ♦ Q 9 ♣ A K 6
	♠ K Q ♥ K 7 5 ♦ A K 10 7 ♣ Q J 9 3

Bidding went: South, 1 no trump; West, 2 spades; North, 3 diamonds; East, 3 spades; South, 4 diamonds; West, 4 spades, which South doubled.

North felt that his suit was too long to open with hopes of winning many tricks, so he led his top club. Really that made things harder for the declarer than if a diamond had been led. Dummy's king won the trick, but there was no possibility of going game if dummy had to lose a club trick on top of the single trick which must be lost in each other suit. Dummy must be allowed a club discard on declarer's hearts for game. East and West held one of the three types of hands requiring a discard to be provided for before touching trumps.

Dummy's 10 of hearts was led. When South did not cover it rode and North's queen took the trick. Another club was led. Dummy's ace took the trick. The 9 of hearts was led and won the trick. South played the 7 and North the 4. Unless South was false-carding his partner held the missing 6 and he held the bare king. It appeared time to pull trumps.

The 2 of spades was led. The queen covered. The ace was played, picking up North's singleton jack and leaving South with the king alone. It would have been too expensive to lead trumps at that juncture, as South would then have won a club trick and defeated the contract. The declarer led off his ace of hearts. All followed suit, and the king dropped, leaving declarer's jack good. He led it and on it discarded dummy's last club. West had played the hand well. South ruffed and led his king of diamonds, picking up the third defensive trick for his side. South led his ace, but the declarer trumped the trick, and dummy's discard of a losing club on declarer's long heart enabled dummy to ruff the last club held by the declarer.

The way a declarer handles his trumps (pulling them, allowing dummy to ruff losers or cross-ruffing) is usually the best index of his playing ability.

Household Hints

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint

Pork Chops — Riced Potatoes
Apple Sauce
Lettuce With French Dressing
Maple Syrup Pie — Coffee

A reader questions how she can fry pork chops without getting them tough and dry? Give them plenty of time to cook is the answer, and do not try to cook them quickly over a hot fire. You may brown them over quick heat, if you wish, then lower the heat and cook them slowly a long time, adding a little water from time to time, if they seem to be getting dry.

Today's Recipes

Maple Syrup Pie.—One cup maple syrup, one egg yolk, two tablespoons flour, one-half cup sweet milk, one tablespoon butter, one-eighth teaspoon salt. Mix flour and egg yolk together, add melted butter, milk, syrup and salt. Pour into crust, bake in hot oven 425 degrees, for ten minutes, reduce to moderate, 350-degree oven until pie is set in the center. This is a small pie, serving four. For a large one double recipe.

Suggested One-Dish Meals

Veal pot pie, made of browned lean veal, onion and tomato puree, is baked in a pottery dish and made attractive by a piped border of browned mashed potatoes around its edge.

Another is corned beef hash, crisply browned on one side, and decorated on the other with slices of hard-cooked eggs or with whole perfectly poached eggs.

Curried beef, veal or lamb may use some of the less expensive cuts of meat, and served on rice provide ample and delicious one-dish meals. The secret of success in the curried dishes depends, of course, upon interesting seasoning.

A lamb stew, with tiny white onions, sliced carrots and turnips, and little potato ball, is a simple one-dish meal by itself. The stew may be made unusually rich and creamy by stirring egg yolk and a little cream into it shortly before serving. Have hot baking powder biscuits accompany it.

Green peppers baked and stuffed with Spanish sausage also make a good one-dish meal. The stuffing contains sausage, bread crumbs, tomatoes, diced celery and grated onion, and it transforms the stuffed peppers into a hearty enough dish to appear at dinner as well as at luncheon.

A special word for Mr. Hughes, who as our president had always the best interest of the society at heart. We do not want him to go away thinking that his work for and with us, has not been appreciated. We take this occasion of thanking him and his good wife for all that has been done and done well. We hope you will be happy and pleasantly situated in your new home, and in the near future we will all meet again, to sing the songs we love so well." Just Between Us Women

The fashion for wearing artificial flowers has returned with full vigor. It is a pretty style. The gay little buttonieres dress up a costume giving it a chic that is attractive. When the costume is dark, the flowers chase away sombreness, or if the blossoms are white, as the favorite gardenia, they relieve the quiet color.

• • • • • • •

A frock that is not new can be given the desired up-to-date appearance by these little nosegays.

• • • • • • •

It is only when the flowers have the freshness of newly picked blossoms that they succeed in adding smartness to any costume. So beware of having frayed edges, any slight soil, or crumpled petals, and guard against the wire in stems being visible.

• • • • • • •

It is the perfection of naturalness that is sought, and any one of the above features will be disillusioning. Also there is a tawdry element, which is reprehensible in any part of the costuming, that is immediately self-evident when flowers show lack of care in details.

• • • • • • •

Manicure scissors are just the things to trim off ravelings in flowers or foliage. Be sure the scissors are sharp and will make distinct clippings, just enough to take off the threads without encroaching on the perfect parts.

• • • • • • •

Flowers can be steamed just enough to soften the stiffness of the sizing without injury to them. While they are flexible smooth out unwanted creases and set the petals in their former realistic curves. Rewind the wire stem coverings, and secure about the wire with tiny touches of glue. Or, a few invisible stitches may be taken in refractory coverings.

• • • • • • •

Wiping petals off with a damp cloth will frequently remove dirt which adheres lightly. Shake the flowers briskly before applying the damp cloth, for it may be dust only that dulls the petals.

• • • • • • •

Re-tinting petals can be done to restore faded flowers to their original colors. This is quite in accord with the making of expensive artificial flowers.

• • • • • • •

The French flower makers color petals exquisitely by hand, making marvelous blends of tones. So do not be afraid of coloring your faded flowers. Use as dry color as you can so that the sizing in materials will not be diminished. Use tints, not strong colors and be sure to have them match those of the flowers and foliage.

UNIVERSITY YOUTHS EXPLORE PERILOUS ARCTIC MOUNTAINS

Britain Leads World in Exploration as Five Parties Prepare

MAN OF 22 LEADER

London.—Five major expeditions to the Arctic and the east are being planned in England this year. Britain is leading the world in exploration.

In the vanguard is a group of young men who are carrying on the traditions of Captain Scott and Sir Ernest Shackleton. Oxford and Cambridge are the new cradles of the adventurers.

To-day some of these youngsters are already veterans in Arctic travel.

The Oxford University Exploration Club is planning two expeditions. This organization is sending out the youngest explorers in the world and the youngest exploratory party which has ever left this country for the Arctic.

Led a Party at 20

A. R. Glen, who is 22, will be leading his second enterprise to the Arctic. He had just been awarded the Cuthbert Peek Grant by the Royal Geographical Society for his work in Spitzbergen and for his leadership of the Oxford University expedition in 1933, when he was only 20.

"With the exception of Andrew Croft, who is my second in command, and myself, the members of the party will be undertaking their first Arctic expedition. The average age will be about 23. We shall spend 14 months on the north coast of North-East Land," he said.

On Roof of the World

A second Oxford University expedition to the Arctic is being arranged. This also will be undertaken by young undergraduates.

The club's Ellesmere Land expedition is now at work on the roof of the world. One of its most prominent members is Edward Shackleton, of Magdalen College, the 23-year-old son of the famous Antarctic explorer.

Augustine Courtauld, who achieved world-wide fame at the age of 28 (when he was marooned for five months on the Greenland ice-cap), is planning to climb the highest mountain in Greenland—13,000 feet.

A further British expedition is probable by Major Ralph Bagnold, who has been awarded the Founders' Medal of the R.G.S. for his journeys in the Lybian desert. In 1932 he travelled 6,300 miles, the longest desert expedition by car.

Then there is the 1935-36 attempt on Everest, which will be the most determined attack on the mountain ever made. The responsibility of making advance preparations has been left to 27-year-old Eric Earle Shipton, who played a heroic part in the 1933 climbs.

CAMPBELL'S BLUEBIRD TRIES FOR 300 AGAIN

Three British Racing Cars to Challenge World on Salt Lake Sands

London.—British racing drivers and British motor cars will challenge the world this summer in a series of dramatic bids for new land-speed records.

Sir Malcolm Campbell, dissatisfied with the performance of his great car, Blue Bird, under the unfavorable conditions prevailing at Daytona Beach in February, is determined to return to the United States for another attempt to set up a world record of 300 miles an hour.

John Cobb, holder of the Brooklands lap speed record, is also preparing to go to the United States in the hope of raising the existing 24 hours' record, at present held by "Ab" Jenkins, the American driver.

George E. T. Eyston, who has designed a remarkable high - speed car, to be powered by a 250 h.p. Rolls-Royce engine, has designs on the same record.

Eyston has supervised the drawing of no fewer than 200 blue prints.

So far as the record bids are concerned, it looks as if Sir Malcolm Campbell, John Cobb, and G. E. T. Eyston will all be going to Salt Lake City, Utah, to make their attempts on the dried bed of the great lake.

There is also a very strong possibility that Freddie Dixon, despite the injuries he received in his recent aeroplane accident, may appear at Utah.

Dixon has had the Silver Bullet—the car which Kaye Don took to Daytona — rebuilt, and believes that he can now put 100 miles per hour on the previous highest speed of this motor car.

MAN BLAMED WOMAN NEVER TO DRIVE AGAIN

Swerved to Avoid Pedestrian —Drunk, Says Court

Sutton.—A man who blamed a woman pedestrian for a crash was disqualified from driving for life.

Alfred Sheldon Hands, 50, a merchant of Holland Ave., Cheam, was convicted of driving while under the influence of drink.

He was also fined £25 and ordered to pay £35 costs.

It was stated that Hands swerved to miss a girl and crashed into a shop.

Walter Frankland, defending, said that Hands suffered from shell shock and this had brought on chronic neurasthenia.

Two doctors had agreed that the slightest drink would have an abnormal effect on him.

His explanation for swerving was that a woman stepped in front of the car and, trying to avoid her, he skidded and lost control.

CUPID PLAYS TRICKS AS FATHER, SON WED

Bride Becomes Her Sister's Step-Mother-in-Law

London.—A girl living in St John's Wood recently became her sister's stepmother-in-law.

Raymond Ingham was married to Miss Bertha Johnson. The bride's elder sister, Mary, acted as bridesmaid.

Mary was married to L. H. Ingham, father of Raymond.

Raymond is now not only brother-in-law of Mary, but also her stepson. Mary became step-mother-in-law of her sister Bertha.

Bertha's position is the most complicated of all. Besides being step-daughter-in-law of her sister Mary, she is also both daughter-in-law and sister-in-law of Mr. L. H. Ingham.

L. H. Ingham shares with his son the honor of being son-in-law of Mrs. Julia Johnson, who gave her two daughters away.

THINK MANIAC CAUSE OF BURNED CHURCHES

Police Find Paraffin-Soaked Vestry in Two of Three Cases

Dengie, near Southminster.—Fear of incendiarism has spread throughout this isolated agricultural district, following the outbreak of the third church fire in just over a fortnight.

All three of the churches involved are in the ancient Hundred of Dengie, and in each case the fire is believed to have been started in a similar place and by similar means.

As a result of the first outbreak, the church of St. Nicholas, Tillingham—one of the oldest churches in the country—was so badly damaged that the origin of the flames could not be established.

The last two fires, however, involving the parish church at Asheldham and the church of St. James, Dengie, were both found to have started in the vestry, where articles had been soaked in paraffin.

Detectives from the county police headquarters at Chelmsford are carrying out exhaustive inquiries in the neighborhood, while the local police over a wide area have been warned to be on their guard.

The Rev. Anthony Geake, who is rector of both Dengie and Asheldham, said: "There seems little doubt that the same person, probably a maniac, is responsible for all three fires."

COCK-FIGHTING FETE HELD DESPITE POLICE

Clandestine Bouts in Secluded Valleys of Lake Country Easter Monday

Newcastle.—Although cock-fighting was declared illegal as far back as 1835, it is still carried on in the Lake District, and clandestine meetings took place in out-of-the-way hills on Easter Monday—a date fixed by age-old custom.

Cock-fighting has its own following—mostly farmers and rich sportsmen.

The birds are fed on a menu consisting of bread and milk and a loaf known as cock bread, which usually includes in its ingredients eggs and sherry or port.

When they are taken out of their pens after their training they are more than ready for fight.

Motor cars take most of the birds to the chosen battleground, usually in a hollow of the hills, well hidden by banks. Scouts are posted to give warning of intrusion by unfriendly visitors, and the motor cars stand by ready to be driven off at a given signal.

The police candidly admit that it is difficult for the law to curb the sport.

The Lake District police have all the known gamecock breeders earmarked in the records, and a close watch will be kept on all the places where contests have been staged in the past.

The police also have men specially watching the farms and poultry runs where game birds have been kept.

Haunts in the Kendall district were specially policed this Easter.

90-YEAR-OLD KEEPS YOUNG, STARTS GOLF

City's Oldest Bohemian Still Attends Late Parties

London.—Fred Bishop, London's oldest Bohemian, sportsman and philanthropist, laughs at his 94 years.

This is what he told his fellow members of the Eccentric club when he was their guest of honor:

It is often two or three in the morning when he gets home.

On his 90th birthday he joined a golf club. Nothing like it for keeping fit.

Member of the Eccentric club for 45 years.

Has seen 67 Derbys. Sir Walter Gilbey claimed to have been present at 57.

Mr. Bishop had a youth, too. Champion sprinte.. fiddlesex cricketer, and for many years a racehorse owner; that's his record.

. . . And this "good sport"—everybody calls him that—is still as old as he feels.

St. John's, Nfld.—"Arctic steak," at 15c a pound, is the latest "delicacy" to appear in butcher's and grocers' shops here. This "steak" has nothing to do with beef. It is meat from the flesh nearest the blubber coating of whales. The meat is trimmed off the whales in the summer, when freshly killed, and kept in refrigerators till required.

CHARGE OF NON-SUPPORT AGAINST CLERIC DROPPED

Wife Wires From Toronto to Withdraw Long-Standing Charge

NOTHING VINDICTIVE

Bury St. Edmunds.—An adjourned summons against the Rev. Franklin Isaac Hutchinson of Barningham rectory, Bury St. Edmunds (Suffolk), alleging that he had wilfully neglected to provide reasonable maintenance for his wife, Catherine Isabel, was dismissed by Mr. Fry at Bow St.

The case had been before the court on several occasions.

It was stated that a cablegram had been received at the court from Toronto, Canada, reading: "Please withdraw summons against my husband, Rev. Franklin Hutchinson, as owing to mother's sudden death I am on my way to Australia."

"There is no proof of her mother's death," said Mr. Percy Robinson, defending, "and if that is on a par with other statements that have been made, I don't think much reliance can be placed upon it."

Mr. Robinson said that, having regard to the amount of publicity the case had attracted, it was due to Rev. Mr. Hutchinson, the diocese and the bishop that certain facts should be stated.

It was true, as stated at a previous hearing, that Mrs. Hutchinson had been in a nursing home, but she had left without paying the fees of the home, the doctor or the dentist.

If it was true that she was now on the high seas, no doubt she was very well advised, because the Mutual Communication Society and several west end hotelkeepers had been inquiring for her address.

"I could say a great deal more," Mr. Robinson went on, "but my client says he does not want me to say anything that can be construed as vindictive."

PREPARE FOR CRIME BY KIDNAPPING DOG

Jewel Thieves Get $50,000 Worth—Knew Layout

London.—Scotland Yard are hunting for an expert gang which they believe to be responsible for a $50,000 theft of jewelry from a house in Bishop's Ave., East Finchley.

It is believed that the burglars carefully went over the grounds of the house in advance and kidnapped a bull terrier guard; reached a billiard room by ladder, smashing the window; forced their way into the next room for the safe containing the gems; and made their escape in a motor-car, in which accomplices were waiting.

The owners of the house, Mr. and Mrs Lazarus, were out at the time of the raid. The shock of the loss was so great that both were confined to their rooms.

With about two exceptions, every house in the Bishop's Ave. has been ransacked by burglars within the last few years.

Cecil Lazarus, one of the sons, said:

DRINKER CAN'T DRIVE CAR FOR TEN YEARS

Preston. — Magistrates recently fined John F. V. Gatty, 28, of Hoghton, near Preston, $500, ordered him to pay $100 costs, and suspended his driving license for ten years for having been under the influence of drink while in charge of a motor car. He had previously been fined $250 for a similar offence and had other motoring convictions against him.

Police Sergeant Burke said he saw a car standing without lights in Fishwick View, Preston, on March 30 at 2.30 a.m., and he found defendant lying over the steering wheel in a drunken stupor.

Glyn Blackledge, for Gatty, said he had been to the Grand National and had taken spirits on an empty stomach. When he felt the effects of the drink coming over him he pulled his car up and went to sleep.

BROKEN BONES COST $57,500,000 A YEAR

Poor Organization and Treatment in Britain Scored by Doctor

London.—More than $35,000,000 lost in wages and more than $22,500,000 lost in compensation every year because the treatment of fractured limbs is not sufficiently organized in Britain.

That is the estimate of Ernest W. Hey Groves, emeritis professor of surgery in Bristol University, in a call for improved organization to deal with the increasing number of fractures caused by road accidents and the greater use of machinery.

Mr. Groves bases his estimate on the assumption that there are about 141,000 fractures in this country each year.

If not more than 41,000 of these are treated in organized clinics—and this figure, he points out, is a very liberal one—the remaining 100,000 treated in "unorganized fashion" would represent the $57,500,000 lost in wages and compensation.

Because scientific principles are not applied, many workmen are disabled for long periods or permanently crippled by fractures, he points out.

PINK FAVORITE COLOR FOR JUBILEE FLOWERS

Florists Making Great Preparations For Festival Boom

London.—"Say it with flowers" must truly be the motto of the British nation. Every year $75,000,000 is spent in this country on cut flowers, and 100,000 persons are employed in the industry.

This represents an increase of 50 per cent. during the last ten years.

The centre of this flower business is Covent Garden Market.

Flowers are to be introduced into the silver jubilee decorations on a scale never before attempted.

Window boxes, which were a vogue 25 years ago, are returning to favor for jubilee year.

Buttonholes are also coming back into favor.

Easter is the busiest of all the flower weeks in the year.

Covent Garden is now one vast expanse of roses, lilies, carnations, "daffs" of every variety, orchids, hydrangeas, violets of every hue—nearly all British blooms.

And pink is said to be the favorite flower color on the market.

HAS WEDDING SERVICE ON PHONOGRAPH DISC

London.—Miss Denise Kelsey of Kensington has a gramophone record of her wedding ceremony.

When she was married at the Liberal Jewish synagogue, St. John's Wood, N.W., to Reuben Arbib, microphones were concealed beneath the canopy under which a Jewish wedding always takes place.

The marriage vows, the voice of the rabbi, the chanting of the choir, the bridal music—even the breaking of the glass which the bridegroom, in accordance with Hebrew tradition, crushed beneath his feet so that no one else might drink from it—they are all on permanent record.

The 19-year-old bride is the daughter of Salmon Gluckstein Kelsey; the bridegroom is with the Gramophone company.

TRAGIC DRAMA OF DESERT HAS LUXURY LINER FINALE

Woman Leaves Children to Follow Fortunes of Man She Loves

HE DESERTS HER

Paris—The moonlit calm of a tropic night on the decks of the luxury liner, El Djezair, out of Algiers, was recently shattered by the cries of a French officer of the African forces writhing on the deck while a haggard woman stood over him clutching a smoking revolver.

She had been his lover.

As passengers, including many women, were strolling in the cool night air on Friday before going to their cabins to dress for dinner, five shots rang out in rapid succession on the boat deck.

Officers and sailors rushed to bear the wounded man to the ship's hospital, while the woman, her deadly deed accomplished, let fall the revolver from her trembling hand and collapsed, fainting on the deck.

The protagonists in this drama were Major Marcel Kervella, aged 45, whose regiment was stationed in Algeria, and Mme. Berthe Vermeren, aged 47, a Belgian woman, divorced wife of a bank manager in Algiers and mother of two children.

"Madly in Love"

The explanation of the woman's wild denunciation and the officer's plea was furnished by Mme. Vermeren in a dramatic statement to the liner's captain.

She met Major Kervella two years ago, she said, at a dance given at a small garrison town in Algeria. She fell madly in love with him. Although the mother of a boy of 12 and a girl of 10, she left her husband and family to follow the officer's fortunes.

Her husband obtained a divorce from her a year ago and she lived with Major Kervella at Bona and Philippeville.

Then came the blow which shattered her happiness. Major Kervella told her he had made a mistake in linking his life with hers, as it was hampering his career. He had asked for leave to go to France and would never return to her.

In despair she dogged his footsteps to Algiers. When she found he had booked a cabin in the El Djezair she did likewise and then bought a revolver, with Friday's tragic sequel.

A wireless message was sent to the Marseilles police and an ambulance was waiting when the liner docked to rush Major Kervella to the military hospital here. Though his condition is very serious he keeps repeating his plea for leniency for the woman.

Mme. Vermeren, sobbing convulsively in her cell at the women's prison here, insists that she was out of her mind and did not realize the folly of her act.

YANKEE TO RACE ON THAMES

London.—The American crack racing yacht Yankee, which is coming to England to compete in the silver jubilee regattas, will race in the Thames off Southend on June 4, 5, 6, and 7, against Britannia and Endeavour.

Skipton, Yorkshire.—After paying $8,700,000 in succession duty to the government Arthur Stanley Wills of Ashton Hall, Cargrave, the tobacco magnate, who died recently in his 72nd year, there were approximately $8,000,000 of his vast estate left for his servants, charitable institutions and his heirs.

NEW BOAT, PRO CREW FOR AMERICA'S CUP

King's Famous Racing Cutter Refitted and Modelled on Endeavour

Gosport.—Keen interest has been aroused in yachting circles in Gosport by the possibility that the local yacht yard may be asked to build a successor to the Endeavour as challenger for the America cup.

Yacht - building is Gosport's premier industry, and the announcement that C. R. Fairey, the well-known aeroplane manufacturer and yachtsman, contemplates issuing the next changenge for the cup has inspired hopes that Gosport will get the order to build the vessel.

Mr. Fairey, who is the owner of Shamrock V., the 1930 challenger, has stated that he will not challenge this year, but will possibly do so in 1936.

Much preparation, however, will be necessary during the coming season.

It is generally admitted on both sides of the Atlantic that the Endeavour, which was designed by Charles Nicholson for T. O. M. Sopwith last year, is the finest and fastest vessel of her class afloat.

Realizing that highly skilled hands are just as necessary as a fast yacht, Mr. Fairey is getting together a professional crew who will race Shamrock V. this summer and will also be available to race the challenger when built.

In other respects the coming season promises to be a memorable one for Gosport yards and yachtsmen.

The King's famous racing cutter Britannia will enter upon her 42nd season with a new lease of life, for she is now hauled up at Gosport for alterations which will bring her more into line with the modern J class yachts and materially increase her speed.

The weight of her hull will be reduced by about a ton by the removal of the copper sheathing, her sail plan will be made identical with that of the Endeavour by the alteration of her three head sails to two, including the new double-clewed jib, and a new boom is to be fitted.

The Velsheda, R. L. Stephenson's all-steel cutter, which was the fastest yacht of her size ever built in England when she left the Gosport yard two years ago, is also being fitted with a centre board similar to that of the Endeavour, and other alterations are being made which will make her faster still.

Thus the coming season should produce some of the finest racing ever seen in the Solent, especially as Gerald Lambert, of the New York Yacht club, is bringing over the famous American yacht Yankee to take part in the silver jubilee regattas.

THEFT CLEAN-UP SEEN 'MASTER MIND' FOUND

Country House Burglars Had Access to Full Information on Victims

London.—After months of investigation Scotland Yard have at last gained possession of a dossier revealing the secret behind the long run of successes of the notorious "country house burglaries" gang, which in little more than 12 months have netted jewels and valuables worth $500,000.

Their raids have been carried out principally in the Midlands and the south.

The mass of documents now in the possession of the police proves the existence of an agency through which could be obtained plans of principal country mansions, details of the owners' possessions, and complete life histories of wealthy people living in the country, including their hobbies.

This agency has obviously acted, in a sense, as the master mind behind the burglaries, and now that its activities have been uncovered it may be expected that there will be a considerable drop in the number of raids on country houses.

BIGGEST JUBILEE TRAIN PARTY

London.—Probably the biggest individual party which will visit London for jubilee year will be that organised by Colonel J. Baldwin-Webb, M.P. for Wrekin division of Shropshire, on May 11, when between 6,000 and 7,000 of his constituents will arrive in twelve trains.

FOUND INSTRUCTIONS TO SPY POISON GAS PEN, ON SUSPECT

Arrest Believed to Unmask Espionage Ring—Linked With Mined Bridge

AUSTRIAN AGENT ?

Paris.—A vast spy plot is believed to have been unmasked by the French—and in all probability also by the British—counter-espionage service through an arrest revealed here.

The prisoner, whose arrest was effected a month ago, is Edward Bernhuber, who, it is said, declared he was a commercial traveller for German pharmaceutical products.

It is stated that he says he is a former Austrian officer who had been recruited by the espionage service of another power, which sent him to France on a special mission.

Secret Documents

He is alleged to have given a complete account of information which he had forwarded to his employers.

In his possession were found a number of secret documents, a fountain pen containing poison gas, which can be expelled by pressing a lever, an extensible truncheon of nickel-plated steel and a revolver.

Bernhuber was arrested by Chief Inspector Linas of the Surete-Nationale, who was also responsible for the arrest at Brest last month of the German-Swiss girl, Lydia Oswald, who is accused of seeking to ascertain the secrets of France's latest warships.

It is stated he admitted that a questionnaire submitted to a Frenchman, whom it is alleged, he sought to bribe to obtain certain information, was in his handwriting.

The questionnaire asked:

Have French staff officers recently been busy abroad? If so, where and who are they?

Did the French general staff participate in the conversations with Schuschnigg (the Austrian chancellor who recently visited Paris and London)?

Can you say anything about the conversations held in Paris by the Austrian legitimists in the presence of Princess Stata of Bourbon? When and where did they take place, and what was the outcome?

Mined Bridge Charge

Was an official representative of the French government present at these conversations, and who was he?

What do you know about treaties signed between France, Italy and Great Britain, the attitude of the Little Entente (Jugoslavia, Roumania and Czechoslovakia), and the consequences of the eastern pact?

For the time being the French counter-espionage service, it is said is seeking to determine whether Bernhuber was centralizing information received from sub-agents or distributing instructions received from his employers.

His arrest follows closely on the mysterious charge that three of some 60 workmen employed in the building of the great strategic bridge across the Seine at Pont de l'Arche, near Rouen, had secretly mined one of the pillars of the bridge.

UNDERGROUND FALLS ARE 800 FEET HIGH

Hydro-Electric Plant Is Completely Subterranean

Paris.—A marvel of engineering has just been completed, in the shape of a hydro-electric plant, on the Truyere river, in the Aveyron department of France.

The plant, which includes not only one of the largest dams in the canal five miles long, ends in a colossal underground waterfall with an 800-foot drop.

This dam and power house are only the first works and not the most wonderful. From this point the waters of the Truyere river are made prisoner in an underground canal, which is nearly five miles long.

At the end of this canal a huge vertical pit has been hewn in the rock in the shape of a funnel which, with a sheer underground drop of 800 feet, carries the water to the six huge turbines of an underground power house. Here 180,000 kilowatts of electricity are produced.

QUACKS CLEARED OUT BY REFORMING MAYOR

No More Hair-of-Dog, Bats'-Wing Broth After Order

Canton.—Chinese quack doctors, whose "cure-all" remedies include snake's blood, powdered rats, tiger's claws, bats'-wing broth and more than probably a literal hair of the dog, are to vanish from Canton.

Liu Chi-wen, the mayor, has declared that he will use all the powers of the municipality to rid the city of these quacks. In future, they will not be allowed to practise unless they have passed a rigid examination.

The Chinese medicine man is a combination of soothsayer and witch doctor. He sets up, mostly in the market places of the city, with a parcel of "drugs," a glib tongue, a pestle and mortar and a considerable amount of nerve.

He undertakes to cure not only the sick, but also the lame, the halt and the blind, and if his patients survive his treatment (as they often do under the law of averages) he is treated as a wizard and receives fees accordingly.

Occasionally, even the highly placed Chinese would patronize the medicine man. If such a personage died under the treatment, the quack usually fled—only a few paces ahead of the official executioner. Occasionally, the headsman won.

MAULED BY TIGER

Wounded Animal Springs on English Hunter Climbing a Tree

Calcutta. — A Calcutta Englishman, H. A. Fooks, was seriously mauled by a wounded tiger while hunting in the jungle near Jubbulpore.

Mr. Fooks shot the tiger from a machan — a platform built in the branches of a tree — and it crept away into the undergrowth.

The hunter descended, and was climbing another tree to get a sight of the wounded animal when it leapt up after him and dragged him to the ground.

Mr. Fooks is now lying in a serious condition in Jubbulpore hospital.

BEAUTIFUL EX-NUN KILLED BY LOVER

Cabaret Dancer Who Fled From Convent Quarrelled With Her Man

Paris.—Fled from a convent to become a cabaret dancer and singer; lost her voice; then murdered by her lover, it is alleged, in a Paris attic.

That is the tragedy of Marcelle Fournier, once a beautiful nun, it was revealed by the Paris police.

Marcelle, an orphan, was brought up in a convent at Limoges, and took the veil when she was 20.

The glamor of the outside world became too strong for her, however, so she ran away to Paris, joined a cabaret, and fell in love with Ernest Menard.

Later she became a singer, and the couple lived comfortably until recently, when they lost their jobs.

They were forced to move to a humble attic. For two days Marcelle was absent. When she returned there was a bitter quarrel.

Then neighbors heard shots, and after breaking down the attic door found the girl dying from a bullet wound.

Menard was lying on the floor suffering from a dagger wound. In hospital he is alleged to have confessed to murdering Marcelle after she had attacked him.

MORE SMOKING IN BRITAIN

Canada Favored As Empire Consumption Up 19 P.C.

London.—The United Kingdom consumed 8,915,829 pounds more tobacco than the previous year, the total home consumption being 198,905,190 pounds. Empire tobacco has gained a strong foothold in the British market, with the flue-cured type predominating, tobacco from empire sources increasing from 1 to 20 per cent. of the total consumption during the past 15 years. Empire supplies are drawn, in addition to Canada chiefly from Southern Rhodesia, Nyasaland, British India. There is decided preference for the Canadian product among empire types.

3,000-YEAR-OLD CONFESSION PARALLELS CRIME OF TO-DAY

Police Graft and Double Cross Prevailed in Those Days, Too

STORY OF A TRIAL

New York.—A true detective story of 3,000 years ago, an amazing, official chronicle of crime and punishment in the days of the pharaohs, is told in the long lost half of the famous Amherst papyrus.

When the papyrus was found two months ago by Professor Jean Capart, director of the Royal Museum of Art and History of Brussels, Belgium, it was hailed as one of the foremost Egyptological finds in years.

But it is much more than that. Professor Capart disclosed after translating the ancient scroll here. It is an intensely human document. It shows that crooks and courts of 1200 B.C., were strikingly similar to crooks and courts of 1935 A.D. Moreover, graft and bribery were prevalent and that the "fix" and the "double cross" were not unknown.

Double Trial

The papyrus records in detail the trial of three men on charges of robbing the tomb of an ancient king.

The three men, it is related in the account given by the papyrus, confessed to having removed gold and precious stones from the tomb.

The leader gave his share of the loot to the chief of the Theban police as a bribe to escape trial. The "fix" didn't work.

The court decided the trio's crime was one for the religious tribunal as well as for the civil court and after finding them guilty turned the record of the trial over to the religious tribunal, at which the high priest of Amon Ra presided.

"The rulers of Egypt were considered to be direct descendants of the Egyptian gods, and any crime which tended to desecrate the tomb of a member of the royal family was considered sacrilege. We have no fear the robbers escaped punishment," Capart says.

"We know from the papyrus the exact incisive action of every detail of the robbery, and the various forms and practices in effect in the courts. In the confession of one of the thieves we find statements to the effect Thebes was at that time undergoing a depression. Both gold and work were scarce and the thief pleaded that poverty led him to the crime. The parallel between life of that time and the present day is amazing."

Others Half Located

The papyrus, composed in the reign of Rameses IX. in the 12th century, B.C., bears the name of a king of the XVII. dynasty.

Professor Capart, who is also advisory curator of Egyptology at the Brooklyn Museum, discovered the papyrus in the hollow base of an antique Egyptian statue presented to the Royal Museum by King Leopold III. An exceedingly long scroll, it was found to match the famous piece of papyrus once owned by Earl Amherst, now in the J. P. Morgan library. It is believed the papyrus was found in its original form centuries ago by raiding Arabs who cut it in half and hid the two pieces in separate places.

NO PARTIES, NO CREDIT NEW UNIVERSITY RULE

Cambridge. — University circles are preparing for riots when the students return from vacation following the announcement of new regulations that no undergraduate may give a cocktail or sherry party to more than four friends in his room and that no student may purchase anything on the deferred payment plan.

"They'll be having us ask permission to smoke next," said one of the few students around the colleges during the holiday. "We'll soon have to get permission to have a friend to tea, or offer a chap a beer at a bridge. A cocktail party is the sort of thing that just happens. People roll up and you have a party on your hands before you know it. How can you get permission for that?" he asked dolefully.

The university authorities say it's to bring the laws up to date . . . it's just about 30 years behind the times.

Italian War Preparations Bring Ethiopian Warning

WILL MOBILIZE WHOLE EMPIRE SAYS EMPEROR

Selassie However Still Hopes For Settlement By League of Nations.

NEW RIFT CROPS UP.

LONDON, Eng., May 10. (U.P.)—Emperor Haile Selassie I. of Abyssinia, declared he would order mobilization of every warrior in his Empire if Italy continues her "war preparations" the Daily Telegraph reported from Addis Ababa yesterday.

The emperor was quoted in an interview as asserting that he still hoped the League of Nations Council on May 20 would move definitely toward a peaceful settlement of the Italian-Abysinian dispute, growing out of recurrent border incidents in which scores have been killed on both sides in the last six months.

"If not, and if Italy carries her military preparations farther, then we must mobilize," the swarthy King of Kings asserted.

New Rift Develops

ADDIS, Ababa, Ethiopia, May 10. (AP).—A new controversy between Italy and Ethiopia flared yesterday as Emperor Haile Selassie prepared to leave the capital to inspect the strategic Harrar district.

This Government protested in strong language to the Italian minister here against an address made to the Chamber of Deputies Tuesday by Alessandro Lessona, Italian undersecretary for colonies, in which he assailed Ethiopia for asserted anarchy and exploitation of subject races.

(Despatches from Rome Tuesday quoted Lessona as saying Italy "desires that her colonies in East Africa may look to the future with secure tranquility, without being preoccupied over the uncertain policy of a neighboring state which gives no guarantee of living peacefully with other nations.")

The protest filed with the minister not only expressed resentment at Lessona's speech but also referred pointedly to the Addis Ababa Government's views concerning Italian territorial aims in Africa, where 100,000 Italian troops have been concentrated during recent months.

The Harrar section which the emperor will inspect lies in Southeastern Abyssinia and was for some time within the sphere of Italian influence. It is of considerable strategic importance because the capital of the province, of the same name, commands caravan and railway routes into Ethiopia.

GERMANS PRESS JOBLESS TOTALS DOWN FOR SHOW

Thousands Working For $10 Per Month—Weekly Hours set at 36.

NO "DOUBLE EARNING."

Portion of Salary Above Certain Point Confiscated—New Machines Barred.

(By A. D. Stefferud).

BERLIN, May 10 (A.P.). — The Government hailed to-day as a victory for common welfare a reported decrease of 268,000 in Nazi unemployment lists. The figures admittedly left 2,234,000 idle at the end of April.

In its energetic marshalling of men and figures to show a decline in unemployment, the Nazi regime is pushing the living standard downward, lowering consumption and cutting working hours to pass the jobs around.

Thousands are working for a monthly wage of 44 marks—about $10. Thousands are getting that amount in doles. The weekly number of work hours is set at a maximum of 36.

No Overtime.

Overtime work is strictly forbidden. There must be no "double earning" by man and wife. If a wife earns more than 20 marks weekly her unemployed husband is not counted as idle.

Machines cannot be placed in competition with hand work. Manufacturers are not allowed to buy new machinery that might throw somebody out of work.

A portion of each salary above a certain figure is confiscated and given to the unemployed. Thus a government office supervisor, whose position demands at least a college education, may get 600 marks monthly, of which he returns 150 marks.

SPECIAL PURSE FOR TED CLARK STAND PAT DUEL

Woodbine Park Fans Will See Canadian-owned Stars Match Strides.

IMPRESSIVE RECORDS.

By CHARLES "HORSES" AYERS
Central Press Canadian Writer

TED CLARK and Stand Pat to race at Woodbine Park. The most important piece of turf information that has flashed across the Canadian turf front in years is the announcement made by Palmer Wright, secretary of the Ontario Jockey club, that a special race, which will attract these two stars of the American turf, will be decided at the forthcoming spring meeting at Woodbine Park, which gets under way Saturday, May 18, and continues until Saturday, May 25. No doubt a race that will bring these two outstanding thoroughbreds into competition is bound to attract considerable attention among the racing fans across the whole dominion of Canada.

This special race will be run either on Wednesday, May 22nd, and be known as the Jubilee running of the King Edward Gold Cup (handicap) with the distance one mile and one-sixteenth, or be decided on the closing day of the meeting, Saturday, May 25, and be known as the Jubilee running of the Toronto Cup (handicap) with the distance one mile and one-eighth. These two stakes, the King Edward Gold cup, is a yearly spring fixture at Woodbine Park, with a purse value of $1,200 added but, if Ted Clark and Stand Pat are nominated in the Jubilee running of this stake the purse will be increased to $4,200 added. The Toronto Cup, which carries a purse value of $2,000 added, will be increased to $5,000 for the Jubilee running providing Dr. Mooney's and Mr. E. F. Seagram's thoroughbreds are among the entries.

THE REASON the directors of the Ontario Jockey club have not announced on what date this special race will be run, is the fact, that Dr. Mooney, owner of Ted Clark and Mr. E. F. Seagram, owner of Stand Pat can nominate their stars in the stake in which they think the distance will best suit their charges. The only stipulation the Ontario Jockey club has put in the conditions of these two races, is that, two other thoroughbreds of different interests must start in the Jubilee runnings with Ted Clark and Stand Pat.

There is not much use in going into detail in telling you racing fans anything about these two outstanding turf stars. Ted Clark, you all remember, was the winner of the rich Waggoner Handicap, at Arlington Downs, last fall, breaking the track record in doing so. You all know what the Mooney colorbearer did in the rich $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap when he took the track for the most of the journey from such stars as Equipoise, Azucar, Twenty Grand, Head Play, Ladysman and others. You, who follow your winter racing, know plenty about Stand Pat. How he was one of the sensations during the racing season in Florida. How he was only beaten by a head by Roman Soldier in the rich Hialeah Inaugural Handicap. You all know what he did the closing day at Havre de Grace, in the Philadelphia Handicap, for a purse of $7,500 added. The Seagram colorbearer won easily beating such horses as Only One, Rustabout, Howard, Good Goods and others.

THIS RACE which the Ontario Jockey club has presented to the Canadian racing fans, is a "natural." It should be one of the most highly contested in years. Better watch for the date of running. I wouldn't miss it for love nor money.

Willard, who challenged the Canadian was completely baffled by the speed and skill of Purcell, who also displayed a remarkable change of pace.

House Of McGillicuddy Fall?

GOLFER ACHIEVES FAST RECOVERIES

Dick Moore, Who Won B. C. Crown in His Teens, is on Canada's Overseas Team.

VANCOUVER, May 10 (C.P.) — Twelve years ago Dick Moore as a curly-headed Victoria lad received his first lesson in golf from Phil Taylor, newly arrived pro at Oak Bay club.

Seven years later the same youth surprised everyone, including himself, by winning the British Columbia amateur championship. He repeated last year after a lay-off of four years and won a place on the Canadian team touring England and Scotland.

Dick Moore was born in Victoria 25 years ago. With an enthusiastic golfer for a father he was early impressed with the various merits of the divot game. When he was 11 years old his father took him to the Oak Bay club where he was enrolled as a junior member.

In 1927 Dick was attending college and was scheduled to write his first-year exams on the Monday following the Friday when the qualifying round of the B.C. amateur was scheduled. His parents away. Dick entered the tournament "for the fun of it." He not only qualified but went on to win the championship. That ended his schooling for all time and his golf for four years.

After travelling across the continent he returned to British Coumbia in 1931, settling with his parents in Vancouver and turned his attention to golf again. He qualified in the Canadian amateur here in 1933 but was eliminated in the second round by Ken Black of Vancouver.

Last year Dick swept through the early rounds of the provincial title meet and in a 36-hole final with Stan Leonard, a former B.C. titleholder, was one up.

A good driver and consistent putter Dick is noted chiefly for his brilliant recovery shots. A 60-yard pitchout was credited with winning him the provincial title last year.

He played on the British Columbia Willingdon cup team last year, carding 147, a stroke more than Black who turned in the low score of the match.

Yesterday's Stars

Ray Benge, Dodgers—Limited Reds to two hits in six innings of relief pitching, fanning five.

Mel Almada, Red Sox—Led attack on White Sox with two doubles and single.

Ray Pepper, Browns—Smacked three hits and drove in two runs in 4-2 triumph over Athletics.

Tex Carleton, Cubs — Held Braves to five hits and struck out six.

CONNIE GROOMS SONS TO TAKE OVER POSITION

Earl, the Eldest, Believed Best One For Pilot's Berth.

FOXX OUT OF IT.

DETROIT, May 10.—The dynasty of the House of Mack will not crumble or fall when Cornelius McGillicuddy comes down to the end of the baseball trail.

Instead, the 72-year-old Philadelphia patriarch, now moving into the sunset of a career which holds all records of longevity, will in time drape the managerial toga about the shoulders of his eldest son, Earl.

Said Connie: "If we maintain our interest in the Philadelphia club, I intend for one of my sons to succeed me as manager. Earl, I feel, is perfectly equipped for the job at present."

Earl is 45 years of age. His duties with the club consist of handling pitchers and coaching.

Earl Has Won Flags

Connie Mack, Jr., a handsome, tall young man, just out of Duke University, is also understudying his father.

"Earl has managed teams in the South and Midwest," Connie explained. "He won a pennant for Martinsburg in the Blue Ridge League and Moline in the Three-Eye League."

The gray-haired old campaigner, now serving his fifty-second year in baseball, declared emphatically there was no chance of any "outsider" succeeding him as long as he holds the reins of the club.

"Not even Jimmy Foxx?" he was asked.

"There's not a chance for Foxx or anyone else," he said smilingly. "I tell you, I want a Mack to take over the job."

'Toledo Good Town'

During the conversation, the Philadelphia veteran also dropped the hint that he thinks Toledo would be an ideal spot for an American League franchise if the St. Louis Browns Club is ever transferred any other place.

"I don't think anything will be done about St. Louis this season," he said, "but nevertheless serious thought unquestionably is being given a possible transfer."

PETE APPLETON IS BIG "NOISE" ROYAL HURLING

Boosts Record for Season to Three Wins and One Defeat.

(By the Canadian Press).

Pete Appleton isn't the International League's leading pitcher but the right-handed Montreal Royal star is giving the other twirlers in the League something to shoot at.

Dividing his services between Baltimore Orioles and Rochester Redwings in 1934, he finished the last season with 11 victories against 13 defeats for an average of .458. When compared with Walter Brown's leading record of 20 wins and six defeats, Appleton's season was hardly impressive. But that was a year ago.

On April 25 Appleton started against Albany Senators, and was taken out in the second inning for big Chad Kimsey. The Royals ultimately won the game 12-6. He returned to the mound the next day and turned in a four-hit performance to give the Royals a 5-2 victory over the Senators for his first win of the season. He had been beaten in one other start.

A few days ago Appleton was sent in against Syracuse Chiefs, and again the premium on hits was high. This time he gave five as the Royals won 8-1.

In the only game played yesterday—the other three being rained out—Appleton twirled the Royals to a 9-2 decision over the Senators as he limited Albany to seven hits, allowing only one extra base blow and fanning six. It boosted his record thus far this season to three wins and one defeat for a percentage average of .750.

CARL HUBBELL STOPS BLANTON WITH 7-3 WIN

Pittsburg Beaten by New York Giants in Close Contest.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

One of the newly risen stars of the National League pitching corps has taken his first fall but another moved right up to take his place.

When Darrel (Cy) Blanton, Pittsburgh's sensational young right hander, met his first defeat of the season at the hands of the Giants and Carl Hubbell by a 3-1 count yesterday he became for the time being just another good pitcher. His place in the sun was given over to William (Bucky) Walters, the Phillies' home-town boy who was converted from a third baseman into a pitcher and celebrated by hurling a four-hit, 2-1 triumph over the world champion Cardinals.

Brooklyn remained in second place two games behind the Giants with a 5-4 "gift" victory over the Reds. Two runs were forced in by walks and two more scored on an error in the third inning which produced all five runs. With Tex Carleton pitching a neat five-hit game, the third-place Cubs slammed out a 5-1 victory over the Braves in a game marked by Rabbit Maranville's first league appearance since 1933.

ROOKIES HURL 66 2-3 FRAMES

5 Regulars Including Hayes, Jones, Simmons, Washington, Dykes Hit Over .300.

SOX MEAN BUSINESS.

CHICAGO, May 10 (A.P.)—Notes on the White Sox while they last (and some say they will):

Manager Jimmy Dykes has leaned on his rookie pitchers so heavily they have pitched a combined total of 66 2-3 innings as against 74 1-3 by the veterans. Until the last two games, the rookies had pitched one-third of an inning more than the vets.

Five regulars are batting over .300—Hayes, .372; Jones, .333; Simmons, .330; Washington, .311, and Dykes, .310.

Zeke Bonura, criticized by some experts as a poor fielder at first base, hasn't made an error.

Hayes has started seven double plays.

Johnny Whitehead, the Texas rookie pitcher, who has won four straight, is the silent man of the team. His mates have to ask questions to get him to talk.

PLATE FAVORITE IS A FIT HORSE

Listaro Works Mile in 1.44 2-5 During Thursday's Test Run.

TORONTO, May 10.—Over a slow track yesterday at the Woodbine, Listaro once again demonstrated that he'll be the horse to beat in the King's Plate a week from Saturday, when in company with Vingt Cliinq he worked a mile in 1.44 2-5, and galloped out the mile and eight in 2.02. The fractional ttimes for the circuit were—.25 1-5, .50 1-5, 1.17 and 1.44 2-5.

Epicure and Eileen D, also from the Parkwood Stable turned in a good mile of 1.45 1-5, with the former showing the way.

Gay Sympathy with blinkers on in company with Shady Wells breaking from the eighth-pole went a full mile in 1.46 4-5, with the Plate candidate a length or so in front all the way. The fractional times were .25 1-5, .52, 1.20 -5, 1.46 4-5.

The next pair of Seagrma Plate candidates to perform was Sally Fuller and Langstaffe. Sally Fuller during this workout, stamped herself one of the real threats in this year's guineas when the daughter of Judge Fuller-South Shore beat the stablemate by about ten lengths at the finish of the mile and one-eighth run, the King's Plate distance. The excellent time recorded by the Seagram filly is as follows —.24 4-5, .49 3-5, 1.16 4-5, 1.45, and the full Plate distance in 1.59 flat.

A good performance was that of Stanley Crawford's Goggles. In company with Maetico and breaking from the eighth-pole, they breezed around the track to e caught in the following fractions for the mile trial: .25 2-5, 1.19 4-5, 1.46 3-5. The Plate candidate seems to be improving with each work.

Jockey Eddie Barnes, who was engaged last Fall to ride Lipton in the Plate, is an arrival, as is Jockey Jack Burrill. The latter had the best percentage of the riders at Hot Springs, in addition to winning three handicaps.

Hank Leiber, Giants—Knocked in two runs against Pirates with double and single off Blanton.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two.

DAY BY DAY

(By C. J. P.)

Men's Softball League executive goes into a huddle at 7.30 or thereabouts this eve in Duffus, and prospective managers will be greeted with open arms. Omemee, Fashion-Crafts, Pepe's Cleaners, Lillico Motors and Hood and Cummings all appear sure starters, and there is still a possibility of the Board and Huffman entry. There is quite a scramble on for the better players between the various managers. If six teams make up the loop and none are top-heavy with stars, the old City Softball League will be sitting pretty this summer. Schedule is due to open shortly.

• • • • • • •

Speaking of our games here Monday, our quill-pushing Quinte pal remarks: "Incidentally we observed where Lesurf, much talked of junior hurler to migrate into the Liftlock City, suddenly leaned his affections towards senior company and hurled a few frames for the Petes on Monday." We might point out that Lesurf only left here, his home city, a year ago to reside in Toronto and then returned to Peterborough. Knotty Lee says he will likely be playing junior ball this summer but can, of course, step up for three games with the seniors.

• • • • • • •

The Kingston delegates to the C.O.B.L. meeting in Belleville last Saturday opened a ticklish subject by taking a few raps at local imports. They were promptly told off by the Peterborough officers who pointed out that every club was doing it, including Kingston. Arguing that their imports were former Limestone City fellows, the Kingston guys neglected to mention Speedy St. Louis and Bud Clancy. Incidentally, here's a clipping from the Brockville Recorder and Times we spotted yesterday which might be of interest in various quarters:

• • • • • • •

"Definite announcement was made last night that Bud Clancy will not be in a Brockville uniform this year. Clancy is in Kingston, but whether he will play for the Ponies is problematical. The residence rule of the O.B.A.A. under which Kingston comes is the 15th of March, while the residence rule of the St. Lawrence League is May 15th. The Ponies may encounter difficulty in getting Clancy registered under the March residence rule, but meantime he is sojourning in Kingston and, while he did not play, he was on the Kingston bench when the Ponies played in Smith's Falls on Monday." We wonder just when Clancy did take up residence in Kingston.

• • • • • • •

Lefty Goyer is expected to open on the mound for Guelph Maple Leafs in the Intercounty Baseball League Saturday against Hamilton. This is the same southpaw who used to dish 'em up from the wrong side with the old Belleville Nationals in the C.O.B.L. Local fans will remember many stirring pitching duels here with Goyer always proving a mansized pain in the neck to Peterborough hitters. Offhand, we'd say Lefty is at least 40 years old, which is as old as Methuselah for a baseball flinger but he is still able to toss pretty fair ball in a fast senior loop. Must be monkey glands.

• • • • • • •

The intermediate ball question locally still remains a question. Whether or not the E.P.L. will operate remains on the laps of the gods. The Raybestos squad is thinking of going in with Coe Hill, Delro and Havelock in the Trent Valley League, which hasn't met yet; C.G.E. was considering joining the Lakeshore League, but isn't sure of raising the dough necessary so far; and both C. G. E. and Posters were thinking of getting, maybe, one more local team and Marmora and reorganizing the E.P.L. Meantime, Bill Prindible figures he won't take any action for another week and by that time some or all of these clubs will know just what they want to do. We agree with him as another week should see the situation clearing up.

• • • • • • •

Herb Ralph is calling a practice at 2.30 tomorrow afternoon in the exhibition grounds for his junior ball team. All players in town of junior age who want a tryout are invited as every position is open yet. Herb is hoping to have the Rotary Club sponsor his team, known last year as the Terriers. The squad is entered in the Lakeshore Junior Baseball League, a strong six-team circuit, and games here will be played in Riverside Park and the Exhibition Grounds. Schedule will be mailed to the clubs shortly. The local team would like to open here Saturday, May 25th, at Riverside against Oshawa while our seniors are playing in the Motor City.

Two Church Softball League games were played last night. Knox Seniors dropping a 9-8 score to George St., while Knox Bantams took a terrific walloping from Park St.—21-1 if you want the gory details. Then, Knox Juveniles failed to show up for their game and the executive may rule this a default as teams, even though the weather is bad, must play their scheduled games unless notified otherwise by a member of the executive. The All Saints-St. James' junior tilt last eve was officially called off. Games tonight are: Murray St. vs. St. Paul's Seniors at King Edward Park; George St. vs. St. John's Juniors at Queen Mary; George St. vs. St. Luke's Juveniles at the Oval; All Saints vs. St. James' Bantams at King Edward Park; and St. John's vs. George St. Bantams at Queen Mary. AMBERS RETAINS FAVORITE ODDS

SETTLE 'LIGHT' CROWN.

(By Bob Cagagnaro)

NEW YORK May 10 (AP)—A new lightweight boxing champion will be crowned to-night when the veteran Tony Canzoneri, former wearer of the crown, and youthful Lou Ambers meet in a 15-round bout at Madison Square Garden.

They will settle for the throne abdicated by Chicago's Barney Ross, who announced some time ago he no longer could make the weight limit of 135 pounds. Advance sale of tickets indicates the fight will attract close to 19,000 capacity with the receipts about $60,000.

Ambers rules the betting-odds choice at 9 to 5. The Herkimer, N.Y., Hurricane's youth and sturdiness are popularly figured too strong for Canzoneri to break down the walls of tradition and become the first former lightweight titleholder ever to regain his crown.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

Number 606

The tournament committee of the U.S.G.A. must have felt it was picking courses too easy for the American open. This year they've picked one of the toughtest in the country.

As a rule, the pressure of play in the open adds about 10 strokes to the winner's game. Oakmount, the course for this year's play, will add six or eight strokes more.

In addition to being chock full of sand traps, the traps themselves are doubly difficult. On this particular course they are in the habit of raking the sand so that it is left with furrows which cause the ball almost to hide from view in many cases.

Once a player becomes afraid of these hazards he begins to steer his shots with the result that his swing becomes choppy. In the end he visits the traps more often. The man who wins will have to beat both the field and the course.

Next: More by Morrison

Number 607

You don't have to think about your right hand. It works automatically. Few seem to remember this. All players suffer from too much right hand in the swing.

When this fault becomes apparent to them they busy themselves with cutting down the right. It doesn't occur to them that building up the left would solve the problem. I always tell my pupils that taking care of the left hand is about all you have to do. It takes care of both hands.

The next time you are having trouble with your hands, instead of trying to get your right hand in position just turn your left hand over. Adjust it so that you can see only the back of it. This should place both hands in the right position.

Psychic Bid Rushed to Pimlico For $25,000 Preakness Classic.

WHISKOLO MAY BE IN.

By Orlo Robertson
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

BALTIMORE, May 10 (AP).—Apparently not satisfied that Omaha is the better horse following his decisive victory in the Kentucky Derby, five three-year-olds, each of which finished back of William Woodward's chestnut flash at Churchill Downs, will be given another chance Saturday when they face the son of Gallant Fox in the $25,000 Preakness at Pimlico.

Warren Wright's Nellie Flag, the strapping filly which disappointed her followers in the Derby, heads the quintet that includes E. R. Bradley's Boxthorn, Mrs. Dodge Sloan's Psychic Bid, Mrs. Walter M. Jefford's Commonwealth, and Mrs. W. S. Kilmer's Sun Fairplay.

There also is a chance that Whiskolo, who carried the silks of Mr. F. C. Mars' Milky Way Farm to third place in the Derby, may be among the dozen or more entries when they are announced to-day.

BLANK CARTRIDGE BURNS MAX BAER

Rehearsal For Broadcasting Sketch Proves Too Realistic.

ASHBURY PARK, N.J., May 10 (CP)—Heavyweight champion Max Baer had a powder burn on his chest to-day and some very decided ideas about persons who play with firearms, as a result of a studio accident.

Baer was hurt while rehearsing a radio skit yesterday. Jerry Casale, attached to his camp, was watching. There was some talk of sound effects.

Cascale decided the sound of the revolver shot, heard over the air, wasn't loud enough. He loaded a revolver with blank cartridges, accidentally pulled the trigger and the gun went off, injuring Baer superficially.

Canoe Racing Fans To Organize Group

A canoe racing and paddling section of the Peterborough Sailing and Aquatic Club will be formed here at a meeting at 7.30 on Tuesday evening in the Y.M.C.A., provided enough canoe enthusiasts attend. Sufficient funds are on hand to purchase three racing canoes this summer. Two singles may be bought, which could be used also in tandem competition, and one fours.

The plan behind the proposed organization of this canoe section locally is to develop paddlers who might, within two or three years, compete in Canadian Canoe Association regattas. This is considered an ideal centre for canoeing activities, with the Peterborough canoe being manufactured here and so much water available. All those interested in either racing or paddling canoes are invited to attend this meeting next Tuesday evening.

Cricket Results

LONDON, May 10 (C.P. Cable)—Poor batting by Worcestershire in the final day's play gave Sussex victory in the county cricket championship match at Worcester to-day by an innings and 86 runs.

Sussex declared its innings at resumption of play to-day, having piled up 537 runs for six wickets. Worcestershire was quickly dismissed for 160, failing before the attack of Tate and J. Cornford. Tate took five wickets for 30 runs and his colleague four for 64. In their first innings the west county players scored 291.

Glamorgan recorded a first innings victory over Yorkshire at Neath. The Welshmen compiled 270 and 231 for four wickets, declared, the visitors replying with 262 and 72 for three wickets.

The South African touring team annexed its third straight win, being successful over Cambridge University by an innings and 46 runs. Cambridge obtained 282 and 192, the visiting cricketers amassing 415. Tomlinson for the South Africans, took four wickets for 64.

LEAFS REDUCED TO TWENTY MEN

Pitcher Yelovic Returns to Minor Ball—Ray Davis at Toronto.

TORONTO, May 10 — With the departure last night of John Yelovic, the Maple Leafs were reduced to the active player limit of International League and they will continue for a while at least with the remaining twenty men. Yelovic, a pitcher last season with Topeka of the Western League where he won 13 games and lost nine, apparently lacked experience to stay in Class AA ball. In his term with the Leafs, the young moundsman appeared in 3 games, one of which he lost and none of which he was able to win. In the total of nine innings pitched, he struck out only two men and walked nine. His lack of control was evidenced in three wild pitches recorded against him.

The arrival of Roy Davis from the Reds and the delayed arrival of the final date for cutting down the staff meant that someone had to go, and while the powers that be in the Toronto club figure Yelovic has possibilities, it would be foolish to expect him to bear up this season in the International.

Following are the twenty players on the Toronto roster — Pitchers, Coleman, Davis, Barnes, Hilcher, Cozad, Lucas, Pattison, Cook; catchers, Pasek, Crouch, Peacock; infielders, Shevlin, Morrissey, Chapman, Handley, Miller; outfielders, Boone, Schulmerich, Oliver, Smith.

Park St. Bantams Defeat Knox 21-1

Park Street Bantams smeared Knox for a 21 to 1 victory in their Church League softball game last evening. With Sanderson pitching four-hit ball and fanning 10, the Knox batters were handcuffed. Smythe, Beggs and Crowe were all used in a vain atatempt to check the slugging South-enders. Milburn and Anderson went good in the field, while Tarkington, Miles, and Hal Campbell pounded the pill. Strong Finish Wins George St. Seniors

A strong finish gave George Street a 9-8 Church Softball League win over Knox Seniors last night. Knox led 7-0 in the fourth but faded in the gathering dusk. A Wedlock pitched well but outfield errors let him down in the late innings. McKee on the George Street slab had better support. Allen hit and fielded in good style for Knox with McDonald and Smythe also smacking the pill. Weir's fielding and Burns' batting featured for George Street with Dart and R. Kingdon also going good. The teams:

Knox—Allen, ss; A. Wedlock, p; Smythe, rf; Morrison, 1b; Ferguson, 2b; McDonald, cf; W. Wedlock, c; Charlton, lf; Archibald, 3b.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

by McDONALD FEADER

FICTION

CHAPTER 22

Backstage was a cold ugly place and the great dark house, with its row after row of seats, was like a ghost. Consuelo was given a dressing room and on the way back from it paused in front of a door with a gold star upon it. At her question she learned that this was Louise L'Ville's room, L'Ville, premiere danseuse of the Follies.

There was no loitering backstage yet for the girl. Dalstrom brought her in. Introductions were made to the stage manager and dance director. She was asked to stand on the bare stage and lights were played on her. It was tiresome. The orchestra was practicing a gypsy dance to play for her and they did not seem to be able to get the time to suit her. She was asked this and that. She was stared at by the stage hands and curious members of the show and there was no friendliness in their attitudes. She was taken away as quickly as possible. Not yet had she danced for any of them. The supposed tryout before Goldberg which had given her the contract, had been a farce.

She had not seen Stewart.

Once Doug had come up to her and pressed her hand in friendly fashion. "Don't let 'em get your goat, kid, it's all in a day's work, this fussing around. Keep your head and you'll get along fine."

Now as she stood by the window and looked down, it all seemed like a dream. Nothing was real yet. Tomorrow she was going to try out with the music. She wished that she might go and find a brook and a tree and sleep there all night first. Perhaps it would be different on that great barren stage when the silver dollars came rolling to her feet, then perhaps its depressing atmosphere would vanish.

There was a knock on the door and Ann answered it. She came back into the room, a box in her arms.

"For you, miss." She placed the box on the table.

Consuelo went over to it. It was a long white box tied with an orchid satin bow. She slipped the ribbon off and winding it about her waist, tied the bow again. Then she opened the box. Two dozen American Beauty roses stared up at her. A cry of delight left her lips and she caught the lovely flowers up in her arms and buried her face in their fragrance.

"Ann, Ann, have you ever seen anything like these? Roses more perfect than any that ever grew before!" She picked up a small envelope and opened it. Inside was a card from Stewart. It said: "You're doing fine, gypsy girl. Keep it up."

The red lips pouted.

"Fool, to send me a letter I can hardly read. Why does he leave me alone like a dog? Am I not good enough for him now? I am a rich gypsy. Look at my clothes. Look at my jewelry. I have a woman to wash my body for me. People gather around when they see me on the street. I am a dancer at the Goldberg Follies." She was boasting, half to Ann, mostly to herself. "I ought to be good enough for him now."

She broke off a rose bud and stuck it into her hair and went back to the window. Why hadn't the white man brought the flowers instead of sending them?

She could not think of him long She went into the bedroom, and pulling out the dresser drawers, laid the lovely things one by one on the floor. Lingerie of lace that brought a blush to her cheeks, that no gypsy had seen before. Skirts and blouses that looked more like a gypsy than her own clothes had. But with all of these things that were so fine she left the finest of them all in the bottom of the last drawer and it was the shawl the Dummy had painted for her. Thrown carelessly beside it was the diamond ring and these were the only things that linked her to the gypsy camp now. Even her thoughts had been so full that she had not thought of it or of Marcu or Girtza or the Dummy.

She slipped off her clothes and into a nightgown of chiffon and lace and drew on a negligee of softest velvet. She picked up the satin slippers that Stewart had given her. They were her only pair, for with all of her clothes she was still barefoot. She did not realize they were keeping her "gypsy." She squeezed her toes into the slippers and like one walking on eggs paraded up and down the room, swaying her hips and slouching her shoulders as she had seen gorgio women do. She sat down in a chair, crossed her legs, and pulled up the bottom of her skirts.

"No thank you, I don't care for any dessert, but I will have a cigaret."

She went through the motions of accepting a cigaret and lighting it. She inhaled deeply and blew imaginary smoke rings into the air.

"Really, my friend Mr. Blackmire, I think you have deserted me like a woman with 10 children. I am ready to do whoopee!"

She threw back her head then and laughed.

"I shall lie like the gorgio women. He will want me than and will not leave me alone like a dog!"

The next morning at dawn Consuelo was up. She dressed and, taking an orange and an apple from the basket of fruit, slipped out of the suite of rooms, leaving Ann sound asleep. She talked with the elevator boy and because she whistled through her teeth and held on to his arm when the elevator went fast, the boy took her up to the top floor three times and down—zooming down—as fast as the elevator would go and the girl shrieking with delight.

It was the frantic rings of the night clerk who finally stopped them.

She left the hotel then and wandered out into the street. There was no one to stop her now and she skipped along and paused to look in the shop windows and munched the apple and spat the skins out. The people who were abroad at this early hour of the morning were not interested in the gypsy so she was neither stopped nor followed.

She tried to imagine that the great high buildings that flanked both sides of her were the trees of a forest and that presently she would come to a brook and bathe her feet and dance on the moss and perhaps the Dummy would be there watching her.

She stopped in front of the theater. Goldberg's Follies. There was nothing about it that made her think of a marble palace or a high hill. Disappointment crept in. She went up and looked at the pictures and there were not as many of her as she had thought and they were not as prominently placed as she had expected. This woman, Louise L'Ville, had three times as many pictures. From all sides of the foyer they looked at her. Here was one of just her head and it was done in color and her hair was the purest yellow and her eyes the deepest blue and her lips the brightest carmine and she was beautiful.

Consuelo stared at this picture. It stood almost as high as she and she looked around and the ones of her were no more than a foot big. Now it seemed that her dream was far away and she felt that this blonde-haired woman was standing in the marble palace in her stead.

Moments passed and she did not move, only her eyes had narrowed until they were almost closed and her heart beat more rapidly and her hands were tensed.

Presently she left the theater and walked on. There were people coming on the streets now and they turned to look at her as she passed but she did not see them. She no longer looked in the shop windows but walked as one in a dream or one concerned with deep and puzzling thoughts. The one central point in the vortex of her thoughts was this woman, this blonde Louise L'Ville.

For a long way she walked and her feet hurt from the hard cement. There were more people now and the streets were becoming alive with cars and taxis and crowded motor buses. Then ahead of her loomed green trees and grass. She began to run and, in her gladness, she was almost crying that here in this great city of New York should be heavenly greenness.

She bathed her feet in the fountain and threw herself on the grass and looked up at the leaves and the sky. Never had the trees seemed so good to her. She forgot about the golden-haired woman; about this mad New York, about the lovely clothes that were hers, the jewelry, and the promise of dancing. What was it anyway in comparison with a good tree? She closed her eyes breathing in the fragrance of the earth.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, May 11

A very important and intriguing day is forecast from the interesting astrological situation. Both the purely private as well as the business life seem on the brink of a radical change, with events of an entirely unforeseen nature being precipitated. The decisions made this day will have a marked influence on the future destiny and happiness.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a very interesting, pleasant and eventful year, and one with an important bearing on the future career. Radical change seems imminent, with favorable reactions on the private affiliations. There is a tendency toward trick, shrewd or crafty methods, which may cause regret.

A child born on this day may be brilliant, versatile, original and have creative abilities in untried fields. But it may be handicapped by an inclination to expediency or sharp practice in its methods, unless given early training in veracity and integrity.

Three thousand musicians competed in a recent festival in Stirlingshire, Scotland.

Magistrate's Court

Spectators, police officers and other court officials, even to the usually staid and dignified occupant of the bench were convulsed with laughter during hearing of a charge of common assault against Abraham Cherney, Charlotte street second-hand merchant, in Magistrate's Court yesterday afternoon.

In recording a conviction and ordering the defendant to pay a fine of $5 and $5.35 costs, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., remarked: "I must find that the defendant struck the complainant. It is plain to see that he is a very excitable man who is practically unable to control himself."

The complainant, a London street woman, related in evidence that she owed $2 on a suite of dining room furniture she had purchased on the installment plan. The purchase price was $27.50. Admitting that payment of the balance was overdue, she stated that Cherney called at her house and demanded payment. When witness told him she was unable to pay defendant took her by the shoulders and shook her, she said, and then marched into the dining room and removed five of the six chairs comprising the suite.

Complainant's story was borne out by her 10-year-old son who when asked by Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., who conducted the prosecution, why he did not hit Cherney, brightly replied, "I didn't have time."

The defendant who was ably represented by Jacob Low, as counsel denied having shaken the complainant. When being examined by Mr. Gordon, Cherney was so voluable in his protestations of innocency that the Magistrate had great difficulty in urging him to stop talking.

Urging that his client had possibly laid hands on the woman as a result of his excitable disposition and not with the intent of assaulting her, Mr. Low expressed the opinion that the police should afford some co-operation to Mr. Cherney and other merchants carrying on a similar business.

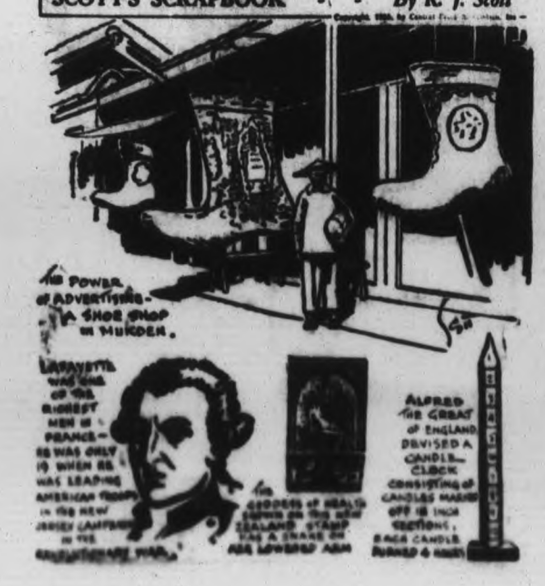
SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK - By R. J. Scott



MILLBROOK
ONE-ACT PLAYS ARE PRESENTED BY FOUR GROUPS

Millbrook Y.P.S. Wins Peterborough Presbytery Dramatic Contest.

GEORGE STREET SECOND.

"Pink Geraniums" is the pleasant name of the one-act play with which the Young People's Society of Millbrook's United Church won the dramatic contest of the Y.P.S. of Peterborough Presbytery, held last evening at Centerville, with four contestants taking part.

The winners had a very close edge on the second-place contestants, the Young People's Society of George Street United Church, Peterborough, whose entry, "He Passed Through Samaria," lost out by a very close margin. A tie between these two plays was averted by the fact that "Pink Geraniums" went through without a lapse of memory, whereas the other play, a much heavier and lengthier drama that made more difficult demands on the players, was marked by several memory lapses.

The judges were all from Peterborough, Mrs. R. G. Cornell, Miss Marie Hicks and Miss Cathleen McCarthy. Mrs. Cornell voiced the opinion of the trio in a very well-worded criticism of the four plays, at the close.

Miss Helen Staples, convenor of the Dramatic contest of the Young People's Societies of the Presbytery, was in charge of arrangements. The vote of thanks to the judges and assisting musicians was voiced by Fred Barnard of Ballieboro.

Taking part in the musical program which formed an interlude in the dramatic offerings, were Orville Wainman of Millbrook, who sand, and dances, accompanied by Alex Armstrong of Millbrook, Miss Grace Johnston, Miss Gwen Hutchinson and Clairmont Morgan, all of whom gave piano numers.

The plays were splendidly presented in every instance, showing just how well youthful players can present varied offerings, one of which was a most impressive religious drama, "He Passed Through Samaria"; another, "The Violin-Maker of Cromona," also of the dramatic type, having an unusual mediaeval setting that was well portrayed, and the two comedies of the evening: "Not Quite a Goose" and "Pink Geraniums," coming possibly more easily within the scope of the players taking part.

The entries were as follows: "Not Quite a Goose," (in third place), played by the Y.P.S. of Millbrook United Church, with Miss Frances Jones as director, and a cast that include the Misses Jean Burnham, Mary Burnham and Beatrice Jones, with Kenneth Kidd and Joe Thorndyke. "Pink Geraniums," also entered by the Y.P.S. of Millbrook United Church, and directed by Mrs. Bruce Dawson, with cast members in the Misses Helen Mitchell, Phyllis Kidd and Margaret Preston, and Bruce Dawson and Orville Wainman.

The other two entries were both from George Street United Church, Peterborough: "He Passed Through Samaria," directed by Miss Vera Squire, with cast members: the Misses Olive Rowe and Thelma Millyard, and Homer Borland and Garnet Dainard; auso "The Violin-Maker of Cremona," directed by Mrs. C. S. Thompson, and played by Miss Ariel Wildman and Lloyd Parnell, Jake Burnham and Lloyd Wells, with two charming little pages in Jean and Mary Lillow.

$538 Trapping Fine

LINDSAY, Ont., May 10 (Special to The Examiner).—George Otto, of Haliburton, 56 years, was fined $538 by Magistrate Gee when he pleaded guilty to the charge of trapping in close season, in Anson township, north of here. Twenty-six beaver pelts and 18 muskrate pelts were confiscated. Otto was caught by Game Wardens Windsor and Scott, both of whom tramped the bush with 100 pounds on their back and a tent for four days. Otto showed resistance, but came out quietly. He paid the fine.

The magistrate levied a fine of $20 for each beaver pelt and $1 for each muskrat skin.

Lead Pairs Bunched Toronto Bike Grind

TORONTO, May 10 (C.P.).—Five pairs of riders whirled around the wooden saucer at the Maple Leaf Gardens to-day, closely bunched, but Torchy Peden and Al Crossley were a good lap ahead of everybody as the current six-day bicycle race reached the 109th hour at 1 p.m.

The two teams pressing the leaders were the German entry of Gustav Kilian and Heinz Vopel and the Toronto kid couple, Reggie Fielding and Freddie Ottevaire. One lap behind them were two more, Miethe-Zach and Walthour-Audy. The rest of the pack, whittled from 13 to 11 teams by injuries and illness last night, struggled along several laps in the rear. The race ends Saturday night.

England now has about 1,500,000 automobiles, and the number is growing.

Amy Fined For Driving Car Without a License

BRIDLINGTON, Eng.—Mrs. Amy Johnson Mollison, the noted woman flier, was fined 10 shillings (about $2.40) to-day on a charge of driving an automobile without a license.

A policeman who investigated an accident April 19 in which a motor cycle rider was killed in a collision with Mrs. Mollison's car, said she had been unable to find her license and when it was produced two days later it was found to have expired. Mrs. Mollison testified her secretary had neglected to renew it.

Claims Fishing As Cure For Temperamental Stars

HOLLYWOOD.—Cats may look at kings, but fish won't ask movie actors for their autographs. That's the reason Guy Kibee, portly character actor, believes film producers, troubled by temperamental stars, should insert "fishing clauses" in all contracts. "This clause would make it mandatory for every star to go fishing at least once a month," said Kibee, noted for his rod-and-reel prowess. "It does something to your ego. "You never heard of a fish applauding, did you? You never saw a fish ask an actor for his autograph, did you?"

4 Teams In Mileage Tie In Toronto Bike Grind

TORONTO.—Five hours of persistent pedalling left four teams still deadlocked in a mileage tie at the six-day bicycle race in Maple Leaf Gardens to-day with only 10 hours to go. The Germans, Gustav Kilian and Heins Vopel, headed the 1 p.m. standings by virtue of their 696 points augmented in the day's sprints but Peden-Crossley, Miethesch and Walthour-Audy and travelled just as far in the ride to nowhere. All 10 teams had passed the 2,338-mile mark and were bunched within five laps of the leaders.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont.—Women's clothes have changed since Louis Martineau last saw them. He arrived here on his way to Winnipeg after spending the last 30 years in a United States penitentiary. The last time I saw women's clothes they were trailing on the ground."

Scores Injured in St. John's Street Riot

JOBLESS MOBS BREAK WINDOWS AND LOOT SHOPS

Battle Rages Into Night as Crowd Swarms About Colonial Building.

PROTEST OVER RELIEF.

Five Arrests Made, Many Sought—Dozens Injured—Police Patrol Streets.

By PATRICK J. O'REILLY
Canadian Press Correspondent

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., May 11—(C.P. Cable)—After hours of riot, St. John's was quiet today as police patrolled her old streets in the fear new outbreaks might flare among her unemployed.

Steel - helmeted officers watched for a recurrence of yesterday's disorders that saw stores broken open and looted and skulls cracked as demonstrators used force to impress demands upon official Newfoundland.

Five men were under arrest and more were sought as the outcome of rioting. Though no fatalities occurred, many were reported to have been beaten into unconsciousness. Windows were smashed as milling crowds broke their way into jewelry, shoe and candy stores.

Their claim was officials of the commission government had refused to recognize a committee they had appointed to supply labor for public works projects and they wanted, further to have labor recruiting divorced from the relief department.

When the parading crowd reached the Colonial building in the afternoon to present its demands, it was met by police, the officers tried to turn them away, for most of the government officers had gone home, but the demonstrators continued.

The Battle Starts

Then, wading into the mob, the policemen swung batons right and left. All over the spacious grounds, a general battle went on. Newspaper reporters and photographers arrived and one pressman— John T. Meany—was dropped with a scalp wound, though he was not hurt seriously.

A second newspaperman, with a camera, had the camera smashed, while George Wilkinson, unemploy-

Italian-Ethiopian Case Grows Tense

LONDON, May 11 (A.P.).—It was authoritatively learned to-day Great Britain, following reports from East Africa and Rome in connection with the Italo-Ethiopian dispute, has initiated new efforts to settle the troubles between the two nations.

It was learned the British are co-operating with the French in making new representations to Rome and Addis Ababa in order to end the difficulties amicably.

Informed quarters said the relations between the Government of Premier Musscilni and that of Emperor Haile Selassie are rapidly becoming more tense and may flame into war momentarily.

Addressed C.C.F.

E. J. GARLAND, M.P.
Member of Commons, Bow River, Alberta, told convention which nominated Dr. Lorna Cotton as C.C.F. candidate for Peterborough seat in House that Hon. H. H. Stevens could discuss the unethical practices of trade and the evils of the capitalistic system, but he had no solution to offer the people.

LORNA COTTON IS NOMINATED BY THE C. C. F.

Active Campaign in the Interests of the C. C. F. is Promised.

GARLAND SPEAKS.

Attempts to Regulate Capitalism Always Failed Speaker Declares.

Dr. Lorna Cotton was nominated candidate of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation in the federal elections at a closed meeting of delegates from this riding in the Canadian Legion hall last night.

On the basis of population there were thirty delegates from the city and twenty from the townships. William Leader presided, and the main address of the evening was delivered by E. J. Garland, M.P., Bow River, Alberta. Quite a number of citizens arrived for the post convention speech, which was featured by Mr. Garland's reference to the visit of the Hon. H. H. Stevens M.P., to this city this evening.

The C.C.F. members appointed a constituency council of twelve to act in an advisory capacity to the executive, and an active campaign in the C.C.F. cause was indicated in the brief remarks of Dr. Cotton as she accepted the Club's nomination as their representative in the general elections which are to be held this year.

"I feel very humble in accepting this responsibility," Dr. Cotton said. "It is not a question of representing this constituency of Peterborough. Our problem is not a local one. It is a question of representing the great mass of the people who have not been represented up to this time. You have done me a great honor, and it shall be my endeavor to live up to the principles and the ideals of our movement, which are very high."

Promises Activity

"I have a capacity for work, and I intend to cover this constituency three times from north to south. I am going into the election to win, confident of your help and of the soundness of our principles. I believe there are forces moving the public today that are far deeper than merely the names Conserva-

T., N. O. RAILWAY MAY DEVELOP LIGNITE FIELDS

Could Save $300,000 Annually in Fuel States Chairman Lang.

CUT BILL IN HALF.

Processing Difficulties Overcome on Immense Moosonee Deposits.

NORTH BAY, May 10.—(CP). — Development of lignite fields on the Moosonee branch of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway to obtain for use on the Ontario Government owned raod, is under consideration by the management, Chairman Col. Malcolm Lang announced to-day.

Development of the fields, in the vicinity of Blacksmith Rapids, 127 miles north of Cochrane, would enable the railway to cut its fuel bill by half and create a saving of more than $300,000 annually, Col. Lang said. It also would provide a new industry for the northern section and, in the opinion of the chairman, eliminate importation of fuel by northern industries.

"If the deposits are not to be developed by the Government or private interests," said Col. Lang, "I'm so keen about the potentialities I am willing to take it over and develop it for the railway. The thing is so big it's a shame to have it lying idle."

Deposits of 125,000,000 tons have been proven in an area of 13 square miles during recent surveys by engineers of the Ontario Research Foundation, said Col. Lang. He said there was difficulty expected in the mining development and that obstacles which in the past have blocked development through high cost of treating raw material and processing into commercial product, are believed overcome in a new method for dehydration.

Should it be decided to develop the fields by the raailway, operations would be started during the coming summer, Col. Lang said.

70,000 School Pupils Cheer King and Queen

LONDON, May 11 (AP) — King George and Queen Mary to-day made the first of four Saturday Jubilee drives to sections of London as three of their sons took part in Welsh, Scottish and Ulster Jubilee celebrations

Seventy thousand school children, drawn from boroughs which will not be visited by the Royal couple, cheered the carriage procession as it left Buckingham Palace and swung up Constitution Hill.

The children were in complete possession of stands, built for the Thanksgiving procession to St. Paul's Cathedral last Monday, both along Constitution Hill and The Mall.

A captain's escort of Lifeguard, brilliant in scarlet coats, white breeches and shiny boots, a drawn sword in the gauntletted hand of each trooper and plumes nodding above shiny helmets, accompanied the King and Queen.

FATHER DENIES POISON CHARGE

Brooklyn Bookkeeper However Admits Knowing Powder in House.

WIFE, 4 CHILDREN VICTIMS.

NEW YORK, May 11 (A.P.).—Near exhaustion, Frederick Gross, 49-year-old Brooklyn bookkeeper, stood in the police line-up to-day and reiterated his innocence of the deaths of his wife and four children by poisoning.

He was calm as he made denials to the questioning of Acting Police Captain Frederick Swirz, that he had put a poison roach exterminator taken from the warehouse of his employer, into cocoa drunk by his wife and children.

Swirz asked him if he had shared the cocoa.

"No," answered Gross, "I drank coffee that night."

Gross excited some surprise when he admitted the truth of the charge read to him. He quickly amended his admission, however, to say he wished only to acknowledge the fact of his arrest. He also admitted having access to the poison and he knew its fatal strength.

"When your wife and children were taken ill did you send for a doctor?" asked Swirz.

"Yes, I immediately called for a doctor," the prisoner said.

The deaths charged against Gross are those of Katherine, 38 his wife; his sons, Frederick, nine and Leo, two and his daughters Katherine seven, and Barbara 18 months.

Hats Off To Mothers Every Day

By VIRGINIA LEE

"All that I am I owe to my angel mother," wrote Abraham Lincoln; and many a man and woman echoes his statement.

And yet not all mothers are blessings to their children, as I very well know from letters I get from young people. Some men and women cheer when Mothers' day is mentioned. For their mothers were not the type to help them to be better men and women, or as Tennyson put it:

"Happy he with such a mother, Faith in womankind beats in his blood,
And trust in all things high Comes easy to him."

For, and to say, there are mothers who make their homes sordid and miserable places by constant bickerings and scoldings. There are neglectful mothers as well as self-sacrificing ones; interfering mothers, and wholly selfish mothers.

There are mothers who plainly show that certain of their children are favorites, and hurt the others cruelly, causing inferiority complexes and jealousies that last through life. And there are mothers who make no effort to understand their needs, and so grow further and further away from them, finally losing them utterly.

Motherhood Helpful

Being a mother does not necessarily make an angel, or even a near angel of a woman. But I do think it helps. To have a tiny helpless human being thrust into your care, turning to you for life itself, is a very broadening experience. It breeds a kinship with the whole world of humans and animals, too.

The Madonna with her child in her arms is the embodiment of all young mothers, wide eyed and earnest. The picture of Raphael's, the "Sistine Madonna", is in the gallery at Dresden, Germany.

And Whistler's mother, whose portrait hangs once more in the Louvre, Paris, after a tour of the United States during the Century of Progress exposition, is typical of the older mother, whose nest is empty because her nurslings have flown to homes of their own. It typifies the mother who may be partially forgotten by her children who are busy with the world's affairs. And it is this type of mother for whom Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia inaugurated Mothers' day.

So hats off to all mothers on this day—whether they be young or old, rich or poor ,dead or living. God bless 'em every one!

5 CREWS BATTLE TO FREE VESSEL

Three Coastguards, Salvage Scow and Lighter Aid Coal Carrier.

ON MAIN DUCK SHOAL.

OSWEGO, N.Y., May 11.—(CP).—Crews of three United States coastguard boats, a salvage scow and a lighter to-day worked against a strong west wind that kicked up a slightly rough sea in their efforts to free the Canadian steamer Key West from shoals that trapped the craft yesterday morning off Main Duck Island in Lake Ontario.

In spite of the handicap, however, the coastguard cutters Forward out of Oswego and the Eagle, out of Rochester, only such craft on the lake, wireleased a report to District Commander Charles Walker at Buffalo that "it looks good for releasing ship to-day."

The Forward, the Eagle and a 36-foot motor-powered lifeboat out of Oswego, had been at the scene for more than 20 hours at 10 a.m. to-day.

The crews of all the boats sought to light the craft, which was carrying coal, enough to prevent her to float free.

MAYOR'S CHAIR FREED OF DEBT

Bailiff's Possession of Muncipal Chattels Ended at Noon To-day.

CHEQUE TO G. N. GORDON.

The bailiff's tenure of the council chamber and his possession of the mayor's chair and the seats of the alderman was fading out of the local news picture this morning as City Solicitor Corkery arranged to deliver a cheque for $110 to G. N. Gordon, whose action yesterday led to the seizure of these municipal goods and chattels at the city hall.

Mr. Corkery declined to make any further comment on yesterday's flurry, and Mayor Denne told The Examiner that the wise thing to do was to hand over the cheque and put an end to the affair.

"If Mr. Gordon had waited until noon yesterday the cheque would have been in his hands when the afternoon mail arrived," Mayor Denne said. "The citizens don't want to hear any more about it, and no one would approve of holding back the cheque and causing anything like controversy."

Calm Again

So the city's integrity and financial credit, impugned by the presence of the bailiff, was getting back on its feet to-day, and the incident was rapidly losing its ephermeral interest.

The bailiff's raid was authorized by Mr. Gordon to collect a judgment of $110 against the city awarded in a Division Court action to a woman who was injured by falling on Simcoe street last December. Mr. Gordon considered the city was needlessly delaying payment to his client.

Nations in Line on Foreign Policy in Europe—Critical Period.

MUSSOLINI TAKES PART.

FLORENCE, Italy, May 11. — (C.P.-Havas) — Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy and Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg of Austria in a two-hour conference in a Villa near here today reached "perfect identity of views on all questions interesting both countries at the present time."

Seen as an important preliminary to the forthcoming Danubian conference at Rome, the meeting was understood to have definitely lined up Austria with Italy on foreign policy in Europe at an hour when important political relationships are crystallizing among the Balkan nations and involving the great powers.

Italy and Austria were reported to have agreed to oppose restoration of the Hapsburgs and Austria should have an army sufficient to resist Nazi efforts to come to power. There was no hint as to such decisions in the communique, however Il Duce departed for Rome by plane at 5 p.m. It was expected Schuschnigg would return to Vienna tomorrow.

QUOTAS REDUCED IN ROAD CAMPS

60 Men Are Now Employed in Each Camp Instead of Original 140.

MUST HELP FARMERS.

The number of men employed in the road camps in the northern part of Peterborough County has been furthered reduced from the original 140 in each camp to 60.

At the end of April the provincial government decided to apply the brakes to their road building operations in order that a supply of labor would be made available for the farmers of the country.

The personnel of the camps was cut from 140 to about 80 each at the end of April, and since then groups of the men who were assigned for the May work have been dismissed.

Financial Problem

"The government has been forced to consider the financial cost of the road work" J. S. Selkirk told The Examiner this morning. "They should remember that the Hepburn

CANADA FACING FASCIST REIGN STEVENS WARNS

Result of Key Capitalists Failure to Develop Policy Beneficial to Masses.

13 Men Hold Half Wealth.

Would Order Group, Heads Loan Firms Shoulder Task of Righting Affairs.

TORONTO, May 11—(CP)—Thirteen men who control virtually one half of Canada's industrial and commercial wealth should be called into conference with officers of major trust, loan and insurance companies, and the group should be peremptorily ordered to 'shoulder the task of righting Canadian affairs," says Hon. H. H. Stevens.

Key To Welfare

The former federal minister of trade and finance, in an address to the Association of Accountants and Auditors here last night, suggested that, as a means of looking after the welfare of the people.

"If they failed to assume that task within one month," Mr. Stevens said, "I would say to them that the government would assume the control they now have, and do it."

Because these key capitalists, during the past five years, had not evolved a policy beneficial to the mass of people, the Dominion, Mr. Stevens, said, today faced either Fascism controlled by them, or else Marxism, established by a "destructive revolt" of the people.

Unsound Policy

This extreme concentration of wealth among the few, Mr. Stevens declared, was unsound.

Of the 13 men referred to but not named by Mr. Stevens, one, he said, controlled $4,000,000,000 of the nation's industrial and commercial wealth, and another held 42 salaried positions with different corporations.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Sudden tumbles of grain prices yesterday resulted from a flurry of stop-loss selling because of fears of a bearish surprise in United States Government crop estimates. As a matter of fact, the estimates turned out to be bullish instead of bearish.

The selling flurry came just before the day's trading was ended and caught the wheat and corn markets both without any aggressive support on the part of buyers. Forecasts pointing to likelihood of showers over a considerable area of the domestic wheat belt had a further bearish influence.

Wheat closed weak at about the day's bottom level, 1¼c to 1⅝c under Thursday's finish, July 94⅝c to 97⅝c; corn, ¾c to 1⅛c down, July61⅛c to 61¼c; oats, 1c off to ⅜c up, and provisions unchanged to 5c decline.

At first, the grain markets here showed an upward tendency, owing to firmness of wheat quotations at Liverpool, where demand for wheat was well sustained, and indications were that weekly statistics would prove bullish. Dearth of new speculative demand here, however, became pronounced, pending issuance of the United States Government May crop report, due after the close.

Corn and oats gave way with wheat, and as a result of word that further shipments of corn were to come here from Georgian Bay. Provisions averaged lower, influenced by downturns of hog values and of grains.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 11. — Oriental demand for wheat did much to uplift prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday.

Values closed ⅝c to ¼c higher, May at 87⅝c and July at 88⅝c, in response to a firm Liverpool market, where prices were influenced by the heavy volume of Southern Hemisphere wheat flowing to non-European countries.

Though trading was at a low ebb a strong undertone was apparent in the local pit, and the few scattered sales of Canadian wheat for export provided sufficient support to absorb without difficulty the light selling that appeared.

A 1⅝c decline at Chicago, the result of traders' anticipation the United States Government crop report would not be as bullish as expected, had no effect here. Liverpool closed ⅝d-¾d higher, and Buenos Aires was up fractionally.

Australia cleared only 1,750,000 bushels of wheat this week, of which 1,192,000 bushels went to non-European countries. Of Argentina's 5,600,000-bushel shipments, 1,500,000 bushels went to countries other than Europe. China bought two additional cargoes from Australia yesterday.

2 WEEKS AT SEA NEGROES SAVED

Twenty in Disabled Launch Drift From Bahamas Nearly to Florida.

PICKED UP BY LINER.

PALM BEACH Fla., May 11. — A.P.).—Twenty Bahaman Negroes, drifting on the Atlantic Ocean in a disabled motor launch for two weeks were rescued early to-day by the Seatrain New York, en route from New York to Havana.

The rescue was reported in a message received from the vessel at the radio-marine station here. The position given by the New York at the time it picked up the Negroes was about 100 miles north-northeast of Palm Beach.

The captain of the New York said the Negroes were in good condition, despite their stay on the launch, the Onward of Nassau, the Bahamas.

First reports of the rescue were received at Seatrain Lines, Inc., operators of the vessel, in New York.

At the radio station here it was said the coastguard may be asked to take the Negroes off the ship at Fort Lauderdale, Fla. No definite decision was made on that course however. The captain in his report to New York had said he was proceeding to Havana with the rescued Negroes.

REV. DR. GOFORTH APPEALS FOR AID FOR MANCHURIA

Veteran Missionary Addresses Meeting in St. Paul's Church.

MISSIONARIES NEEDED.

"Are you satisfied with what you are doing? Are you satisfied you are carrying out the bidding of our Lord?" These were the challenging sentences of Dr. Jonathan Goforth as he uttered an appeal for revived efforts toward Christianization of the pagan masses of the Far East in an address to the St. Paul's Presbyterian Church congregation last night.

An attentive group heard the message of the distinguished blind missionary. They knew him as one of the leading Christian missionaries alive and one of the longest-serving in the Far East field. Now without his sight, he looks back over the years in which he has preached the Gospel in China practically without interruption since 1888. He opened the Presbyterian mission field on the Chinese mainland.

Although he looked out over his hearers with unseeing eyes, Dr. Goforth spoke in a manner which told of an undiminished determination and revealed a remarkably youthful appetite for the work to which he has dedicated his life. His address was signalised by the clarity of thought and an impression of the soundness of his faith in the worth of his great endeavor. Through his words, he brought vivid glimpses of the successes the ministers of Christ are enjoying among the Chinese masses and of the tremendous obstacles which they are battling.

He based his words on the text, "Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved."

Faith in Jesus

Through Christ is the only way to salvation, Dr. Goforth asserted. It makes no difference whether a man is Canadian, German, Hindu or Chinese—he will be saved if he has faith in Jesus, he declared.

With ever-increasing frequency, the modern world is urging that the Chinese be left alone with their own religion, he continued. "Their religion is good enough for them," is the attitude, he said.

"Is it good enough for them? No, it is not." He said that in all his forty-seven years in China on missions in eighteen provinces and territories, he had never known a Chinese to be saved by his own religion. The unselfishness of Christianity in preparing the soul for God was lacking. God has promised that "whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved," but they are not privileged to know the Lord, he declared.

A Challenge

"Are we justified in leaving these multitudes in darkness? No. It is a challenge of God that we should go forth and bring the light to them."

Dr. Goforth complained of the handicaps under which Christians are struggling in striving to enlighten the pagan masses. For all Manchuria, larger than Ontario, only three men and three women have been sent by the Presbyterian Church, he declared.

"How can they have faith in the Lord if they have never heard of Him? There are great multitudes in China who have never heard of the Lord. There are great numbers who might believe if they heard and yet they are dying in sin. And our Lord is going to have something to say to us about it."

Received Call

The speaker told of the chance which sent him on his way to the East in God's service. He said his early ambition was to be a politician but that at twenty years of age he suddenly received the call to preach His gospel. Even then he had no idea of serving as a missionary. He answered the appeal of the famous Presbyterian missionary, Rev. McKay, voiced at a meeting he attended by accident near his home.

Dr. Goforth turned his regard to the oft-repeated urging that the "home heathen" be taught the Gospel first before the Chinese heathens. "I believe in saving the heathen,' he declared firmly. "The heathen in Canada is just as guilty in God's sight, is in just as much danger as the heathen out yonder. It is your duty to save the home heathen. Don't sit around talking about it. Do it. Don't say you pay your minister to do it. Your minister can only help you. It is your responsibility."

Dr. Barr

Introducing Dr. Goforth, Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, pastor of the church who presided, spoke of the veteran missionary's long service in the Far East. Dr. Goforth is at home when he is in Canada, and yet his long mission to China has made that a home in his heart, he said.

Dr. Barr welcomed him on his visit to the St. Paul's congregation, pointing out to the gathering that the church is already well known to the learned minister through visits down through the years. He cited him as the greatest living missionary to China.

A service of hymns and prayers was observed by the congregation. Prayers were uttered by James Dutton and other volunteer members of the gathering in addition to Dr. Barr.

Dust at Sea

BALTIMORE, May 11 (C.P.)— Once the mention of dust storms at sea was a standard joke of mariners. But the Naval Hydrographic Office here has received reports of—yes; dust storms at sea. Seven steamships have notified the Department of the phenomenon.

All the craft encountered the dust in the Gulf of Mexico while the Western State "Black Blizzards" were raging.

STAMP CORNER

By M. A. BESSEY

Illustration shows two of the new Canadian stamp issue. The one cent, green, carries a portrait of King George and the 20 cent, olive green, one of the pictorial series, gives a view of Niagara Falls.

Further to our remarks of last week, on how to start collecting stamps.

Once you have the stamps, album, etc., you must also secure some stamp hinges, these are little bits of tissue paper, gummed on one side only. They are folded so that the two outer sides are both those containing the gum. One half is placed on the back of the stamp, nearest to the top, the other is used to fasten the stamp to the album page. These hinges are quite cheap, only 10c to 15c per 1,000, and it is far better to use them than to try and save the few pennies through the use of paste and small bits of ordinary paper.

Your first album will show illustrations of the foreign stamps of various countries and from these you should be able to properly identify your stamps. All varieties will not be shown, of course, but those that are not can usually be identified by means of similar wording to some that are shown.

At first you will hardly be able to properly mount your stamps in their right order, so far as sets and date of issue are concerned, but this is something that will come a little later, when you have been able to secure a catalogue, which will give you all of the information required.

After a few months or so, you will probably find that your first little album is just about full to capacity. Then you should start to figure out what your next step will be. If you decide to continue collecting all countries in a general way, you must also decide on what type of albums you will use. If you decide to make a collection of certain countries, only, you still have the album problem to face. As previously stated, I am in favor of the blank, loose-leaf album, using an up-to-date catalogue in conjunction with it.

Many however, prefer to stick to the illustrated type of bound album, and these are quite efficient, providing you intend to collect only standard varieties for which the albums provide space. Such albums, do of course, soon become out of date, in that little or no provision is made to care for the many new issues. Several publishers of these illustrated albums put out additional volumes every three or four years to take care of the new issues of that particular period.

Exchanging Stamps

Several inquiries have been received from young collectors, lately, requesting information as to how to proceed with their exchanging.

First of all, do not send any damaged or otherwise entirely worthless stamps to anyone else for exchange. Go through your duplicate stamps, and mount all undamaged copies on blank sheets of paper, about 12 to 20 on one sheet.

It is entirely up to the individual as to what basis will be used for the purpose of exchange. If you do not have a catalogue and are not acquainted with the value of the stamps you have to offer, you cannot very well put any price on them. In this case you will just have to exchange on a basis of stamp for stamp and trust to luck that you will not lose out, nor will the other party.

For the most part exchanging is usually done on a catalogue value basis, and this seems to be the most satisfactory for collectors old and young. To do this, however, you must have a catalogue, and if you cannot afford one just at present, be sure to go to your public library and see if they have a catalogue, which you may be able to take out, or if not, to read in their rooms and so secure the information you require.

Above all, be honest with all collectors who trust you by sending you stamps for exchange, and be sure to reply promptly to all letters you receive. Remember, that you wouldn't want anyone to keep a bunch of stamps that you may have sent to them, without a reply of any kind, so treat all others as you would like to be treated.

COURT ENJOYS PEER'S LETTERS

Torrid Missiles of Love Read as Actress Sues Lord Revelstoke.

ASKS HEART BALM.

LONDON, May 11 (A.P.).—Torrid love letters of Lord Revelstoke, described by Justice Swift as "the incoherent vaporings of a boy of 19," to-day created a sensation among society folk keenly interested in the heart balm suit of Angela Joyce, "Miss England" of 1930.

The full texts of the nobleman's letters to the beautiful girl were published in the Metropolitan newspapers.

The letters were splattered with references to kisses and hugs and admissions "You are driving me crazy."

Norman Birkett, counsel for Lord Revelstoke, now 28 and married, hopes to convince the jury all of the things his client said and wrote were spoken and written when he was under 21.

On the other hand, Neville Laski, of the plaintiff's three lawyers, promised proof His Lordship proposed marriage to Angela after he became of age.

"Angela," one of the letters proclaimed, "I adore you and love you more and more every second of every day, and certainly every night."

Another begged:

"Forgive me if I keep on repeating the same things over and over again, but I must make you realize I mean what I say—dreat big kiss to my adorable Angela with every single ounce of my love."

"Oh," Lord Revelstoke wrote, "I am so in love with you, Angela, so terribly in love—I think that it is a good thing, in a way, that we have to part for a short while because the effect of my love and adoration for you is so tremendous." Another missive declared alliteration:

"You are the supremest, sublimest, superbest girl in the world. I'll never get over you—no, I'll always adore you." That one ended with a lot of crosses.

No definite sum was mentioned in the suit.

Ponce de Leon's Palace Located

WASHINGTON May 11 (C.P.)—Ancient foundations of Ponce de Leon's palace in Puerto Rico have been uncovered by excavators working in San Juan.

In reporting the discovery, the National Geographic Society explains that the present structure, commonly known as Ponce de Leon's residence, actually was built after his death. De Leon is most popularly known by his search for the mythical "fountain of youth."

Toronto Convention Reviewed At Bethany

BETHANY, May 10 (Examiner Correspondence). — The monthly meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of St. Paul's Anglican Church was held at the home of Mrs. Hopwood on Tuesday. Reports were read by the treasurer, and Mrs. Holden read a report of the annual meeting held at Toronto at which she was a delegate. Mrs. Hamilton gave a short talk on foreign missions. Miss Ruth Hamilton, Reg.N., spoke to the ladies about the work she is about to commence as missionary to the Eskimos and Cree Indians in the Northland. Miss Hamilton is the first missionary to go from St. Paul's Anglican Church, Bethany. The ladies then resumed work on the Dorcas quilt. Mrs. Robert Morton invited the ladies to hold the next meeting at her home in June, and they will quilt one of the bedspreads on that afternoon. Lunch was then served by the hostess assisted by Miss Preston and Ruth Hamilton and a social hour was spent together.

"No Fair"

LINCOLN, Neb., May 11 (CP) The Nebraska Supreme Court ruled to-day it isn't fair for a juror to regale his comrades with tales about "my operation."

The court reversed a $2,500 judgment in a damage case because Calvin Beedle, a juror, told the other jurors about his experiences following a similar accident. Emily Cook obtained the judgment against Samuel Patterson after receiving a skull fracture in an automobile accident.

WOMAN ADMITS POISON CRIME

Claims Husband Did Not Want to Recover—Hired Man Implicated.

POLICE SAY HELP ASKED.

GULL LAKE Sask. May 11 (CP) —Ten days before her paralytic husband had died he asked her to give him something "to put him out of his misery," Detective Sergeant A. J. Stretton, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, testified Mrs. George B. Reed had told him during the inquest into the man's death held last night.

Sergeant Stretton said Mrs. Reed, strong featured 46-year-old farm woman and mother of three grown children—two sons and a daughter—admitted giving her husband poison. Mrs. Reed and Clarence Wright, hired man on the farm, have been charged with Reed's murder.

Mrs. Reed also gave evidence, saying her husband did not want to get better.

Jacob Leigman, a brother of Mrs. Reed, testified Reed accused his wife and Wright of feeding him poison regularly after February 1935.

Neil McTaggart, neighbor, another witness, said one day Reed told him, "Neil, they poisoned me," and John Zentgraf, another neighbor, testified Reed told him "they slipped me a pill. If I could get hold of a gun I would blow Wright's head off."

Sabbath Message For The Shut-Ins

Written for The Examiner by REV. EDWARD R. JAMES.

A STARTLING STATEMENT.

"In the world ye shall have tribulation, but be of good cheer, I have overcome the world."—St. John 16, 33.

DO you read the wonderful word pictures of the Gospels with imagination? These stories have lived through the centuries because they have been inspired by the Holy Spirit. But all the masters of literature have been gripped by the clear-cut simplicity of language. Have you ever noticed the contrast? "In the world ye shall have tribulation. But be of good cheer, I have overcome the world." Within a few hours He is in the hands of His enemies. The next morning He is hanging on the Cross dying a horrible death. At eventide His dead body is taken down from the tree and buried in a rock-hewn tomb and a great stone is rolled against it. His small group of friends are in their homes lying with their faces to the earth in deep sorrow and fear. His enemies rejoice. He is dead.

He dies on the Cross because He has challenged the world, and the world apparently has been too much for Him. He has challenged the great interests of His day.

1. The Ecclesiastical interests. The clergy of the Jewish church were against Him. He did not deny their claims. "The Scribes and Pharisees sit in Moses' seat. All therefore that they bid you observe that observe and do." But this young Prophet asked them to do the hardest thing for clergy of every age to do, that is to re-think their position. His teaching of the Sabbath was shaking the very foundations of their system of religion. Moreover, He told the common people that a Samaritan could be kinder than a Levite or a priest. Revolutionary teaching. He must be silenced.

2. The Political interests. The country was a Roman province governed by a Roman governor. But the genius of the Roman mind gave much toleration to a conquered people. Rome permitted the great ruling Jewish families to continue to rule over their people with certain limitations. These Jewish rulers were placed in a very delicate position. This young Prophet was constantly preaching about the Kingdom of God. A kingdom and a king were dangerous words. Every Roman officer of the secret service, standing on the edge of the crowd and listening to His preaching, would notify his superior of this expression. Caiaphas was right when he said that such teaching would cause disaster. "The Romans will come and take away our place and our nation." He must be silenced.

3. The Financial interests. Jerusalem was the centre of the Jewish faith. Three times a year multitudes from all parts of the world flowed into it. They came to offer sacrifices and pay their vows. The birds and beasts for sacrifice must be ceremonially clean and could only be purchased in the Temple courts from the Jewish authorities. They could only be paid for in Jewish coin. The exchange transaction was a source of income both coming and going. It was easy money at the expense of the pious, devout Jews. No wonder the young Prophet cleansed the Temple on two occasions and overturned the tables of the money-changers. He touched their pockets. He must be silenced.

So these great interests, Ecclesiastical, Political and Financial, banded themselves together to silence Him. They succeeded. He died with the bitter cry, "My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken me?" He died trusting in God: "Father, into Thy hands I commit my spirit." The purest, truest, and most lovable character the world has ever seen hangs dead on the tree of shame. God apparently has forsaken Him. God's honor is at stake.

"But God raised Him from the dead." It is not resusciation—it is not coming back to life and dying again. Early on the third day the Spirit of the Lord Jesus entered into that cold dead body and transformed it into a spiritual body. It passed through the tight holds of the linen clothes. They collapsed. It passed through the rock walls. The life in that body is the most wonderful life that ever lived. He is now living in the spiritual plane. When necessary He is seen, handled and touched, then disappears. He is alive for ever more because He trusted in God. By His resurrection He is proved to be the Son of God.

There are two ways of showing antagonism towards sin. The one to inflict suffering on the sinner, the other to endure suffering. The Lord Christ by dying on the Cross showed how to overcome sin. "I have overcome the world." Through His death and passion God reveals the cost of victory over sin. In the same way we must take our share in our lesser Calvaries and discover through His strength and in His Spirit that we also can overcome the world, the flesh and devil.

We are face to face with the mystery of the Cross. Why was it necessary for Christ to die on the Cross? Perhaps an illustration from nature will help us to understand it a little more clearly. Have you read "The Master's Violin," by Myrtle Reid? She speaks of the seed of the tree as personal and able to suffer, even from the time it is buried in the earth, where it bursts it heart through pain, then more pain as it bursts through the earth into the sunlight; then the pain of heat and cold and the long years of exposure. Then it is cut down, more pain. Then sharp knives split its fibres and smooth its surface. At last the craftsman finishes the violin. The master violinist plays on it and exclaims, "All the strength, all the beauty, all the pain made into my violin." Even so the Lord Christ calls us to suffer tribulation that He may in the day of victory exclaim, "All the strength, all the beauty, all the pain made into my servants." "Be of good cheer, I have overcome the world."

Prayer, a Personal Duty

By REV. DR. A. I. BROWN.

MANY and previous are the promises which God gives to His praying children. He tells us that as we pray and receive our joy shall be full; that if we bring all things to Him in prayer His own unspeakable peace shall possess and keep our hearts in Christ Jesus; that of all who ask from Him not one shall be turned away; that to any who knock at His door by faith it shall be opened.

The possibilities and necessity of prayer are engraven in the eternal foundations of the gospel. The relation that is established between the Father and the Son and the decreed covenant between the two has prayer as the base of its existence, and the conditions of the advances and successes of the gospel. Prayer is the condition by which all our foes are to be overcome and all the inheritance is to be possessed. Prayer is not a mere habit, something to be gone through because of respectability. It is more than a mere privilege. It is a solemn service due to God, an adoration, a worship, an approach to God for some request, the presentation of some desire, the expression of some need to Him who supplies all need and who satisfies all, who as a Father finds His greatest pleasure in relieving the wants and granting the desires of His children.

Prayer is the child's request, not to the winds, nor to the world, but to the Father. Prayer is the seeking of God's great and greatest good, which will not come if we do not pray. It is serious and difficult work. The manliest, the mightiest work, the divinest work which man can do, prayer gives vision in the secret place, intelligence in work, sense in judgment, courage in temptation, tenacity in adversity and a joyous assurance in the will of God. It lifts man up from earthly things and links him with the heavenly. Thus man by prayer becomes more God-like, is drawn nearer to Him and to heaven. Proficiency and power in prayer cannot be attained without continuance and much practice. Thousands to-day in every land know by personal experience that prayer is the mightiest force in the world. Jesus confidently teaches that if the disciple abides in Him lives in Him and for Him, devotes himself wholly to Him, follows Him as Master and Lord, he may ask whatever he wishes and it will be done. Everything that is asked in His name that is in His spirit, according to His will, in harmony with His purpose, shall be done for the His purpose shall be done for the

The crying need of this day is a crushing burden of prayer. If God has placed a burden on your heart, you can feel assured that He will answer, if you will earnestly persist and persevere in prayer. Do not doubt it, never doubt it, if He fails to answer to-day, or next month; persevere more earnestly and the request shall be granted. Let us remember that every great revival has begun by some one praying. God places marvellous things at our disposal. We can be the means by which a mighty revival will take place in our church and city. Therefore, I say unto you, what things soever ye desire, when ye pray believe that ye receive them and ye shall have them.

Prayer has divided seas, made flinty rocks gush into fountains, closed the mouths of lions, burst open iron gates. Prayer has bridled and changed the raging passions of men, destroyed vast armies of proud blustering atheists. It has been the means of many being restored to health and strength. Prayer connects us with the Divine battery of life and power. Let us more fully avail ourselves of this power and privilege placed so cheerfully at our disposal. Let us pray for the quickening of our spiritual life, and that of our church and country, and for the rapid extension of God's kingdom throughout the world. We should earnestly pray for the peace and prosperity of our country, and all other lands. The ministry of prayer is unlike all other forms of service and much superior to them. It has fewer limitations. In all other service we are constantly limited by space, bodily strength, equipment, material, obstacles. Prayer knows no such limitations. It ignores space, it goes directly by the telegraphy of spirit into men's hearts, quietly passes through walls up to the throne of God, and old people may be helped by our prayers. Let us give more time for prayer.

Hospital Day—Sunday, May 12

This movement to celebrate National Hospital Day had its inception 13 years ago, and the date of May 12 was chosen because it was an appropriate day, being the anniversary of the birth of Florence Nightingale, that great British nurse, who in 1854 was dispatched by the British military forces to Crimea to take charge of the military nursing. She organized the nursing of that time on such a firm basis that she has been recognized as the patron saint of all nurses, whose principles are still the foundation of our present-day nursing system.

Hospital day was organized to bring to the attention of the people the fact that here are 7,000 hospitals in the United States and Canada working 24 hours a day, every day of the year, with just one purpose i.e., to make you and your friends comfortable in your illness.

Peterborough is justly proud of its hospitals and justly proud of their management. Nicholls and St. Josephs are duly accredited hospitals, measuring up to the standards required by the American College of Surgeons. Their expenditures are as important to this community as its department stores or factories. Hospitals are truly an important asset to any community. The care of the sick of a community measures up to big business.

The hospital to-day, working in accord with medical science, has made most wonderful strides over the institution of a few years ago. It has kept pace with medical science, which has, indeed, moved fast that it keeps the modern doctor eternally busy in order to keep on the band-wagon of progress.

Our hospitals are duly grateful to those citizens who in the past have encouraged and helped them finance many of the modern things that go into the hospital, such as X-ray, equipment for the physiotheraphy department, contributions to operating rooms, endowment of hospital beds, and many other things that the good citizens of Peterborough have done for our hospitals in the past.

Nicholls Hospital invites you to visit the hospital Sunday afternoon from 2 to 5. Nurses will be ready to show you round the various departments during those hours.

The Christian Church ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matt. 16:13-20; Mark 8:26-32; Acts 2:41-47; Rom. 12:4-8; Eph. 1:15-23; 2:13-22; 4:1-16; 5:22-27; 1 Tim. 3:15.

When Christ drew out of the Apostle Peter the confession of faith, "Thou art the Christ the Son of the living God," he told he would make this faith the foundation of his church and promised it would endure through the ages.

The growth of the church is not natural but supernatural. All that man does is to sow the seed which is the word of God. God gives the increase. Jesus likened this growth to that of a tiny mustard seed which became a great tree.

Paul wrote a letter from his prison in Rome to the Ephesians which is the great church letter. In it he calls the church the body of Christ and us the members with Christ the chief corner stone.

The church is God's appointed meeting place and "melting pot" for all races and classes and conditions of mankind whose "middle walls of partition" are here broken down through Christ. (Golden Text—Romans 15:5)

THE STRIKE RESUMED.

Apparently the unemployed in the Crowland Township area are more concerned with creating a disturbance than they are about working for the relief allowances provided for them.

Despite three visits to the scene by Premier Hepburn and a concession of a 10 per cent. increase in relief vouchers, the Crowland workless have voted to go on strike once more, ignoring a stern warning from Mr. Hepburn that the province has no intention of yielding to their demands and that their conduct would mean "war to the bitter end."

There was no other course open to the Government than to marshall provincial police in the strike area to protect those among the unemployed who desire to work for their relief; certainly mob law cannot be tolerated.

If there are, in Crowland or elsewhere, people who would rather go without public assistance than work in return therefor, they have the right to decline to work if they see fit, but they have no right to interfere with others who hold a different view of the matter.

The point is that work has been provided to take care of those who are without employment, and so far the vast majority of the men affected are declining to take advantage of the opportunity.

They are obviously playing a losing game because they cannot hope to force the Premier to yield to demands that he feels are impossible.

THE 45 AND OVER CLUB.

Up in the Border Cities has arisen a movement to bring about a new deal for the middle-aged man, and it is not surprising to learn that the campaign is spreading like wild-fire.

The National 45 and Over Club is described as a non-partisan, non-sectarian and non-radical group strongly opposed to Communism, and it aims at doing something for the older men who have been discarded by industry and business.

"The important object we hope to achieve," explains Patrick A. Codyne, organizer of the movement, "is to remove the discrimination that now exists against men forty and over. We also try to create work for our members."

So rapidly has this organization seized upon the imagination of middle-aged men, not only from the trades and the crafts, but from the ranks of white-colored workers, that there are already twelve branches in the Border Cities area, seven in Windsor, two in East Windsor and one each in Riverside, Walkerville and Sandwich. These branches have 2,500 members, and now steps are being taken to make the movement a national one with an ultimate possible membership of a million and one-quarter.

It is claimed for the 45 and Over Club plan that by creating more of the spirit of the brotherhood of man among older victims of the unusual economic conditions, Canadian citizens will be kept from drifting into the Communist ranks.

These middle-year persons certainly are in need of a champion, and it is undoubtedly true that up to the launching of this movement they have had no place to get together outside of the Communistic element.

OUT OF A CLEAR SKY.

Truly pride goes before a fall, and so just when Peterborough citizens were beginning to swell out their chests as they compared what they considered the most enviable financial position this city occupied with that of other less favored centres, from out of a clear sky came the startling announcement that the bailiff was in possession of the City Hall.

Strong as Gibraltar were we, so we fondly imagined until the shock of yesterday's awakening sent the world whirling before our eyes.

Other cities might have their difficulties, but Peterborough was different, we were saying only yesterday—or at least only Thursday.

And we had a right to say it, for had we not got along for over three years without issuing a debenture, were not our tax collections much better than the average, and had we not been able to budget for this year's operations on a reduced tax rate?

Came Friday, and in a split second our dream of financial stability vanished as the horrifying news circulated that our vaunted financial strength had not availed us against a judgment of $75 and costs, a paltry $110 all told, and that the mayor's chair and the other seats, so long polished by aldermanic trousers, had been "seized."

What a downfall was there, my countrymen!

Think of it—a bailiff escounced in the stamping ground of the Dennes and the Stockers and the McIntyres and the McDonalds.

Were it not all so humiliating we might hope that the thing would go along to its logical conclusion and the law would swallow up the whole City Hall, for after all it is not a thing of beauty or even a joy for ever.

But that is impossible; and anyway, we are facing a condition and not a theory, and that condition is that we have been sold up the river for $110—it's mutiny, that's what it is!

LIFE INSURANCE WEEK—MAY 13-18.

At a time when the old order is changing, when in federal, provincial and municipal affairs there are eager advocates of extreme legislation, when public thought is disturbed and private individuals are perplexed, it is good to have the old lessons of thrift and financial independence emphasized in a national and emphatic way by life insurance companies and life insurance underwriters.

The institution of life insurance holds an enviable place in public estimation—and properly so. Representing in Canada, as it does, some 3,500,000 policyholders, one-third of the total population of the Dominion, it has administered the vast total of its assets which are its policyholders' savings, to the advantage of the individual the family and the nation. In times of unprecedented distress, it has met every obligation promptly, paid every claim in full.

In the last five years it has paid out over $800,000,000 to policyholders and beneficiaries, and of this total more than seventy-five per cent. has gone to living policyholders. And the striking fact of these payments does not lie in the large amounts that have been disbursed from year to year, but in the fact that these benefits are the result of self-sacrifice on the part of 3,500,000 Canadian policyholders—thrifty citizens who have brought their savings together in life insurance funds so that they and their families would have the necessary financial security for the future.

In serving its policyholders, life insurance in Canada has not only contributed immensely to individual welfare, but it has been a powerful factor in maintaining national stability. From the wider viewpoint, these citizens, who have joined together to provide for their own financial future are, through their life insurance savings, the main lenders of money to governments and municipalities. These savings, to the extent of hundreds of millions of dollars, have helped to develop Canada. Through life insurance investments they have given the farmer money to build homes and barns, to buy seed, to purchase implements and livestock, to harvest the crops. They have stimulated business for the corner store and the country merchant. They have given employment to urban workers in cities, towns and villages all across Canada. They have extended transportation facilities by rail and water, built highways, paved streets, erected schools, constructed water, sewage and other public utilities, provided money for all kinds of necessary federal, provincial and municipal undertakings. What life insurance policyholders' millions have meant in sustaining national life, in relieving the strain upon relief funds, can never be over-estimated.

UNEMPLOYED FOR FARM WORK.

It is generally agreed that the Provincial Government is carrying out a particularly constructive piece of work in endeavoring to form contact between the unemployed in the towns and cities who are qualified to engage in farm work and farmers who need and are able to pay for assistance during the season. All those who belong to the latter class are now being asked to communicate their needs to the Hon. David Croll, whose department will make an effort to furnish them with the type of help that they require.

Several of the smaller newspapers throughout the province report that farmers in their territories are seeking help which they cannot obtain. While the towns and even villages are filled with men drawing unemployment relief, the latter cannot be induced to accept farm work when it is offered to them, and prefer in many cases the greater ease of their present condition. Yet there must be many on relief throughout the province who, if placed in contact with farmers seeking assistance, would readily grasp the opportunity to accept work, especially if they have any acquaintanceship with what is expected of them.

It is to form a clearing-house for such contacts that Mr. Croll's department is now functioning. Needs of farmers are to be ascertained and the different municipal relief offices are to become species of employment agencies. A hint at a measure of compulsion is, moreover, given from official sources. Men who are capable of working on farms and who will not accept such employment are to be denied further aid in the form of relief.

The Government will, we feel, receive general support in deciding upon such a course of action. There can be little sympathy with men who, willing and able to work, refuse to accept employment. Furthermore, as the Sarnia Observer puts it: "There is a tendency to regard unemployment relief as a permanent institution capable of providing an existence for the indolent. Apparently it is the intention of the Government to discourage such sentiment and to impress the unemployed with the necessity of lightening the burden of the taxpayer. The outlay for unemployment relief has become very formidable. Premier Hepburn has indicated that at least an additional fifteen million dollars for relief purposes will have to be raised during the next year, and that a special tax either on income or on business turnover will have to be levied to provide for relief requirements.

"The taxation situation in Canada is becoming terrifying. With a serious dwindling in the number of taxpayers there is the spectre of steadily increasing taxes. Those who have the responsibilities of government will have to come to a realization of the impossibility of thus increasing the financial burden on those who have still sufficient revenues to be in the tax-paying class. It is the task of governments to find some other way of carrying on the country's business besides the overdone impoverishment of thrifty and self-supporting citizens."

The "dole" burden constitutes the major one now resting upon the taxpayers of the country. Before there can be much relief, improvement must take place in this regard. It is essential that wherever work is available, it shall be accepted by those who are able to perform it and the country most distinctly cannot afford to pay for the support of idlers at a time when work is open to them. If the campaign which has been opened by the Provincial Government has the effect of reducing the ranks of those on relief through furnishing them with farm employment and thus lowers the general outlay on relief, it will have proved distinctly helpful.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The chain letter fad is just another revelation of humanity's ambition to get something for nothing. Still, people seem to be extracting so much fun from it the thing should be put under the amusement tax.

The addresses of the House of Lords and Commons to His Majesty and the King's reply did not take half an hour altogether. We have much to learn in this country about brevity in public speaking.

The old saying that nothing is sure except death and taxes is being demonstrated in Ontario with Premier Hepburn predicting a further load in the near future.

J. S. Woodsworth says that it is all nonsense for Ontario farmers to think that they are independent. However, even that opinion is not likely to cause a rush of rural recruits to the banners of the C.C.F.

The Brockville Recorder and Times says that the United States is a logical market for Canada. But not in the opinion of the Maine producers a logical market for Canadian potatoes.

The Ottawa Journal objects to the fact that all the speeches delivered at Ottawa's jubilee service were in both English and French. Many people have the same complaint in regard to radio announcements.

The best way to keep a person from becoming a nuisance is to keep a body bale.—Kitchener Record.

NEWS OF OUR OWN VILLAGE

Politics in these parts is beginning to liven up, what with the C.C.F'ers putting a candidate in the field, Joe Duffus already on the war path and Ham Burnham's 1-man party somewheres in the background. The more the merrier, say we in passing.

Our village ball team played 2 games here Mon. with a bunch from Toronto, west of this place, and the affair was enjoyed by all and sundry, especially by the fans outside the park. They'll be a new fence up before the next game, however, we hasten to point out.

This was clean-up week in the burg so very appropriately some of the lads has been circulating them chain brother-can-you-spare-a-dime letters. So far your scribe has been a fugitive from the chain letter gang, we announce with pride.

Reforestation is getting livelier around here lately. Walt Stocker having planted some young trees in Victoria Park this week. It will be some years yet, however, before they'll be much shade from the same, we opine.

The Y girls put on quite a show in the Opry House Friday nite, and a big house enjoyed the dances, exercises and such put on by the same. The Hall of Wisdom philosopher see the girls years ago used to get the same results sweeping and such, but that's only 1 man's opinion, note we.

Harry Stevens, former pupil of the Central School here, who has been doing well in politics since he left this vicinity, is billed to give a talk tonite in the High School hall and we wouldn't be surprised if Harry had quite a audience. Another local boy makes good, comment we proudly.

Thev was a bonfire and such at Exhibition Park Jubilee nite, but the fire wasn't the only thing that burned up, many of the villagers doing the same over the bus service, if any, on that occasion.

What's in the Name of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

TWEED, ONTARIO

Situated on the Moira river, 25 miles north-east of Belleville, in the centre of a thriving agricultural district, Tweed looks back 107 years to the time when James Johnson, the first white settler, erected a little cabin on the river bank.

From that time on Tweed has been in the making, although the population grew slowly, the official census in 1895 showing 800 residents. Due to founding of new industries since then the present day population has reached 1,500.

Early records of the town were lost many years ago and local historians can only assume that Johnson, or some one intimately associated with him, must have originated from the vicinity of the Tweed river in Scotland.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

"What has recently been learned of the relations of food to health constitutes one of the major scientific developments of our times." So writes Professor Sherman in his book, "Food and Health," and no one is better qualified than he to judge.

It is not only on the health side that these advances have been made, but also on the economic side. "Half the struggle for life is a struggle for food." It has been said, but never before in history has there been a time when good food, and food which fulfills all the requirements of nutrition and sanitation, could be procured so inexpensively.

So far as sanitation is concerned, the federal government, in conjunction with the state governments carries out food inspections to see that it comes from sanitary sources, and is not contaminated in handling or transportation. The powers granted to many boards of health in this respect is very broad. In New York city, the board of health has the power to enact a sanitary code which becomes law on publication, without requiring the approval of any other body or official.

Investigates Manufactures

Aside from the legal restrictions, the American Medical association, through its committee on foods, investigates manufactured food products and tests the claim of the makers. When a food or a brand of food products satisfies the ideas of the committee, it then grants the manufacturer the seal of approval of the committee. Housewives are begining to recognize the importance of this seal, and to require that the goods they purchase shall carry it.

On the economics side, the great increase in production made possible by the spread of scientific knowledge of agriculture, has been largely responsible for cheaper food. Added to this cheaper and more rapid transportation, helped also by effective methods of refrigeration. The manufacturing and preserving of food has now been developed so that the essential nutritional elements are kept intact.

Sometimes, indeed, in our modern manufacturing era, the artificialities of food products which are so vehemently advanced as improvements, are really detrimental to the nutritive value of the food—when, for instance, refining or preserving removes minerals or destroys or removes vitamins. The housekeeper, therefore, must continue to be alert, and to keep her "sales resistance" intact.

ALL OF US

FOR HUSBANDS AND WIVES

I suppose every man wonders once in a while whether his wife really likes him. She says she does, and he wants to believe her, but after all maybe she doesn't really know, herself, whether she does or doesn't.

Maybe she's just used to him, sort of reconciled....After all, he isn't so much. He isn't as young as he used to be. And he's sort of cranky. And she knows him through and through. And he certainly isn't exciting. And he knows there are times when he's pretty difficult to live with....And would she still stick if she inherited a lot of money and his little pay check wasn't important any more.

I'll tell you how a husband can discover for himself whether the woman he married really does like him.

Suppose he is walking along in his home town, all by himself, going somewhere or just walking....He doesn't know where his wife is, he doesn't know whether she's home or somewhere else....But suddenly, ahead of him, he sees a familiar figure. He knows that dress, that tilt of the head. He OUGHT to know—it's his wife!

So he quickens his pace and he catches up with her....and when he comes abreast of her, he touches her elbow or he says "Hello!"... And she turns quickly and sees him and says "Hello!" to him. And right then he can tell whether she likes him or not....By the look in her eyes, by the smile, by her happy manner. If it is a glad encounter it will shine like a jewel in that drab street, it will be a glad enrichment of the day, it will be more than passing sweet.....And if it isn't, that will be very sad.

If they still like each other, this husband and this wife, if their love is still a part of them, then this sudden encounter will remind them of those dear surprises of long ago when they walked along the street and accidentally met the one who was in their thoughts. And that memory will draw them closer together, even now. And they'll tuck arms and walk along the street, glad to be alive on such a day.

It's a very nice thing when it happens that way to a husband and a wife.

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

THE FIRST SKIRMISH AT BATOCHE

On this date (May 11) in 1885, the Canadian militia was preparing for the battle of Batoche which ended the temporary power of Louis Riel and Gabriel Dumont. The first attack on the rebel stronghold on the 9th had resulted in what Major Boulton described as "a decided check". The artillery had shelled the rebel positions; the Toronto Grenadiers and the 90th of Winnipeg were ready for action; the Midlanders made one picturesque charge and cleared part of the front; but none of this forced the halfbreeds out of their rifle pits. Gunner W. Phillips of "A" Battery and Private Moor, of the Grenadiers were killed and six were wounded, including Capt. Masonof Grenadiers (afterwards Sen. Mason). The camp was moved forward and on the Saturday, General Middleton ordered up the rest of the Midland battalion. It was a busy Sunday with scoutings and troop movements but time was spared for a religious service in the evening conducted by Rev. D. M. Gordon of Winnipeg, the chaplain of the 90th. Then came partial rest until broke the dawn of May 12, the fateful climax of the rebellion of 1885. Even today survivors recall the nervous tension of that night, when no one knew whether the rebels would attack the camp corral and there was a steady interchange of rifle fire all through the night, and a mighty cold night at that.

Peterborough's Possibilities

By HOMER MOORE

ARTICLE 28

As a nation is powerful or the reverse, depending on whether or not its natural resources are located and developed, so a city is progressive or not, according to the activity or lack of it with respect to the natural resources within reach.

The city of Peterborough has grown to its present size without the development of the natural resources in the districts near it. Some of those resources have been partially developed by outside people—people from other cities—and the material taken to other cities to build them up. Why not build up Peterborough? If we have attained our present size by haphazard methods, what are the possibilities by a systematic method? How large do you suppose our city could become if all those natural resources were brought to Peterborough to be utilized in some way? Could we then double, treble or quadruple our present population and extend by many acres its area?

Some of our citizens have vision! In utilizing a part of the lift-lock hill for a park area, they must have had a glimpse of the Peterborough of the future! While that park area seems to be, to-day, on the edge of the city, if our northern resources are brought to Peterborough for manufacturing purposes, the resultant increase in population will mean the extension of our city beyond the life-lock, making that wonderful piece of mechanism closer in. The writer remembers when the whole lift-lock hill was a cow-pasture! Now, however, one of the greatest engineering feats ever accomplished, is there. So, progress produced a change when the idea was formed!

Real progress means action of a high order. To come into this world, get enough to eat and wear for a few years and then die, IS NOT what we were put on earth for. Some people seem to think that is living! The world and its occupants is not a stupendous blunder! God made this world and He put every one of us on it for a definite purpose and one purpose is to develop or bring into use the many and varied raw materials He has put in our adjacent territory. That area is in such a natural condition, that those who are trying to open it up or will soon try, will be known as pioneers, as much as were our forefathers closer to Lake Ontario. The work they accomplished with clearance of timber, cultivation of soil, road building etc. was in reality done for our benefit, and so we of to-day should open up the rocky areas to the north for the benefit of those who will in a few years be taking our place. The boys and girls of today are the men and women of tomorrow. What are we going to leave them? Money? or the northern rocky area as it is? Or are we going to open up that northern treasure-area so they can see we of today were not blind to their needs?

Nowhere else in all Canada, is there such a large undeveloped or unopened treasure-area as in Haliburton County, northern Hastings County and those three rock vaults have much valuable—extremely so—treasure in them. Have we the scientific keys to open those rocky vaults so our children can utilize the contents when they will need them? Most people only find out the worth-while things at or near the end of life, so if we can do something beneficial to give future generations a good start, even as it was done in other ways, for us, why do we wait? Not very far away is a vast territory just seemingly waiting for our intelligence to act upon it and Peterborough city is the city to do it! To those of us who know some of the many valuable treasures to be found in those rocky vaults, it seems as if the majority of people are blind to the possibilities—hence these articles in this column to act as guide posts along the way.

If you are a farmer or whatever your occupation may be, it would be a mighty good idea for you, if you would have the printer put your name and address or concession number on your writing paper. In this way your friends and strangers would see you were progressive and would also know how and where to locate your farm or other activity and such "letter-heads" might be the means of drawing attention to material you have.

Every new method in anything means progress and this way of identifying your farm or other occupation on your own writing paper would be a valuable advertisement for you and your products and it might indirectly help open up a district near you.

Some of those northern districts have the "right" rock formation to produce TIN. If such is ever found in quantity, it would be a powerful stimulant to Peterborough industrially. TIN is very much in demand. It constitutes an important part of MERCURY.

Our northern areas also have the rock formations which should carry CINNABAR. I have never seen such listed in any report of these districts, but my scientific research convinced me that this important deposit would be found. It can be "made" but the process is too intricate and costly. Nature has made it for us and it is stored up in those rocks! It is a very good commercial product, that is, a large amount is used in the commerce of the world.

I remember several years ago being around an area of limestone near Peterborough County. In a limestone ledge I saw something, to me then, unusual. I got it out and took it to my good friend, the mineral expert, and he pronounced it mercury.

There are many deposits—large deposits—of metals in those northern areas, requiring strong transporting agencies such as railway cars, and there are other deposits of rare materials which an ordinary motor car could carry and there are other materials in concentrated form that could be carried in a person's pocket. Such information, however, is rarely, if ever, allowed to get into print at any price! I may, however, is rarely if ever, allowed to it in a special article to enhance "Peterborough's Possibilities."

WELLAND Ont., May 11 (C.P.).— The strike of Crowland relief workers definitely fell through this morning when 30 men, under the leadership of Tom Martin, chairman of the unemployed committee marched to their jobs and started working at the Beatrice Street sewer project.

The picket line had dwindled to Frank Hasiam and William Douglas, two strike leaders.

With Martin, there were seven members of the unemployed committee who went back to work. The committee members included Pete O'Neill, William Martin, Oliver Edwards, Herman Brown, J. Belcastro, Alfred Joudry and Mike Petoski.

No Disorders.

There was absolutely no sign of disorder although the large squad of Provincial Police, under Inspector C. F. Airey, were again at the scene.

Just before the hour to start work, Inspector Airey announced any workers present who were not scheduled to work to-day would be allowed to do so if they desired and would be given credit on their next voucher. There was several of the unemployed who took advantage of this offer.

Township Clerk W. P. Marshall said any man who refused to go back to work to-day would be permanently cut off relief. However it was apparent all scheduled to work to-day were at their jobs.

A mass meeting of the unemployed called for to-night will likely mark officially the end of the strike.

J. Taylor, Deputy Minister.

Presence of this craft on the Upper Lake will mean the Department possesses a small law-enforcement boat on all the Great Lakes but Huron. While Mr. Taylor declined to comment on just how great was the menace of poaching in Ontario commercial fish waters, he said the poaching problem has been least in Lake Huron and greatest in the eastern end of Lake Superior and Lake Erie.

On Lake Erie the Department recently stationed the "Wasp," former Lake Timagami patrol boat. Lake Ontario and Lake St. Clair are adequately patrolled also.

TEXAS PRISON GUARD IS SLAIN DURING UPRISING

Two Officials Wounded, One Convict Shot Down—Three Others Escape.

RIOT STABBING FATAL.

HUNTSVILLE, Tex., May 11 (AP) —The death of a guard and two prisoners and the escape of three convicts to-day marked bloody disorders at two of the many units in state's prison system.

A break in which a guard and a prisoner were killed at the Eastham prison farm and fights at the main penitentiary here occurred less than 18 hours after Raymond Hamilton, Southwest desperado and his companion in crime, Joe Palmer, were electrocuted for slaying a guard.

Authorities said they found no connection between the uprisings and the execution of the two killers who led the Eastham farm escape in which Major Crowson, a guard, was killed in 1934.

Jack Peddy led the prison farm break 40 miles north of here. Using a smuggled gun, he killed Guard Virgil Welch, seriously wounded Homer Parker, convict turnkey, and beat Guard Tom Stephens into unconsciousness.

Peddy was shot down as he, two murderers and a robber fled across a field. The others—Sam Grant and R. C. Tipton, both serving life sentences for murder, and Harry Lutlow, serving 35 years for robbery—fled into the Trinity River bottoms.
